OSGC plant ruling upheld by judge; appeal likely

By Nate Wisneski
Kalihwisaks

Brown County Circuit Court Judge Marc Hammer has ruled that the Oneida Seven Generations Corporation (OSGC) misrepresented plans for their waste to energy facility when obtaining the conditional use permit (CUP) from the city of Green Bay. The decision upholds the Green Bay City Council's decision to rescind the permit in October of 2012.

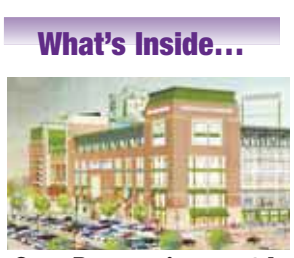
The decision was handed down on Wednesday, January 9 during an afternoon hearing.

The waste to energy facility is designed to take municipal waste that would otherwise be placed into a landfill, sort it, and put nonhazardous, non-recyclable materials through a gasification process. It will generate power, which will be sold to Wisconsin Public Service. It is set to be built at 1230 Hurlbut Street on the city's northwest side. It received the CUP in March of 2011.

The lawsuit stated the city council acted arbitrary and unreasonable and acted on unsubstantial evidence when they rescinded OSGC's CUP.

"As we sit here today Seven Gens is in full compliance with every single condition of the CUP," said OSGC's attorney, Eric Wilson. "It's in full compliance yet the common council decided to revoke the permit, something it couldn't do."

Judge Hammer disagreed stating he felt OSGC misrepresented plans for the facility when obtaining the CUP. One example he cited were the absence of smoke stacks from renderings provided to city officials.



"I'm not finding any evidence in this record that would allow a reasonable person to

GTC votes to adopt proposed Judiciary Law

By Nate Wisneski
Kalihwisaks

After lengthy discussions the General Tribal Council (GTC) took historic action by adopting the proposed Judiciary Law during the GTC Annual Meeting, Monday, January 7 at the Radisson Hotel & Conference Center.

The Judiciary Law establishes a court system with two branches, the trial court and court of appeals. It sets system provisions like education requirements for judges along with divisions within the trial court.

The GTC showed excitement as the Family Division of the Trial Court will allow the Oneida Judicial System to make decisions regarding issues involving Oneida children. The GTC directed that the Family Division be implemented as soon as possible.

The new Judicial Law will have elections for judges taking place during the 2014 tribal general election held in July. It will start accepting cases November 1, 2014. The current Oneida Tribal Judicial System will fully dissolve on March 1, 2015.

The GTC also clarified some language in the Cannon of Ethics for the soon to be elected judges of the Oneida Judicial System. The Cannon of Ethics was sent back to the Legislative Operating Committee to make the GTC directed adjustments. The updated code will then go through the tribe's public hearing process before being considered by the Oneida Business Committee for adoption.

After multiple deferrals from the GTC the proposed Administrative Procedures Act amendments along the Legislative Procedures Act (LPA) were approved.

The LPA aims to create a streamlined lawmaking process highlighted by an Oneida Register. It will be the home to all of the tribal laws, regulations, proposed legislation, and notices. The Register will be accessible to tribal members.

After a brief presentation regarding the 2012 annual financial audit it was passed quickly. The audit showed no significant findings.

The Tribal Treasurer's annual report, the OBC report along with reports from the Appeals Commission, Trust and Enrollment Committee, Oneida Nation School Board, Oneida Gaming Commission, and the Land Commission were all accepted without being heard.

The new business portion of the agenda will be forwarded to an upcoming GTC meeting as the GTC adjourned after approving the reports. The Proposed tribal vision and priorities report along with the per capita options presentation will be heard at a future GTC meeting.

Few Oneidas gain from Cowbell settlement

By Dawn Walschinski
Kalihwisaks

About a decade ago, Doreen Perote's family was prompted to action by a letter concerning their father Orville Cornelius Sr.'s Individual Indian Money (IIM) account.

"My brother brought over some paperwork that he received in the mail that needed to be filled out with all my brothers and sisters, my aunts and uncles," said Perote.

After getting all the information rounded up and sent in, they found out they were heirs to the grand sum of .99 cents.

"We were all making a joke about it because we were all getting .09 cents apiece because there's 10 of us," she said.

Then came along the Cobell v. Salazar lawsuit. More paperwork followed over the years until this December.

"My mom called me that Saturday before Christmas and asked me if I got a check in the mail," said Perote. After checking the mail, she saw a check from Indian Trust Settlement.

"I thought 'here's my .09 cents,'" she said. "So I opened it up, and there was $1000, and I just couldn't believe it," she said.

The family is still uncertain as to why their father had an IIM account, possibly because he was part Stockbridge-Munsee.

The descendants of Orville Cornelius are a tiny few of the Oneida citizens receiving a benefit from the $3.4 billion Indian Trust Settlement which resolved a class action lawsuit that charged the federal government mismanaged trust accounts and individual Indian trust lands. There may be more people who qualify, and they have until March 1 to file a claim.

To be part of the settlement, an individual had to have had an IIM account between 1985 to 2009, or be an heir of a deceased landowner or IIM account holder. Call 1-800-961-6109 or visit www.indiantrust.com for more information.

OBC tackles gas drive off issue

By Dawn Walschinski
Kalihwisaks

The Oneida Business Committee (OBC) tried to tackle the nagging problem of gas drive offs at the Wednesday, January 9 meeting.

The debate focused on the need to collect the approximately $40,000 in drive offs versus the cost of additional cameras, procedures, and inconvenience to customers.

According to Oneida Retail's Director of Operations Jack Denny, requiring customers to prepay for their gas would be a hassle to those claiming tax exempt status.

"They would have to come inside first, go outside, pay, pump, come inside and pay again," said Denny. He stated that the drive offs equal .2 percent of the overall gallons sold.

However, OBC Chairman Ed Delgado stated stopping the drive offs is important.

"Tribal members who care about the resources of the tribe think it's very unfair that some people … are being held unaccountable," he said.

The OBC asked Oneida Retail to come back in 90 days with a plan to address drive offs. One of the ideas being looked at is posting photos of individuals caught on surveillance video in a drive off.

The OBC also approved the Oneida Election Board's recommendation for an April 27 caucus and special elections to be held July 6.

From 1A/OSGC plant ruling

conclude that there may be a smokestack," said Hammer. "Mr. Cornelius (OSGC's CEO Kevin Cornelius) indicated that there are no smoke stacks, no oxygen, and no ash. I am satisfied that is a misstatement."

The plant has moved multiple times after finding temporary homes in the Town of Oneida, Village of Hobart, and Village of Ashwaubenon. The Town of Oneida location was not selected due to costs associated with running power line to the Wisconsin Pubic Service substation. The Village of Hobart location was changed due to the village's demands that the parcel of property the project was set be on be removed from the trust application process and that the tribe waive its sovereign immunity in regards to the project. The village of Ashwaubenon location was moved after gathering community input and being approached by the City of Green Bay offered a location for the plant.

Attorneys for OSGC made it aware that an appeal is likely along with a lawsuit moving forward seeking monetary damages.

Powell meets with OTJS

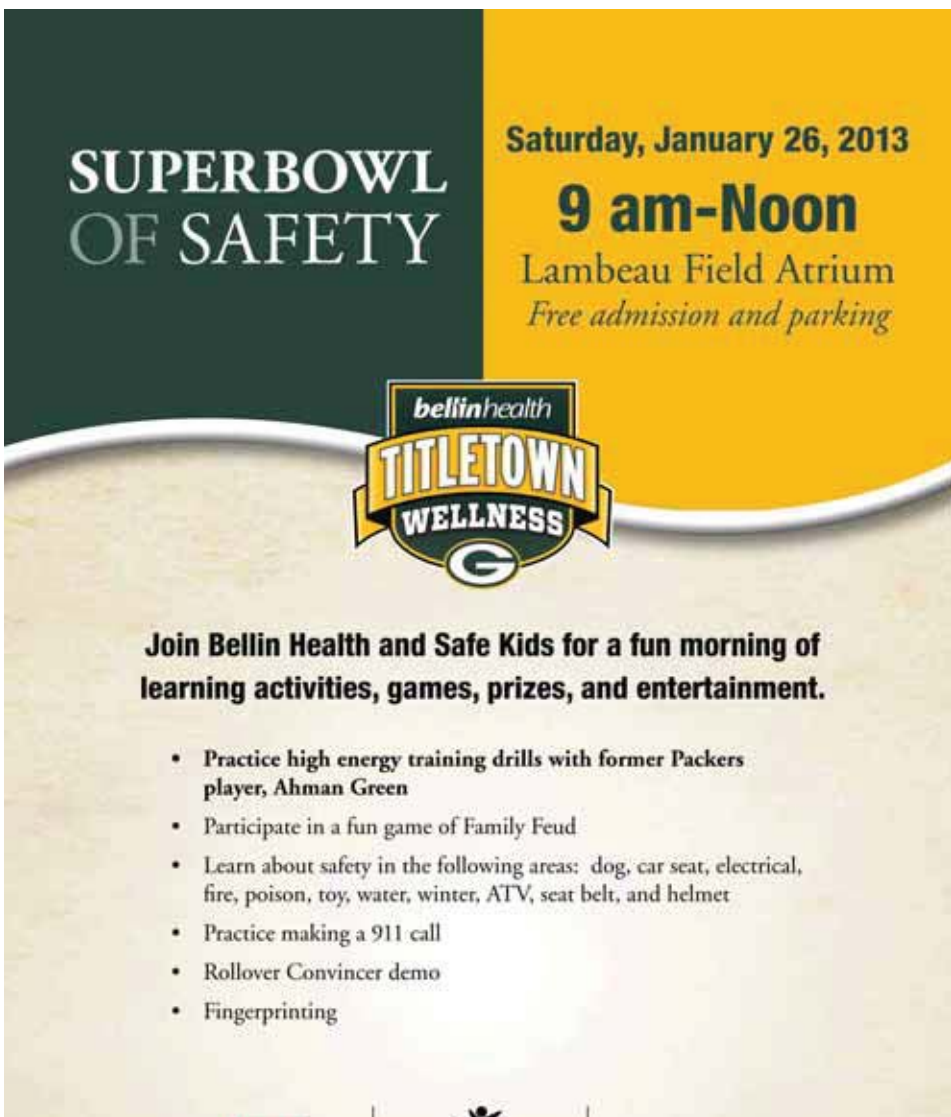
John Powell, District Court Administrator-State of Wisconsin, representing the Eighth Judicial District met with Oneida Tribal Judicial System Administrator and Judicial Officers to reaffirm the positive relationship between the two judicial systems.

The meeting forged professional support for two administrative counterparts that often times face similar challenges in effective and efficient court management. Getting the most out of budget constraints while pressured to balance revenue generation with service delivery, case management, minimizing undue political influences, personnel management and coping with new impacts of social media on court systems were just a few of the topics covered.

Administrator Powell has a wealth of knowledge and experience in judicial systems and is astute in balancing interests of the judicial bench, those seeking relief before the court, and the community at large. He not only shared professional development resources, but went so far as to offer his office as a supportive outlet.

Oneida Tribal Judicial Officers have a long standing positive relationship with area judges. Judge Donald Zuidmulder – Chief Judge for the 8th District, along with Brown County Circuit Court Judge Timothy Hinkfuss have supported Oneida's expression of sovereignty through the development of its judicial system. The court systems exchange resources as well.



The Brown County Circuit Court has utilized the expertise of Oneida Tribal Judicial System's unique Peacemaking venue as a means of dispute resolution.

Brown County Court has referred individuals to Peacemaking in Oneida utilizing our court system and our Peacemakers. The sessions have proven to be successful.

In April of this year while the Oneida Tribal Judicial System is hosting the Wisconsin Tribal Judges Association quarterly meeting, Administrator Powell will arrange for judicial officer training, in conjunction with the 8th District meeting at the same time.

"Each system benefits and serves its constituents by sharing information and maintaining mutual respect," Chief Judicial Officer Janice McLester said.

The Eighth Judicial District encompasses the counties of Brown, Door, Kewaunee, Marinette, Outagamie, Oconto and Waupaca. The Court Administrator's office is located in Green Bay.

You can shed tears
that he is gone,
Or you can smile
because he lived,

You can close your eyes and pray that he will come back,
Or you can open your eyes and see all that he has left.

Your heart can be empty
because you can't see him
Or you can be full of the love that you shared,
You can turn your back on tomorrow
and live yesterday,
Or you can be happy for tomorrow because of yesterday.

You can remember him
and only that he is gone
Or you can cherish his memory and let it live on,

You can cry and close your mind
be empty and turn your back,
Or you can do what he would want:
smile, open your eyes, love and go on.

Vice-Chairman's Corner...

Shek'oli and Hoyan 2013,

I wish you a new year of positive changes for you, your family and our community. The positive start to this year includes my wish to share with you the recent community visioning sessions of December 17 and 18, 2012.

As we enter this new year we also enter the next day. With each day we must determine the direction we are going or we may become lost or end up somewhere we did not intend to be.

The question for me on every subject is "what do you want?" I think we have been avoiding the questions and answers for far to long.

Once you determine what you want then you can determine what direction you have to go to get there.

Set up of the Community Voice Meetings

I was fortunate enough to attend the visioning sessions at the Radisson on December 17 & 18 and was very pleased with the attendance of the membership. I would like to say thank you to the facilitators:

- Danelle Wilson
- Tammy VanSchyndel
- Dianne McLester-Heim
- Raquel Hill
- Jennifer Hill-Kelley
- Nic Reynolds
- Wayne Snelius
- Julie Clark
- Laura Laitinen-Warren
- Kelly Skenandore-Holtz
- Diane House
- Susan House

Oneida Nation High School Students; Rachael Ninham, Heather Stevens, Shelia Stevens and a special appreciation to Lindsay Dallas for sharing the Opening with all of us to initate the visioning sessions, and organizers Melanie Burkhardt and Diane House for all the effort and organizing that went into making this a success.

Overview of Visioning Session Comments

During the sessions I heard some very impressive comments and ideas from attendees. I would like to share some of those thoughts with you as well as my own comments.

- "these small groups work well" … I personally think we can provide this opportunity for the membership active participation by creating community meeting structures both within the Reservation and beyond the Reservation boundaries for meetings on a regular basis. A clearer voice of the people would be brought forward in an organized way and allow the GTC as a whole to make decisions based on membership input and concerns.
- "we need to build a hotel by the 29 / 32 One Stop"… I personally think it should include housing as well to build our own customer base there and partnerships with already established businesses that can enhance our customers' needs.
- "without our language we are just Americans" … I personally think an immersion camp for our youth needs to be developed as a number one priority, they can then teach us and generations to come.
- "we need to use our land to feed ourselves." …I am currently trying to address this with some of the key staff we have as well as the State that are knowledgeable on this subject as well as some of our large lease holders. Possibly we should consider using the tribal lands (1000 acres) surrounding the Sanger B. Powers Correctional Center and Farm Facilities to better serve our community and membership needs.
- "there needs to be clear separation between our government and our businesses." ….. I and many others have been saying this for years. There is a very fine line between oversight and influence, success and failure and good business and monkey business.

These are just a few of many ideas and items that were discussed. The whole concept was to let the membership speak without the Business Committee dominating the conversation. We were there to listen and I believe we did.

Language and Culture Foundations

I need to mention a comment I heard that really struck me hard and it was very difficult for me to not say anything. On the subject of Oneida language a gentleman there said "I learned a little foreign language in a different country during the war, but that was so I could survive ." I want to thank him for the comment but I really want to make a comment regarding it. "That's exactly why we need to prioritize our Oneida language, so we can survive as Oneida People." That is one of many things that gives us "OUR WAYS." It is one thing that makes us unique and different. It is one of the keys to our Sovereignty AND IS NOT A SIMPLE LINE ITEM IN THE TRIBAL BUDGET.

Community Visioning Preliminary Results

According to some preliminary results from the visioning session the top 5 concerns identified are:

1. Economic Diversity (45 comments)
2. Language and Culture (42)
3. Health Care (32)
4. Employment (25)
5. Education and training (23).

Now, if these are not your top priorities, it's because you were not at the visioning session. But you were invited and your input was missed. Perhaps next time?

Economic Diversification

On the subject of Economic diversity there is a million things we can name as a potential avenue to go down, but first ask the question… what do you want? Personally I would like us to focus on being the suppliers were ever we can, instead of the consumer. Our reservation, Our People, Our Treaties , and Our Confederacy are all Federally recognized , therefore we have the ability to create our own economy that best serves the needs of our People,.. Our Ways. It is part of Sovereignty .

Language and Culture

On the subject of Language and Culture: what do you want? Personally I want our youth to be emerged in the language and culture ,then they can teach us. Our children are teachers. They teach us something new almost every day, we just need to recognize their ability to teach and work on our ability to learn from them. Again, it is about Survival as a People.

Employment

On the subject of jobs; what do you want? Personally I want every Oneida member that wants to work … to work. I believe these jobs need to focus more on our needs that create Independence from the normal market… for example if we need a Veterinarian then we should hire one,… if we need food processed , than we should expand the Cannery and food processing with jobs,.. if we need homes built then we should build them with our own employees. Think about it this way, if we spend $200 thousand to build a house and that money stays in our community because it is Oneidas building it … then how much did that home really cost? Currently most the money spent goes to outside contractors and leaves the community… period.

Health Care

On the subject of Health care: what do you want? Personally I want every Oneida that wants to make their health better to have access to resources that make their health better. Not more drugs but better food like venison and buffalo and fish, natural medicines, clean water for everyone and a better understanding of what is deteriorating our health. In order to do this we must first control what goes on within our reservation borders.

Education and Training

On the subject of Education and training: what do you want? Personally I would like to see all of our Higher Education focused on serving the needs of the Tribe… We need every form of employment right here on the reservation. Whether its Pilots, Farmers, Butchers, Bakers, or Candle Stick Makers. We need them all. Anything we need ….We should have Oneidas and /or other Tribes producing it. Period.

Removing the Dust

Perhaps we have lost our way but not our ways. We have let others define us with the telling of history, their view of spirituality, their laws and their economic and community models. Our systems are not lost. They have become covered with ignorance, fear, shame; just dust. It is TIME TO REMOVE THE DUST. This is an expression our ancestors used when it was time to remind ourselves who we are. We are refered to as an oral society as if that is somehow primitive and inefficient. Our voices and systems are the most powerful tools we have when unified and focused. Perhaps the one mind of the good mind would apply to this foundation. Technology now allows us to have voices in numerous global social forums. " So lets talk, lets listen, lets learn and lets advance the strong sovereign Oneida Peoples thinking and action into a better future for all.

The power is to the people as well as in the people....

Hoyan

My wish for you is I hope this New Year has started on a high note and that it will continue to go that way for you and your loved ones. Sometimes we don't always cherish the family we have around us and take the time to visit and share the memories of years gone by. My hope for you is to put away our differences and grudges between the ones we love and start 2013 afresh. The next time you see those individuals, don't give them a scowl, give them a hug and tell them they are loved. The both of you will feel much better and your year will continue to prosper.

There are a lot of exciting new things on the horizon in the following months and my goal is to keep you informed as best I can. With the many problems our people face in their day-to-day lives and the Tribe as a whole, the Business Committee and I are working to change things around and bring about a better community for all.

Elder Christmas Party

Over the past three months I had the opportunity to help in both the planning and execution of the Christmas Party held for our elders at the Radisson on December 14th. Over 500 elders attended this event and were greeted by Santa's helpers all decked out in Christmas attire.

First and foremost, I would like to thank all who were instrumental in making this event a success, especially the staff and management of Elder Services. There were so many individuals who gave their time in meetings to plan this event, answer phone lines to take reservations and the leg work required to gather all the necessary gifts and prizes that were awarded.

A huge thanks is also to be given to the ONCOA Board for their help in this project as well as the management individuals of Social Services. This project encompassed so many people both on the front line and behind the scenes.

Thank you to Lloyd Powless for being a most gracious Master of Ceremonies. His wit and bubbly character added immensely to the atmosphere of the day.

And last, but not least, to all the volunteers from the Business Committee, Business Committee staff, Retail and Judicial System who manned the registration tables and the prize tables helping the elders to enjoy their day.

As for the individuals and entities that supplied the prizes, Thank You. Without your generosity, this would not have been possible. Thanks to the Communications Department for the footballs; Oneida Golf Enterprise for the Thornberry Creek gift certificates; Manitowoc Senior Center for the handmade quilts; Oneida Police Department for the tie blankets; Oneida Bingo & Casino for the bingo passes and gaming certificates; and the Oneida Nation Museum for their generous gifts.

Larsen Road Update

This project is complete. I had the opportunity to attend the Grand Opening of this establishment on December 18th and felt it is worth the time and effort put into this facility. Retail is to be commended for building a very spacious and well-designed market to be added to our enterprise family. In addition, job creations of 22 Tribal members were hired as employees to work at this facility.

The location of this market is very convenient to customers who travel this corridor and in the near future I believe it will be one of our highest grossing retail outlets. Again congratulations on a job well done.

Renaming of Recreation Center

On January 19th from 11:00 a.m. to 1:00 p.m., the County H Recreation Center will be renamed in honor of Clifford E. Webster, Sr. He and his family will celebrate this milestone and I urge each and every one of you to attend this event in his honor.

Clifford has been very instrumental in being the cornerstone of many of our youth and his continued efforts to mold these individuals into something everyone can be proud of as well as themselves. Join me in honoring Clifford at this most prestigious event.

Indian Preference Law

Over the past six months a group comprised of ten individuals has completed their task of rewriting this law to bring it forward and have it implemented.

On February 14th at 5:00 p.m. a public hearing will be held in the Business Committee Conference Room at the Norbert Hill Center. I urge everyone to read this updated law and should you have comments or suggestions, attend this hearing to voice your concerns. This public hearing was specifically scheduled in the evening to give those who work during the day a chance to speak.

Anna John Resident Centered Care Center

This facility is essentially completed. There are some last minute sprucing up and delivering of equipment that still needs to be completed, however that is progressing in a timely manner.

An update on Indian Preference trade workers for this project has shown an increase of employees from 56 to 62 and total hours worked has increased from 22,863 to 31,315, with over $1 million dollars paid to these employees over the life of this project.

Again I want to thank you, the general membership, for taking the time to read these articles and as always I am available to meet with you, should you so desire. I can be reached at 869-4482 or you can e-mail me at djordan1@oneidanation.org.

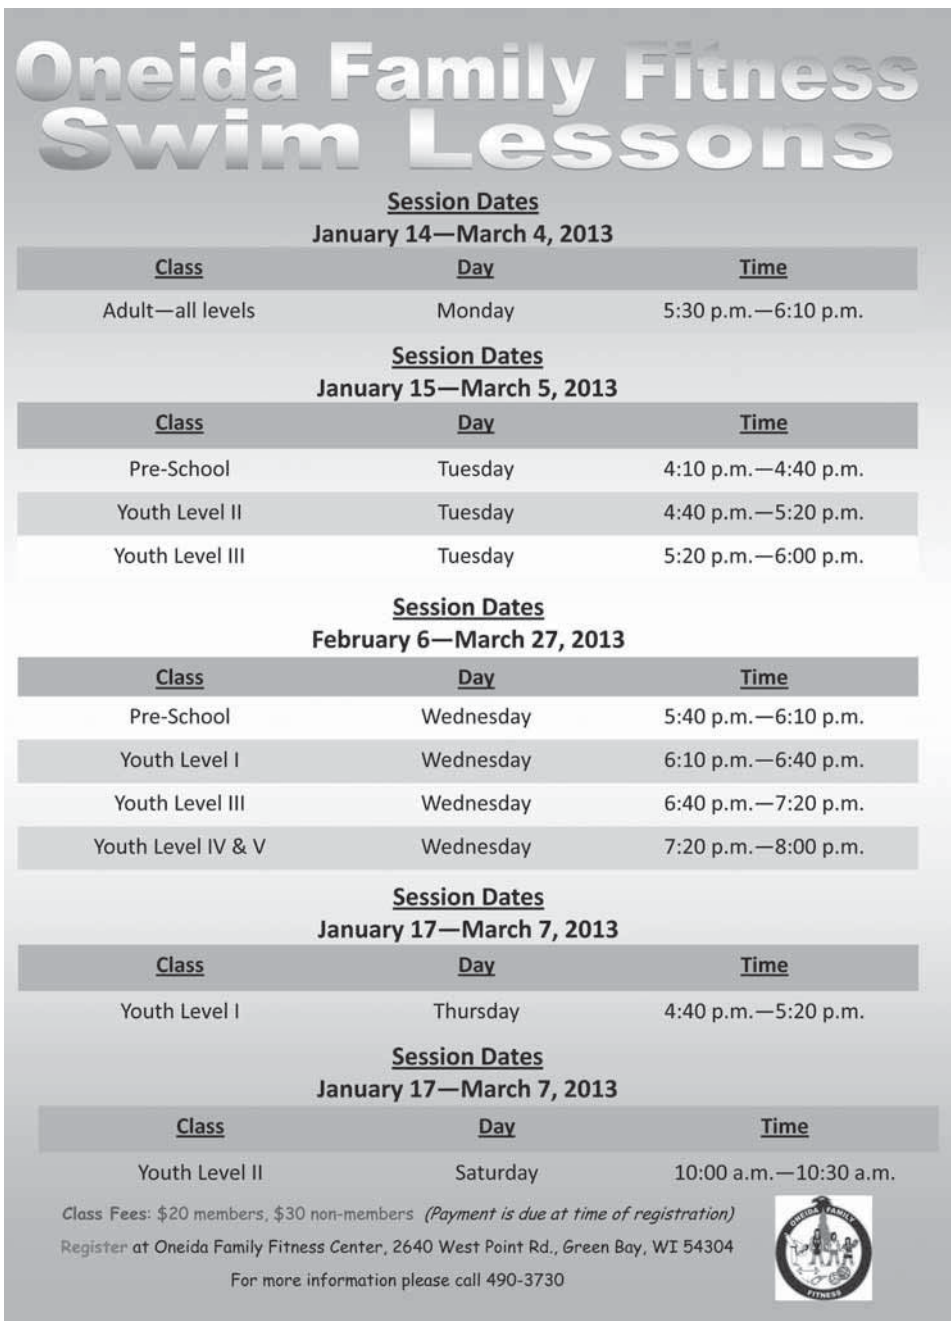
January 28, 2013
Division of Land Management Conference Room
470 Airport Drive, Oneida WI 54155
4:00PM
Purpose:
Rezoning Property and Issue a Conditional Use Permit



The subject property is the former Tower Foods Property (a portion of parcel # 17-0-0683-00) located at N7329 Water Circle Place, Oneida WI 54155. The rezoning and conditional use permit are based on the request from the Oneida Seven Generations Corporation and the approval to initiate the process by the Oneida Land Commission on December 10, 2012. These requests are being completed in accordance with the Oneida Code of Laws - Chapter 69: Zoning and Shoreland Protection.

The following are being considered:
- Rezone a portion of parcel # 17-0-0683-00 from Commercial District to Industrial District.
- Request a Conditional Use Permit be issued to use the facility for "Manufacture of goods from plastics" in the former Tower Foods Facility portion of the stated parcel.

February 14, 2013
Norbert Hill Center (BCCR)
5:00PM
Purpose:
Indian Preference in Contracting Law

The intent of the Indian Preference in Contracting law (the Law) is to replace the current Indian Preference Law. The Law sets out the requirements for hiring certified Indian-owned businesses and skills bank workers to complete Tribal projects. In addition, the Law would:
- Establish the Indian Preference Office in law and make that office responsible for the implementation, monitoring and enforcement of the Law.
- Clarify how a business qualifies as Indian-owned, by expanding on the criteria reviewed before certification is granted.
- Requires compliance agreements be negotiated by the Indian Preference Office to establish the number of Indian workers that must be hired for a project and their benefits and wages.
- Incorporate the provisions of Rider I for Construction Contracts into the Indian Preference Law.
- Remove the License Commission from the process, as that Commission is not being utilized.
- Establishes complaint and investigation processes in the Law.
- Enables the Indian Preference Office to create a fine schedule, with the approval of the OBC.
- Increase the contract minimum from $1,000 to $1,500 for the Law to apply.

Public Hearing Process
Testimony:
Oral: There will be a 5 minute limit for all oral presentations. Each participant is encouraged to provide a written transcript of his/her oral testimony, to be submitted while present at the public hearing or within ten (10) business days from the date of public hearing to the below named individuals.
Written: For those who cannot attend the scheduled public hearing or do not plan to speak at the hearing, the Oneida Tribe encourages those to submit written testimony. A maximum of ten (10) pages, doubled spaced, can be submitted within ten (10) business days from the date of public hearing to the Tribal Secretary (Patricia Hoeft) or Tonya Boucher, Legislative Reference Office at the Norbert Hill Center, 2nd floor or mail to PO Box 365, Oneida WI 54155.
If you would like to obtain a copy of the above proposed law or have any questions as to the public hearing process you may contact Tonya Boucher at the Legislative Reference Office, via GroupWise tboucher@oneidanation.org Or call 1-800-236-2214 or 920-869-4240*. Saving Money After the Holidays

The hectic holiday season has passed, and those bills from vacations and presents have started rolling in. It's important to pay off holiday debt as quickly as possible, so here are some tips to saving money on your purchases after the New Year starts:

Buy off-season merchandise now

Don't wait until May or June to buy beach towels and swimsuits. If you're planning beach or pool time for the summer, buy those sunshine supplies in the dead of winter when they're more likely to be on sale. There may be less variety, but you could save as much as 30 percent off of seasonal merchandise prices.

Switch gyms

If you have multiple gyms in your area, consider switching now to take advantage of steep discounts designed to encourage New Year's Resolution memberships. Be sure to read the fine print, though; you need to make sure you won't be locked into a long-term contract if the rates will rise sharply in a few months.

Decorate for the holidays!

Next year's holiday, that is. Late January is the best time to purchase holiday decorations, greeting cards and wrapping paper, especially larger items like artificial Christmas trees, holiday lights, and ornaments. Most of these items will be on sale this time of year.

Return unwanted gifts

Gift receipts are handy for duplicate or unwanted gifts, but if you can get cash instead of store credit for those receipts, be sure to save it. Even if the receipt is only good for store credit, don't spend it right away. Wait until you need something from that particular retailer and then redeem the gift card or credit receipt.

Stick to your budget

Most importantly, stick to your budget until the holiday bills are paid. Simple switches like eating in (versus dining out), renting movies (versus going to the theater), and brewing your own coffee in the morning (versus a stop at the coffee shop) can save you upwards of $100 over the next month or two. Overspending is common during the holidays, but it doesn't have to ruin your New Year.

Letters & Opinions...

Why Oneida Must Remain "Idle No More"

While the "Idle No More" movement, a wave of Round Dances in support of Canada's First Nations, began in solidarity with those Nations, indigenous peoples all over the Americas and all over the world are rising. This "Native Winter" has sparked demonstrations by Canada's First Nations, Native nations in the United States, Zapatistas in Mexico, Maori in New Zealand, and Aboriginals in Australia. The response has been inspiring, but I argue that we have an opportunity to move beyond solidarity demonstrations and bring about real change not only in Canada but all across the Indigenous world and right here at home.

"Idle No More" is a global movement of demonstrations started by four women, Sylvia McAdam, Jess Gordon, Nin Was'te and Sheelah McLean, trying to raise awareness of Canada's proposed Bill C-45. This bill minimizes Tribal control over decisions regarding use of natural resources on indigenous lands that are supposedly protected by treaties. Attawapiska Chief Theresa Spence began a hunger strike on Dec. 11, 2012 with no plans to cease until Prime Minister Stephen Harper agrees to attend a discussion regarding the Bill and treaty rights. Harper has yet to arrange a meeting between himself and Chief Spence. Chief Spence grows weaker in body but stronger in spirit each day.

This disregard of the rights, well-being and self-determination of Native peoples extends beyond the ongoing encroachment and despoilment of our lands. Indigenous peoples in the United States are almost twice more likely than the general population to die from preventable deaths caused by alcohol, diabetes, heart disease, accidents, suicide and so forth. Indigenous women are nearly three times more likely than other women to be sexually assaulted with nearly 90% of the perpetrators being non-Native. Indigenous peoples are more likely than the general population to be imprisoned, placed into foster care with non-Native families, live in poverty, and be victims of violence. These are just some of the poor outcomes with which many of us must contend. These outcomes did not come from nowhere but can be traced directly to the exterminationist polices the U.S. enacted when colonizing these lands. Our First Nations kin in Canada can say much of the same.

As noted earlier, here is an opportunity to get involved confronting these and other issues. But, in order for "Idle No More" to enact lasting change, we must have a coherent message and solutions. We must also act. Write your representatives, write newspapers, organize sit-ins and demonstrations, educate yourself and others on the issues affecting Indian Country, and organize locally as well as in solidarity with the global movement. This began as a wave of round dances to support and raise awareness of what is happening in Canada. But, we have an opportunity to make this something lasting, to create change so that the next seven generations will not have to struggle with the abuses and the violations that I've outlined above. This is why Oneida must remain Idle No More.

Lambeau renovations means revamped Oneida Nation Gate

By Travis Cottrell
Kalihwisaks

The Green Bay Packers will begin the second phase of their stadium renovation project in March of 2013. The first project scheduled for work in phase two is the renovation of the Oneida Nation Gate, which is the largest entrance to the historic stadium.

"A big change will be the Oneida Nation Gate. Those steps will come out farther, the Oneida Gate will become much more prominent," said Packers president and CEO Mark Murphy during a Stadium District Board meeting on Tuesday, January 8.

As the steps are expanded player parking will be moved to the south side of the gate. A player only entrance tunnel will be built beneath the new steps of the Oneida Nation Gate.

"With the expansion of the gate there is going to be a very large plaza on top that we think could be very attractive for hosting events. You could imagine events in the summer where you could have a speaker or a small concert on the Oneida Plaza," Murphy said.

The Oneida Nation Gate will also be part of a large walkway that will connect with the current Armed Forces Drive that runs in front of the Resch Center.

This renovation phase will also put the stadium in prime position to host special events, making the stadium an event center for non-football related shows.

"A large majority of game day fans enter the stadium from the east. Over 50 percent enter using the Oneida Gate," Murphy added.

The revamped gate currently has an estimated completion date of July 2013. The entire project will be completed in June of 2015.

The $140.5 million project will also result in a major overhaul for the Lambeau Field Atrium. The Packer Pro Shop will be on a new ground level, which will be underneath the current Atrium floor. Curley's Pub will move down to where the Pro Shop is currently located, and the Hall of Fame will move from the basement up to the second floor.

Football facilities will also be upgraded. Spaces for conditioning and team walkthroughs will be built and will keep the team's football operations working with state of the art equipment.

Funding for this project will come from the Packers through private financing and a loan from the NFL G4 program.

This is the final phase of stadium renovation work that started in 2011 with a new sound system, new video boards, two new gates, and 7,000 additional seats.

Wis. legislative session begins with mining push

By Scott Bauer
Associated Press

MADISON, Wis. ~ The legislative session began Monday with Republican leaders promising swift passage of a mining bill and Democrats calling for more bipartisanship and the healing of old wounds stemming from the bruising fight over collective bargaining.

Republican leaders, speaking Monday before the ceremonial swearing in of new members and election of officers, said a new mining bill could be introduced as soon as next week with hearings later this month. Republican Senate leaders said they expect to vote on a measure in early March.

Assembly Republican leaders, along with Gov. Scott Walker, have said it was a top priority to quickly pass a bill overhauling the state's mining laws to ease the building of a new iron ore mine in northern Wisconsin.

The Legislature could not reach agreement on a mining proposal last year after moderate Republican Sen. Dale Schultz blocked a bill that cleared the GOP-controlled Assembly. Gogebic Taconite of Hurley had been lobbying for the bill to make it easier for the company to open a $1.5 billion iron ore mine in the Penokee Hills near Ashland in northwestern Wisconsin.

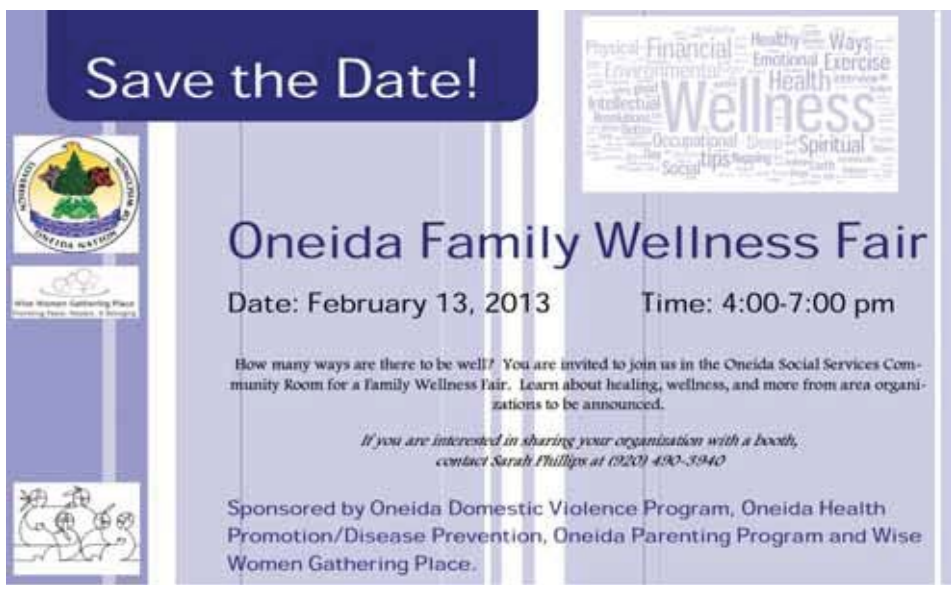
Mining company officials have promised the mine would create as many as 700 jobs in an economically depressed part of the state, but they want lawmakers to ease the regulatory path. Environmentalists fear the mine would devastate one of the state's most pristine regions near Lake Superior.

This year, Republicans have widened their majority in the Senate from 17-16 to 18-15, making passage of the mining bill more likely. Republicans have a 59-39 advantage in the Assembly.

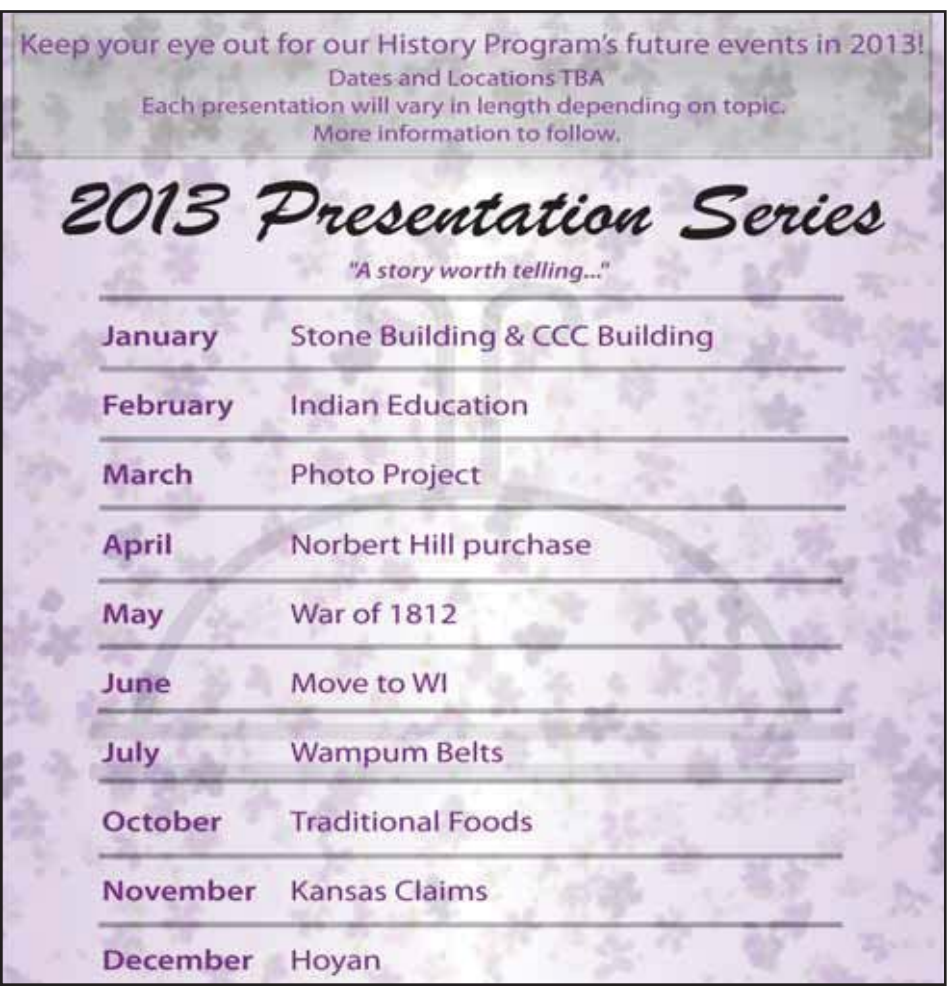
Democratic Senate Minority Leader Chris Larson said he hoped Republicans would propose a mining bill similar to the version that Democrats supported.

"Just because they have the votes doesn't mean it's going to work," Larson said.

Republican Senate Majority Leader Scott Fitzgerald said he expects a March vote on a bill. He wouldn't go into details about what the latest version will look like, saying only he wants environmentally sound changes that will attract mining companies to Wisconsin. Still, he said it will be difficult to garner support from Wisconsin's American Indian tribes and whatever passes will almost certainly be challenged in court.



While the mining debate loomed, Monday's activities focused mostly on the swearing in of 25 new Assembly members and three new senators. Republican and Democratic leaders in both houses, selected earlier by their members, also were to be officially sworn in.



The Assembly planned to meet again Thursday, possibly to vote on its rules of procedure. Republican Speaker Robin Vos said more details would be released after leaders in both parties met Tuesday, but he said one of the goals was to cut down on the Assembly meeting all night long. Late-night and early morning votes have become more common in the Assembly but are almost unheard of in the Senate.

Democratic Assembly Minority Leader Peter Barca said Republicans were floating a dozen rule change ideas, eight of which Democrats could get behind but another four that he said threatened to destroy free and open debate. Barca wouldn't go into more detail before Tuesday's meeting.

At least one potential contentious issue appeared to be put to rest. Vos said he would not allow a vote on making Wisconsin a right to work state, as was done last month in Michigan. Many Democrats and union supporters feared that would be the next step in Wisconsin following passage in 2011 of a law that effectively ending collective bargaining for public workers.

"Hopefully we can leave the contentious issues of the past behind us," Vos said in detailing his hope to focus on job creation, improving education, passing a balanced budget and cutting income taxes. "We don't need every single issue bringing 100,000 protesters to Madison." Democrats also called for calm and more bipartisanship.

Idle No More Actions: Why the Natives are at the Point of Outrage

By Doug George-Kanentiio
Akwesasne Mohawk

There are good reasons for Canada's Native people to be at the point where frustration, impatience and anger rush together in a blend of powerful emotions bordering on rage.

It is to the credit of Native people that they have adopted peaceful, non-confrontational tactics as they march across highways and bridges or gather in malls and city centers in flash mobs to let the nation know they will no longer accept the dictates of the federal government, that the time has come to compel Canada to abide by its treaty obligations and remove the shackles of the Indian Act.

When Canada adopted the United Nations Declaration of Indigenous Rights on November 12, 2010 it committed itself to working in partnership to secure the health, safety, self-sufficiency and prosperity of Natives while acknowledging an inherent right for aboriginal peoples to make their own decisions and manage their own affairs.

Bill C-45, now federal law, was enacted in direct contradiction to the Declaration as it assumes the federal government has the ultimate right to decide how Native lands may be developed or indigenous title extinguished. It makes it easier for band councils to open their territories for exploitation while omitting any mention of the federal government's treaty obligations. It further entrenches the authority of the band council system to undermine, manipulate and extinguish treaties or aboriginal land title with the compliance of the minister of Indian Affairs.

The people are upset because the lack of consultation in the passage of Bill C-45. They are angry because they believe the federal government is removing environmental protection from millions of hectares of land, much of which was taken from Native people in breach of treaty and aboriginal land title. These areas may well be subject to formal land claims or considered an essential element of an indigenous economy and lifestyle which is intimately tied to the environment. By waiving environmental protection those lands will inevitably be exploited by domestic and foreign companies without the need to consider the effects on aboriginal people or the natural world.

There is anger at the empowerment of a band council system which is alien to how Natives governed their affairs prior to the arrival of the Europeans. As contemporary research has proven Natives had their own way of administering to human needs in a manner which insured the ecological integrity and health of their lands. For thousands of years Native governments oversaw trade, delivered services, provided security and worked to sustain a culture and lifestyle within specific jurisdictional areas. That they had the right and capacity to do so was obviously acknowledged by the European colonial powers through formal treaties, that most fundamental of contracts between sovereign nations. By entering into treaties or trade compacts the Europeans recognized that Native nations were their equal under international law and under that law the unilateral breach of a treaty returns the signatory nations to their previous condition. As the demonstrators have said, Canada is free to abrogate its treaties with Natives but in doing so the land and all of its resources revert back to its former aboriginal status.

For decades non-Native academics, politicians and writers have sought to obscure the complexity and sophistication of aboriginal culture before and during the colonial era. They have used profane language and images in labeling Native people and as a matter of formal policy sought to destroy aboriginal identity. After the treaty era concluded the physical, intellectual, social and spiritual abuse of Native people was accentuated and became a shameful part of Canadian history. Whatever was left of indigenous self-determination was wiped out to be replaced by an inefficient, corrupt and alien form of local administration-the band council.

These councils were imposed upon Natives to replace the indigenous governments, often at force of arms. They had nothing to do with the traditional governing methods but instead enacted a system of absolute reliance on the federal government which retains, even to this day, the power to veto any law or action undertaken by the band councils. That such entities are not reflective of indigenous principles of governance is another source of anger for Native people. That these councils are inefficient and often corrupt, created in part to extinguish treaties and make fatal compromises on resource development is a primary concern of most Natives who are infuriated that the federal government is now prepared to give these colonial entities even greater opportunity to exploit their own people.

But what do Natives want? Start with by rescinding the Indian Act followed by a series of national Native congresses to replace the band councils with genuinely aboriginal governments. Make a firm, unqualified commitment to abide by treaties and acknowledge these contracts as agreements between sovereign entities. Break the destructive reliance on federal money by regional resource management agencies based upon open commerce with free trade among Native nations. Have the UN Declaration of Indigenous Rights made into federal law and binding on all provinces and agencies including the Native nations themselves. Work with Native people as they revive their ancestral governments and re-establish regional confederacies. Acknowledge that Native nations have the right to develop their own resources independent of federal interference and remove "Crown land" status across the nation. And recognize that there is a need to place more resources into removing the myths and lies which have distorted aboriginal history through the creation of a National Aboriginal Museum in Ottawa as a primary center for learning and exchange.

Credibility counts for everything in this latest aboriginal v. federal government clash. This means that every Native leader or spokesperson must not only address the issues but be willing to have their public actions subjected to popular scrutiny from a free and open media. An ultimate, achievable goal is to bring an end to all federal and provincial expenditures, exclusive of treaty obligations, through resource development, revenue sharing and free trade: all with a heavy emphasis on fiscal accountability and subject to the democratic processes of election and recall. What could be more Native than that?

Doug George-Kanentiio, Akwesasne Mohawk, is the former editor of the journal Akwesasne Notes and the author of many books and articles about Iroquois history and current affairs. A co-founder of the Native American Journalists Association he is the vice-president for the Hiawatha Institute for Indigenous Knowledge.

Claims Must Be Filed By March 1, 2013 In $3.4 Billion Indian Trust Settlement

What is This About?

The Cobell v. Salazar Settlement is approved. The Settlement resolves a class action lawsuit that claims that the federal government violated its duties by mismanaging trust accounts and individual Indian trust lands. Payments to the Historical Accounting Class are underway. The process of considering claims for the Trust Administration Class is ongoing.

The final deadline if you need to file a claim form for the Trust Administration Class is March 1, 2013.

Am I Included?

The Trust Administration Class includes:

- Anyone alive on September 30, 2009, who:
  - Had an IIM account recorded in currently available electronic data in federal government systems anytime from approximately 1985 to September 30, 2009, or
  - Can demonstrate ownership in trust land or land in restricted status as of September 30, 2009.
- The estate (or heirs) of any deceased landowner or IIM account holder whose account was open or whose trust assets had been in probate according to the federal government's records as of September 30, 2009.

Do I Need to File a Claim Form?

You must file a claim form if you believe you are a member of the Trust Administration Class and you have not:

- Received IIM account statements at your current address anytime between January 1, 1985 and September 30, 2009 and continue to receive statements; or
- Received a payment as a member of the Historical Accounting Class. If you did, you will receive a second payment automatically as a member of the Trust Administration Class; or
- Filed a claim form already using your current address. If you have, the Claims Administrator will contact you.

You must fill out a claim form and mail it to Indian Trust Settlement, P.O. Box 9577, Dublin, OH 43017-4877, postmarked by March 1, 2013 in order to receive a payment.

How Much Money Can I Get?

Members of the Trust Administration Class will likely receive at least $800 or more. The actual amount will depend on the number of claims and the costs of administration.

Court to review Native American adoption case

WASHINGTON (AP) ~ The Supreme Court on Friday agreed to review a ruling that sent a South Carolina couple's adopted Native American daughter back to her biological father in Oklahoma.

The high court agreed to hear an appeal by Matt and Melanie Capobianco over the fate of 3-year-old Veronica. The couple's adoption of the girl was overturned by the South Carolina Supreme Court, which said the girl must go back to Oklahoma to be with her biological father, Dusten Brown, a member of the Cherokee Nation.

The state court said the federal Indian Child Welfare Act gives custodial preference to the girl's father. That act was passed in 1978 because of the high number of Indian children then being removed from their homes by public and private agencies. The act gives the child's tribe and family the right to have a say in decisions affecting the child.

The Capobiancos want that decision overturned. Because it is an adoption case, the appeal to the Supreme Court does not mention specific names for privacy reasons, although the South Carolina couple identified themselves in media interviews and released the name of their adopted daughter.

The Capobiancos, who live on James Island just outside Charleston, adopted Veronica after attending the girl's birth and caring for her thereafter. But Brown later went to court seeking custody, which was granted by the South Carolina court. He then took the girl back to Oklahoma in 2011.

The case will be heard by the Supreme Court later this year.

Special Visitor Attends SEOTS Annual Christmas Party

By Mark W. Powless

For some youth of the SEOTS community, Christmas came 10 days early.

Held off-site, at the Marian Center for Non-Profits in Saint Francis, the SEOTS Christmas party took place on Saturday, December 15, 2012. The annual potluck event attracts approximately 100 people each year and features Bingo and other holiday activities.

The festive event kicked off with live music by the Spirals. Mark and his wife, Tribal member Candice Truesdell-Nokes, provided an upbeat blend of contemporary and Holiday songs. Following two prayers, one by Tribal Elder Charlene Smith and another in the Oneida language by SEOTS Board member Carol Wenzel, the party made their way to the food tables.

After the meal, Santa stopped by to meet the youth (and some excited Elders) and distribute gifts. The gifts were provided courtesy of Body Transitions Medical Clinic and having a wide assortment of toys, the youth were able to choose their favorite.

Those toys not selected, were donated to the Gerald L. Ignace Indian Health Center for distribution to Native American youth in the Milwaukee area.

The party concluded with 6 games of Bingo that offered cash prizes ranging from $5 to $40.

Yawʌ́ko to the Spirals, Body Transitions Medical Clinic, Charlene Smith, Carol Wenzel, Boyd Doxtator, the volunteers, and Santa.

What lifestyle changes did for West De Pere student

By Nate Wisneski
Kalihwisaks

When most people lose 75 lbs it takes doing exercise they don't like and cutting back on the foods they love. That wasn't the case for Nick Metoxen.

Metoxen, a sophomore at West De Pere High School, lost nearly 100 lbs by doing something that interested him, jiu jitsu and wrestling.

"I really got into the UFC a couple of years ago. It got me into jiu jitsu. I did that before I wrestled. I didn't plan on losing weight it just happened from the practices," said Metoxen.

He also made a couple of drastic lifestyle changes he shrugs off as easy.

"I stopped drinking soda and never eat fast food anymore. Coach said if you want your workout to pay off you need to eat right," he said.

When Metoxen started he was in the heavyweight class, something that provided some unknown motivation.

"I wanted to get out of that. It wasn't any fun, there were a lot of big guys," he said.

During a recent mixed martial arts event at the Oneida Casino Metoxen got an opportunity of a lifetime.

> "Mentally it felt awesome to know I improved that much."
> - Nick Metoxen

Accomplished MMA fighter, coach, and wrestler Mike van Arsdale provided one-on-one coaching to him.

"I wanted to learn as much as I could from him. I was in the cage and he was showing me some stuff. Showed me some workouts to do and strengthen the real important muscles for wrestling and cool techniques that I was glad to take because he is such an accomplished wrestler," said Metoxen.

Metoxen wants to give MMA a shot but also has other professional goals.

"I still want to go to college to open a restaurant some day. I really like Italian foods, I'm not 100 percent sure but I really love to cook," he said.

Not only is Metoxen on his way to a successful athletic career he is a star in the classroom. He has nearly perfect attendance and has a grade point average hovering over 3.9.

When it comes to any goals in life Metoxen has a simple outlook.

"I tell them to commit to it. If you commit to it will all be worth it. Don't give up," he said.

Metoxen cites his own success to say it's possible.

"I never thought about what it would be like to be in shape. I tried to run a lap around the gym and get about halfway but be out of breath and have to stop. I remember when I ran my first mile and I was really happy with that. Mentally it felt awesome to know I improved that much. I have so much energy and to not have all that extra weight. I actually put the weight I lost in a backpack and walked around with it for a while, it was crazy. I feel great now," he said.

Economic and agriculture development discussed

Submitted by Oneida Planning Department

The fifth comprehensive plan community meeting was held at Little Bear Development Center on November 1, 2012. The plan elements presented were Economic Development and Agriculture.

The comprehensive planning process represents the Oneida community people's voice in addressing all 16 plan elements affecting the social, economic, and physical growth of our community. Our plan is developed through a "grassroots" approach where community has a forum to express their ideas, reactions and concerns of well-being and quality of life. The Oneida community, executive leaders, managers, and Tribal departments use the comprehensive plan as a reference and guide in the development of Tribal plans, initiatives, and policies.

Historically the Economic Development comprehensive plan element was based on the "Seventh Generation Planning" model which is grounded in the philosophy that we exist today because our ancestors had a vision of maintaining our culture, sovereignty and our language. Each generation's responsibility is to maintain that vision and bear in mind the planning we do for the future of our nation. To summarize, our investments include education and training for individual members, partnering with outside communities and institutions resulting in new jobs, ventures which expand our existing capabilities, retail and industrial expansion, real estate to recover lost lands and restoring original reservation land holdings, housing and commercial properties, and preservation of traditional values.

The Economic Development comprehensive plan element currently contains 4 goals which are:

1) develop a private sector,
2) diversify the economy of the Oneida Tribe,
3) increase long-term revenue contribution to the General Fund through business development, and
4) develop a Central Oneida commerce, civic space, community events and a central park that should be located in the historical "Old Oneida" area.

Larry Barton, Chief Financial Officer for Oneida reported that three common goals of economic development for Oneida are revenue generation, employment, and sustainability. Oneida has corporations who are started by the Oneida Business Committee under Federal law title 17, which allows charter corporations through our sovereignty. The Oneida Business Committee makes appointments to the corporations and requires quarterly reporting and annual meetings. There are a number of obstacles that will limit progress on expansion of economic development for Oneida which include limited funding, the need for a target analysis, and enterprise risk. The purpose of doing a target analysis is to study the population to help make some projections on types of services or products that the population would support.

Comments and concerns from community members included the need for a balanced approach for government enterprise expansion and for small business entrepreneurs which are central to our overall economy. Further, we need to look at target analysis for both here and our property in New York. How can we formalize Oneida Small Business Development Corporation to service a mix of clientele? Should we have community development staff and economic development staff to plan for community development and economic development activities? How does economic development promote inherent sovereignty of the Tribe? We need a healthy venue to dialogue about these issues. Chamber of Commerce can provide assistance for businesses.

The Agriculture comprehensive plan element's general goal is to protect the rural character of the agricultural land base and infrastructure for development and maintenance of a culturally appropriate and self-sufficient, vertically integrated food, feed and fiber system for producing alternative crops and animals that are sustainable, healthy, and profitable. The Tribe established the Oneida Community Integrated Food System (OCIFS) with four food related operations including:

1) the Oneida Nation Farm and Apple Orchard,
2) Oneida Tsyunhehkwa Center and Cannery,
3) Oneida Food Distribution Program and Oneida Pantry Emergency Network, and
4) the Oneida Community Health Center.

The Healthy Food Healthy Community Initiative includes funding through Tribal contribution and grant revenues. Production and processing include local gardens, school gardens, Tsyunhehkwa, Apple Orchard, Cannery and the Farm. Programs include the Cannery, school films, farm to school, Health Center Wellness and Diabetes Team. Events include Garden Workshop, Husking Bee, Apple Fest, 4H Community Harvesting, Ag conferences and Youth Day. Distribution is done by Oneida One Stops, Tsyunhehkwa Retail, Oneida Market and Apple Orchard. An upcoming event is the Oneida Agriculture Summit on April 15, 2013.

Community comments included the need to plant, grow, harvest and preserve food for sustainability. Using agriculture to teach our children and using the Farmer's Market as a celebration tool is the vision for the future. We must teach about healthy foods in the schools and invest in a health food system. It's about setting our priorities on people driven activity versus being economically driven. We will focus on producing more food for our community and nurture areas that include edible produce like blackberries and wild leeks. We will also raise edible products along our trail systems and reconnect to the spirituality of our land. Agriculture is related to jobs and commerce and good work ethic. We will look for ways to bring agriculture activities to our community in the form of grants, farm to school, education, junior achievement, 4-H, and work toward creating the Oneida Agriculture Corporation.

Please provide feedback on the Economic Development and Agriculture comprehensive plan elements to the Oneida Planning Department by e-mail at jbreunin@oneidanation.org or by telephone at extension 920-869-4526.

Government Coordination and Regulations discussion

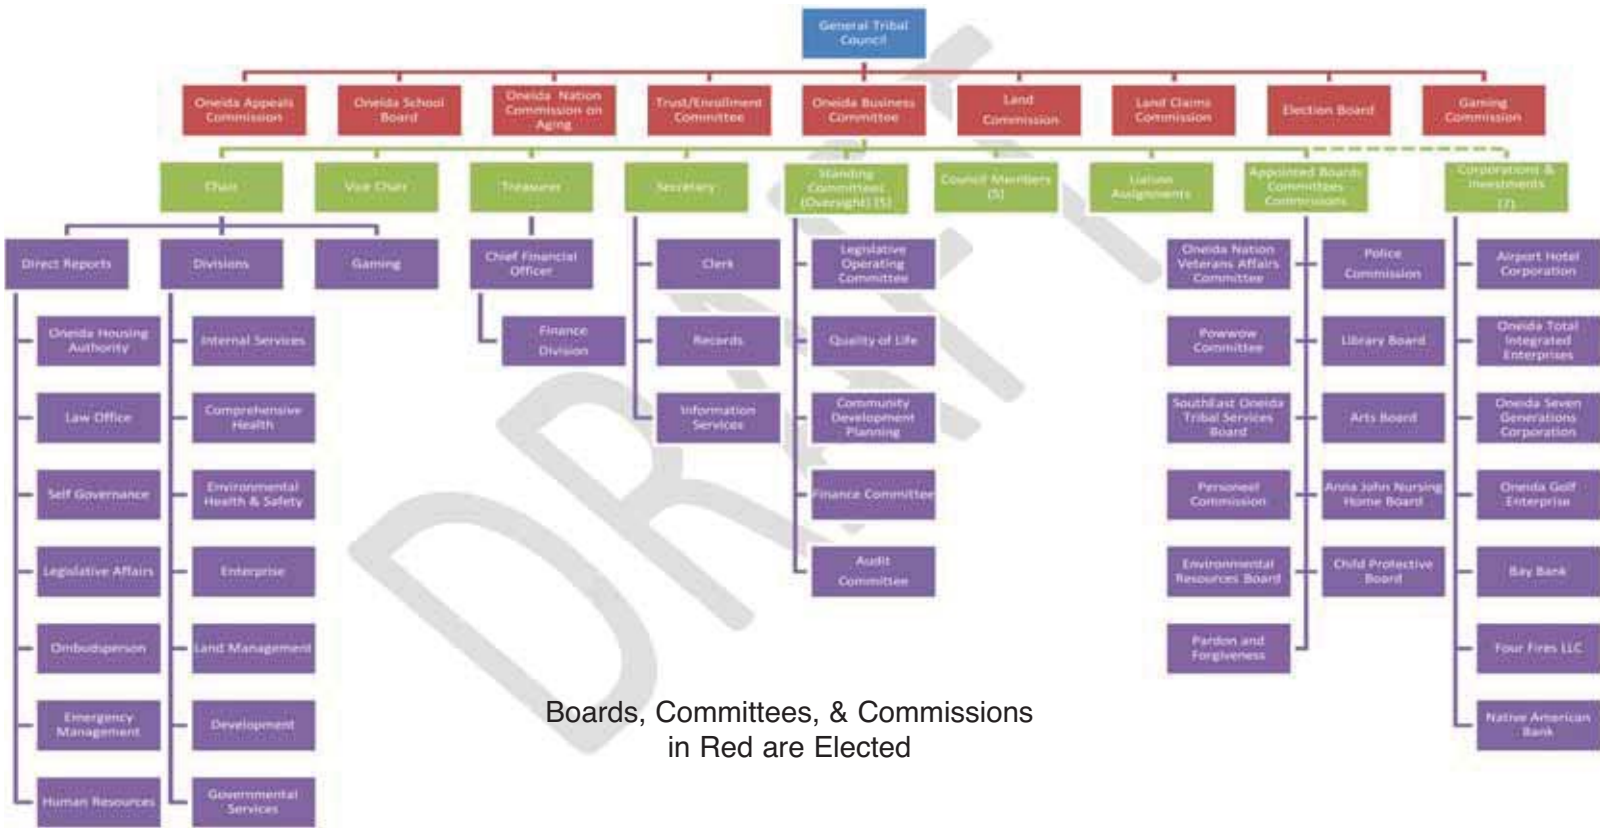
The comprehensive planning process represents the Oneida community people's voice in addressing all 16 plan elements affecting the social, economic, and physical growth of our community. Our plan is developed through a "grassroots" approach where community has a forum to express their ideas, reactions and concerns of well-being and quality of life. The Oneida community, executive leaders, managers, and Tribal departments use the comprehensive plan as a reference and guide in the development of Tribal plans, initiatives, and policies.

The 16 plan elements are,

1) Health Care,
2) Education,
3) Housing,
4) Community Design,
5) Parks and Recreation,
6) Utilities,
7) Community Facilities,
8) Transportation,
9) Public Safety,
10) Government Coordination and Regulations,
11) Economic Development,
12) Agriculture,
13) Natural Resources,
14) Environmental Protection,
15) Department of Culture, and
16) Land Use.

The Government Coordination and Regulations plan element currently consists of 4 goals and 11 objectives. They are listed to the right.

Goal #	Objective #	Description
1		Identify, address and monitor the tribal needs utilizing boards, committees and commissions.
	1.1	Establish a review committee to thoroughly research and evaluate all boards, committees and commissions, and make recommendations to the Nation as appropriate. This should be completed by the end of 2006.
2		Have all governments (federal, state, other tribes, neighboring local units of government) work positively and collaboratively for the benefit of all respective citizens.
	2.1	Establish and maintain government-to-government relationships between all units of government and the Oneida Nation.
	2.2	Develop a process to educate members of Congress, Senators and other legislators on the Oneida Nation and the concerns of its citizens.
	2.3	Develop a process to ensure all tribal departments are communicating their lobbying and political activities to the designated governmental entity(ies).
	2.4	Develop a process to educate tribal citizens and employees on the importance of being involved in the political activities, stressing the dual citizenship they possess and educating and informing them of elections, and legislation that impacts the Nation, the conduit (for employees), etc.
3		Keep GTC informed of governmental activities and available resources.
	3.1	Communicate to GTC through the use of available reporting resources, including modern technology.
	3.1.1	Utilize public hearings, community meetings, Kalihwisaks, tribal newsletters, annual and semi-annual reports, etc.
	3.1.2	Allow access of information at public tribal locations.
4		Enact laws to protect, preserve and enhance the rights and general welfare of the people.
	4.1	Research, develop, maintain and review all applicable laws, policies and regulations in a consistent and equitable manner.
	4.2	Ensure compliance and enforcement with all Tribal laws.
	4.2.1	Establish a compliance and enforcement authority.



Chairman Delgado reported that the Oneida Business Committee will be having working sessions to determine how the gaps in performance that were left by the former General Manger and Chief of Staff positions will be filled or delegated. Planning efforts will focus on defining "Our Ways" and seven generation thinking in everything we plan for. Additionally, the Committee will spend time planning government to government relationships such as federal, state, local, as well as, other Tribal governments. Improving our relationship with the New York Oneidas and Oneidas of the Thames are especially important because they are our relation and are critical to increasing our blood quantum. Consideration is being given to recommend selling our New York land to the New York Oneidas.

A summary of the public/community concerns and comments on the government coordination and regulations plan element included a number of broad categories. One category is the topic of leadership where decisions are made in unity and not by individuals. Another category was about defining our government and clarification of its many roles in protecting our inherent sovereignty, government to government relations, its administrative role, its role over programs and services, as well as, its role over enterprises. A key role of our government should be to instill the fire in our people by giving them a voice and include them in planning our future. There is a document called the Good Governance Index which needs to be explained. Another category was about process and how we get the work done around here and measuring performance of our government. Yet another topic identified on accountability such as time and attendance, decision-making, measuring performance, strategic planning, and priority setting. Comments and concerns were raised about governmental leadership in defining values, language, customs and culture, who we are as Oneidas and Oneidas of Wisconsin.

The diagram below was presented by the Tribal Secretary, Patty Hoeft, to display how complex our government is and the many shared responsibilities that exist. The fact that we are mission-based and enterprise-driven adds to that complexity. Ultimately, change begins with the individual Tribal members who have to determine for themselves if they will stay here and contribute or move away, but demand per capita and education benefits.

Sentiment was relayed that we must plan for our community with the community. We must give the people a voice.

Please provide feedback on the structural diagram to the Oneida Planning Department by e-mail to John Breuninger at or by telephone at extension 920-869- 4526.

Change Training-Who Moved My Cheese?

"Who Moved My Cheese?" is about change and how people deal with it. The training is based on the book is written by Spencer Johnson, MD. The "Cheese" is a metaphor for whatever we are looking for in life. In the end the characters (Hem, Haw, Sniff, Scurry) realize some basic truths about change, or "the handwriting on the wall."

Customer Service Training – Fish Philosophy

The FISH! Philosophy includes four simple, interconnected practices:

- Being emotionally present for people. It's a powerful message of respect that improves communication and strengthens relationships.
- Tapping into your natural way of being creative, enthusiastic and having fun. Play is the mindset you can bring to everything you do.
- Finding simple ways to contribute to someone else's life, not because you want something out of it, but because that's the person you want to be.
- Taking responsibility for how you respond to what life throws at you. Once you are aware that your choice impacts everyone around you, you can ask yourself, "Is my attitude helping my team or my customers? Is it helping me to be the person I want to be?"

Through The FISH! Philosophy, we learn to build stronger relationships with the people we work with, the customers we serve, the students we teach and the people we love.

Public Hearing Notice

February 14, 2013 • 5:00 P.M.
Norbert Hill Center, 2nd Floor – (BCCR)

Purpose: Indian Preference in Contracting Law

The intent of the Indian Preference in Contracting law (the Law) is to replace the current Indian Preference Law. The Law sets out the requirements for hiring certified Indian-owned businesses and skills bank workers to complete Tribal projects. In addition, the Law would:

- Establish the Indian Preference Office in law and make that office responsible for the implementation, monitoring and enforcement of the Law.
- Clarify how a business qualifies as Indian-owned, by expanding on the criteria reviewed before certification is granted.
- Requires compliance agreements be negotiated by the Indian Preference Office to establish the number of Indian workers that must be hired for a project and their benefits and wages.
- Incorporate the provisions of Rider I for Construction Contracts into the Indian Preference Law.
- Remove the License Commission from the process, as that Commission is not being utilized.
- Establishes complaint and investigation processes in the Law.
- Enables the Indian Preference Office to create a fine schedule, with the approval of the OBC.
- Increase the contract minimum from $1,000 to $1,500 for the Law to apply.

Public Hearing Process
I. Testimony:
A. Oral: There will be a 5-minute limit for all oral presentations. Each participant is encouraged to provide a written transcript of his/her oral testimony, to be submitted while present at the public hearing or within ten (10) business days from the date of public hearing to the below named individuals.
B. Written: For those who cannot attend the scheduled public hearing or do not plan to speak at the hearing, the Oneida Tribe encourages those to submit written testimony. A maximum of ten (10) pages, doubled spaced, can be submitted within ten (10) business days from the date of public hearing to the Tribal Secretary (Patricia Hoeft) or Tonya Boucher, Legislative Reference Office at the Norbert Hill Center, 2nd floor or mail to PO Box 365, Oneida WI 54155.

If you would like to obtain a copy of the above proposed law or have any questions as to the public hearing process you may contact Tonya Boucher at the Legislative Reference Office, via GroupWise tboucher@oneidanation.org Or call 1-800-236-2214 or 869-4240. The Legislative Reference Office fax number is 920-869-4040. Copies of this law are also available on the Internet: https://oneida-nsn.gov/PublicHearings.aspx

Are high school students compassionate, thoughtful and generous? Yes, especially our students at Oneida Nation High School. Last month, the tragedy of Sandy Hook Elementary in Connecticut affected many people around the globe. Many of us wished we could ease the pain of those who lost precious little loved ones. Kindheartedly, our students did just that.

The Connecticut students are attending a new school. Their Parent Teacher Association had asked for donations of paper snowflakes to create a winter wonderland for the returning students. In each of my classes, just before the Christmas break, I asked my students if they wanted to help make snowflakes for these children. Every single one of them participated.

Box of snowflakes ready to ship to Connecticut.

I smile while writing this thinking of a male student who kept trying to make a "nice looking" snowflake because he did not want to send an ugly one to the children. My heart sings while I think of a girl who worked intensely and encouraged her classmates with positive thoughts about their mission. Even students who are not in any of my classes stopped by and asked if they could make a snowflake.

I love teaching high school aged students. This is just one example of the charitable, considerate students that I am lucky to teach every day. Yoyánehle students.

Oneida Employees See a Tax Increase on Paychecks

By Aleah Jimenez
Thunderhawk Times

The FICA (Federal Insurance Contributions Act) Tax withholding rate will increase to 6.2% due to Federal tax law changes. The new rate will begin on all employees' paychecks beginning January 1, 2013.

FICA withholdings fund Medicare and Social Security. Two years ago, Washington lawmakers spearheaded legislation to reduce FICA deductions by 2%, calling it a "payroll tax holiday" to stimulate economic growth during the recession. This put the FICA withholding at 4.2% rather than 6.2%, but it also reduced the amount of money contributed to Medicare and Social Security each year by taxpayers.

According to both Democrats and Republicans, most wage earners liked the 2% tax break but did not like the fact that the money was being taken away from Medicare and Social Security. Therefore, they ended the 2% reduction for 2013.

The FICA rate on payroll checks in 2012 was 4.2% and the FICA rate on payroll checks for 2013 is 6.2%, making it a 2.0% increase. This 2% change will increase FICA withholdings and decrease net pay for anyone receiving a paycheck from employers.

Lady T-hawks Bring Home Tournament Plaque and Remain Undefeated

By Jessica House
Thunderhawk Times

On December 29, 2012, the Lady T-Hawks attended the Gresham Holiday Hoop Tournament. They played two outstanding games, winning the Gresham holiday tournament for the first time ever. With the tournament victory, the Lady T-Hawks remain undefeated this season at 8-0.

Head Coach Jamie Betters said, "In previous years, we would get beat right away in the tournament. This year, we went back looking for redemption. We knew from the past that Gresham is a very aggressive and hard-working team, and Menominee is as well, so we knew we had to play the same kind of game."

The Lady T-Hawks first win was against Gresham high school, with the final score 77-38. The Lady T-Hawks were especially proud of their win because they finally defeated Gresham High School, which is no easy feat.

Their second win was against Menominee Indian High School, which is also a rivalry team. It was a hard, challenging game, but they ended with a 53-34 win. ONHS seniors Yasmine Denny and Jessica House were named "All-Tourney Players" for their outstanding play throughout the tournament.

The Lady T-Hawks will travel to Milwaukee to take on Stockbridge in the Bradley Center on Friday, January 11.

Artwork Fetches Record Bid in Oneida Nation Museum Art Auction

By Diego Metoxen
Thunderhawk Times

This past December, there were 20 students from ONHS that were a part of an art auction at the Oneida Nation Museum. The highest amount was brought in by senior Leo Powless. His artwork was auctioned off at $150. That amount was the highest ever in the Oneida Nation Museum Art Auction.

"It was pretty cool," said Powless. "I can't believe that my work got that much money."

The students had to create something about Oneida culture and were able to offer it into the art auction. The museum hosts the art auction every year for students around the community to get their art work exposed to other people in and out of the community.

Leo Powless

"It was cool having my artwork viewed and bought by strangers," said senior Heather Stevens, whose artwork was also featured in the auction. "It's a once in a lifetime experience for some of us, and I was honored to be a part of it."

It's a New Year

By Hector Miranda Jr.
Thunderhawk Times

New Year's Day is the time at which a new calendar year begins and the calendar's year count is increased. New Year's Day falls on January 1. It marks the end of New Year's Eve celebrations in the U.S. and gives many people a chance to remember the previous year.

The start of New Year's, at midnight, is heralded by fireworks, parties, and special events, which are often televised. Very few people have to work on the day itself. For many, it is a day of recovery from the New Year's Eve celebrations the previous night.

In some towns and cities, parades are held and special football games are played. The birth of the first baby in the New Year is often celebrated with gifts to the parents and appearances in local newspapers and on local news shows.

Many people make New Year's resolutions. These are usually promises to themselves that they will improve something in their own lives. Common New Year's resolutions are to stop smoking, stop drinking alcohol, losing weight, exercising more, or living a healthier lifestyle.

Student of the Month: Táwet White

By Jessica House
Thunderhawk Times

Táwet White is a senior at Oneida Nation High School (ONHS). He has been attending ONHS since his freshman year and has been enrolled in the Oneida Nation School System for the entire 13 years that he has been in school.

As a senior at ONHS, he has maintained all A's with the exception of two classes, but they are still good grades. T@wet's favorite class is Business English.

"Business English is my favorite class because I learn things in that class that I know that I will use in the future," said Táwet.

Táwet White

After Táwet graduates from ONHS, he wants to attend UW-Madison. He would like to study Writing or Publishing. After college, he would like to get a job as an editor or work at a publishing firm.

Táwet's goal for 2013 is to get set for fun. "If you don't have fun in life, you might as well not live," said White.

In his free time, Táwet likes to watch horror movies, comedies, and action/adventure movies. He calls himself a "GAMER" and his favorite video game is The Legend of Zelda. Táwet is also interested in book writing; he has ideas for stories he feels are interesting to himself and others.

Interestingly, Táwet's role model is himself. "I can't wait to see what kind of person I become in the future. I think I am worthy of being a role model to someone."

Screening for prostate cancer

Joseph Binard MD FRCSC
Special to the Kalihwisaks

I am quite sure that most of you have heard and even have undergone a PSA test as a screening for prostate cancer. Relatively recently, some questions have been raised as to the necessity and effectiveness of the PSA test. You might even have heard that some physicians do not recommend the PSA test especially for some males over a certain age.

The purpose of this article is to give you some background information that will allow you to make a more informed decision concerning the subject.

The PSA test along with a digital rectal exam of the prostate became approved by the FDA as a test for prostate cancer in the early 1990's. PSA test measures quantitatively the amount of a certain protein that is produced by the prostate and is present in your blood. Four ng/mL used to be considered the upper limit of normal but that level has been considered too high and now many urologists consider 2,5 ng/mL or less as the normal.

Benign (non cancerous) prostate growth normally occurring with aging, sexual activity within 48 hours of the test, prostate infections and exam can increase the level of PSA in your blood; even strenuous bicycle riding might increase an already elevated PSA level but this is questionable. Therefore never have a PSA test done right after the doctor examines your prostate.

An elevated PSA test does NOT ALWAYS mean prostate cancer and a normal PSA does NOT ALWAYS rule out prostate cancer. Further investigation by your urologist needs to occur. If you have an elevated PSA the first thing to do is to repeat the test to make sure there was no laboratory error. In cases where the PSA is slightly elevated or borderline one can opt to repeat the PSA at a later date and measure how fast it increases and/or how long it takes to double: these are called "PSA velocity" and "PSA doubling time". "PSA density" measures the amount of PSA divided by the volume of the prostate and helps in deciding if the increase is due to a benign or a malignant growth. If the PSA is indeed elevated another test that measures the FREE PSA can give some indication that cancer might be present. The lower the level of Free PSA vs. total PSA indicates a greater chance of malignancy. If rectal exam or above mentioned PSA tests remain abnormal a prostate biopsy might me indicated. Biopsies are usually done by inserting a needle through the rectum into the prostate in order to remove several small pieces of prostate; this will show if there is cancer, how extensive and aggressive it is and thus allow your doctor to discuss with you which action you can decide to take. Since the biopsy is not always without any risks and complications such as pain, bleeding and infection the advantages need to be explained and discussed with you. As newer methods of investigation such as MRI of the prostate become available, defining and predicting the course of prostate disease can become more accurate and dependable.

I personally don't like to put an age limit to the PSA testing: some 80 year old can be in much better general condition than some 50 year old and I feel that all patients deserve to know what their condition is so that after proper explanation of all pros and cons, they can decide for themselves if they want the test, and eventually further more invasive examinations and/or treatment.

Treatment can be from watchful waiting (do nothing but follow up regularly with your urologist) to radical surgery. Radiation, brachytherapy (radioactive seeds implanted in the prostate) freezing of the prostate, ultrasound are some of the most used treatments that your doctor needs to discuss with you.

In conclusion, here is what I usually recommend if you are 40 or older, especially if you have family members who have had prostate cancer or are of African American descent:

Have a PSA test done on a yearly basis as well as a digital rectal exam. If your PSA level is greater than 2.5 ng have the test repeated and according to the results have it investigated further as mentioned above. This might be "overkill" but I would rather diagnose one too many slow growing cancers that would not cause premature death, than miss one fatal one. Once you are well informed you can still decide what treatment, if any, you will want to chose.

So, consultation with your doctor is of capital importance and now, being better informed, you should be able to ask the right questions!

Unity Physicians Achieve Specialty Certification

Green Bay, Wis. – Unity, leaders in hospice and palliative care, today announced its physicians, Patricia Neuman, DO, and Kafi Wilson, MD, received the Certificate of Added Qualifications (CAQ) in Hospice & Palliative Medicine from the American Board of Medical Specialties (ABMS).

Dr. Patricia Neuman

Dr. Kafi Wilson

Promoting professional development is a core value at Unity. Subspecialty certificates granted by the ABMS are widely recognized by government, healthcare systems, insurers and patients themselves as essential tools to judge that a physician has the knowledge, experience and skills for providing quality healthcare within a given specialty or subspecialty and are considered the premium standard for care. Ten member boards of the American Board of Medical Specialties co-sponsor the certificate to recognize excellence among certified physicians who emphasize the care of seriously ill and dying patients with life-limiting illnesses in their practice. Unity recognizes the growing demand within the communities it serves for quality, end-of-life care services provided by skilled professionals and takes pride in its physicians' achievements.

As assistant medical directors for Unity, Dr. Neuman and Dr. Wilson work with other members of Unity's clinical team, which includes physicians and nurse practitioners, to oversee the clinical care and treatment of Unity patients and act as liaisons with patients' primary care physicians. They work with patients and families to set goals of care and address pain and symptom management and also provide clinical direction and guidance for Unity's programs and staff to ensure the maintenance of quality care for patients and their families.

SNOWSHOE TYING CLASS

The Oneida Community Health Center's Diabetic team received federal grant money to help individuals manage their diabetes. Promoting physical activity is a crucial component of the management of type 2 diabetes. The Oneida Community Health Center (OCHC) Diabetes Team partnered with Oneida Adventures to offer patients with diabetes an opportunity to make snow shoes. The collaboration was an effort to increase physical activity, and personal confidence. When participants learn the art of snowshoe tying, they quickly realize the importance of following a well-prescribed plan by correctly tying the patterns. Experientially this can teach participants about the importance of following a well - prescribed plan to manage their diabetes The staff help participants applies concepts such as these to their goals in prevention.

Oneida Community Integrated Food Systems

Buying local lets you know where your food is coming from

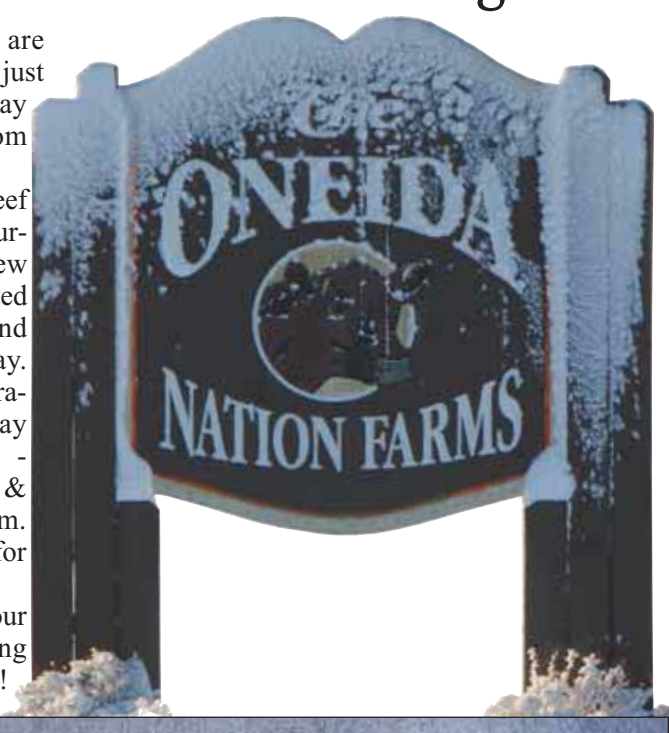
It is important to know where your food comes from and the Oneida Nation Farm uses sustainable and best management practices, new plant varieties, and fertilizers that can increase the yields of major crops. That is why education is of extreme importance to the folks at the Oneida Nation Farm who are concerned for the Tribal members to understand what is at stake.

Cash Crop Sales is the largest revenue source for the Farm, but also known for the high quality crops that are produced, sold to local grain markets and local dairies. The 2012 cash crop sales were the largest revenue ever. Oneida Nation Farms dedicate, hardworking employees are proud to be a team player with Oneida Tribe of Indians to be known as one of the largest Agriculture Cash Crop Farms in North East Wisconsin.

The Oneida Nation Farm features our black angus herd which is fed a natural feed, free of antibiotic's, steroids, hormones and animal byproducts but also continues to implement a growing herd of "Point-of-Origin" cow-calf pasture, a beef feedlot, and mix forage pastured and feed.

The Farm has approximately 450 - 500 head of Black Angus cattle, with about 220 plus cow/calf pairs which is used to stock their beef feedlots. Selecting livestock genetics increases the amount of meat that animals produce. The cow/calf operation works like this: about 6-7 months of the year, the beef cows will be grazing in a 237.4 acre pasture to feed along with a couple of excellent breeding bulls. These cows/bulls are supplemented with mineral, vitamins and a total mix ration of hay and some corn.

When a beef cow is at about 2 years of age, she will give birth, nurses her calf until 6-8 months of age. To make sure we have a healthy beef calf, it also receives a free choice of a grain mix supplement, vitamins and minerals.



When it is time to sort off the calves from the cow, the male and some female go to the comfortable feedlot area and are raised for finished beef sales for our valuable beef customers. The other selected female calves are then raised as cows for reproduction of the herd and should around the age of two give birth, which is increasing the point of origin beef herd.

Normally a beef cow can give birth up to 8-10 calves in her lifetime. But to keep our herd growing, at times the Farm will need to purchase some replacement beef cows to give birth at Oneida Nation Farms. The Farm can tell you exactly where that meat came from, which is now being called 'Point of Origin' and ads much value to your products. Seasonal tours are available; please call the Farm for scheduling 920.833.7952.

Sales: quarters, half and whole beef sales are offered at the Farm, just call 833.7952 Monday through Friday from 8am - 4:30pm.

Individual cuts of beef and buffalo can be purchased at the new Oneida Market located at 501 S. Packerland Drive in Green Bay. Those hours of operation are: Monday through Friday 7am - 8pm, Saturday & Sunday 9am - 5pm. Please call 496.5127 for further information.

Lady T-Hawks face challenging second half schedule

By Travis Cottrell
Kalihwisaks

Prior to the season the Oneida Nation girls basketball team set lofty goals for their season. With one half of the season complete the team remains undefeated and those goals are within reach.

On December 29, 2012 the Lady Thunderhawks participated in the Gresham Booster Club Holiday Tournament. For the first time in recent memory Oneida took first place in the tournament.

Jessica House and Yasmine Denny were placed on the All-Tourney Team after stringing together two strong games for the Thunderhawks.

"The Gresham tournament was good. We had a good winning streak going into the tournament and I was happy we were able to keep it going. Last year Gresham broke our winning streak. So this year we looked at it as redemption," said Yasmine Denny.

After downing Gresham in the first game the Lady Thunderhawks moved on to defeat Menominee, emerging with their winning streak intact.

"The first game we blew the team away that really wanted to beat, which was Gresham. The second game was alright we won but we should have done a lot better," added Jessica House.

As the second half of the season begins the team will have to be firing on all cylinders as they play teams that have the same playoff aspirations as the Lady Thunderhawks.

Oneida Forward Lindsey Danforth

"The first half of the season has been good, really successful. Not as hard competition yet. Going into our second half is where all the competition comes on. We will start playing teams that will be in our playoff bracket," House said.

Team chemistry, which was an area of concern to start the season, has become a strong point for Oneida. The depth of roster and the quick improvement of younger players made for a seamless transition.

"We are always playing ball together and we're always around each other during school so we get to know each other really well. We are a smaller school and everyone always says our school is like a family so I think that really helped with our team chemistry," said Denny.

But that main goal of reaching the WIAA Playoff Sectionals seems to be more realistic than ever before.

"I really feel like we can do it (reach sectionals). We need to pick it up in the second half, push ourselves more. We have already improved but we need to push ourselves even more. I think we can do it," Denny added.

Passage of Judiciary Law presents new challenges

By Dawn Walschinski
Kalihwisaks

After working on the Judiciary Law for the past six years, Oneida Business Committee (OBC) Councilwoman Melinda Danforth found its passage by the General Tribal Council (GTC) on Monday, January 7 to be "very surreal."

"This is one of the most challenging projects that I've actually had to move forward with," she said.

The new structure of the judiciary will consist of a Family Division, General Civil Division and a Peacemaking and Mediation Division, each with one full time judge, and a Court of Appeals with one full time judge and four part time judges. The GTC rejected the Small Claims Court, though it could be added eventually.

"We'll reserve that for a future time, and we'll have that undertaken by the General Tribal Council when they're ready," said Danforth.

The new judicial structure also adds new requirements for judges. Judges are required to be 25-years-old instead of 21, and non-chief judges must have a bachelor's degree in one of 14 areas from criminal justice to Native American studies to philosophy, or a master's degree or a Juris Doctor (law) degree. A chief judge must have either a master's degree, Juris Doctor, or a bachelor's degree and three years of experience as a judge. Judges will serve a six year term versus the three to four year terms they currently serve.

Now begins the transition period. Judges for the new system will be elected in the summer of 2014 and the new court system will be in place in early 2015.

"I'm just happy that we were able to demonstrate why it was needed, why the system needed to change, and wanted people to realize that this is an important component to government, to our tribal government," said Danforth.

However, not everyone is happy with the new Judicial Law. Chief Judicial Officer Winnifred Thomas is concerned that the new system will only require one judge to preside over a case instead of the current three.

"We have always prided ourselves at the court because we have always had a really unique and different court system," said Thomas. "We attend Wisconsin Tribal Judges meetings and they say 'what we would give to have three judges sitting on that panel as opposed to one.'"

Danforth stated the new system doesn't preclude having more than one judge hear a case.

"It allows for a little more flexibility," said Danforth.

Thomas also shared a concern expressed by Eight Judicial District Chief Judge Donald R. Zidmulder that the Oneida court system existence is tenuous.

"'Winnie, we have one concern. Your court has been put into being by resolution, your court can be taken out by resolution,'" relayed Thomas.

"Until it comes to a constitutional … amendment, it will be a political football," said Thomas.

Influenza finds its way into Oneida community

School attendance remains unaffected

By Nate Wisneski
Kalihwisaks

If it seems that everyone you know is getting the flu, that may just be the case.

According to the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services the flu is widespread in 48 states and for the sixth straight week flu cases are above the yearly average across the country.

According to Ravider Vir, Medical Director at the Oneida Community Health Center, the flu season started earlier this season. It even quarantined the Anna John Nursing Home for roughly a week.

"Flu typically peaks in late January or February. This year we started seeing cases in late November and early December," he said.

The Oneida Nation School System looks to have been spared so far regarding flu cases.

"We have not seen an increase in student absences due to flu symptoms. The average number of students who had been called in by parents as being out sick with flu symptoms is approximately four, and some of these students were absent more than one day, said Jolene Valladares with the Oneida Nation Elementary School.

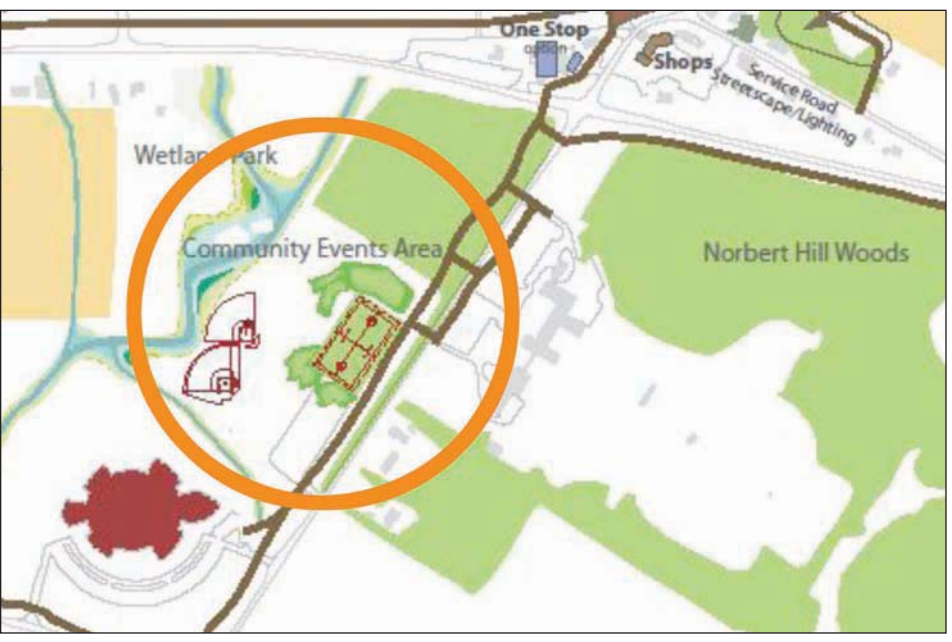
Similar numbers have been seen at the high school but they had a few of the staff out this past week.

The Oneida Community Health Center has tested 104 patients for the flu with 34 confirmed cases to date.

"The actual number of influenza cases are much higher as many individuals with influenza do not seek medical attention and every patient with a respiratory illness is not tested for influenza," added Vir.

Vir recommends the flu shot for anyone over six months of age. Community members can obtain flu shots free of cost at the Oneida Community Health Center and the Oneida Employee Health Nursing area offers free shots to tribal employees.

"The efficacy of the vaccine this season is over 62%. The persons who received the flu vaccine this year and still caught the flu had a less severe illness than the ones who did not," he said.



Everyday precautions can also help fight the flu bug such as hand washing and preventive antiviral medications for those exposed or caring with someone with the flu.

"You should stay home and follow your health care provider's recommendations. Talk to your health care provider or pharmacist about over-the-counter and prescription medications to ease flu-symptoms and help you feel better faster," said Vir. "Over-the-counter medications may relieve some flu symptoms but will not make you less contagious."

New recreational area moves to school board

Submitted photo

The new recreational area would be located just north of the Oneida Turtle School (the area is circled on the map).

The Community Events Recreational Area, which has been in development since 2005 is finally moving forward.

On January 14, 2013 Leanne Doxtater of Oneida Planning made a presentation to the Oneida Nation School Board which laid out three lease options for the board to choose from should they decide to go ahead with the project.

The future are will be located on the north side of the Oneida Turtle School on what is currently referred to as the Diocese Property. The area will be approximately 27 acres and consist of two baseball fields and a lacrosse field. There will also be a multi-use field where soccer can be played.

High school teams, such as softball and football, may be allowed to utilize these fields for practices.

"The school board hopes to allow school teams and events to have first priority use of the facilities. This may be a deciding factor for the board," said School Board member Melinda Danforth.

After the Highway 54 construction eliminated the Site II Little League diamond this new recreational facility is sorely needed by the Oneida Recreation's summer baseball programs.

"Potentially there is an opportunity for revenues from the site in the form of renting out the fields for games or tournaments, that option will be fully investigated," said Doxtater.

The Oneida Nation School Board is currently weighing their options on this project and will announce their decision at the February 11th school board meeting.

OPD uses grant in the community

By Dawn Walschinski
Kalihwisaks

The Oneida Police Department (OPD) is making plans for two grants received from the state. The grants come from gaming money paid by Wisconsin tribes to the state.

One grant for $36,000 will be split with Brown County and the other for $32,000 will be split with Outagamie County. According to OPD Chief of Police Rich VanBoxtel Oneida has been receiving the grants for the past 25 years.

"The things we've chosen to do with that is some community programing," said VanBoxtel. Some examples of programing are Cops and Bobbers, blanket making and Champions Basketball Program for teens.

"They talk about some leadership stuff, some personal growth, those life skills they may or may not be getting at home, to help them grow into responsible adults," said VanBoxtel.

OPD will also continue to update their communications equipment, such as how computers in squad cars stay connected.

"They used to go off through radio signals and it was very slow. What we did is we got those upgraded to Air Cards," he said.

VanBoxtel stated that Brown and Outagamie Counties will be spending their halves of the grants on equipment such as stop sticks, flashlights and accident scene reconstruction kits. He said OPD is fortunate to have a good working relationship with the counties.

"We don't need big brother pushing us to work well with the sheriff's departments," said VanBoxtel.

From 1A/Judiciary Law

Chief Judge Thomas also expressed regret that the GTC didn't hear from the current Oneida Tribal Judicial System.

"(It) wounds my heart is the fact that General Tribal Council didn't hear from both sides. They didn't have the opportunity, and no one asked, not a member asked, what the judiciary thought of this. They've been in existence since 1991," she said.

However, Thomas was pleased that the new judicial system will include a family division.

"We now have Indian Child Welfare. For how many years, we were the only tribe in the state of Wisconsin that did not have its own Indian Child Welfare," said Thomas.

"We will take care of our own."

Danforth agreed that the new family division is important.

"Now we can take on Indian Child Welfare … cases. The Child Protective Board has begging for that for years," she said.

Thomas stated she hoped for the best for the next judicial system, and Danforth stated Oneida was headed down a good path.

"When we talking about nation building … this is one of those components that's absolutely extremely important to being able to do that, to be able to interpret our laws, to enforce our laws," she said.

In Loving Memory

In Loving Memory of my son

Josh Webster

Whom the Creator called home
13 Years ago, January 21, 2000

As the song goes, precious memories how they linger,
how they never leave your soul
but in the stillness of the nightfall,
I'm eternally connected to you.

Josh, the gifts you send from a distance, is a distance that's really not that far away,
and it's a wonderful reminder that our bond still transcends even in physical separation.

Josh, the gifts you've sent me are so powerful and a source of comfort which gives us strength to go on.
I thank you for that support coming from the other side.

I embrace and wait for those spiritual elements of surprise, as it fills my heart with love and inspires lives to live in honor.

So Josh, I release what was and what should have been and embrace the love – that is.

I write this not because you died, but because you lived and in those 19 years with us,
you touched many hearts in such a special way, thanks for giving us those precious memories that even time cannot take away!

We love and miss you Josh!
Love Mom, Brian, Jerome, Jermaine,
Jason, Brian Jr (BJ)

In Loving Memory of

Abraham V. Stevens

Who passed away 1 year ago on January 24, 2012

God saw you were getting tired, and a cure was not to be;
So He put His arms around you and whispered, "Come to me."

With tearful eyes we watched you suffer and saw you pass away.
Although we loved you dearly,
we could not make you stay.

A golden heart stopped beating, hard working hands to rest.

God broke our hearts to prove to us
He only takes the Best.

Miss you! Love from Sandy & kids
You Sweet thing you!

Passing On...

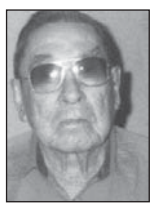
July 3, 1962 – January 9, 2013

Thomas H. Elm, age 51 of Howard, died peacefully surrounded by his family on Wednesday January 9, 2013. He was born in Milwaukee on July 3, 1962 to Emil and Edith (House) Elm. Thomas was a very outgoing person, and had a lot of friends, wither young or old, he loved them all. He was very fun loving and loved to socialize. Thomas was also very spiritual and loved to listen to Native American music.



Thomas is survived by his brother, Patrick (Sue) Elm, his sisters, Patsy Elm, Sandy Elm, his special nephew, Albert Elm, special niece, Miranda Elm, his special aunt, Irene Hill, as well as Norman and Carol Elm, and the Hill and Betters Families, and many nieces and nephews. Thomas was preceded in death by his parents, three brothers, Emil Jr., Nick, and Rick, as well as his grandparents, Firssell and Angie Elm.

Mass of Christian Burial was held with Fr. Eric Mills officiating on Monday, Jan. 14, 2013 at St. Anne Episcopal Church, 347 S. Libal Street in De Pere with burial in Holy Apostles Cemetery, Oneida.

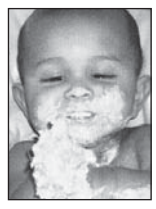
Ryan Funeral Home, 305 North Tenth Street, De Pere, assisted the family with arrangements. Please visit www.ryanfh.com to send online condolences to the family.

King, Robert

March 24, 1924 – January 22, 2013

Robert King, "The Great Bob King", 88 of Oneida, died peacefully at his home on Tuesday January 22, 2013. The son of Antone and Rose (Schuyler) King was born March 24, 1924 in Oneida. He served as a Sergeant in the U.S. Army during WW II. He was married to Grace (Danforth) King and she passed away in 1953.

He spent most of his life in construction and was an Iron Worker in Kansas and Arkansas. In Milwaukee, he spent twelve years as a licensed power engineer, and six years at the Radisson Hotels in maintenance. He fully retired at the age 79.



Survivors include his daughter, Joyce Williams, one grandson, Bradley Williams, his son, Warren King, nieces and nephews. He was preceded in death by his parents, wife, Grace, one son, Wayne King as well as his 6 brothers and 4 sisters.

Family and friends may call at Oneida United Methodist Church, N3067 County Road E, Oneida from 10:00 am to 1:00 pm on Friday January 25, 2013. Fountain, Alexander A.

December 21, 2010 – January 7, 2013

Alexander A. Fountain, 2, of Green Bay, went to be an Angel in the Sky on Monday January 7, 2013. The son of Juanita Fountain was born December 21, 2010 in Green Bay.

Alexander's family includes his mother, Juanita, his sister, Jaylenna, grandparents, Charlene and Casey Smith, Pomeroyal Fountain II, great-grandma, Dr. Carol Cornelius, as well as, Auntie Danielle and Auntie Sierra Smith, two uncles, Pomeroyal Fountain III and Abraham Fountain, and great uncle Forrest Brooks and family.

A Service of Remembrance was celebrated at Oneida VFW Building on Saturday with Forrest Brooks and Steven Donovan, officiating. Funeral procession followed to Holy Apostles Cemetery.

Please visit www.ryanfh.com to send online condolences. In lieu of other expressions of sympathy, donations are appreciated to St. John's Homeless Shelter, downtown Green Bay.

The family requested that, for the service, bright colors be worn in Celebration of Alex's Life.

Schuster, Joan A.

January 26, 1934 – January 8, 2013

Joan A. Schuster, 78, Oneida, passed away Tuesday, January 8, 2013. She was born January 26, 1934, in Manitowoc to Daniel Peters and Mary Powless.

Joan graduated from Wittenberg High School in 1952. She attended U.S.C. Joan was raised by her aunt, Minnie Robinson. She was very proud of her work as a legal assistant for the AIDS Network. She loved her native beadwork, spending time with her family, and had a special place in her heart for her dog, King. Joan also enjoyed playing bingo, going to Pow Wows, and was an avid Green Bay Packers fan.

Joan is survived by her children, Steven Edward Thuss, Manitowoc; Kim Joanne (Kevin) Dimmick, Manitowoc; Gregory William Thuss, Manitowoc; Crystal Lee Hanson, Oneida; Susan Joanne (Mark) Andrews, Arizona; Lynea Lynn Moat, Green Bay; her grandchildren, Kalinda, Kara, Shauna, Sarah, Craig, Krista, Jason, Sharisse, Meagan; her great-grandchildren, Chase, Dayten, Aiden, Sebastian, Andrew, Isaiah, Noah, Akira, Zoey; many other family members and friends.

She was preceded in death by her daughter, Lisa Lynn Hanson; her parents; her grandparents, and other family members.

A Memorial Service was held on Sat., Jan. 12, 2013 at 7 PM, with Rev. Earl Smith officiating.

Blaney Funeral Home, 1521 Shawano Ave., Green Bay, assisted the family with arrangements. Please go to www.BlaneyFuneralHome.com to send online condolences to the family.

A memorial fund has been established in Joan's name.

The family would like to extend a special thank you to Rev. Earl Smith, Oneida Services, and the staffs of Bellin Hospital and Unity Hospice.

Skenandore, Karey Jo

May 26, 1966 – January 13, 2013

Karey Jo Skenandore, 46, of Oneida, passed away on Sunday, January 13, 2013 at a local hospital. She was born on May 26, 1966 in Green Bay to Loretta J. (Summers) Skenandore and the late Kenneth L. Skenandore Sr.

Karey is survived by her son, Little Bear (Jeanette); daughter Minoka; grandson, Corey Little Bear; her mother (Del); four brothers, Kenneth Jr. (Lorna), Keith (Jackie), Kim, and Kyle (Mona); three sisters, Pam (Jerry), Kelly (Wayne), Keyna; and significant other, Ricky Bell. She is further survived by two uncles, Jim and Austin Summers; two aunts, Carol Elm and Gloria Lusis, as well as nieces, nephews, other relatives and friends.

She was preceded in death by her father; her grandparents, Austin and Margaret Summers, Loretta F. Webster and Willard R. Skenandore; uncles, Ed, Gilbert, and Donald Summers; as well as nephew Baby Kenny.

Mass of Christian Burial was held with Fr. Robert Clarke officiating on Thursday, Jan. 17, 2013. Oneida Singers and Oneida Big Drum participated in the service.

Ryan Funeral Home, 305 North Tenth Street, De Pere, assisted the family with arrangements.

Please visit www.ryanfh.com to send online condolences to the Skenandore family. In lieu of flowers, a memorial fund has been established in Karey's name.

Special thank you to Dr. Berko, Dr. Tucker, the nursing staff at St. Mary's Hospital, 3rd floor and ICU, as well as Unity Hospice for all of their care and compassion. The family would also like to thank the Hospital chaplains, Deacon Debbie, and Brenda and Everett Blackthunder for their prayers and spiritual support.

Volunteers Needed for Arti Gras

Green Bay, WI – Arts Events, Inc. is hosting the 23rd annual Arti Gras festival of the fine arts at Shopko Hall, Green Bay. The event will be held on Saturday and Sunday, March 9th and 10th from 10:00 am until 5:00 pm both days. It is the unselfish dedication of volunteers that makes Arti Gras a great success year after year and without their help the event would not be possible. Volunteers are needed in the children's art area to assist with creative hands-on activities; for artist relief to give artists a short break during the event; in the coat check; and for ticket taking and ticket selling. Volunteers are asked to work a four (4) hour shift.

Arti Gras is a project of Arts Events, Incorporated, an organization dedicated to producing festivals and events that support, foster and promote the arts through activities that celebrate arts, culture and community. The event is a designated project approved by the Green Bay Public Schools for service learning. Individuals interested in volunteering should contact Arts Events, Inc. at (920) 435-5220 or email info@artseventsinc.com.

Thank You

The family of Darylee Reiter would like to give heartfelt thanks for all your kindness and sympathy during the time of our loss. It gives us much comfort to know that you are thinking of us as we grieve for the loss of our child. We are very grateful for all who brought us food; wood for the fire, donations of money, and the beautiful flowers and for being with us in our time of need. A special thanks to the fire keepers, those who cooked our special meals and kept us nourished and all who helped to get our home ready for her Journey. We especially appreciate all the kind thoughts and prayers.

This day is remembered and quietly kept,
No words are needed, we shall never forget,
For those we love don't go away,
They walk beside us everyday,
Unseen and unheard, but always near,
So loved, so missed and so very dear

Thank you,
Melissa & Chad Wilber
Carrie & Leon Skenandore

Thank You

The family of Darylee Reiter – "Ta wa ti ne" (She brings the dawn) would like to express their sincere and heartfelt thanks for the kindness and sympathy during the loss of our beloved Darylee. Your expressions of love and sharing brought us comfort as we endured the reality of sending her on her journey to the Creator's land.

A Special thanks to the fire keepers, Tom, Eli, Travel, Lee, Buddy, David, Jamison, Justin, Omar & Shalee, Marcus, Jorge, Sonny, Anthony, David K., Alejandro & Devona, Vicki, Linda, and thank you to Oneida Conservation for the wood, to Darylee's little sister Aleese and brother Mario for helping to carry the wood. Many thanks to Paula & Gwen Christjohn; Darylee's Great Aunties: Vicki, Linda, Diana, Audrey, Lesley, Sue, Michelle, Brenda and Larae for all their help with the house and food. Special thanks to Bob Brown, to Jamison, Justin and David for their songs, Micah for the words and song at the wake and the drum group at the funeral service. Our apologies if we have forgot anyone.

Thank you,

Treasurer's Report

By Cristina Danforth
Tribal Treasurer

I really seem to ruffle some feathers with my articles and if that is what I have to do in order to get the answers I seek, so be it. I am very happy with the recent response a fellow Councilman received regarding the Anna John Community Centered Care Facility. The appropriate parties have been contacted and an on-site visit will be arranged once the facility is open. If the inspection is successful, we will be well on our way to becoming Veteran Certified and being able to provide our veterans with the care they need.

Four years ago the Tribe purchased TN & Associates which was classified as an Environmental Engineering Corporation with a home base in Milwaukee, WI. Our goal at the time was to diversify our economy and train Oneidas in the field of engineering. Upon completion of the purchase we renamed the company to Oneida Total Integrated Enterprises, otherwise known as OTIE. Part of the purchase contract requested that the previous owners continue to run the corporation while mentoring Oneidas who would be able to assume the managerial roles following the completion of the contract. To date, there is not one Oneida working in the Milwaukee office with a management position.

For years I have questioned the lack of mentoring and have been told the same thing time and time again, we have no Oneidas applying with engineering backgrounds. Considering I know a few Oneidas who are more than qualified for the mentoring positions, I know these statements are not factual. Knowing my questions were not being supported by members of the Oneida Business Committee (OBC), I stopped asking.

This past weekend I did attend the OTIE Christmas party in Milwaukee along with Chairman Delgado. With the exception of the OTIE Board Members, we were the only Native Americans in the room. Considering OTIE is a 100% Oneida owned business this is unacceptable. When I questioned this fact, again I heard the same response, we need to encourage our children to become engineers. I pointed out that I was seated at a table with the HR Manager, Office Manager, and Head of Public Relations all of which do not have engineering backgrounds. I did not receive a response.

To further add insult to injury I listened to the conversations about the large contracts OTIE was rewarded this past fiscal year and the $80M contract just received. With all this money flowing into OTIE, the assumption would be that some of these funds would be returned to the Tribe. Unfortunately this has not been the case. In 2010 we received a $500,000 return from OTIE. Last year we asked for a $1M return on our investment from which we received only $20,000 for FY2013. This is extremely disheartening

Some are content to allow OTIE to not fulfill the contractual requirements and those of us that are not are outnumbered. Blindly supporting an issue without completing the research or understanding the subject is irresponsible at best. I cannot give up the fight. I know OTIE is not honoring our contract and I cannot allow that to happen. We have plenty of Oneidas that live in the Milwaukee area that could be working for OTIE but are not. Why is this allowed? Also, OTIE has offices in Green Bay, WI, Madison, WI, Ventura, CA, San Diego, CA, San Francisco, CA, Vandenberg AFB, CA, Paso Robles, CA, San Antonio, TX, Chicago, OL, Atlanta, GA, Oak Ridge, TN, Denver, CO, Las Vegas, NV, and Okinawa, Japan. With all of these locations and Oneidas across the world, the only two Oneidas that work for OTIE are in the Oneida/Green Bay office.

In 2011, the Oneida Tribe provided 3% of OTIE's yearly revenue and we are the owners. We have received minimal returns and have less than a handful of Oneidas working for the corporation. My questions have fallen on deaf ears and nothing has been resolved with the mentoring program.

OBC Forum...

As we head into this New Year, we have many things to be thankful for and we have many things that we need to focus on. As a government which serves a large population of tribal members, we have to be mindful of preserving what we have, while we look to the future. In so many ways we need more; from housing to new jobs, pay raises and everything in between, demands are outpacing our resources. The needs always eclipse our ability to serve at the level tribal members desire.

Getting Down to Business

So with the forgoing thoughts in mind, I think it is imperative that we get down to the business of seeing what we can do to address some of these issues. There are several key components to achieving some desired new outcomes.

If we look at the financial side of the equation it is obvious we need more money to achieve some of those things. Top on my list would be a new round of pay raises for the hard-working Oneida employees. But with revenue being flat, something has to give. I also see housing as being a top priority, but once again, economic growth and new revenue needs to be realized, to make some of these things happen.

As the New Year develops, there are two items which need our attention so we can get on track long-term. Here are just two strategic areas we need to think about:

1) Oneida leadership. Oneida needs to view themselves as a conduit for sparking change.
2) Leadership Productivity. The Productivity of leadership needs to be a priority.

I will talk about these two central matters in the balance of this article. I have issued a series of strategic recommendations to the Oneida Business Committee (OBC) on things we may consider acting upon. As always, I am willing to share my recommendations with Oneida Tribal Members in hopes that together we can foster some change and secure some new direction soon!

Day-to-Day

The current policy on day-to-day involvement of OBC stems from actions dating back to the early 1980's. I personally think we need to reconsider what day-to-day business should entail and define what the OBC's level of involvement in operations should be. I am asked all the time on whether the OBC can get involved on certain policy or organizational matters. Some say yes while others say no because they believe it falls into the category of day-to-day activity. I can agree with the concerns and feel management does need to be allowed to manage but at the same time leadership also needs to step in to re-tool facets of operations and gear-up segments of policy when needed. There is a fine line here which desires some level of discussion. At what point does leadership need to step in and direct management? How best can we spawn the growth of this tribe without allowing leadership to be too closely involved in day-to-day business affairs? Balancing the desired level of involvement is a major issue for us. An arms-length relationship to day-to-day business involvement of the OBC should be reconsidered. This is especially true when we think about the need for growth.

Leadership 101

I have heard, "Why try and forge change as a leader? Shouldn't you guys be more of a traffic cop and let management do what they do?" Therefore, I wanted to share my thoughts about leadership directly with the membership, but the quote below states it so well, I yield instead to a quote from John C. Maxell's Book, The 5 Levels of Leadership - Proven Steps to Maximize Your Potential. Think about what is being said here, it is very powerful!

The 5 Levels of Leadership Defines Leading as a Verb, Not a Noun

Leadership is a process, not a position. There was a time when people used the terms leadership and management interchangeably. I think most people now recognize that there is a significant difference between the two. Management is at its best when things stay the same.

Leadership deals with people and their dynamics, which are continually changing. They are never static. The challenge of leadership is to create change and facilitate growth. Those require movement, which, as you will soon see, is inherent in moving up from one level of leadership to the next.

Amongst all of these issues, it is clear the leaders of this nation have to lead, have to pursue change, and have to forge growth. Creating new jobs and new housing opportunities are the ultimate responsibility of the OBC.

OBC Productivity

Listed here is a memo I released last year on OBC productivity. I share this with the membership because the memo includes some insights which I think we all need to discuss on some level.

Productivity is an elusive skill, sought by many and owned by a few. Certainly, I must say governments in general are slow-moving institutions which consume the time of many and waste the time of most.

I have a few ideas which I wanted to offer around the [OBC's] administrative performance and how we may be able to carry out our responsibilities more efficiently. From scheduled meetings to special meetings, standing meetings, and all other activities in between, we need to breed efficiencies into all that we do. Further, as we think about these issues, we also cannot forget about constituency outreach work and other office type work (meeting, research, etc.) which can be inhibited by poor productivity in our administrative processes.

Here is a small example, the time we need to devote to sitting in meetings overall is staggering. I acknowledge meetings are a necessary and needed activity, but is there a middle ground which can be achieved? We currently have two types of regular meetings which unnecessarily take up a significant portion of our time, resulting in wasted time and energy. The OBC must attend two executive sessions and two OBC meetings for a total of four all-day standing meetings per months, eating into the middle of two weeks per month. Not to mention the hours staff and administration are spending in attending the meetings. Some administrative staff may only need to be there for one agenda item and they are there for the entire meeting. This is a prime example of organizational waste.

It's worth noting some large cities with populations, which dwarf our population numbers, don't have elected officials tied-up in these weekly type meetings. The number of meetings requiring our attendance is something which deserves some further consideration. I am proposing that we seriously consider a process in which we only have to have one formal process meeting a month for OBC items. How practical it is to do, I am not sure. But I wanted to explore the topic and either forges a new way or lays the issue to rest and does the best we can to enhance some efficiencies where possible.

It needs to be understood, lengthy meetings can be a large waste of time if we are not orchestrating agendas and work flow in an organized manner. This is a major issue, and we need to contemplate how we can go about sorting through meeting workloads and administrative efficiencies for the OBC.

I'd like to reiterate a few points made by Peter Drucker, one of the leading organizational and management experts:

- There's 4 main signs of management deficiency: 1) lack of system foresight, 2) overstaffing, 3) mal-organization, and 4) malfunction in information.
- Meetings should never be allowed to be the main demand. Meetings should not be the main demand of a knowledge workers time. If the meetings are producing results that's one thing, but if the purpose of each meeting becomes planning another meeting, you have a problem.
- If you're spending too much time on interpersonal issues, it's a sign of overstaffing. If you're spending all your time on feuds and friction, and fighting over space, it's a sign of overstaffing. Lean organizations stay focused on the results and either collaborate as a team, or at least don't get in each other's way (they're too busy working on their own work).
- If you keep running into the same crisis, it's a lack of system foresight. Surprises happen, but if you keep running into the same surprises, then there's a lack of system foresight. It means you don't know the system you're in and you don't know how it works and you're not anticipating events in the systems.
- If you don't have accurate, relevant, timely information, then you're flying blind. People can't do their jobs effectively without the right information. Bad information wastes everybody's time. If you don't have accurate, relevant, timely business information, then you can't make effective business decisions. (Para. 3)

A key take away point here is that a meeting should not be the main demand or strain on our time, at least not the four I am referencing in this memo. As leaders, we really should be orchestrating and helping guide results rather than sitting in meetings that take up the entire day. We sometimes have to manage managers and lead pathways through poor policy processes and antiquated ways of executing decisions. Tribal managers have to be more dynamic and more results driven, with ideas emanating from within their sphere of control.

The movement this week to streamline and move towards Restructuring Plan B is a wonderful start, but we have to re-shape how we go about seeking the results we desire. How do we best lead in this environment?

Land

At the January 9th OBC meeting there was a discussion on our land base. Questions were asked about the percentage of tribal fee land and the percentage of land in trust for tribal members. This led to a discussion on what the overall picture is for lands that we have under our jurisdiction. I responded with a motion to direct the Department of Land Management to give the OBC an updated report on all of the tracts of land that are under our ownership and to report what the current usage of the land is. The report was directed to include all of the outstanding leases and a description of the said leases. In addition, I asked for a description on the projected revenue of said leases and an identifier of the tracts which are eligible for farming activity whether they're under contract or not.

I asked for this baseline information because we have to make fiduciary decisions. We can't let land sit idle. We can't let land sit out there with very marginal revenue on them. We have to put that land to work for the Oneida people at some level. We have to maximize potential and up the revenue from an economic standpoint.

Thank you for time and if you would like further information or have concerns you would like to share, please feel free to contact my office at 920-869-4426 or email me directly at oneida2011@yahoo.com.

Respectfully,
Vince DelaRosa

Reports
1. New York land claim settlement monthly report – Ed Delgado
Motion by Patty Hoeft to accept the New York land claim settlement monthly report and to forward the report to a Business Committee work meeting with the committee on Jan. 15, 2013, seconded by Brandon Stevens. Motion failed with one abstention and three opposed:
Ayes: Patty Hoeft, Brandon Stevens
Abstained: David Jordan
Opposed: Melinda J. Danforth, Tina Danforth, Paul Ninham
For the record: Ed Delgado stated we have 25,000 Oneidas in this whole wide world, there's no more. We have three Oneida Communities. We have to do our best to create good-will and good relations with those Indian Nations. We need to respect their Sovereignty and we need to insist that our Sovereignty is also respected, so that's the purpose. To move forward so we can have good relations with the New York Indians of Oneida. They haven't been that good. That's the initiative and I'm going to stick with that and as Rick used to say, "That's my story and I'm sticking to it." Thank you.
Motion by Paul Ninham to defer the New York land claim settlement report to a Business Committee work meeting on Jan. 15, 2013, seconded by Patty Hoeft. Motion carried with one opposed:
Ayes: Melinda J. Danforth, Patty Hoeft, David Jordan, Paul Ninham, Brandon Stevens Opposed: Tina Danforth
For the record: Tina Danforth stated I opposed because I had already expressed my unavailability on that date.
Vince DelaRosa arrived at 9:48 a.m.*

2. Comprehensive Health Division – Debra Danforth
Motion by David Jordan to accept the Comprehensive Health Division report and also request Comprehensive Health Division bring forward to the next meeting, a resolution requesting that Kathy Hughes be placed on those two boards that were mentioned in the report, seconded by Brandon Stevens. Motion carried with one abstention:
Ayes: Melinda J. Danforth, Vince DelaRosa, Patty Hoeft, David Jordan, Paul Ninham, Brandon Stevens
Abstained: Tina Danforth

1. Gaming: Retro-approve $8 per hour holiday premium pay incentive for Dec. 25 & 31, 2012 and Jan. 1, 2013
Excerpt from Nov. 14, 2012: Motion by Brandon Stevens to defer to the next Business Committee meeting so we can get an explanation from Gaming and make a decision at that point, seconded by Paul Ninham. Motion carried unanimously.
Motion by Patty Hoeft to retro-approve $8 per hour holiday premium pay incentive for Dec. 25 & 31, 2012 and Jan. 1, 2013, seconded by Paul Ninham. Motion carried unanimously:
For the record: Tina Danforth stated I truly believe that this needs to be implemented across the board for other employees who have to work. We can make the statement that Gaming is a significant source of revenue, that's true, but there are other sources of revenue and other people are working the Holiday. I had really said this the past summer with the July Holiday, you know, other people have to work too and they should be given the same consideration. There are people working in a nursing home, so we should just discount them? I don't think it's fair. People who work in the one-stops, they shouldn't be discounted either. Thank you.

2. Approve Tribal-wide $8 per hour holiday premium pay incentive for Dec. 25 & 31, 2012 and Jan. 1, 2013 for Anna John Nursing Home, Utilities, Retail, MIS, Police and Internal Security, Transit

3. Approve Human Resource Department revised workforce levels
Motion by Patty Hoeft to defer to the Chief Financial Officer to bring back a written recommendation if he agrees with attachment B, HRD workforce levels at the Jan. 9, 2013 Business Committee meeting, seconded by Melinda J. Danforth. Motion carried with one abstention:
Ayes: Melinda J. Danforth, Tina Danforth, Vince DelaRosa, Patty Hoeft, Paul Ninham, Brandon Stevens
Abstained: David Jordan

4. Employee Health: Post one vacant RN position at 40 hours per week, increase from 32 hours per week
Motion by Patty Hoeft to approve to post one vacant RN position at 40 hours per week, increase from 32 hours per week, seconded by Paul Ninham. Motion carried with one abstention and one opposed:
Ayes: Melinda J. Danforth, Vince DelaRosa, Patty Hoeft, Paul Ninham, Brandon Stevens Opposed: David Jordan
Abstained: Tina Danforth

5. Community Education Center: Use one vacant full-time teacher position to create one half-time position in CEC for Administrative Assistant II and one half-time position in Education and Training LTE half-time Marketing Program Coordinator
Motion by Patty Hoeft to approve to use one vacant full-time teacher position to create one half-time position in CEC for Administrative Assistant II and one half-time position in Education and Training LTE half-time Marketing Program Coordinator, seconded by Paul Ninham. Motion carried with one abstention:
Ayes: Melinda J. Danforth, Vince DelaRosa, Patty Hoeft, David Jordan, Paul Ninham, Brandon Stevens
Abstained: Tina Danforth

6. Education and Training: Post GED Teacher/Supervisor position vacant since May 2011
Motion by Patty Hoeft to approve to post GED Teacher/Supervisor position vacant since May 2011, seconded by Paul Ninham. Motion carried with one abstention:
Ayes: Melinda J. Danforth, Vince DelaRosa, Patty Hoeft, David Jordan, Paul Ninham, Brandon Stevens
Abstained: Tina Danforth

7. Children and Family Services: Replace vacant Assistant Director with Intake/Investigator Specialist position
Motion by Paul Ninham to approve to replace vacant Assistant Director with Intake/Investigator Specialist position, seconded by Patty Hoeft. Motion carried unanimously.

Motion by David Jordan to approve offering a two-year contract to Louise Cornelius as identified in the Dec. 12, 2012 recommendation by Council member David Jordan, seconded by Patty Hoeft. Motion carried with one abstention and one opposed:
Ayes: Melinda J. Danforth, Tina Danforth, Patty Hoeft, David Jordan, Paul Ninham
Opposed: Vince DelaRosa
Abstained: Brandon Stevens

For the record: Vince DelaRosa stated my reason for opposition, when I say reasoning relative to anything related to work, because I'm not impuning the credibility of the candidate. What I was suggesting and I have been for a long time is that, I think that we should have offered and opened that position to see what kind of candidates were out there and allow the current candidate to also apply but to open up the opportunities to see what other candidates were available. So that's the reasoning for my opposition. Thank you.

Rezoning Property and Issue a Conditional Use Permit

The subject property is the former Tower Foods Property (a portion of parcel # 17-0-0683-00) located at N7329 Water Circle Place, Oneida WI 54155. The rezoning and conditional use permit are based on the request from the Oneida Seven Generations Corporation and the approval to initiate the process by the Oneida Land Commission on December 10, 2012. These requests are being completed in accordance with the Oneida Code of Laws - Chapter 69: Zoning and Shoreland Protection.

The following are being considered:
- Rezone a portion of parcel # 17-0-0683-00 from Commercial District to Industrial District.
- Request a Conditional Use Permit be issued to use the facility for "Manufacture of goods from plastics" in the former Tower Foods Facility portion of the stated parcel.

Purpose:
Indian Preference in Contracting Law

The intent of the Indian Preference in Contracting law (the Law) is to replace the current Indian Preference Law. The Law sets out the requirements for hiring certified Indian-owned businesses and skills bank workers to complete Tribal projects. In addition, the Law would:
- Establish the Indian Preference Office in law and make that office responsible for the implementation, monitoring and enforcement of the Law.
- Clarify how a business qualifies as Indian-owned, by expanding on the criteria reviewed before certification is granted.
- Requires compliance agreements be negotiated by the Indian Preference Office to establish the number of Indian workers that must be hired for a project and their benefits and wages.
- Incorporate the provisions of Rider I for Construction Contracts into the Indian Preference Law.
- Remove the License Commission from the process, as that Commission is not being utilized.
- Establishes complaint and investigation processes in the Law.
- Enables the Indian Preference Office to create a fine schedule, with the approval of the OBC.
- Increase the contract minimum from $1,000 to $1,500 for the Law to apply.

Public Hearing Process Testimony:
Oral: There will be a 5 minute limit for all oral presentations. Each participant is encouraged to provide a written transcript of his/her oral testimony, to be submitted while present at the public hearing or within ten (10) business days from the date of public hearing to the below named individuals.
Written: For those who cannot attend the scheduled public hearing or do not plan to speak at the hearing, the Oneida Tribe encourages those to submit written testimony. A maximum of ten (10) pages, doubled spaced, can be submitted within ten (10) business days from the date of public hearing to the Tribal Secretary (Patricia Hoeft) or Tonya Boucher, Legislative Reference Office at the Norbert Hill Center, 2nd floor or mail to PO Box 365, Oneida WI 54155.

Chairman's Corner...

Ed Delgado
Chairman

It's the day after the inauguration of President Obama. This will be the fourth day that I, along with four other members of the Oneida Business Committee have been here in Washington D.C., participating, contributing and learning the best we can so that we can return home to Oneida and best serve the Oneida people and be recognized by the Obama administration as strong supporters of his agenda to move America forward, "together."

On Saturday evening, inauguration activities began for the approximately 1,000 Indian people who are here in Washington for pretty much the same reasons we Business Committee members are, to best Indian nation issues. The activity was a powwow. Powwows do something for me inside. I look at the people and they are not only beautiful, but I think we all think about our people at powwows. As Indians, we struggle, and as Indian nations, we struggle to survive.

On Sunday, we participated in the first of two Inauguration parties put on primarily for Indians. We celebrated Alouise Cobell, the late Blackfeet Indian woman who took on the United States government, and won. She thought it was wrong that so many Indian people had so many resources, some with oil wells in their back yards, yet they received little in return. She fought that system, and as I said, she won. We also heard from a young woman, who as a child, was taken from her family and her people and adopted out into the non-Indian world. I could hear the hurt in he speech and in her song. As Indian nations, we must keep state adoption agencies out of Indian country.

On Monday, we heard our new President. He said our nation can move forward into a great age, if we all move in that direction "together." We can't leave out anyone, is what I heard him saying.

As Indians, we struggle not to be left out economically, yet we struggle to be left alone as sovereign nations. It can be done, but only if Indian nations are left free to truly develop economically within our own Reservation borders. We struggle to first provide the resources for our children's health, education and welfare. We struggle to protect our lands, which we honor and depend on to survive. We struggle to help our elders as their bodies are not as strong as they once were. And we pray that our Indian nations will survive for the next 1,000 years.

Today is Tuesday. Tomorrow we go home. Today, Indian leaders will meet with other Tribal leaders and U.S. government leaders to discuss the future.

Thanks.

Sincerely,
Ed Delgado
Oneida Tribal Chairman

OBC Forum...

Shekólih,

It feels like a very long time since I have had the opportunity to share with you items occurring from my office, it has been a busy few months. To start, I am going to share with you an overview of the work I have been doing at the federal and state levels and next I will move to my take on the importance of the recent visioning sessions.

At the federal level, I, along with the Health Care team, am primarily focused on the implementation of the Affordable Care Act and how the act will affect Oneida. A few weeks ago, Governor Walker opted Wisconsin out of direct access to the program through what we call a "health exchange." For Oneida, this means we must now find the most appropriate course of action in order to participate in a federal health exchange. Ultimately, our participation in the federal health exchange could mean more dollars for our health facility. In February, I will be attending a Midwest Alliance of Sovereign Tribes (MAST) meeting in Washington, D.C., followed up by a Tribal Technical Advisory Group (TTAG) work meeting a week later. During my trips there, I will be meeting with Congressional officials, tribal leaders and staff from the Department of Health Services, to work on ensuring Oneida is at the table for the federal exchanges to ensure the dollars available have a chance of coming back here to our community. Also, I along with the Health Care Team participated in sessions with the Indian Health Service (IHS) for the Bemidji Area. This session was critical for Oneida, as it gave us the opportunity to participate in the development of the federal budget specific to IHS and our area.

From a state perspective, I have been working on several areas including environmental initiatives, consultation with the state on health care and social service areas important to Oneida. One primary area my office is working on is with the Special Committee on State/Tribal Relations (SCOSTR). I have been working with tribal leaders from each of the 11 tribes in Wisconsin to develop a legislative agenda (creation of new laws and/or amendments to existing laws) to introduce to the state of Wisconsin for the upcoming year and this agenda includes things like the Intoxicated Driver Program, Children Support Services, Indian Child Welfare, Law Enforcement grants, Conservation issues and Small Business Designation, to name a few. Because there are so many issues which need to be addressed by the tribes, the leaders will be meeting to establish priorities so we can accomplish items important to all tribes in Wisconsin. Once tribal leaders have determined which items affecting the tribes will be the priorities, they will be introduced to the SCOSTR, and the tribes will be able to focus on achieving results which will have a positive impact on our communities.

Establishing priorities helps not only to determine where to focus on the federal and state levels, but here at home as well. The visioning sessions which took place in December at the Radisson helped me gain a better understanding of what the community is thinking and what they are envisioning our community to be. From these sessions, we discovered the "top 10" themes and they include: healthcare, economic development, employment, education, culture, language, sovereignty, unification, housing and lastly, citizen needs. Now it is my job to help develop a strategy surrounding how we are able to fulfill the desires of the community in those 10 areas/themes. A presentation on this process was scheduled for the Annual GTC meeting on Jan. 7; however due to the time constraints, will now be forwarded to the next GTC meeting. In the meantime, I encourage everyone to participate in future sessions as well as ask questions. Finally, for my next article, I will share with you how I see all of these things interconnecting and how the steps we are taking (or not taking) now fit into the "big picture" and have an effect on how Oneida chooses to move forward with nation building activities such as the things we have already started like the constitutional amendments and the creation of the a judiciary.

Estate Claims Assistant
Enrollment Department

She koli Swakwe Ku (Greetings to All)

As we begin another year, I reflect back not only my first month in this position as your Estate Claims Assistant but to the present, and it's been truly an honor in having the opportunity to assist the tribal membership during their time of need. Whether it was providing assistance on what to do when a loved one passes away, guiding you through what documents our office needs or what questions you should be asking the funeral director or guiding you through the Beneficiary Designation form.

One common denominator which I feel the membership greatly needs is general information on what's all involved for funeral planning. The average person can expect about 40-50 different questions when a death occurs. The difficult task for me, is trying to prioritize what's the most important topic as each week presents different situations members face, ranging from "what do I do" or " how does Oneida Life Insurance Plan Plus (OLIPP) process start". Each family is unique in their circumstances by the loss of their loved one. But the one thing that can complicate this process is not having a beneficiary form on file.

The most important advice I can give to each enrolled tribal member (over age of 18 yrs.) is to review the Oneida Life Insurance Plan Plus (OLIPP) brochure. This provides the following basic information:

- importance of designating a primary and contingent beneficiary
- what happens if you designate a minor child or incompetent adult
- explains when the spousal waiver must be signed
- provides information if a member has been assigned a Guardian or Power of attorney (POA) and what documentation our office needs
- explains the Life Claim process
- informs of the Living Benefit for those whom are declared terminally ill with one year or less to live, you can request up to half of the insurance proceeds now
- it informs about the process when minors pass away

This information was mailed to each member but if you've misplaced it over the years, please contact me and I can provide you a copy.

As reported in previous articles, OLIPP became effective in October 2009. It's a $15,000 term life insurance policy that's available after your death. The intent of this policy is to help cover final expenses (which can include funeral expenses). Each member should designate a primary beneficiary (contingent beneficiary are optional). Your primary beneficiary is someone you entrust who will take care of your life ending expenses. We currently have 6245 members who have NOT returned their Beneficiary form to the Enrollment office. If you have a current beneficiary form on file in and over time have become divorced, married, or maybe your primary beneficiary is now deceased, you should update your form.

My job is very challenging, as I understand people in general don't like to talk about death—but it's a part of the circle of life. You have the ability to take control while you're living to elect a primary beneficiary whom you entrust. Don't leave it to the insurance company to decide your payout. Since my tenure here, I have seen too many situations where a loved one passes away and there was no beneficiary form are on file.

When there is no beneficiary form on file, several things will happen:

- EPIC life insurance will determine through the naming sequence who gets the proceeds. It may end up in the hands of a relative who doesn't handle money well, it may end up in the hands of a relative who has an addiction, it may end up with a relative who is incarcerated or it may end up in the hands of someone who you don't have a good relationship with.

*When EPIC life insurance determines the first living survivor to be a minor child:

- You will have absolutely no money available for funeral expenses as the proceeds will all go to the custodial parent/guardian of minor child. Therefore, upon your death, someone in your family will have to sign a funeral invoice and that individual will then be responsible for entire funeral expense out of their own pocket. Traditional casket funerals have been averaging about $6000 to $10,000 and cremation have been averaging about $2000-$6000.

- If you currently don't have your Beneficiary Designation form on file and you're not married BUT have minor children, again, there will be no monies available for your funeral expenses—so my advice to you is complete your Beneficiary Designation form and do one of several things:
  - ¤ Check the box in Section B of the Beneficiary Designation form. This will ensure your funeral expenses get paid first. If you still want to list your minor child as a primary beneficiary Remember, the custodial parent/guardian will then receive any remaining balance on behalf of your minor child and that money cannot be turned back over to pay your funeral costs.
  - ¤ Designate a responsible adult whom you entrust will pay your final expenses and will spend any remaining balance on the minor child.
  - ¤ Check the box in Section B, naming Oneida Enrollment Department as a primary beneficiary, then create a trust account for your minor child and include that information on the beneficiary form.
  - ¤ In all of the above cases you still have the option of checking box in Section B to ensure your funeral home expenses are paid first.

When no beneficiary form is on file:

- EPIC Insurance may determine the beneficiary to be a surviving parent—in most situations that can be OK—but if the parent is in a nursing home or is on state funded programs such as Medicare, SSI, MA—those state funded benefits could be reduced or ceased because these state funded agencies view the proceeds from an insurance policy as an asset. If the full $15,000 is not used for final expenses, and the parent receives a remaining balance, this could negatively impact a parent in those cases.

What's involved in filing a life claim?

My role as the Estate Claims Assistant is to file the necessary paperwork to EPIC Life Insurance. I cannot proceed with a claim until I receive two (2) original death certificates. Once received I submit the following to EPIC Insurance: Certificate of Tribal Membership, Life Claim form, original Beneficiary form, copy of the beneficiary confirmation letter, funeral home invoice, I may generate children/sibling report which EPIC uses when there is no beneficiary form on file, this is used to validate heirs during naming sequence, I may submit an "Assignment of Proceeds" if funeral homes entered into a contract with the beneficiary/family member. Once EPIC insurance receives all this information it generally takes 2-4 weeks to process. Each beneficiary will receive their own check mailed to the address's which are on file.

How do I obtain a death certificate?

Once you meet with funeral home director, they will ask you general information about the deceased, this information eventually gets transferred to a death certificate, which then gets forwarded to either a physician, coroner or medical examiner confirming the death. This process generally takes 7-14 days and often time is mailed to the funeral home or directly to immediate family member. Be prepared when making the initial funeral arrangements to order enough death certificates as these will be needed for other purposes such as: to collect survivor death benefits, claim life insurance policies, manage the deceased assets, probate or execute the will or filing tax returns. The cost for these certificates can be added to the funeral home invoice.

If a death occurs and the result on death certificate indicates "pending", I cannot process a life claim until a final cause of death is recorded. This will definitely delay processing a life claim. We've had several cases where it took 5-10 months before the final cause of death became official on the certificate. Of course, during this time funeral homes want to be paid and all the family can do is inform them they will get paid once a "final cause of death" is recorded on death certificate.

What is the tribal member's role when a loved one dies?

- Notify the Oneida Enrollment Department upon a loved one's death. At that time, I'll inform you we need two original death certificates and possibly a funeral home invoice. Members have 365 days from the date of death to file a claim.
- Often times, the next question a family will ask is who is the beneficiary? We can't disclose that information. When a member fills out the beneficiary form the member is responsible for informing the person whom they elected. We can inform the family and funeral home when Oneida Enrollment Department is the designated beneficiary. Therefore, it's very important when you elect a beneficiary to tell them, because at the time of your death, your beneficiary is the person who should be signing final funeral home invoice.

- There's a misconception that when members check Section B-designating Oneida Enrollment Department as a beneficiary that we are involved in the funeral planning. FALSE—our role is to ensure the funeral home invoice gets paid first. Then whatever monies are remaining, EPIC life insurance will send to the beneficiary you selected in Section C or in cases when no beneficiary form is on file, EPIC will send check to the surviving family member(s) identified in the naming sequence.

Next step when a loved one dies – Select a funeral home

- If a family requests our assistance, we will be a support person for you during this difficult time. But we are not involved in the selection process of goods and services.

Will I incur any out of pocket expenses?

- Generally speaking, most funeral homes can "cash advance" expenses such as flowers, placing obituary in local newspaper(s), paying singer/honorarium fees, meal catering/food purchases, memorial cards, and purchasing death certificates. Discuss with your funeral director what expenses they will allow to be cash advanced.

If you're having a burial, cemetery fees will be incurred such as: purchasing a cemetery plot. Currently, the Oneida Cemetery plots are $100 and the marking, opening/closing fees are an additional $250. This has to be paid before a burial can occur. Cement liner or vaults are not required in Oneida Cemetery. Tribal members and their non-Oneida spouses, parents, and children may be buried here. If you're interested in purchasing a plot in the Oneida Cemetery, please contact Oneida Enrollment Department at 920-869-6200 to complete an application (the purchaser needs to bring tribal ID). If your being buried in a church cemetery you will need to contact them about their plot fees and opening/closing and marking fees.

Church cemeteries may require grave liners or vaults but check with them first. Discuss with your Funeral Director if their able to "cash advance" cemetery fees on the funeral home invoice.

- Transportation cost-Oneida Enrollment Office does not provide financial assistance to cover travel expenses to attend a loved one's funeral.

I hope this information helps you as the death of a loved one can be very stressful and an emotional time. As difficult as it is, certain arrangements will need to be made regarding the funeral and final disposition of the deceased.

Loretta Says...

It's Hog Killing time in Oneida

Ongoing Column • Providing a connection to the past

Loretta Metoxen,
Oneida Tribal Historian

Well, it is. Just because we don't do it anymore doesn't mean it is not time to do it. If we eat pork chops, bacon, ham or the Oneida favorite—side pork—we harken back to the time when we did our own butchering.

We only killed one steer on the threshing floor, but that was all. After that, the beeves were sent to a local farmer who also processed and wrapped the cuts of meat for table use.

As to pigs, we raised many. They had names. One sow called "Loppy", because her big ears hung over her eyes so she had to raise her head high to see, had forty one babies in three litters—fourteen, thirteen and fourteen.

They were always fed ground grain, a combination of oats and corn, along with whey from the cheese factory and anything left from the table, such as potato and apple peelings. Sometimes we gave them silage as well. Dad liked big animals, so they often got to be six hundred pounds each. The fat on their backs would always be about six inches thick.

I helped kill the hogs. Dad lost his right arm, so he would stun the pig with the sledge hammer by hitting it square in the head. Then the process was to "stick" the pig with an extra sharp bladed knife close to the left leg from the front so as to stab the heart. He could not do this, but I could. We usually killed two. Sometimes the neighbors or relatives were assisting.

It took nearly all day to complete the job. The next thing to do was to build a big fire under a 55 gallon drum filled with water. The animal would be lowered in the scalding water by a rope connected over a pulley and doused several times. This method would loosen the hair sufficiently so that when the pig was pulled up on a slab atop a couple of saw horses, its hair could easily be removed with scrapers made for the purpose. Rosin, a compound of resin from pine trees, was applied which would aid in the hair removal. After totally washing the animal, it would be hung up off the ground by the hind legs.

Dad would put a wash tub under the pig to catch the offal. Yes, that's what they called it. We would probably say intestines. Here were the useful parts, too, such as the heart and the liver. Fresh liver was always a treat. It was to me anyway. Mom would fry it in bacon fat with a lot of onions. The heart was put into the head cheese.

Usually, at this time of year the weather was cold enough so that the cleaned, gutted pig could be hung in the garage for keeping. It was then I realized why Dad wanted such a fat pig. It was to render as much lard as possible. Lard was not only used for frying potatoes, fry bread and doughnuts, but for pie crusts and baking bread and other pastries. Rendering lard was pretty much an all-day process, too. The leaf lard, inside the cavity, next to the ribs on each side was pulled out. The thick fat on the back was trimmed off and other larger pieces of fat were collected together. All of this was ground up through the meat grinder, usually by hand turning. Kettles were at the ready on the stove to receive all that was ground. It amounted to forty or fifty pounds. The leavings from the rendered fat are called cracklings. A large slotted spoon was utilized to catch the cracklings floating on top of the finished liquid lard. The lard could be poured through a cheese cloth fixed to a strainer. Delicious sandwiches were made from the cracklings on homemade bread with a little salt and pepper. There are recipes for cracklings—probably long forgotten and no longer referred to.

Lard was stored in heavy crock jars covered, and put in the cellar for preservation.

The making of headcheese required another full day of preparations in the kitchen. Headcheese is not a traditional Oneida food, but Oneida people learned to make it and loved to eat it. Nothing of the pig goes to waste, including the head. It is cleaned, soaked in cold water and cooked with salt, pepper, marjoram and sometimes sage. All the meat was diced, placed in the broth and finally put in bread pans. Some Oneidas, men and women, became excellent headcheese makers. They adopted the recipes from the immigrant farm families. I used to make it often.

Pork hocks can be a major part of Oneida traditional corn soup. They are also cooked with sauerkraut (another adaptation to our diet). We all like pork chops, but the favorite is fried side pork. With that goes boiled potatoes, chopped raw onion and grease (drippings). Today, doctors recommend that not much of this be on our menus for health reasons. Eating an occasional meal of side pork is almost like having a holiday.

When you are out of town and need medical attention:

During regular business hours

Please call the Oneida Community Health Center at (920) 869-2711 to speak with the triage nurse. The nurse will assess your symptoms and recommend care. If you need further evaluation and treatment, the nurse will direct you to the appropriate healthcare facility. Depending on the urgency of your symptoms, your healthcare insurance, and your current location, you may be sent to an urgent care clinic or emergency room (ER). Please present your healthcare insurance card and a list of your current medications. You are responsible to pay for any prescriptions you need. However, you may turn in your receipt into Contract Health Services (CHS) for reimbursement. Any bills received from the healthcare facility can be submitted to CHS for payment.

Your telephone call and recommended care by the nurse will be documented.

After regular business hours

Please call Oneida Community Health Center at (920) 869-2711. If you are certain that this is a life threatening emergency or injury and you need to go to the ER, please leave a message with the after-hours CHS notification line. The message should include the patient's name, birth date, phone number and reason for ER visit, name of ER and healthcare insurance information.

If you need to discuss your symptoms with the nurse, stay on the line for the Answering Service. Those representatives will gather your contact information and have a nurse call you back. Depending on the urgency of your symptoms, your healthcare insurance, and your current location, you may be sent to either an urgent care clinic or emergency room. Please present your healthcare cad and list of current medications. You are responsible to pay for any prescriptions you need.

However, you may turn in your receipt into Contract Health Services for reimbursement. Any bills received from the healthcare facility can be submitted to Contract Health Services for payment.

County H Rec Center gets new name, Webster honored

Special to Kalihwisaks

The County H Recreation Center was renamed in honor of Clifford E. Webster Sr. on Saturday, January 19, 2013. The renaming ceremony kicked off at 11am.

Webster began his career as Recreation Director in 1982 working with youth at the Recreation Program in Site Two. The program was later moved to the Sonny King Memorial Building or "Civic Center". He made sure Recreation staff always knew the youth were a priority. Cliff kept the Civic Center open on Fridays and Saturdays until 10 PM so kids had something to do and somewhere to go on weekends.

Webster was very involved with the community. If someone had a need Cliff was there to assist. "I started with Cliff Webster on October 4, 1982. He did not believe in barriers, it was always about getting it done for the best interest of the youth and the Oneida community", said Arlouine Bain, the current Recreation Director.

Webster later took the positions of Parks Director, then Transit Director. He is now enjoying retirement since May 2011.

Webster's family is proud of him and his accomplishments in his 30-year career with the Oneida Tribe. "He dedicated his life to the youth and their safety. The turning point for him was when our sister Rhonda passed away in a car accident at sixteen years old. He wanted to keep kids occupied and safe", said his daughter Robbie Webster-Thomas.

When the Webster family inquired about the possibility of having a building named after their father; Councilman David Jordan recommended the County H building as a possible site. Councilman Jordan followed through by submitting the paper work to the Division of Land Management and completed the process for having the County H Recreation Center renamed the Clifford E. Webster Sr. Recreation Center.

The County H Building started out has a Community Facility with funds obtained by an Indian Community Development Block Grant and Matching funds from the Tribe. The facility was completed in November of 2000.

Cliff, his wife Wanda and their children (Cliff Webster Jr., Robbie Webster- Thomas, Marla Bodway) along with friends and members of the community were on hand to honor him

His parents are Arthur Sr. & Josephine (Wheelock) Webster.

A light meal was provided after the dedication.

Councilman Paul Ninham and John Breuninger, Area Manager, on behalf of the Planning Department, unveil the signage which will be installed at the center. The pendleton was also given to Webster after the dedication which was conducted by Councilman David Jordan.

Claims Must Be Filed By March 1, 2013 In $3.4 Billion Indian Trust Settlement

What is This About?

The Cobell v. Salazar Settlement is approved. The Settlement resolves a class action lawsuit that claims that the federal government violated its duties by mismanaging trust accounts and individual Indian trust lands. Payments to the Historical Accounting Class are underway. The process of considering claims for the Trust Administration Class is ongoing.

The final deadline if you need to file a claim form for the Trust Administration Class is March 1, 2013.

Am I Included?

The Trust Administration Class includes:

- Anyone alive on September 30, 2009, who:
  - Had an IIM account recorded in currently available electronic data in federal government systems anytime from approximately 1985 to September 30, 2009, or
  - Can demonstrate ownership in trust land or land in restricted status as of September 30, 2009.
- The estate (or heirs) of any deceased landowner or IIM account holder whose account was open or whose trust assets had been in probate according to the federal government's records as of September 30, 2009.

Do I Need to File a Claim Form?

You must file a claim form if you believe you are a member of the Trust Administration Class and you have not:

- Received IIM account statements at your current address anytime between January 1, 1985 and September 30, 2009 and continue to receive statements; or
- Received a payment as a member of the Historical Accounting Class. If you did, you will receive a second payment automatically as a member of the Trust Administration Class; or
- Filed a claim form already using your current address. If you have, the Claims Administrator will contact you.

You must fill out a claim form and mail it to Indian Trust Settlement, P.O. Box 9577, Dublin, OH 43017-4877, postmarked by March 1, 2013 in order to receive a payment.

How Much Money Can I Get?

Members of the Trust Administration Class will likely receive at least $800 or more. The actual amount will depend on the number of claims and the costs of administration.

OTIE Scholarship Opportunity

This article is the third in a series about Oneida Total Integrated Enterprises, LLC (OTIE), an environmental engineering, science and construction management firm owned by the Oneida Tribe.

In the second article of the December 27, 2012, Kalihwisaks edition, OTIE shared that as a company owned by the Oneida Tribe, one of the company's ongoing priorities is to recruit, train and retain qualified Oneida members as part of its commitment to providing employment opportunities.

Another ongoing priority of OTIE is to provide educational opportunities to Oneida high school students through the OTIE Scholarship Program. The Scholarship Program is merit-based and funded by OTIE to motivate graduating Oneida high school students to seek a degree in the engineering and science fields.

Each year there are two (2) scholarships available in the amount of $5,000 each to be awarded on a one-time basis to an eligible Oneida high school student. The OTIE Scholarship is awarded directly to the graduating Oneida high school student as an incentive to study engineering or science for their undergraduate college degree.

To be eligible for the OTIE Scholarship, an Oneida high school student must meet the following:

- Be an enrolled member of the Oneida Tribe of Indians of Wisconsin
- Be a high school senior accepted into a full-time undergraduate degree (12 or more credits per semester) at an accredited university or college within the United States
- Be pursuing, or intend to pursue, a degree in any engineering or earth/natural science field
- Currently have a GPA of 3.2 or higher (on a 4.0 scale)
- Be involved in extracurricular and community activities

There is an application process and scholarship applicants must do the following:

- Complete the OTIE Scholarship Application Form
- Prepare a one (1) page essay describing why you are interested in engineering or science
- Provide an up-to-date transcript of your high school grades
- Provide a copy of your Tribal Enrollment I.D. or proof of enrollment
- Provide a copy of your college acceptance letter

The OTIE Scholarship application forms are available on the Oneida Nation Higher Education website at www.oneida-nation.org/highered, or by contacting OTIE at the name, phone number and email below. The OTIE Scholarship is available to Oneida high school students throughout the United States. Please see our Scholarship ad in the Education section of the Kalihwisaks.

If you are a graduating Oneida high school senior, or someone you know is interested in the OTIE Scholarship and would like more information, please contact* Francine Skenandore at 414-607-6746 or fskenandore@otie.com

Oneida Total Integrated Enterprises (OTIE) College Scholarship Program

OTIE will award up to two (2) scholarships of $5,000 annually to high school seniors who will be pursuing a college education in engineering or earth/natural sciences. The scholarships are merit-based; submission of financial information is not required for eligibility.

OTIE is owned by the Oneida Tribe of Indians of Wisconsin and provides environmental, remediation, construction, engineering, and emergency response services nationwide and internationally.

Eligibility - To be eligible for a scholarship, the applicant must:

- Be an enrolled member of the Oneida Tribe of Indians of Wisconsin
- Be a high school senior accepted into a full-time undergraduate degree (12 or more credits per semester) at an accredited university or college within the United States
- Be pursuing, or intending to pursue, a degree in any engineering or earth/natural science field
- Currently have a GPA of 3.2 (on a 4.0 scale) or higher
- Be involved in extracurricular and community activities

Application Process - Scholarship applicants must:

- Complete the OTIE College Scholarship Application Form
- Prepare a one (1) page essay describing why you are interested in engineering or science
- Provide an up-to-date official transcript of your grades
- Provide a copy of your Oneida Tribal Enrollment Card
- Provide a copy of your college acceptance letter

Completed applications are due by July 1st and should be sent to:

Child Support Agency

The Review Process

Under Chapter 78 of the Oneida Code of Law titled Child Support, it states in Section 78.10. Modification of Orders, every two years, the Agency shall notify the non-custodial parent, custodial parent and any interested party that a review of their child support order will be conducted. Unless otherwise stipulated by the parties, an order to update the child support obligation will be sought by the Agency if there is a substantial change in circumstances.

A substantial change in circumstance means:

- the child's placement is changed
- either parent or the child has a significant change in his or her finances that would lead to a change in child support of more than fifteen percent (15%) or fifty dollars ($50.00) per month
- the obligee (the person or entity to whom child support is owed) is receiving public assistance benefits and is required to have a current support order in place
- it has been 24 months since the date of the last child support order or revision to the child support order, unless the child support amount is expressed as a percentage or a change has occurred and if the current circumstances had been in place at the time the order was issued, a significantly different order would have been issued.

The Oneida Child Support Agency will base child support off of what the current order states regarding Child Custody, Placement, and Visitation. If parties wish to address Child Custody, Placement and/or Visitation, they must contact the Oneida Tribal Judicial System.

Once a request for review is submitted by a party:

- The Agency will review the case and determine if a substantial change in circumstance has occurred.
- If there is not a substantial change in circumstance, the Agency with mail a letter to all parties stating the case has been reviewed and child support will remain the same due to lack of substantial change in circumstance.
- If there is a substantial change in circumstance, the Agency will mail a letter to all parties stating the new child support amount and to contact us within five days whether they agree or disagree.
- If all parties agree to the new child support amount or come up with their own agreement, the parties will be asked to sign a stipulation to those terms.
- If parties cannot come to an agreement, the Agency will file a Motion with the court to modify child support and the Oneida Tribal Judicial System will schedule a hearing and determine the new child support order.

Oneida Tribal Judicial System

Family Court: Child Support, Child Custody, Placement/Visitation – Chapter 78 & 79

Wisconsin State Statue: 801.54

Questions in regard to the transfer of Child Support, Child Custody, Placement/Visitation cases from state court to the Oneida Tribal Judicial System.

Q: My case was originally with a county child support agency, what was the reason for the transfer?

A: Wisconsin state statue section 801.54 allows the transfer of Family cases such as child support, placement/visitation from surrounding counties into the jurisdiction of Wisconsin's tribal courts, such as the Oneida Tribal Judicial System, also known as the Appeals Commission. This statue has been in effect since January 1, 2009.

Shortly after this statute was enacted, the Oneida Child Support Agency negotiated a Memorandum of Understanding in which the State of Wisconsin agreed to transfer to the Oneida Tribal Judicial System all child support cases involving Oneida children.

Q: Does my case have to transfer to tribal court?

A: Prior to the actual transfer all parties (parents) are notified via mail of the upcoming transfer. They are provided an opportunity to object to the transfer. If a party files an objection, a hearing is held before the original county court (i.e. Brown/Outagamie) at which time a Judge will decide, based on the presented facts and circumstances, whether the case should remain in state court or be transferred. Therefore, each party has this opportunity to object prior to the actual transfer.

Q: How many cases have been transferred to Oneida jurisdiction?

A: Since the statue has been in effect there have been over 2,200 cases transferred into Oneida's judiciary. The majority of the cases are only managed (kept on file) through the judiciary. However, either parent may request a review of their original order issued prior to transfer. This is a motion for modification of child support or physical placement and must meet certain guidelines for review. Information and forms to make requests for modifications are available at the Oneida Tribal Judicial System offices. Examples of a modification include a change in employment status, relocating out of state or a change in their placement schedule. Anything that may substantially impact the current order can be reviewed within the Oneida Tribal Judicial System, Family Court, in accordance with the applicable Oneida ordinance.

Q: What happens when my case is scheduled for a hearing?

A: Once the hearing is scheduled all parties are notified of the court date, including the Judicial Officers who will sit on the review. It is at this time, that parties have their first opportunity to contest the three Judicial Officers having been assigned to the case if the parties believe a conflict of interest exists. The second opportunity to contest a judicial officer's assignment on the case is at the hearing. A hearing officer can also recuse themselves should they have a conflict of interest. The purpose of having three Judicial Officers on the panel is to fulfill language from the General Council resolution establishing the Oneida Tribal Judicial System which states there will be more than one decisionmaker. Resolution 8-19-91-A "WHEREAS; An Appeals Commission will maintain the integrity of an Oneida traditional system of decision making by insuring that there is more than one decisionmaker for any issue."

Q: How many hearings has the Oneida Tribal Judicial System conducted on Family cases?

A: Since the child support cases transferred into the Judicial System, there have been over 950 hearings.

Q: What has been the success rate of the cases heard?

A: Of the 950+ hearings, there have been only eight appeals filed, less than 1% of the cases heard. Of the 950+ hearings, there have been only three requests for transfer back into the original county, again less than 1% of cases where a motion for modification was requested. The only transfer completed was due to a loss in jurisdiction, meaning; neither the parents nor the child was a tribal member and a parent motioned for the transfer.

Legislatively, there is no procedure in Chapter 79 Child Custody, Placement and Visitation or Chapter 78 Child Support that currently allows or prohibits transfers. The role of the judiciary is to interpret tribal laws as enacted by the Legislative branch of the tribe.

Currently, the Oneida Tribal Judicial System, has no authority in Indian Child Welfare cases where children are removed from their home; Child in Need of Protective Services (CHIPS) or Terminating Parental Rights. Abuse and neglect cases involving Oneida children are heard in state court only. The Tribe gives input through the Child Protection Board. No such case has ever been filed or heard in the Oneida Tribal Judicial System.

The Oneida Tribal Judicial System, has been working with the parties requesting transfers back to the original jurisdiction on a case-by-case basis when a formal request has been received.

Aimbridge Hospitality to manage Oneida's Radisson and Wingate

Leading hotel Management Company assumed management on January 16

The Oneida Airport Hotel Corporation is pleased to announce today that it has partnered with Aimbridge Hospitality to manage the Radisson Hotel and Conference Center and the Wingate by Wyndham Green Bay Airport. Aimbridge assumed management of both properties on January 16.

Dave Johnson, President and CEO of Aimbridge Hospitality, is pleased about the latest additions to the Aimbridge portfolio and looks forward to working with the Radisson and Wingate by Wyndham brands.

"We are eager to begin managing these properties and to make them even more profitable," Johnson said.

Board Chair Janice Skenandore-Hirth is thrilled to bring the sales and management expertise of Aimbridge Hospitality to both the Wingate by Wyndham Green Bay Airport and the Radisson Hotel and Conference Center Green Bay.

"We were impressed with Aimbridge Hospitality's market knowledge and operations proficiency, and what the Oneida Tribe will gain in improved systems and improved profitability," added Skenandore-Hirth, "The Oneida Airport Hotel Corporation believes that this will be a successful partnership for the Oneida Airport Hotel Corporation and Aimbridge."

The transition to Aimbridge Hospitality has been relatively seamless and neither property has experienced a business interruption. In today's tough leisure and hospitality market, the experience, efficiencies, and fresh perspective Aimbridge Hospitality brings to the table will establish both properties as the top choice hotels in the area.

For more information, please visit the company's Web site at www.aimbridgehospitality.com.

From L to R: Chairman Ernie Stevens Jr., Chairman Daniel Tucker, Gay Kingman, and Chairman Emeritus-Rick Hill. Not present is Tim Wapato who was also recognized.

Washington, DC – During the National Indian Gaming Association's Native Nations Policy Summit, Chairman Ernie Stevens Jr. presented handmade silver NIGA sovereignty staff pins to Gay Kingman-Wapato, Daniel Tucker, Sycuan Band of the Kumeyaay Nation Chairman and Rick Hill NIGA Chairman Emeritus (Tribal Financial Advisors Chairman) as an acknowledgement for their historic and current role in advancing Indian gaming and tribal sovereignty.

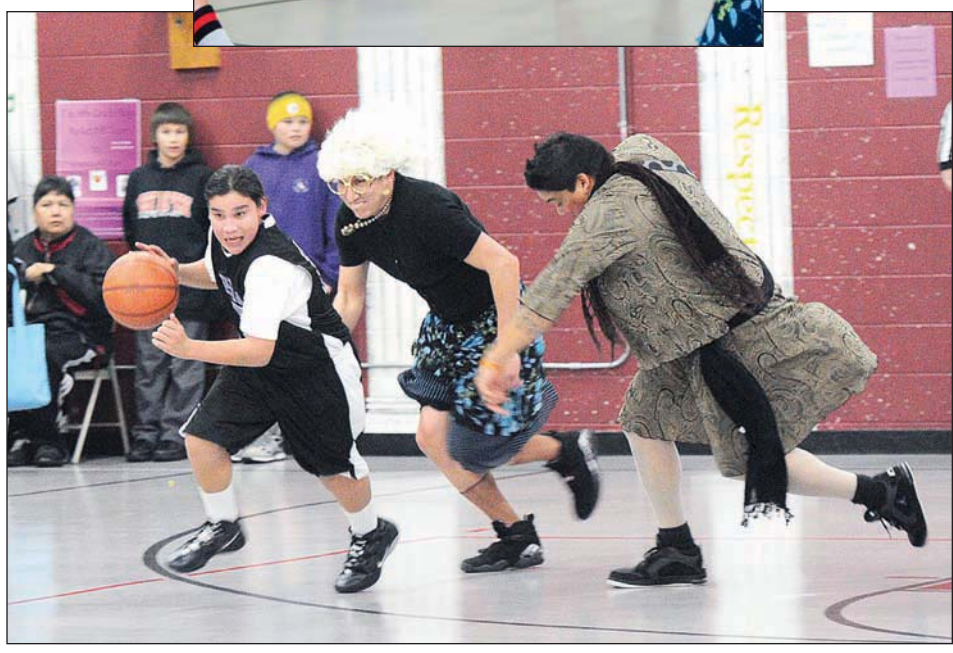
"Over twenty years ago, these warriors took on the challenge to build a national presence to Indian gaming. Gay, Danny and Rick provided a standard of what our industry means and what it stands for, and that is Sovereignty and Indian Self-Determination," Chairman Stevens said.

The pins were presented at NIGA's one-day meeting on sovereignty, tribal economies, and taxation in Crystal City, Virginia on the weekend of the Presidential Inauguration.

NIGA Chairman Emeritus Rick Hill served most of his adult life on the Oneida Tribal Council that culminated in two separate terms as Chairman from 1990 to 1993 and again from 2008 to 2011. In his first term, he was able to triple tribal resources and helped his tribe sign their first gaming compact with the State of Wisconsin.

After Tim Wapato left his role in government service in 1993, tribal nations asked Tim and his wife, Gay Kingman and Rick Hill to develop and establish a National Indian Gaming Association presence in Washington, D.C. In 1995, NIGA was the first Indian organization to purchase and own property on Capitol Hill. In addition to being recognized by NIGA at the Native Nations Policy Meetings, Ms. Kingman-Wapato was also honored by the American Indian Society of Washington, D.C. during their Inaugural Ball with a 2013 Lifetime Legacy Award for her selfless work as an advocate for Indian Country for these past 40 Years.

Daniel Tucker, Chairman of Sycuan Band of the Kumeyaay Nation and the California Nations Indian Gaming Association and has been a long time serving member of the National Indian Gaming Association since 1992.* Like Chairman Hill, Tucker has served a good portion of his career in tribal leadership.



Elders battle youth on the hardwood for fundraiser

Oneida elders took on the Oneida 7th and 8th grade boys basketball teams during a fundraiser on Friday, January 11 at the Civic Center. The elders dressed as old ladies or super heroes. Money raised will be used to fund tournament entry fees along with a team bonding trip to a Milwaukee Bucks game.

The Oneida youth pulled out the victory but discussions are already underway for a rematch in March.

28th Annual Oneida School System Science Fair

Submitted By Yvette Peguero
Principal, Oneida Nation Elementary School

The Oneida Nation School System held their annual science fair on Wednesday, December 19, 2012.

There were 92 student participants in grades 5-12, with 86 projects entered. Local professionals from the Oneida community volunteered as judges. Forty-four students were awarded 1st place ribbons. Twenty-seven students were awarded 2nd place ribbons. Eleven students were awarded 3rd place ribbons. Ten other students participated in the Science Fair. Several students will be sponsored by the Oneida Nation School System and will be competing at the National American Indian Science & Engineering Science Fair in Albuquerque, New Mexico, March 21-23, 2013. They will be competing with hundreds of other Native American students from reservations and cities nationwide.

Pulaski School Board approves April referendum

Members of the Pulaski Community School District (PCSD) Board of Education approved a plan to go to referendum in April during the board's meeting on Wednesday, January 16. Unlike the district's November referendum, which only had one question, the April ballot proposals will divide the district's needs into four separate questions.

Board members will officially approve the wording of the ballot measures during a meeting on Monday, January 21 at 5:30 p.m. in the Pulaski High School library. Tax impact information will also be determined at that time.

"We listened to the voters who came out on November 6, and many of them told us they wanted a choice, so our board members responded, and look forward to presenting these new, updated plans to our citizens in April," PCSD Superintendent of Schools Dr. Mel Lightner said.

The first question that would appear on the ballot in April would focus on building and maintenance needs as well as energy efficiency projects at sites throughout the district. Safety improvements to the district's current bleachers at Pulaski Community Middle School (PCMS) would also be included in this question, as well as $50,000 to add secure entrances to five of the district's schools, for a total amount of $4,370,000.

Question two would center on district's technology needs by asking voters to approve a $650,000 revenue cap override each year for the next seven years. This plan would give the PCSD an opportunity to update classroom technology at all of its schools.

The third question would feature building additions, remodels and other new construction projects at Glenbrook, Fairview, Sunnyside and Hillcrest Elementary schools. The question would also include money to update the district's aging technology infrastructure, funds to build a new restroom and storage facility at PCMS as well as money to convert the existing Auxiliary Gym at PCMS into office space for the PCSD technology department as well as offices for PACE (Pulaski Area Community Education) staff. The total cost of these projects would be $9,130,000.

Finally, the fourth question calls for the construction of a new pool at Pulaski High School, while the current pool, located at PCMS, would be converted into a community gymnasium space that would give students and community members the opportunity to remain active during inclement weather and the cold winter months. The total cost of this plan would be $7,995,000.

To view handouts from the January 16 board meeting or to view footage of the meeting, please visit the district website at www.pulaskischools.org.

UW-Green Bay to offer Menominee language course for community

GREEN BAY – The University of Wisconsin-Green Bay's Division of Outreach and Adult Access will offer Menominee language courses starting January 31.

Open to UW-Green Bay students and the larger community, this course can be taken for three undergraduate credits or as a noncredit option. It will meet from 5-8 p.m. Thursdays from January 31 through May 9 in Room 205 of Wood Hall on the UW-Green Bay campus, 2420 Nicolet Drive.

Taught by Menominee Nation Elders Muqsahkwat, also known as Ron Corn, Jr., and Napos, also known as David Turney, Sr., the Menominee language course will use indigenous educational methods together with western methods of language instruction. Students will be introduced to basic Menominee language speaking and reading skills through the use of storytelling and interaction with tribal Elders and First Language speakers. The course draws on oral traditional listening, observation and speaking skills, teaching basic Menominee language designed for use in day-to-day settings.

The Menominee language course will utilize "Total Physical Response" (TPR) as one of its primary teaching methods. TPR pairs language learning with body movement and physical interaction in the classroom. This method has been shown to maximize language acquisition in a short period of time, making learning both engaging and fun.

Course fees are $295 for the noncredit option ($100 due upon registration) and $956.04 for the three undergraduate credit option. Registration is available online at www.uwgb.edu/outreach/menominee/. For registration questions, call (920) 465-2775 or email felmera@uwgb.edu.

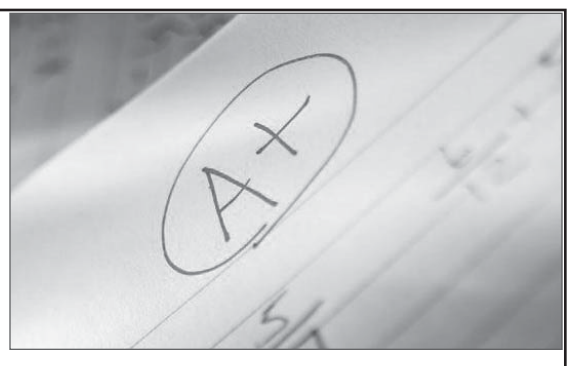
GED Completion Becomes Urgent

The DPI is working to locate an estimated 43,000 adults who have taken one or more tests toward their GED, and to help them finish the five-test series before December 13, 2013, when all previous scores will expire.

After that deadline, the GED program nationwide will abandon its old tests and move to updated, computerized assessments based on the Common Core State Standards and other college and career readiness measures.

As State Superintendent Tony Evers said, "My message to those who started taking the GED but haven't finished is: Get it done. Your future is calling."

Each year, nearly 9,000 adults in the state complete one of Wisconsin's options for earning a GED or high school equivalency diploma (HSED), opening doors to employment, further education, and opportunity. Campuses in the Wisconsin Technical College System and community-based organizations have staff to provide preparatory coursework to help adults gain the knowledge and skills to successfully complete the GED test series.



Adults who want to complete the GED this year must physically go to a testing center to take the tests, but it doesn't have to be the same testing center where they started.

Public Hearing Notice

February 14, 2013 • 5:00 P.M.
Norbert Hill Center, 2nd Floor – (BCCR)

Purpose: Indian Preference in Contracting Law

The intent of the Indian Preference in Contracting law (the Law) is to replace the current Indian Preference Law. The Law sets out the requirements for hiring certified Indian-owned businesses and skills bank workers to complete Tribal projects. In addition, the Law would:

- Establish the Indian Preference Office in law and make that office responsible for the implementation, monitoring and enforcement of the Law.
- Clarify how a business qualifies as Indian-owned, by expanding on the criteria reviewed before certification is granted.
- Requires compliance agreements be negotiated by the Indian Preference Office to establish the number of Indian workers that must be hired for a project and their benefits and wages.
- Incorporate the provisions of Rider I for Construction Contracts into the Indian Preference Law.
- Remove the License Commission from the process, as that Commission is not being utilized.
- Establishes complaint and investigation processes in the Law.
- Enables the Indian Preference Office to create a fine schedule, with the approval of the OBC.

We All Are Family

A project developed for the 'Re-vitalization of Tsiʔniyukwaliho·tʌ́' (Geet ne yoo gwa le ho da)

All of us our ways through the 'Renewal of Family Titles and Ties'

Greetings and Hoyan

Here we are in the final year of our grant and I come to you with news from last year, plans for this year and plans for the future beyond.

LAST YEAR

The excitement and the challenges from last year

When looking back there are several things that come to mind and are exciting:

The increased support and awareness of the community is one of the most powerful. We received backpacks for the youth from the Oneida Business Committee, a donation of pumpkins from the Apple Orchard, a $100 donation from a community member, time and baked goods donations for our two fundraiser (raising over $1,000 - we use to feed the youth and buy supplies for community projects) and the continued support of individuals within programs that come to offer space, supplies, teach, and lead our youth.

The creation of two community service group: one that did roadside clean-up and one that sewed teddy bears and blankets for Early Head Start and Indian Child Welfare; giving 14 youth the opportunity to serve their community.

Our three day training in April "Find Our Path: putting the pieces together becoming whole" and the community dinner that took place on the first night. The training was well received by everyone attending and they left asking for more. Our youth (under the tutelage of Arlie Doxtator) prepared for, cooked, served, and cleaned up after a community dinner that fed approximately 100 community members. The food was delicious and the youth outstanding.

Our community surveys which were completed by 80 community member. The participants gave advice and opinions about youth and services for youth in our community (result are now available in two PowerPoint). We will be sharing these at our next community dinner.

We now have a method of tracking hours and types of contact with youth and the community in the Yethiyaʔtanúnha (yea-tee-ya, da-noon-hah) Program.

In the Yethiyaʔtanúnha Program there was the summer garden project and its introduction to the youth about their relationship with the plants. Then there was the delivery of the harvest to family and community members. The youth carved pumpkin and made basket filled with fruit for community elders. When the community lost over 20 small buffalo the youth showed concern and asked for ways to help and understand. Greatest of all was seeing the youth's willingness to reach out to each other to help and teach. There were also fun learning experiences, like the trip the Fonfernek Falls outside of Green Bay where the youth had a chance to get closer to their relatives in nature through play. The Yethiyaʔtanúnha Program continues to grow and currently has a waiting list.

Last year's challenges

We have had our share of challenges too.

One challenge was staffing the Yethiyaʔtanúnha Program. It is difficult to find the right person to work with our youth. We are now fully staffed.

The lack of referrals to Sashakotiʔnikuhlahslu·níheʔ (saw-saw-go-dee-nee-goo-lah-sloo-nee-heh). We have call and talked with individuals from Oneida Police Department to try to identify the problem.

Then there was the outing the youth took to see the nonexistent Hemlock Virgin Forest, which left youth frustrated, but lead to some pretty funning tales.

PLANS FOR 2013

In 2013 we will be looking ahead to our next training. This year it is called 'Embracing Creation' and will be held April 12, 13, and 14. The Community Dinner will be held that Friday evening. We will present our survey findings to the community at that time. We are hoping to bring a group of young men from Six Nation to sing and share stories with the youth and the community by mid-February. A training on families is planned for the Sashakotiʔnikuhlahslu·níheʔ volunteers date to be set.

Watch for our community garden project.

We will be working toward implement Sashakotiʔnikuhlahslu·níhe in the schools. Discussions have just begun with the Youth Educational Services and we hope to meet soon with someone from Oneida School Systems. We will be setting up a meeting with Oneida Police Department to clarify their needs and determine if the serve Sashakotiʔnikuhlahslu·níhe can still be a fit.

Mentorship is being developed by Children and Family Services as a whole so we will be a part of the planning and implementation, but the Prevention Program will lead.

PLANS FOR THE FUTURE

We will be meeting with Artley Skenandore, Oneida Nation High Principal to transition of Yethiyaʔtanúnha Program from Social Services to the Oneida Nation School System.

"This project was supported by Award No. 2010-TY-FX-0012 awarded by the Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention, Tribal Youth Program, Office of Justice Programs."

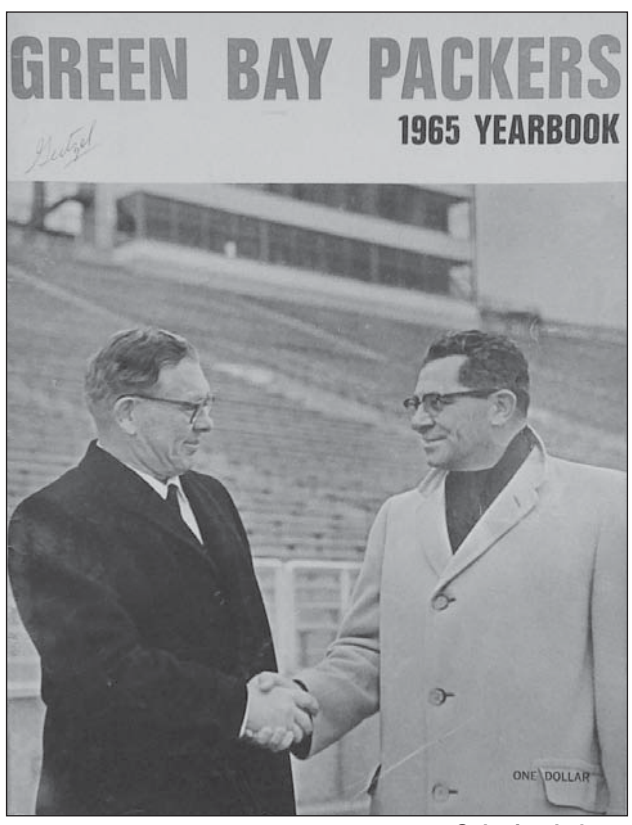
Lombardi or Lambeau: Who Was the Better Coach?

By Bryan Quella
Thunderhawk Times

Every true Packer fan knows that Lambeau Field is located on Lombardi Avenue, but how many fans notice the irony? Lambeau on Lombardi. What was it that made Lambeau so special that the Packers named their stadium after him? Was Lambeau actually a better coach than Lombardi?



Obviously, two of the most famous coaches in Packer history are Vince Lombardi and Earl Louis "Curly" Lambeau. But why is Lombardi constantly regarded as the better coach?

There have been hundreds of books written on the Packers, especially on the team's history. There were five shelves full of Packer books in the Local History Department at the Main Library downtown. So, I had to ask myself why there were twenty books on Vince Lombardi and only one on Curly Lambeau.

Packer Historian Denis Gullickson, who has already written two books on the Packers, is currently working on a biography of Curly Lambeau. When I asked him the question about Lambeau versus Lombardi, he said,

"That's an interesting question: why Lombardi gets so much love and Lambeau not so much. There are probably a few reasons. One, Lombardi was more recent, so a lot of his players are still around for information. Also, Lombardi had a lot of success in a fairly short time. He was also perceived as a family man with great values that people around here appreciate. He was very dedicated and hard-working, but very fair. Lombardi came and, basically, turned the team around. They were terrible in the 1950s."

"Even though Lambeau won more championships in Green Bay, he did it over thirty years. Also, a lot of people think he turned his back on the values of people around here. He was divorced three times. He had a fancy lifestyle. His first divorce was from a Green Bay girl. People said, 'Curly went Hollywood.' So, his success was kind of lost in all of that. Still, it's the two of them whose statues stand out in front of the stadium."

Lambeau vs. Lombardi: Just the Facts

By Bryan Quella
Thunderhawk Times

Lambeau: Coached the Green Bay Packers, Chicago Cardinals, and Washington Redskins

Lombardi: Coached the Green Bay Packers and Washington Redskins

Lambeau: Overall Record: 227-133-22; Playoff record: 3-2

Lombardi: Overall Record: 96-34-6; Playoff record: 9-1

Lambeau: 6 League Championships: 1929, 1930, 1931, 1936, 1939, 1944

Lombardi: 6 League Championships: 1956, 1961, 1962, 1965, 1966, 1967

Lambeau: Curly Lambeau created the Green Bay Packers in 1919 and was inducted into the Pro Football Hall of Fame in 1963.

Lombardi: Vince Lombardi coached ten years in the NFL and was inducted into the Pro Football Hall of Fame in 1971.

Lambeau: He had 27 winning seasons as a coach and won six league championships while with the Packers.

Lombardi: Lombardi never had a losing season as a head coach and coached the Packers to five league championships, including the first two Super Bowls.

Lambeau: Lambeau's Packers were the first team to really pass the ball and have an offense based around throwing the football.

Lombardi: Lombardi developed one of the most famous plays in NFL history: the Lombardi Sweep, and was able to motivate players and instill what it took to be a winner in his players.

Lambeau: The Packers did not join the NFL until the 1921 season and Lambeau was both a player and the coach for the team.

Lombardi: One of his many signature moments became the 1967 "Ice Bowl" where the temperature was -13°F and Lombardi's Packers won the game on a last second quarterback sneak by Bart Starr.

Lambeau: In 1965, the Packers named their home field after Curly Lambeau and it has become one of the most hallowed grounds in the NFL.

Lombardi: In 1970, the NFL named their championship trophy after Vince Lombardi, forever intertwining the NFL championship and the Green Bay Packers.

New Semester for ONHS

By Jessica House
Thunderhawk Times

On January 14 and 15, 2013, Oneida students took their final exams and finished up the first semester.

On January 22, Oneida Nation students will begin their second semester. Starting a new semester is always enjoyable because grades are reset, low grades can be easily changed to high grades, and it gives the students a chance to start everything over and have a great start to the next semester.

"Getting into the school year was pretty simple, but now I just can't wait to finish it off," said Senior Heather Stevens.

On the 16th of January, mid-winter ceremonies began and all students were let out of school for the rest of the week to get a chance to participate in the ceremonies. But not only did students have that to look forward to, but soon ONHS students will experience prom, lacrosse season, softball season, culture days, and finally the 2013 graduation.

Visioning Sessions

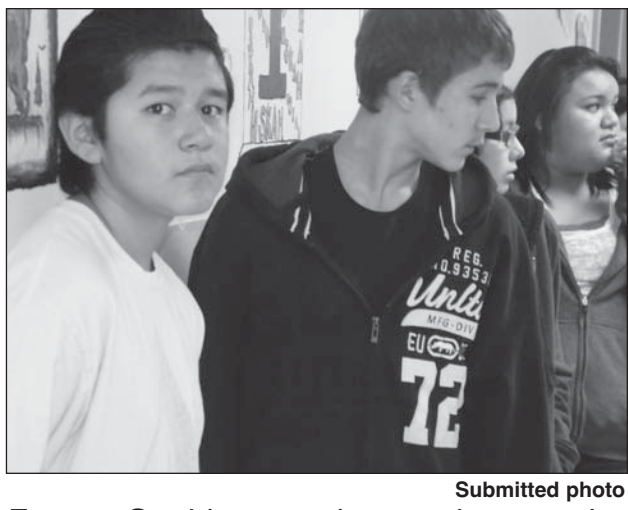
By Heather Stevens
Thunderhawk Times

On December 17th and 18th, the Oneida Tribe of Indians of Wisconsin held a Visioning. This was designed to see what our community thinks can be improved for the next 20-30 years.

At GTC meetings, many people attend the meetings but some community members may feel uncomfortable voicing their opinions in front of everyone. The visioning is a smaller group of people, split into even smaller groups of people. This makes people more comfortable for community members to voice their opinions and not afraid to be heard by our Oneida Business Committee.

As a student of Oneida Nation High School, I had the opportunity to participate in the visioning by jotting down comments, thoughts, and opinions of each community member in my group onto bulletin boards.

Not only that, but I was able to assist in helping others understand the topics and reasoning behind them.



The Visioning was a great way to see what my fellow community members feel needs to be improved on our reservation. I hope to see more community members participating in the next event because it's a great program to continue.

Students at ONHS Learning the Kanehelatúksla

By Diego Metoxen
Thunderhawk Times

Here at ONHS, several students took Iroquois Music Class and were able to learn the Kanehelat&ksla. The students only took an entire semester to learn how to say it. The mission of the Oneida Nation School System is to learn and support The Kanehelatúksla. By knowing this, it will affect the Oneida Community in a good way.

The students had enough courage to sit down and take the time on learning the Kanehelat&ksla. The students that were able to learn it were Lindsey Danforth, Yasmine Denny, Angelica Schuyler, Brandon Blackowl, Kylene Welch, Kasey Counard, Makayla Doxtater, Luke Penchoff, Byran Halona, Brandon Doxtator, Autumn Oshkeshequoam, Tavia Moore, Brianna Bissonette, Larissa Lucas, Devonte Pointer, Ayashe Barton, Travis Stevens, Michaela Welch, Amanda Stage, Menomnoget Ruew, Grace Powless, Leo Powless, Lillian Stands, Sheldon Skenandore, Kayla Danforth, Mitchel Cornelius, and Jaycob Johnson.

Preparing for the Future

By Heather Stevens
Thunderhawk Times

Now that the first semester is over and half of the school year is over, high school seniors all over the world are deciding what they want to do after high school. Some chose jobs, other chose college. Either choice comes with difficult decisions: which college to apply for and which ones would be the best fit?

College searching is a difficult task when considering future occupation. Not only that, but which colleges/universities will each student feel most comfortable attending? The application process is quite difficult as well.

If a student were to choose a job rather than attending college, this takes some searching as well. Job searching, as most adults know, is difficult as it is. For new college students, finding a job that can be coordinated around a student's class schedule is next to impossible to find.

Preparing for the future and growing up is not an easy thing to do.

Mid-winter Ceremony

By Hector Miranda Jr.
Thunderhawk Times

The Midwinter ceremony is celebrated five days after our new year moon (January). This is a time of renewing our responsibilities for the coming year. During the first day, there are three Great Feather Dances that are done. The first one is in honor of all of the title holders: the chiefs, the clan mothers, and the faith keepers.

The second day is "Stirring the Ashes". The ashes from the wood stoves are used to symbolize our Mother Earth.

The third day starts out with the Tobacco Burning Thanksgiving Ceremony. The real tobacco is collected from all of the people.

The fourth day is the Peach Stone Game. The Bear Clan, and the Turtle Clan, plays against the Wolf Clan.

The fifth day is set aside as a renewal for these and other medicine societies.

RECIPE of the Month:

Beef Mushroom Barley Soup

- 2 pounds beef stew meat, cut into small pieces
- 1 tablespoon vegetable oil
- 1 1/2onion, chopped
- 3 stalks celery, chopped
- 3carrots, chopped
- 7 1/2 cups beef stock
- 8 ounces pearl barley
- 1 pound mushrooms, sliced

Directions

1. Cook beef stew meat in a large skillet over medium heat until completely browned, 5 to 7 minutes; transfer to a large soup pot.
2. Heat vegetable oil in the same skillet over medium heat; cook and stir onion, celery, and carrot in the hot oil until the onions are tender, about 5 minutes. Add the vegetable mixture to the beef in the pot.
3. Pour beef stock into the pot.
4. Stir pearl barley into the stock.
5. Place soup over medium-low heat, bring to a simmer, and cook, stirring occasionally, until the beef is completely tender, about 2 hours.
6. Stir mushrooms through the soup; cook 1 hour more

Trout Creek Restoration Project

The Latest Chapter in the Restoration of Your Trout Creek

In early December, another big step was made towards restoring a sustainable, healthy trout stream on the Oneida Reservation. After almost 13 years of planning, approvals, agreements, permits, design and earthmoving, the stream now flows freely through the Brown County golf course. Passage up and down the stream had been blocked to fish and other aquatic animals there for over 30 years. The stream had been routed into a pond with a dam on the downstream end to keep it filled. Also upstream of the pond there was a small dam to divert the stream for irrigation.

Now, the stream flows around the pond and the upstream barrier has been removed.

This project was a long term commitment of the Oneida Environmental, Health and Safety Division and its partners. It took persistence and a vision to get it done.

The Oneida Water Resources Team will continue to monitor the stream, manage the brook trout population, continue habitat enhancement and protect the stream for the foreseeable future.

History of Trout Creek Restoration

For at least twenty years, the stream called Trout Creek acted as a sewer for construction, farm field and livestock runoff. Stories of a trout here and there have been heard, but routine sampling produced no brook trout. Sediment, fertilizer, manure runoff, ditching, and tiling were preventing any chance for development of favorable conditions for trout to live in the creek.

Because the stream lies completely within the Reservation, and the Oneida people care about protecting and restoring their water resources, efforts to restore this trout stream have been taking place for the past 12 years. Fourteen years ago, a community member complained that he thought it was awful that his dogs would get sick from drinking out of the creek. The Oneida Water Resources Team began to investigate. They took water samples at County U during a rain storm in the fall of 1999. The results of those samples were shared and an amazing thing happened. A partnership formed between the Oneida Tribe and several state, local and federal agencies with the goal of cleaning up the agricultural runoff to the stream.

While the Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources, Brown and Outagamie County Land Conservation Departments and the Department of Corrections worked on the biggest problem to the stream (manure runoff at the State farm), the Oneida Water Resources Team surveyed the Trout Creek watershed to prioritize projects to restore it. Meanwhile, the partners began buffering headwater tributaries, doing wetland restoration projects, and asking farmers to help to continue improving the stream.

Focusing on big problems first, Oneida Environmental, Health and Safety staff continued to obtain grant money for implementing restoration projects, working their way downstream as stream conditions improved. They also continued detailed sampling of the water quality and the fish and bugs present in the stream to determine water quality progress. Direct signs of progress were encouraging as wildlife such as mink, wood turtles and other animals associated with healthy, clean streams were spotted.

What's Next?

The next Trout Creek restoration project will be on the reach of Trout Creek that flows across the former State Farm.

Although the tributary to Trout Creek which crosses the farm from Olson Road to County U has been buffered, it does not possess a canopy cover and is still a straight, ditched channel. Water quality and temperature are a concern with this tributary as it is now.

This project will meander the channel between Olson Road and the State-owned parcel adjacent to County U, thus increasing the length of the channel by 37% from approximately 4980 feet to approximately 6823 feet. This meandering will lower peak flows, extend base flows and remove more nutrients from the water column.

A buffer of 150 feet will be established on each side of the channel (total of 36.7 acres), consisting of 35 feet of grassed buffer (8.9 acres) and 115 feet of trees (27.8 acres) on each side. This will lower the temperature in the stream, which is a crucial element for the survival of brook trout and other cold water organisms, particularly in this period of climate change. The wooded and grassed corridor will also be of great benefit for other wildlife.

Excessive BC Travel Expenses

For those of you who attended the GTC meeting on Jan. 7, thank you for the hard work put into discussing the items before us. Those of you in attendance know that as the meeting was starting to adjourn, a last minute motion was made to accept all the reports and defer new business to another GTC meeting. This last minute action was, in my opinion, was purposeful and takes advantage of the GTC forum. Through this motion, to "accept the reports" instead of deferring them to the next meeting, GTC will not have the opportunity to address the BC's report which includes their travel. I cannot be certain the outcome would have been different, but the opportunity to call into question why certain BC members have grossly exceeded their travel budgets no longer exists in this particular forum for now.

On pages 13-17 of the 2013 Annual report, which is public information, it indicates four BC members exceeded their travel budgets: Treasurer Danforth's budget was $10,000 and $32,055.22 was spent for an over expenditure of $22,055.22 (over 3x the budget amount); Councilman DelaRosa's budget was $5,000 and $10,453.55 was spent for an over expenditure of $5,453.55 (over double the budget amount); Councilman Ninham's budget was $5,000 and $7,952.40 was spent for an over expenditure of $2,952.40, and Councilman Stevens' budget was $5,000 and $18,935.48 was spent for an over expenditure of $13,935.48 (almost 3x the budget amount).

It is important for us to know the time and place to question these over expenditures would have been during the GTC meeting, and it is unfortunate the Chairman allowed this motion as the GTC was trying to adjourn. With that said, it is generally understood sometimes unforeseen circumstances arise at the state and/or national levels which need our elected officials' attention and I support those instances; however, the GTC should have the opportunity to question these over expenditures just as the BC would question the organization on their over expenditures if and when it happens. I urge the community to take the time to question these elected officials about their travel overages; justification of these travel expenditures is absolutely necessary as part of our checks and balances.

Yawáko,
Lisa Summers

Facts about the United States Postal Service

With the New Year underway, the Postal Service will celebrate 238 years of delivering America's mail. A changing economy has created challenges for our organization, leading to speculation about the future, so here are some facts about the Postal Service.

The Postal Service does not receive taxpayer dollars. The Postal Reorganization Act of 1970 transformed the Post Office Department into the United States Postal Service (USPS), an independent agency, and has not received taxpayer subsidies since 1982. We rely on the sale of postage and mail products and services for revenue to cover our costs, and we are at the core of the trillion dollar mailing industry that employs more than 8 million people.

The Postal Service is the most efficient and reliable post in the world. We deliver 40 percent of the world's mail with 10 percent of the world's postal employees. Though the number of addresses in the nation has grown by nearly 17 million in the past decade, the number of employees who handle the increased delivery load has decreased by more than 200,000. We were ranked number one in overall service performance of the posts in the top 20 wealthiest nations in the world by Oxford Strategic Consulting. And when it comes to safeguarding personal information, the Postal Service has been named the Most Trusted Government Agency for six years and the sixth Most Trusted Business in the nation by the Ponemon Institute.

The Postal Service is green. Our fleet of alternative-fuel-capable vehicles includes electric, ethanol, fuel-cell, biodiesel, and propane technology. We use more than a half billion recyclable packages and envelopes made of environmentally friendly materials. We've aggressively reduced energy costs in our facilities by making changes in lighting, HVAC and water consumption, generating a 30 percent reduction in energy usage. And we recently received Gold status by the climate Registry for our leadership in reducing greenhouse gas emissions by more than 5 percent.

These are a few facts about the Postal Service as we continue to adapt to a digital world. To learn more about us, go to www.usps.com.

Wind Chases The Sun Foundation will partner with Native American Church of Oneida to Host Prayer Meetings supporting Idle No More, First Nations

When: February 9, 2013
Where: Dorothy Ninham residence, N2679 Skylark Rd, Depere, WI
What: Spiritual Gathering for All Nations

Four tipis will hold prayer meetings simultaneously, and all night long in support of the work being done by Idle No More, First Nations. Listen to those that stand between us and that, that would destroy Our Mother Earth. Through foundations like Idle No More, partnered with Oneida Native Church, and Wind Chases The Sun, experience a cultural and spiritual awakening. For those that want to raise awareness and bring support, by addressing that which interferes with Native Americans rights today, join us. Problems persist with hunting rights, fishing rights, and concern over the threat continued by legal land theft, by world corporations, and governments, through mining, and water pollution. Our tribes need full authority to stop these outside entities, and regain the rights of control and accountability once again over our natural resources. Please join us for this special gathering for both a cultural, as well as spiritual experience. Please help us bring awareness to this strong new entity known as Idle No More, First Nations, as they bring hope to the many. As they organize and face these concerns, let them know they are not alone, as together we can meet these challenges through commitment. We welcome all to participate.

Oneida Tribal Historic Preservation plan for Historic Structures

Historic Buildings and Preservation

Tribal Historic Preservation Program is assisted by the National Park Service in Preserving our historic properties and cultural traditions. The responsibility assumed by the tribes historic preservation office program is to conduct historic property surveys, maintaining permanent inventories or historic properties and nominating properties to the National Register of Historic Places.

The National Register of Historic Places defines what the criteria for evaluation are:

"The quality of significance in American history, architecture, archeology, engineering, and cultural is present in districts, sites, buildings, structures, and objects that possess integrity of location, design, setting, materials, workmanship, feeling and association."

A.That are associated with events that have made a significant contribution to the broad patterns of our history', or

B. That are associated with the lives of significant persons in or past: or

C. That embody the distinctive characteristics of a type, period, or method of construction, or that represents the work of a master, or that possess high artistic values, or that represent a significant and distinguishable entity whose components may lack individual distinction; or

D. That has yielded or may be likely to yield, information important in history or prehistory.

Criteria Considerations

Cemeteries, birthplaces, graves of historical figures, properties owned by religious institutions or used for religious purposes, structures that have been moved from their original locations, reconstructed historic buildings, properties primarily commemorative in nature, and properties that have achieved significance within the past 50 years shall not be considered eligible for the National Register. HOWEVER, such properties will qualify if they are integral parts of districts that do not meet the criteria or if they fall within the following categories:

A. A religious property deriving primary significance from architectural or artistic distinction or historical importance; or

B. A building or structure removed from its original location but which is primarily significant for architectural value, or which is the surviving structure most importantly associates with a historic person or event; or

C. A birthplace or grave of a historical figure of outstanding importance if there is no appropriate site or building associated with his or her productive life; or

D. A cemetery that derives its primary importance from graves of persons of transcendent importance, from age, from distinctive features, or from association with historic events; oe

E. A reconstructed building when accurately executed in a suitable environmental and presented in a dignified manner as part of a restoration master plan, and when no other building or structure with the same association has survived; or

F. A property primarily commemorative in intent if design, age, tradition, or symbolic value has invested it with its own exceptional significance; or

G. A property achieving significance within the past 50 years if it is of exceptional importance.

The two laws which apply to historic structures within the Oneida Nation are:

a. Tribal Resolution "3-1-91-B
b. Historic Preservation Act of 1996, Section 106 16U. S. C. 470h-2(a),2(b)
c. Protection and Management of Archaeological, Cultural, and Historic Resources- Code of Laws, Chapter 12

Structures that are identifies as 50 years old need to comply with the following process:

a. Research documents on buildings
b. Conduct oral history interviews of tribal members knowledge of the building, and find out what the family wants done with the building, if applicable
c. Do a video of the building
d. Publish an announcement in Kalihwisaks
e. Assess the cost factors ie: asbestos, plumbing, wiring, structural soundness
f. Conduct an in-service to educate all departments involved
g. Conduct a community meeting

The following options will then be discussed with everyone involved and a decision made:

a. Preserve on site:
The building is historically significant and structurally it is possible to renovate the building and nominate it for the Oneida Historic Sites and the National Register of Historic places. Seek grant funding for renovation and preservation.
b. Move intact:
The building is historically significant but cannot stay at its present site
Seek funding to move the building
Identify a site
Seek grant funding for restoration Restore
c. Dismantle:
The building is historically significant but must be moved
Identify Funds
Dis mantle the building, move or store
Reconstruct on new site
d. Salvage:
The building is not historically significant, but has some recyclable materials
Save recyclable materials as the building is dismantle Give community opportunity to take recycle material
e. Demolition:
The building is not historically significant

Top: The inside of the Old Oneida Health Center as it sits currently. Above: Exterior of the Chicago Corners Tribal Building.

Anna John Nursing Home

One of the four buildings that will be up for demolition in the near future is the Anna John Nursing home, Old Health Center, White building (Site II) and Chicago corners (Tribal Building).

These buildings have been in our community for many decades and all the stories that go with each building are important to capture and document for our generations to come. Each segment of our oral interviews can be viewed on the web and history presentations are upcoming for the community.

Old Oneida Health Center

There were ladies from our community that took interest in getting care for our elders and became creative with these efforts along with our business committee members. Some of the Ladies are Anna John, Amelia Cornelius, Pricilla (Budgie) Manders, Audrey Doxtator, and I'm sure there are several more. Anna John Nursing home was built in the late 70s by the efforts of these ladies and the business committee members that applied for a grant called action grant thru the Great Lakes Inter-Tribal Council to get money for the construction of the building which started the Hill Burton Act. Because the grant was funded by the federal government in turn the tribe had to make the service available to tribal and non- Tribal members. The Non-Tribal Members they gave assets away to their family so that they then could be eligible to receive Title 19 at the time. This was the only way most of them could also afford health care. For the Tribal people whatever Medicare, or other insurances they received then the tribe would pick up the rest of the cost.

The construction began in 1975 for the first Oneida Health Center. Some of the programs that were in our first Health Center was "WIC (Women, Infants and Children), Optical, Dental/X-ray, Pharmacy, Contract Health, and of course the Medical Clinic. This seem to fit our needs for some time and in since then our needs were expanding and needed to be upgraded and more accessible to our members and that's just given only a few views. Since the new Health Center has been built our old health center building has become nonexistence and economical y expensive to just keep abandoned. Over the years of this building being abandoned it has created a lot of safety issues and environmental issues.

Oneida Tribal Building/Chicago Corners School

The Tribal building was evaluated under Criteria A: Events, B: Person, C: Construction/Design under the National Register of Historic Places.

The land which the building is located within the reservation boundaries and first surveyed under the 1838 treaty with New York (Oneida) and the federal government. The land became allotted under the General Allotment (Dawes) act of 1887 – 1891 to Joseph "Chicago" Smith. It was held in "private" ownership until it was sold to School District #2 in 1915 and remained in the district for the next 65 years. It was called the Chicago Corners School. In 1970, the school district conveyed the property comprising approximately 3 acres to the federal government as Trust land for the Oneida Nation. It is still held in Trust Today.

Two years after the land was sold to the school district a school classroom building was constructed on site (1917). The "old Part" had two halves; the west side was the original construction in 1917 containing a single classroom. In 1938 the east half was added and the original part remodeled. In the early 1960s two classrooms, gymnasium/kitchen, two bathrooms on the north end of the school and indoor plumbing were added to the two room school.

EMERGENCY MANAGEMENT SUPPORT YOUR ONEIDA EMHS HOMELAND SECURITY

Identifying Tribal Affiliation Important

Completing Claim form to IHS Clinics recommended

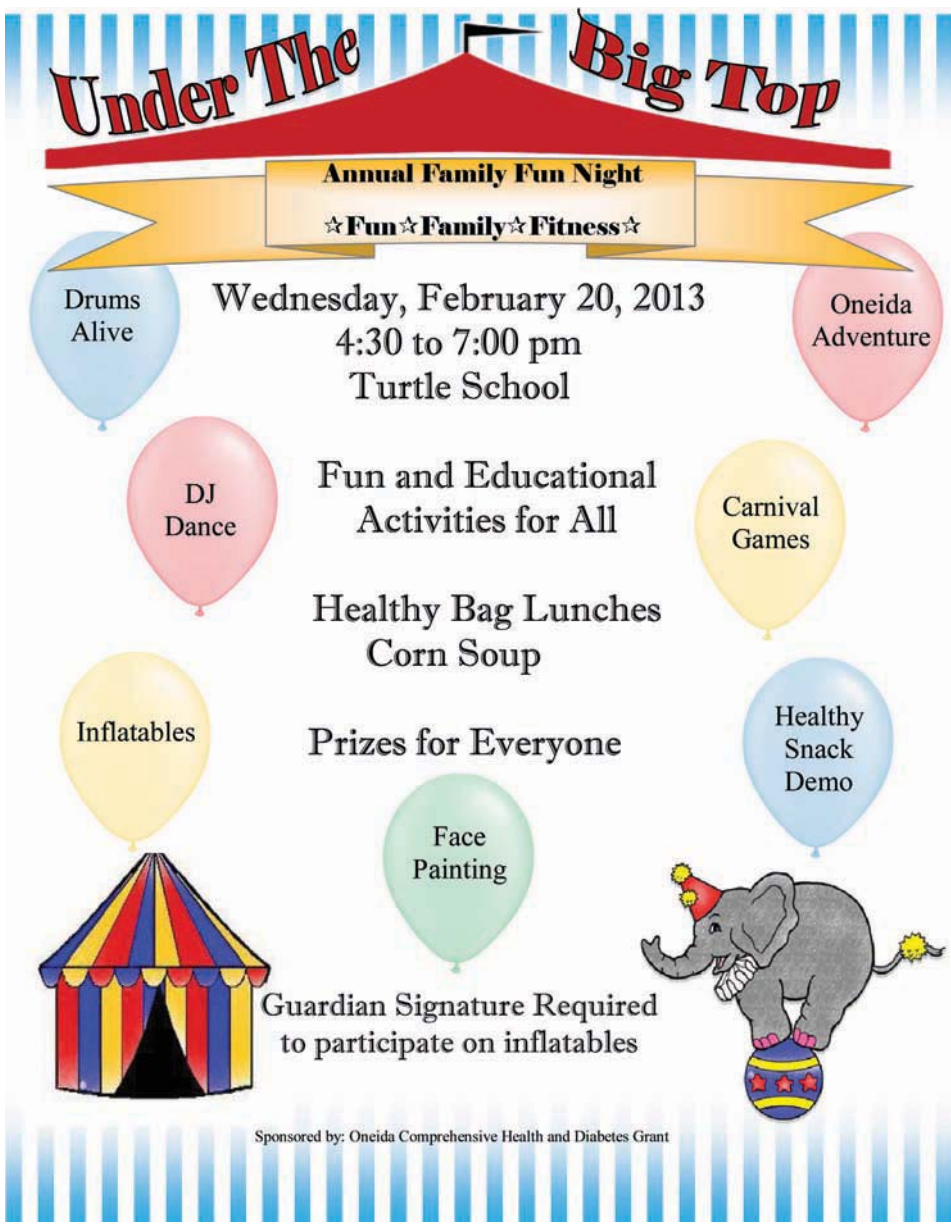
In order for a Wisconsin BadgerCare Plus premium exemption to be applied, members of tribes need to identify their tribal affiliation to the Indian Health Service (IHS) clinic when appearing for services.

All tribal members (adults as well as children) regardless of Tribal enrollment status, need to verify their tribal affiliation at their IHS clinic. Medicaid services provided through a tribal clinic for these individuals are paid 100% by Federal funds, however not all individuals are accurately being identified through the Wisconsin BadgerCare Plus application or renewal process. Accurate reporting allows tribal clinics to efficiently allocate scarce resources ($) for the benefit of the tribe and its members.

An Affirmation of Tribal Affiliation Form can be obtained at Oneida Health Center or at the Center for Self-Sufficiency. The Tribal Affiliation information will be entered into the State's database by the agency where your health care coverage (BadgerCare Plus) is managed.

Question: Does a copy of the Tribal ID or other proof of tribal membership need to be provided with the Affirmation of Tribal Affiliation?

Answer: No, a completed Tribal Affiliation form acts as the necessary verification of tribal membership for purposes of entering tribal affiliation into the State's database. NOTE: Signing the Tribal Affiliation form means that the agency or clinic worker attests that the individual signing the form does have the Tribal affiliation status indicated (eligibility for IHS services will still be determined according to Oneida Health Center's established procedures).



Question: Can the Tribal Affiliation Affirmation form be filled out and faxed to the number listed on the form?

Answer: Yes, filling out the Tribal Affiliation form and faxing it to the number indicated on the form will allow the form to act as verification of the person's tribal affiliation. The individual State worker receiving the fax will update the tribal member's information in the State's database for purposes of exempting the tribal member from the health insurance premium.

Question: Is my agency or clinic required to use this form?

Answer: No, the State developed this form as a "tool" for tribal agencies and IHS clinics to easily update information within the State health insurance system. (Each agency or clinic can choose whether or not to use this form.)

Please contact your individual case manager with any additional questions. The contact number for Center for Self-Sufficiency is 1-800-216-3216 or 920-490-6800, or you can contact the Contract Health Office at Oneida Community Health Center at 920-869-2711.

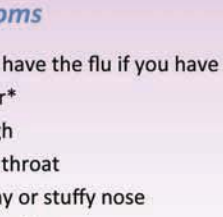
Key Facts About The Flu:

Prevention



A flu vaccine is the first and most important step in protecting against flu viruses

Take everyday actions to help prevent the spread of germs that cause respiratory illnesses.

- ⇒ Cover your cough or sneeze.
- ⇒ Wash your hand often.
- ⇒ Avoid touching your eyes, nose and mouth.
- ⇒ Try to avoid close contact with sick people.

Stay home if you are sick.

Take antiviral flu medication if your doctor prescribes them.

Approximately 5-20% of U.S. residents get the flu each year

Did you know that the flu is a respiratory disease and not a stomach or intestinal disease?

Symptoms

You may have the flu if you have some or all of these symptoms:

- Fever*
- Cough
- Sore throat
- Runny or stuffy nose
- Body aches
- Headache
- Chills
- Fatigue
- Sometimes diarrhea and vomiting

*It is important to note that not everyone with flu will have a fever.

Treatment

If you become ill with influenza symptoms you should stay home and avoid contact with other people except to seek medical care. Most people are able to recover at home from flu without medical care.

CDC recommends that you stay home for at least 24 hours after your fever is gone except to get medical care or for other necessities.

5 steps to take if you get the flu

1. Stay at home and rest.
2. Avoid close contact with well people in your house so you won't make them sick.
3. Drink plenty of water and other clear liquids to prevent fluid loss (dehydration).
4. Treat fever and cough with medicines you can buy at the store.
5. If you get very sick or are pregnant or have a medical condition that puts you at higher risk of flu complications (like asthma...), call your doctor.

Emergency Warning Signs in Children

- Fast breathing or trouble breathing
- Bluish skin color
- Not drinking enough fluids
- Not waking up or not interacting
- Being so irritable that the child does not want to be held
- Flu-like symptoms improve but then return with fever and worse cough
- Fever with a rash.

Emergency Warning Signs in Adults

- Difficulty breathing or shortness of breath
- Pain or pressure in the chest or abdomen
- Sudden dizziness
- Confusion
- Severe or persistent vomiting

If you have any questions or concerns, please contact Employee Health Nursing. We are here to serve you!

Competitive plus Program at Oneida Family Fitness

By Ryan Waterstreet
OFF Assistant Director

The Competitive plus Program offered by Oneida Family Fitness as an ongoing program designed to enhance the athlete's strength, speed, agility, power, and balance for improved performance in all athletic activities. Oneida Family Fitness will design "sport specific" training regiments for the individual athlete so that they may achieve success.

How will "Competitive Plus" benefit me?

By participating in the "Competitive Plus" program, you will learn and develop the proper skills necessary to perform at your peak ability. You will also gain insight into training methods and theories from professional trainers that can boost your performance, skill levels, and confidence in your sport.

What is included in this program?

- Personalized Training Program
- Athletic Performance Camps
- Educational Sports Seminars
- Team Building
- Visualization Exercises
- Fitness Assessments
- Wellness Profile
- And much, much more!

Are there age requirements to be in the Competitive Program?

Yes, the age requirements are 13 years of age to 18 years of age. If you are interested in taking advantage of this program please contact Ryan Waterstreet at Oneida Family Fitness for your initial screening.

The "Competitive Plus Program" is a commitment from the athlete, will develop leadership, motivation, attitude, balance, and trust.

Escamea benefits from exercise commitments

Nadine Escamea is a 68-year young Oneida elder who believes that anyone can benefit from exercise. As a member of Oneida Family Fitness for the past eighteen years, she continues to challenge herself and exceed her goals.

"I used to take the aerobic classes when this was located at the Norbert Hill building, but I never used the machines."

Nadine enjoys it even more now that there is more studio space, classes and a pool.

"I take all the water classes that help with my arthritis. I still don't use the weight machines, but I do use the resistance bands and free weights."

She attributes her improved sense of balance and agility to the lively low impact, and line dancing classes she regularly attends.

With a little bit of encouragement from her friends, she tried a spin class. She used to think that Spin was only for people who are fit and young. Now, she loves to take a 30 minute spin class.

"The music is so motivating, and you can do it at your own pace".

By taking spin, she has now gained the confidence to ride her three-wheel bicycle.

"I no longer need to wait for transit to take me just down the road, I can ride my bike".

Nadine Escamea

She has even concurred hills on her bike that she thought would never be possible. At first, I was afraid to ride a bike, but then I tried a three-wheeler and I no longer felt afraid of falling. She encourages other elders try riding a three-wheeler. "It is great exercise, and makes you feel free". She remembers it wasn't easy to start, but she is glad she did. Nadine recalls a time when movement wasn't easy.

"Walking the stairs used to wear me out, so I didn't come when I knew the elevator was out of service."

One of Nadine's greatest achievements is being able to take the stairs along with taking her regular classes. "It doesn't matter if the elevator is out now."

Nadine has participated in facility incentives, healthy weight loss and the TRIAD program which have helped her to lose fifty pounds in three years. Her new goal is to lose an additional twenty pounds.

Nadine's advice to anyone just starting out is to start by taking water classes.

"You get out what you put into it."

Thanks Nadine.

New class offered at OFF

Shekoli Swakweku,

There is a brand new group exercise class being offered here at Oneida Family Fitness that is designed to work on your explosiveness, speed, and strengthen your upper/lower body as well as your core muscles.

It includes a lot of plyometric exercises that involve low/high impact movements on your joint muscles.

We have been able to add some new equipment to the class that includes plyo boxes, battle ropes, and medicine balls.

This is a very intense class so keep in mind that the intensity level is moderate to advanced.

The class times have been set for Tuesday at 12:15 and Thursday at 5:10, come early before class time and get a preview of what you're going to experience.

So bring a friend and come take part in this brand new class appropriately named XPLOSION here at ONEIDA FAMILY FITNESS!!!!

"Explosion is the best class that O.F.F offers. Very intense workout, even the warm-up is tough!" Oneida Fitness Member and Tribal Member Lambert Metoxen

Tips for a healthier heart

1. Don't smoke or use tobacco

Smoking or using tobacco is one of the most significant risk factors for developing heart disease. Chemicals in tobacco can damage your heart and blood vessels, leading to narrowing of the arteries which in turn may ultimately lead to a heart attack.

2.Exercise for 30 minutes on most days of the week

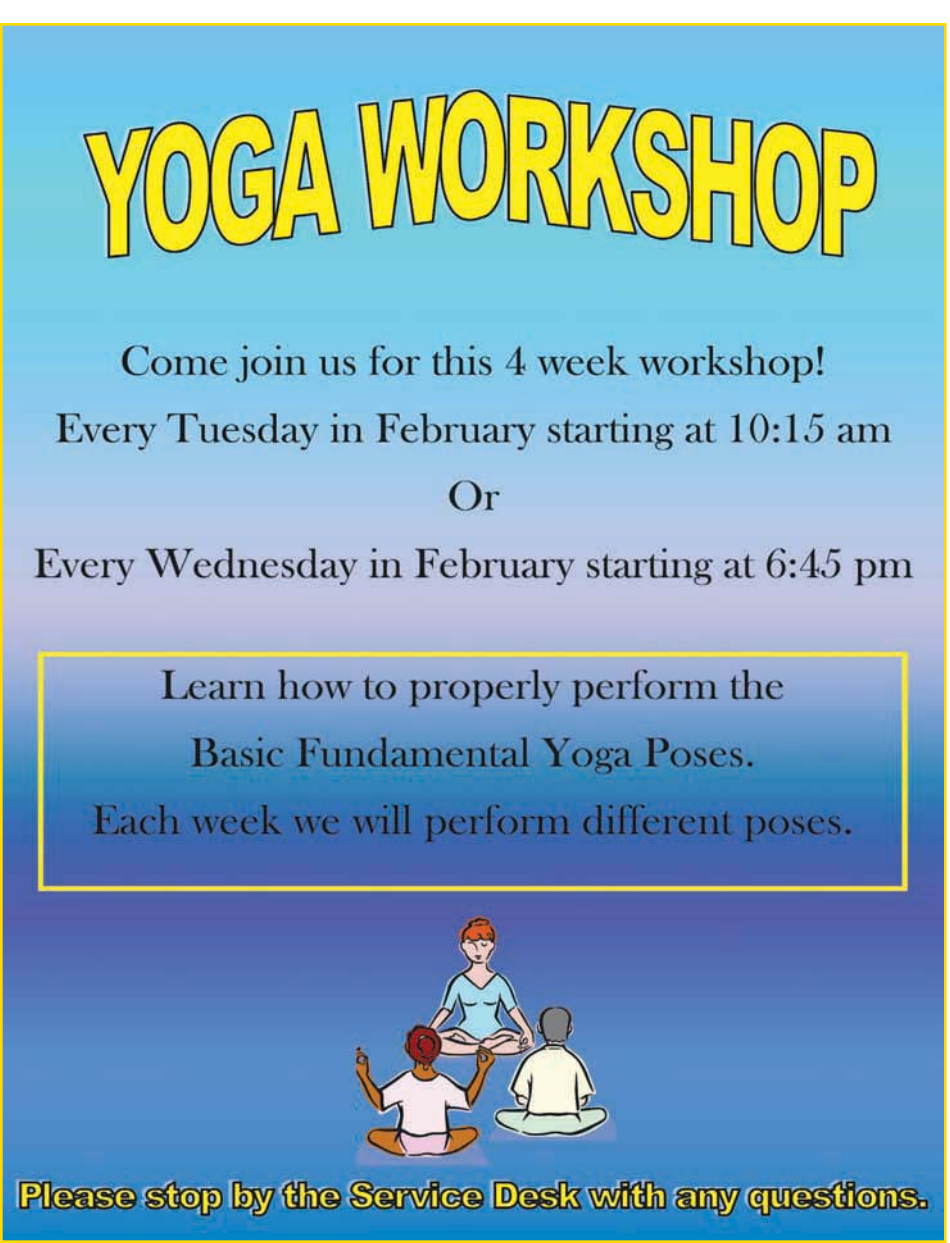
Physical activity helps you control your weight and can reduce your chances of developing other conditions that may put a strain on your heart, such as high blood pressure, high cholesterol and diabetes. It also reduces stress, which may be a factor in heart disease.

3. Eat a heart-healthy diet

Most people need to add more fruits and vegetables to their diet — with a goal of five to 10 servings a day. Eating that many fruits and vegetables can not only help prevent heart disease, but also may help prevent cancer.

In addition, limiting certain fats you eat also is important. Of the types of fat — saturated, polyunsaturated, monounsaturated and trans fat — saturated fat and trans fat increase the risk of coronary artery disease by raising blood cholesterol levels. (ie, red meat, deep-fried fast foods, bakery products,packaged snack foods)

4. Maintain a healthy weight



- Men are considered overweight if their waist measurement is greater than 40 inches (101.6 centimeters, or cm)
- Women are overweight if their waist measurement is greater than 35 inches (88.9 cm)

Even a small weight loss can be beneficial. Reducing your weight by just 10 percent can decrease your blood pressure, lower your blood cholesterol level and reduce your risk of diabetes.

5. Get regular health screenings

High blood pressure and high cholesterol can damage your heart and blood vessels. But without testing for them, you probably won't know whether you have these conditions. Regular screening can tell you what your numbers are and whether you need to take action.

- O.F.F. is offering Free BP checks and aerobic assessments during the month of Feb (for OFF members, community members and employees of the tribe).

Wisconsin district refuses to drop Indian nickname

MADISON, Wis. (AP) ~ A Wisconsin school district has refused to get rid of its Indian nickname and logo despite a court ruling supporting a state order to drop it.

Legislators passed a law in 2010 giving the state Department of Public Instruction the authority to force schools to drop race-based nicknames, logos and mascots if a complaint was filed and the agency found the names or images were discriminatory.

The Mukwonago Area School District has used the Indian nickname and a logo of an Indian man in a headdress for more than 80 years. An area resident filed a complaint about them after the law was passed, and DPI determined they were race-based. The agency ordered the district to drop them.

District parents challenged the order, but the 2nd District Court of Appeals ruled last week that they have no standing. The district now has until 2014 to drop the nickname, according to DPI officials.

But Superintendent Paul Strobel said the district has no plans to change its nickname. He said district officials have asked Republican legislators to repeal the law granting DPI the authority to strip nicknames from schools, and parents are preparing to ask the state Supreme Court to take up their case.

A spokesman for Rep. Steve Nass, R-Whitewater, said Nass is considering legislation to repeal the law or to require someone who files a complaint to prove a nickname discriminates against a student.

DPI spokesman Patrick Gasper didn't immediately return telephone and email messages.

Barbara Munson, an Oneida Indian who chairs the Wisconsin Indian Education Association's Indian Mascot and Logo Task Force, said she's frustrated with the district's stance. She said everyone needs to respect different cultures.

OSGC moves waste to energy project to Oneida

By Travis Cottrell
Kalihwisaks

The Oneida Seven Generations Corporation's (OSGC) waste to energy facility, which has been the subject of much public scrutiny, recently was the main subject of a public hearing held at the Division of Land Management on Monday, January 28, 2013.

This rendition of the project changes its focus from municipal waste to plastics and will begin on a smaller scale.

Along with the alterations to the project comes a change in location, with OSGC looking to utilize the former Tower Foods building located in central Oneida.

Although the project has seen its fair share of antagonists in the past, the vast majority in attendance at the public hearing shared their support for the proposed facility.

The former Tower Foods location will house a gasification system designed to convert high food grade plastic products like fast food drink cups, pasta boxes, orange juice containers, and other food based recyclables into base oil.

The simplified version of the process goes as follows:

Recycled material goes to a paper company, who then harvests it for its paper content.

Paper companies have a process in which they separate the paper fiber from the plastic. Through their various processes the recycled material is washed, cleaned, and separated by the type of fibers.

After extracting the paper material that they need, feathery plastic fibers are left over. The company has no use for this material and it typically heads to a landfill.

Instead this material will then be drained of any water content, heated, and sent down a hollow tube, and then sliced. The result is a rough-textured hockey puck of plastic material.

These nuggets of plastic will then be brought to the Tower Foods site by truck and placed in a storage bin.

Within Tower Foods there will be two gasification units which heat the plastic lumps via internal combustion engine and convert it into an oil base. The internal combustion engine that heats the plastic will run on the vapor gases that are emitted by the heating process.

The resulting oil will then be stored in a designated oil storage tank which is a double lined steel insulated tank to meet American Petroleum Institute standards.

That oil will then be sold to oil refineries, and ultimately blended into fuel.

The proposed facility would employ up to 20 people.

Among those who made their support known at the hearing was Roger Knight, Petroleum Engineer for the U.S. Department of the Interior Division of Energy and Mineral Development.

"I have been in the energy business for over 44 years and we have done a lot of work with waste energy and all sorts of renewals. The project is regarded very highly across the country because of its energy output and low pollutants. The Department of the Interior has supported this project and feels that this is a good technology and would be a benefit to the tribe," Knight said.

There was an opposition to the proposed site at the hearing.

Leah Dodge said in prepared statement, "In order to encourage the viable sustainability of future investments truly objective parties who fully advocate the Seven Generation's philosophy should

Berg charms his way to Mr. Titletown honor

By Travis Cottrell
Kalihwisaks

Cayman Berg, Green Bay Notre Dame Academy senior and Oneida Nation Elementary School graduate, charmed the judges on his way to claiming the Mr. Titletown crown.

The Mr. Titletown competition is an annual event that raises funds and awareness for the Partners in Education Post Prom/Post Grad Night events. The funds raised are then given to area high schools to hold post-prom and post-grad night parties.

Berg initially participated in a Mr. NDA event, which has the same concept but is exclusive to Notre Dame students.

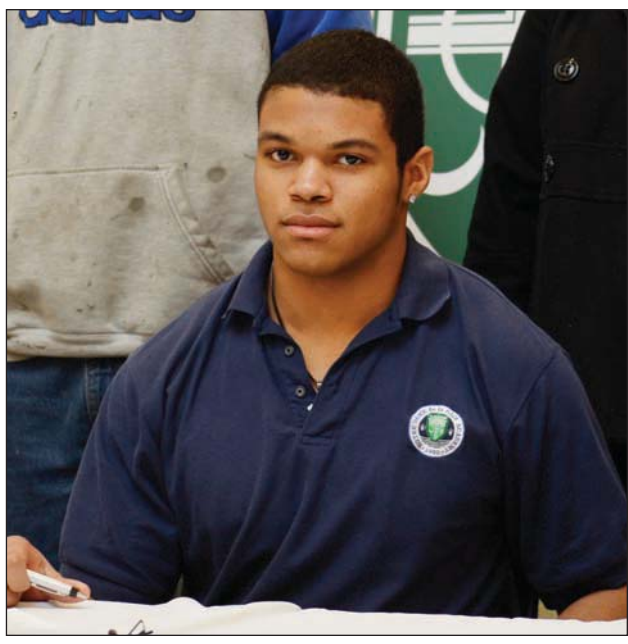
"After I won that competition they asked me to represent Notre Dame and the community in the Mr. Titletown competition so I did," Berg said.

The Mr. Titletown competition required contestants to participate in talent, formal wear, and question and answer categories.

"For Mr. Titletown I had to come up with an introduction, for that I did the song 'Look at Me Now' by Chris Brown and I did a dance with a couple of my classmates. Then we did a talent, which I sang 'I Won't Give Up' by Jason Mraz. For my formal wear I had a friend be my escort and she and I came out in a dress and tux," said Berg.

The competition was anyone's to claim up to that point. But it was the final category, question and answer, where Berg would separate himself from the pack.

"I think what won it for me was my question and answer portion. My question was 'Can You Teach Me How to Dougie?' the Judge who asked me that was Emily Deem from Fox 11 News. So I got up there and did the dance then she asked me to explain so I asked her to come up on stage and I showed her how to dance the Dougie," explained Berg.



Involving a judge in his performance put Berg over the top and he emerged as the 2013 Mr. Titletown.

Berg attended the Oneida Nation Elementary School from kindergarten through eighth grade, graduating at the top of his eighth grade class.

In addition to being a stellar academic student Berg is involved in year round extra- curricular activities.

"I do football, lacrosse, track, I'm in my school's jazz band, and a couple of other smaller clubs. So I stay pretty busy throughout the school year. I am hoping to be a captain on the lacrosse team and I was a co-captain on the football team this year," Berg said.

As the new Mr. Titletown Berg was awarded a $2,500 scholarship courtesy of Scholarships, Inc., which he will use next year when he attends Michigan Technical University. Berg will play football and study structural engineering at Michigan Tech.

Wheelock to attend Two Row Wampum celebration

By Dawn Walschinski
Kalihwisaks

Chaz Wheelock is looking forward to spending time with his daughters this summer by canoeing, camping and celebrating 400 years of history.

The family will be taking part in a two-week Symbolic Enactment Paddle organized by Two Row Campaign of Syracuse, New York. The event will start in Albany on July 27 and will paddle down the Hudson River to New York City on August 9. The group will then take part in the United Nations International Day of the World's Indigenous Peoples on August 10.

The plan is to have two flotillas paddling parallel to each other as a living embodiment of the Two Row Wampum Belt exchanged between the Iroquois Confederacy and Dutch settlers in the 1600's.

Chaz Wheelock

"The Two Row references our world view and another world view. It references our place and our rules, our systems, our laws, our responsibilities and it references the non-indigenous rules and responsibilities," said Wheelock.

The Two Row Wampum symbolized an agreement between the Iroquois and Dutch to live side by side, but to not interfere with each other.

"It's a pretty significant document when you put the Two Row up there with the Magna Carta," said Wheelock.

Wheelock is preparing for the expected 9 to 15 mile-per-day paddling by taking some classes from Oneida Adventures and polishing up on history.

"I think we're ready for the water and the woods," said Wheelock. "I always enjoy going to New York …

Spending time in the environment with others who appreciate the environment is always exciting. Learn a lot always from other people and from the environment."

The Two Row Wampum Renewal Campaign is a partnership between the Onondaga Nation and Neighbors of the Onondaga Nation (NOON) to develop an alliance between the Haudenosaunee and their allies in New York and throughout the world.

"Non-Indigenous people's support for Indian rights and the land rights in New York… and cultural rights and environmental justice those are all topics that have become intertwined as you talk about the Two Row," said Wheelock.

For more information on the Symbolic Enactment Paddle visit http://honorthetworow.org/?page_id=514 or call 315-472-5478 or email tworow@peacecouncil.net. Event organizers have moved out the application deadline to April 2. Applicants can choose the number of days they want to participate.

OTJS Administers Its First Oath of Admission to Practice

Chapter 6 of the Judicial Code: Rules of Admission to Practice (Oneida Bar) went into effect January 1, 2013, and the Chief Judicial Officer administered the very first Oath of Admission to applicants February 6, 2013.

The Oneida Tribal Judicial System (OTJS) has an interest in the quality of justice within the tribal system and the protection of parties' interests before its trial and appellate courts. In pursuit of this interest, it is to the benefit of parties that all advocates, whether attorney or lay-person, be reviewed and formally approved for admission to practice before the Oneida courts.

The purpose of the rules are to establish minimum requirements for admissions to practice before the Oneida Tribal Judicial System and to create a regulatory component that ensures quality justice for all those seeking relief from the court system. In addition, the rules establish ethical standards and give the OTJS the authority and mechanism to discipline any advocate or attorney who does not follow them.

"We realized it was time to regulate those who appear in front of us," Chief Judicial Officer Janice McLester said. "We have been lucky over the years nothing major has happened. If an attorney or advocate were to do something unethical, we had no process in place to discipline him or her. An attorney's state license is separate."

Under the rules, attorneys must pay a one-time fee of $50, be in good standing with the state bar. Lay advocates have similar requirements, but must provide two affidavits attesting to their character. Lay advocate fee is $25. The Oneida rules of professional responsibility are modeled after the State of Wisconsin rules.

All new cases filed in 2013 are subject to the new Rules of Admission. No person appearing on their own behalf need be admitted to practice, as any party has a right to represent themselves in an action before the OTJS.

"We realize that attorneys want to be able to move between the two systems without having to worry about being subject to a different set of ethics rules," McLester said. "Ultimately it's better for our community; we don't want any major barriers to keep attorneys from practicing in the Tribal Court."

The Court Administer maintains a roster of all approved applicants. For more information, please contact Raeann Skenandore at (920) 497-5800.

Correction

In the story "Passage fo Judiciary Law presents new challenges" in the January 24, 2013 issue, it was stated the minimum age for judges will be 25. The new minimum age will be 30. Also, the Family Court Division is referred to as the Family Commission. The Kalihwisaks staff apologizes for the errors.

Passing On...

February 1, 1931 – January 30, 2013

Norman Elm, 81, of De Pere, passed away unexpectedly on Wednesday, January 30, 2013. He was born on February 1, 1931 in Green Bay to the late Frissell and Angie (Smith) Elm. He attended Milwaukee Boys Tech and Nicolet High School. Norman was united in marriage to the former Carol John on December 6, 1963. Norman served honorably in the United States Marine Corp, and was also a member of the American Legion, Post 2930. He was a member of the Local 330 Laborer's Union for over 50 years. Norman worked as a construction laborer for many years, a majority of years with J.C. Basten, as well as Fruin Colin, and retired in 1987. He was inducted into the Oneida Hall of Fame for playing 1st Base with Oneida Baseball, Dairyland League. He was known as the best 1st Baseman Oneida ever had. He went on to play semi-pro baseball in Milwaukee. He enjoyed collecting model trains, cars, and coins, as well as entertainment at the casino. Norman was a craftsman with a knack for woodworking, and enjoyed building projects for community members. He also enjoyed spending time in his garage working, and with his family and friends listening to old time music.

He is survived by his wife, Carol; his son, Norb (special friend Shannon McGimsey) Elm; two daughters, Lori and Tamara Elm; seven grandchildren, Jonas, Johnathan, Natasha, Megan, Bryce, Skylee, Anastacia, and a great-grandchild, Ahlayna. Norman is further survived by his sister, Irene Hill; step-sisters, Doreen and Judy; step-brother, Luke; sisters-in-law, Betsy John, Judi (Tony Jr.) Skenandore, Karen (David) Powless; brother-in-law, Gene Silas; special friends, Yogi and Tony; as well as numerous, nieces, nephews, other relatives, and friends.

Norman was preceded in death by his parents; his brother, Emil Elm; brother-in-law Ronnie John; sisters-in-law, Mary Hill and Beverly Silas; 13 nephews, Larry, Russell, Floyd, Richard, Nick, Ricky, Emil Jr., Tommy, Patrick, Shaun, Scotty, Mike, and Little John.

Friends and family may have gathered at RYAN FUNERAL HOME (305 North Tenth Street, De Pere, WI) on Saturday February, 2, 2013 from 10am until 1pm when a funeral service was held with Fr. Robert Clarke officiating. Oneida Singers performed at 12:30pm, with Military Honors and Drums following service. Burial at Holy Apostles Cemetery. In lieu of flowers, a memorial fund has been established in Norman's name.

Please visit www.ryanfh.com to send online condolences to the Elm family.

The Elm family would like to extend sincere thanks to DaVita Dialysis, St. Vincent Hospital ICU 6th Floor, and to all family and friends who were there to support them during a very difficult time.

Gary E. Thomas, 72, passed away peacefully at home with his family by his side on Sunday February 3, 2013. He was born July 13, 1940 in Oneida to the late VanRoy and Rosetta Thomas. He worked at Leicht Transfer & Storage. Most recently he had retired from Moore Response (RR Donnelly). Gary enjoyed bowling, playing cards and spending time with family. An avid golfer, he was very proud of his first hole-in-one this past summer.

He is survived by his long-time girlfriend Ruth Hill; children, Tracy (Karen) Thomas, Rosetta (Red) Thomas, Jeffrey (Bonnie) Thomas, Peter (Mollie) Thomas, Julie (Tom) Thomas. Grandchildren; Patricia, Joshua, Cody, Shawna, Courtney, Elizabeth, Michael, Jeffrey, Mason, Miles, Emma, Josie, Bradley, Brandon, Alan, and Brooke. His great grandchildren, Gary's brother Mike, his sisters; Jackie, Carla, Vicki, and Inez.

He was preceded in death by his parents, his brothers Bruce, Bob, Sherman, and his sisters, Carol and Lillie.

Friends may call at the RYAN FUNERAL HOME 305 N. Tenth Street in De Pere after 2pm on Thursday February 7, 2013 until the time of service at 6pm with Pastor Lonnie Johnson officiating. We little knew that morning,
That God was going to call your name.
It broke our heart to lose you,
You did not go alone;
For part of us went with you
The day God called you home.
You left us peaceful memories,
Your love is still our guide,
And though we cannot see you,
You are always at our side.
Our family chain is broken,
And nothing seems the same,
But as God calls us one by one,
The chain will link again.
We love you and miss you, Edwin

In Loving Memory of...

Sheila S. (Smith) Comeaux

September 19, 1962 - January 14, 2012

Our hearts are heavy, and tears still flow, it seems like it was only yesterday,
that we had to let you go.

You were my beautiful and loving wife, our daughter the nurse, our mother who gave so much to us, our grandma we loved to visit, our sister we looked up to, created many funny memories we should write a book, our auntie who we were just getting to know, and friends the instant we met.

I may sound cliche, but there is not one single day that goes by that you are not in our thoughts, or see something that reminds us of you. You were an intelligent, fearless and caring woman that once you met, you left an imprint in so many lives.

We are still nursing our hearts and travel back to the day we had to let you go.
What a great loss we felt that day and every day since.
We still struggle with why you had to go so soon, you were too young to leave, you had more caretaking to give.

Forgive us our selfishness for wanting you back.
We know you are in the heavens taking care of our loved ones past, gramas and grandpas, and our baby girls and sons.

We will keep you close in our hearts and receive comfort knowing you are no longer in pain. As we all move on with our lives, all going in different direction's, know that we have grown closer as a family and see how we take care of each other.

It was you, who brought us back together as a family. There are still so many memories that we laugh about, cry about and say omg!

We love and miss you Sheila, hon, mom, grandma, sis, auntie, co-worker's and friends. Love, your wonderful loving husband, Steve, Mom and dad - Carol and Robert Smith, Daughters Nicole (and soon to be born your new grandson), Briana Beechtree (grandkids, Tristin (twister), Keegan and Roberto. Let's not forget about your brother Mike Smith and sister, Cheryl (Smith) Free (son Wyatt). We dare not forget you're loyal and beloved Chihuahua, Gi Gi Laroux.

Comprehensive Plan Community Meeting Results on the Department of Culture

Submitted by Oneida Planning Department

The seventh comprehensive plan community meeting was held at Little Bear Development Center on January 3, 2013. The plan element presented was Department of Culture.

The comprehensive planning process represents the Oneida community people's voice in addressing all 16 plan elements affecting the social, economic, and physical growth of our community. Our plan is developed through a "grassroots" approach where community has a forum to express their ideas, reactions and concerns of well-being and quality of life. The Oneida community, executive leaders, managers, and Tribal departments use the comprehensive plan as a reference and guide in the development of Tribal plans, initiatives, and policies.

The 16 plan elements are, 1) Health Care, 2) Education, 3) Housing, 4) Community Design, 5) Parks and Recreation, 6) Utilities, 7) Community Facilities, 8) Transportation, 9) Public Safety, 10) Government Coordination and Regulations, 11) Economic Development, 12) Agriculture, 13) Natural Resources, 14) Environmental Protection, 15) Tsi? Niyukwaliho' t^' (Department of Culture), and 16) Land Use.

The Tsi? Niyukwalihó tʌ́ (Department of Culture) mission statement is "To preserve, protect, maintain, and interpret the Oneida traditions, artifacts, language, customs, and history in a manner that shall promote the dignity and respect of the Oneida people and culture. Its direction aligns to Oneida's vision statement which is "A Nation of strong families built on Tsi? Niyukwalihó tʌ́ and a strong economy". Its mission also aligns to Oneida's mission statement which is "To strengthen and protect our people, reclaim our land and enhance the environment by exercising our sovereignty".

The Oneida definition of Tsi? Niyukwalihó tʌ́ includes the ways of Oneida people from the Creation Story to the present day. This includes our culture, our history before and after the move to Wisconsin, our economy, our language, land, music/dance, arts, clothing, clans, government, child rearing, healing, agriculture, parenting, ceremonies, economy, employees, food, stories, our environment ethic. It covers everything about our Nation.

Oneida core values relate back to the birth of the Great Law and include: Kahletsyatlúsla, the heartfelt encouragement of the best in each of us; Kanolukhwásla, compassion, caring, identity, and joy of being; Ka?nikuhli·yó, the openness of the good spirit and mind; Ka?tshatstʌ́sla, the strength of belief and vision as a People; Kalihwi·yó, the use of the good words about ourselves, our Nation and our future; Yukwahwa·tsíle, our family and our Nation; and Yuywatsístayʌ́, the fire, our spirit within each one of us.

There are five major components of Tsi? Niyukwalihó tʌ́ including: 1) culture, 2) history, 3) language, 4) library and 5) museum. More specifically culture consists of advising, ceremonies, healing, wellness, preservation and crafts. History is made up of a historian, archives, research, genealogy, multi-media, and monthly workshops. Language consists of ANA grant work, revitalization and curriculum development. The library includes youth programming, research and internet access. Finally, the museum contains photos, displays, gift shop, educators, regalia, special events, objects and collections.

Goals	Objectives/Activities
1	Documents; booklets, handouts, website, curriculum, brochures, scans
1	Classes: 2 year academy development, monthly workshops, in schools, upon request
1	Calendar of events: monthly workshops – museum, history, library, all staff
1	Multi-media: web pages, recordings, scanning, digital copies
1	Signage: posters with language. Working with tourism and planning
1	School: continuous work with high school
2	100 language teachers: 5 year curriculum is 70% completed. 2 methods of teaching in progress. 15 people are at various stages in levels 1, 2 & 3
2	Daily language classes: classes held Tuesday and Thursday at Cultural Heritage, Monday and Friday at Norbert Hill Center, Monday through Friday at the Language House, daily classes with kindergarten through grade 12 students at public schools, classes at DPW
2	Titles in the language: some titles have been translated
2	Incentives: funding did not begin in 2007, if it did it was cut
2	Outreach on web: curriculum, games, lessons, activities on website, website is in the process of getting updated
2	Road and signs in language: Planning and Development took over this activity
3	Fund strategy by 2006: plan completed will review and update in the next 6 months. Lack of resources prevented a successful capital campaign. Breaking components into workable sections. Updated marketing plan in 2012. Monitoring dollars collected compared to dollars to general fund
3	Cultural Center: on hold. Looking at completing center in sections. Offering classes, looking at elements. Program development based on Tsi? Niyukwalihot^ and a 2 year immersion academy
4	Increase venues with culturally relevant facts: web pages, books, videos, CD's, interviews
4	Honor and promote accomplishments: On^yote aka gathering, Big Apple Fest, Winterfest
4	Create lesson plans on Oneida history and culture to be made available to any school district: history baskets, booklets, brochures, Tsi? Niyukwalihot^ curriculum, language curriculum

Improvement Project for the Cultural Center, and Goal 4 is to educate and communicate our cultural values/beliefs and history to other Tribes and the general public. Measures used to gage the progress of building a strong foundation of Tsi? Niyukwalihó tʌ́ include tracking the number of people attending learning opportunities, dollars collected compared to dollars generated for the general fund, the number of learning opportunities offered, percent of Culture staff that have the ability to identify components of foundation, and number of Culture students advancing in language class. Projects include culture campus development, a marketing plan, collections management and implementation of a 5 year Oneida language plan. Additionally, below is a list of activities by the Tsi? Niyukwalihó tʌ́ that aide in accomplishing the goals and objectives of the comprehensive plan element.

A summary of the public/community concerns and comments on the Tsi? Niyukwalihó tʌ́ comprehensive plan element included a number of categories as follows:
- Kinship Ties for All Oneidas: What is the relationship between the three Oneida communities?
- People who are not "politically" connected seem to be more connected to "who we are as Oneidas."
- The Oneida People desire to "get together" but the necessary resources to do such, are not available.
- The desire to participate in the three communities is present but the opportunities are rare!
- What is Oneida? Is being Oneida just a "line item" within our budget? We appear to be losing our culture and focusing on "making money." The Tribal Budget Process should include opportunities for budgeting "being Oneida" in all Departmental budgets. Our current process only is concerned with "dollars" and not on cultural relevance of our program areas.
- Is Our Tribe Committed to "being Oneida?" Why are people not participating in our community meetings, activities, etc.? Perhaps some of our People no longer wish to be Oneida!
- What is Sovereignty and what is our Tribe doing in the area of educating our People on sovereignty? Is the language in our school system making progress towards assisting our young people in learning the Oneida language?
- Is there a "cultural" component to our Employee Orientation program? Other tribes include 2-3 days of tribal specifics such as culture, language, values, etc.

BACKGROUND ON BUSINESS

Couple ventures into transportation with Knight's Taxi

Previous customers help the company get started

By Dawn Walschinski
Kalihwisaks

Oneida citizen Serena Hernandez and her boyfriend Kevin Hussey are making their move into the transportation business with their company Knight's Taxi.

The couple decided to start their own taxi service after Hussey grew frustrated driving for a couple of Green Bay area taxi companies.

"No customer service skills," Hussey stated. "And the bosses are always out to pretty much rip off the driver, treat them like garbage, so I figured I'd just get around all that and start our own," he said.

The couple parlayed Hussey's four years of driving experience and a small business loan from Bay Bank into their new business in January, 2013.

"We're the only minority owned/Native owned taxi cab service in Green Bay. And we just were approved to service at the airport at Austin Straubel," said Hernandez. "It's just one thing after another, it's not all bad, it's just a lot of work, hoops."

Hussey does the driving while Hernandez takes care of the business side, though Hussey's been training Hernandez to drive the cab.

"My first time driving a customer, I was really proud of myself, I was nervous though," she said.

The owner/operator business hopes to compete with Green Bay's 15 other taxi companies by offering good customer service at a competitive rate.

"(We) try to provide the best service we can," said Hussey.

The business has been helped by Hussey's past customers.

"The same customers I've been picking up for years, they all came to my company," he said. "They pass out my cards for me and keep me busy."

Knight's Taxi currently consists of one minivan, but the couple hopes expand vehicles and drivers within the year.

"Business is picking up big time. I'm really proud of us because we work really hard at what we do, especially Kevin, he's really dedicated to servicing not only Green Bay but the surrounding areas also, including Oneida," said Hernandez.

Hussey and Hernandez are waiting on personalized Oneida license plates for their taxi. Hernandez wanted to give the business another Oneida touch by naming it after her clan.

"I was going to name it Turtle Taxi, but then he was like that might not be a good idea," she said. "He went with Knight's Taxi because he's a chess player."

Contact Knight's Taxi at 920-217-0255 or visit their facebook page at www.facebook.com/pages/Knights-Taxi. Knight' Taxi accepts credit/debit payments.

Financial Fitness Tips

BayBank Green Bay, Wisconsin

Getting a handle on your finances can seem like a massive chore. Just like organizing the garage or losing 25 pounds, getting financially fit takes planning and dedication. Here are a few basic elements of financial fitness to keep in mind.

Budgeting

Making a budget (and sticking to it) is the foundation of a solid personal financial plan. There are two essential pieces of a budget: the money you make and the money you spend. Break down all income and all expenses on a monthly basis to get a clear picture of what your personal budget should look like. This will help you optimize your spending and cut back on unnecessary expenses.

Goal-Setting

Create a specific, tangible goal for your finances. "Saving money" is a philosophy, not a goal. Instead, tell yourself you'll have $3,000 in your savings account at the end of the year. Then, break that down into smaller goals, such as monthly or bi-monthly dollar amount targets. Seeing yourself achieving the smaller goals will help you reach the big one.

Cutting Expenses

This can be more difficult than it sounds, but having an accurate budget first will help. Be realistic when deciding what expenses must be cut. List what expenses are not absolutely necessary and then prioritize them. Based on your budget and this list, cut the expenses that are the lowest priority first, even if they're not the biggest ones. You'll be more likely to stick to your plan this way.

Bad vs. Good Debt

Some people think than any debt is bad debt, but knowing what debt is acceptable and what is more harmful will help you decide what to pay off first. The two things to look at when deciding if a debt is good or bad are the interest rate and the equity. The higher the interest rate, the worse the debt. This is why it's important to pay off credit cards quickly, as they often have very high interest rates. The equity is the value of the debt. So, a mortgage or student loan has better equity than a personal loan taken for a vacation, because the house or education are worth more than the vacation over time.

Saving for Retirement

Whether you've just entered the workforce or are within a few years of leaving it, saving for retirement should be a priority. It's important to pay yourself first, either through an employer-sponsored 401(k) or through an individual retirement account (IRA). There's a wide variety of options in this market, so talk to your banker about which retirement savings product is right for you.

LCO visits Oneida programs

Lac Courte Oreilles Vice Chairman William Morrow and Councilman Rusty Barber met with Oneida department leads to discuss collaborations with the Tribe for various programs. In this meeting with Joanie Buckley, Cheryl Stevens and Michelle Danforth, they discussed collaborating on grants for capacity building such as the trades program and for tourism initiatives.
The previous day they met with Pat Pelky on environmental programs that could be developed in conjunction with the LOC College; with Vicki Cornelius at the cannery for a tour of Tsyunhehkwa Cannery and an overview of Community processing and Products developed; with Michele Doxtator and the Oneida Market staff on retail outlets and providing product for the market; and with Vice Chairman Greg Matson on agricultural and economic development initiatives.

be invited to evaluate and critique OSGC's proposals and implementation."

In an interview with OSGC Chief Executive Officer Kevin Cornelius it quickly became apparent that information that has been released by local media outlets has caused some to be fearful of this new technology.

"We want to be able to demonstrate that this works. Let the community see that it works, see that it is safe. Then at that point we would sit down with the appropriate governmental entities and discuss where a full sized facility could go," Cornelius said.

Safety regulations and procedures are implemented by governmental agencies, such as the Environmental Protection Agency, without passing those procedures then the project is shut down. Those entities determine if the project is safe to use.

"When the Department of Energy came in they did an environmental assessment that took nine months. During that process they had public hearings and they took every question that was out there and answered every question. They used experts in the industry and after nine months they found no significant impact on the environment. The DNR also did an examination of the process and found that it is a minor source of pollution, a minor source. So that is two independent entities that deemed this process to be safe," said Bruce King.

The technology that OSGC hopes to utilize is not untested. Prior to committing to the project, there were extensive studies done on the process and its consequences.

"I think it is important to understand that we looked at a lot of different types of systems. We found a system that was working, that was up and running. We asked the Division of Energy and Mineral Development, which is a group of engineers, to evaluate the process and tell us if this was a good process and they came back and confirmed that it is a good process. That is when we started investing money to say this is what we wanted to do," Cornelius added.

The Oneida Tribe has not provided any funding for the project. The funds for the project have come mostly from grants or were generated by OSGC.

"If this were a danger we wouldn't do it. We are from the community, we grew up here, we have family here, and the last thing we would want is to have one of our aunts or uncles slap us in the head and say 'What are you doing?'" Cornelius said.

Understanding OTIE: The Financials

This article is the fourth in a series to inform the Oneida community about Oneida Total Integrated Enterprises, LLC (OTIE), an engineering, science and construction management firm owned by the Oneida Tribe.

In the first article of the December 13, 2012, edition of the Kalihwisaks, OTIE shared that it is one of several corporations owned by the Oneida Tribe. When the Oneida Tribe created OTIE in 2007 and then acquired TN & Associates in 2008, the purpose of acquiring an environmental engineering, science and construction management firm was and is to diversify the Tribe's revenue streams.

Since the 1980's, the Oneida Tribe has relied upon tribal gaming and cigarettes as primary sources of revenues to support the Oneida economy. Later the tribe established tribal corporations in the hospitality, banking and commercial real estate industries that would create new sources of revenues for the Oneida Tribe. OTIE is part of the Tribe's continued economic development activity that expands into the environmental engineering, science and construction management industries.

As a tribal corporation with 16 offices throughout the United States, OTIE provides a source of revenues from a national client base, and with OTIE projects extending into Japan the revenue source has become global through careful business planning. It is OTIE's international name recognition and reputation for quality engineering work that lead to project contracts that will keep OTIE on the path of steady business growth.

Without additional financial support mechanisms needed to grow OTIE business and revenues more quickly, OTIE has managed to grow the company at a slow and consistent rate that will ensure long-term stability in a competitive industry. OTIE accomplishes this through the use of retained earnings, which is part of OTIE's growth strategy and business strategy to leverage company assets for OTIE projects.

Retaining earnings means the cash or income made by OTIE is reinvested into OTIE for OTIE to grow and increase in value. Without some sort of cash reinvestment into OTIE, Oneida's investment in OTIE would become stale. Instead of OTIE asking for additional funding for growth, OTIE funds its own growth and operations by retaining earnings. Although this strategy has decreased the cash distributions to the Oneida Tribe, future distributions will be larger as a result of OTIE's growth.

So far, OTIE has distributed to Oneida $632,000 and plans a $1 million distribution. OTIE paid $132,000 to the Tribe in 2009 as part of the initial funding to establish OTIE in the previous years. OTIE also made a $500,000 distribution to the Tribe in 2010.

Tribal leadership agreed in 2012 and again at the 2012 Shareholder's meeting that OTIE would make a cash distribution to the Oneida Tribe over the course of 5 years beginning in 2013, with increasing dollar amounts that would total $1 million over 5 years.

The OTIE 5-year cash distribution to the Oneida Tribe is a prudent plan that ensures the Tribe receives a share of profits to supplement other revenue sources and begin to provide a return on investment. At the same time, the distribution plan allows OTIE to continue to move forward toward the goal of accumulating its own project bonding capacity and line of credit guarantee for projects that will relieve the Tribe of its financial obligations and guarantee.

OTIE continues to strive towards the employment of Oneida members for management, technical and administrative support positions within the company. In the past and at the current time, OTIE has employed 12 tribal members, either the Oneida Tribe or other tribes, who have worked or currently work in management, technical and administrative support positions in its three Wisconsin offices.

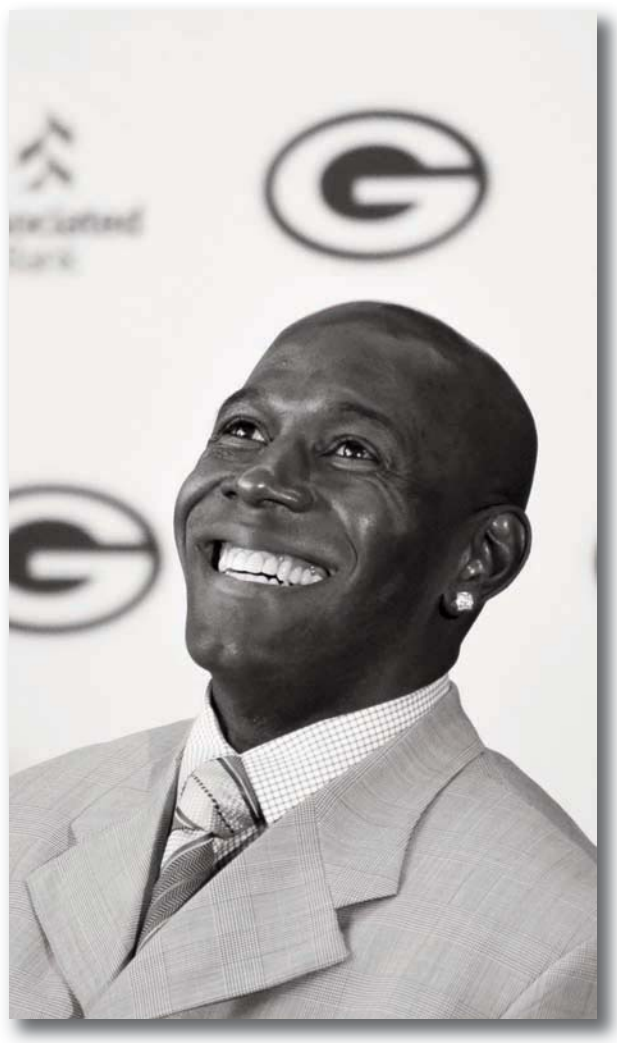
To name a few, the Green Bay office employs three Oneida members. Matt Kunstman is a Business Development Manager since 2009, and works on marketing and developing business relationships that lead to construction projects for OTIE.

Kyle Cornelius is a Transportation Engineer and has been with OTIE since 2009 when he started as an engineering intern. After his graduation in 2011, Kyle began working full-time with OTIE on highway construction and civil engineering projects. Julie Hill has been with OTIE since 2012 and provides administrative support to the Green Bay office, and maintains close communications with the Milwaukee office.

In the Madison office, Brett Peterson is a Transportation Engineer who began his work with OTIE in 2011. He also works on highway construction and civil engineering projects. More recently, Francine Skenandore was hired in the Milwaukee office in November 2012, and works as Assistant to the President. As a licensed attorney, she works directly with senior management on corporate issues and advises on legal matters, as well as doing Oneida community outreach. Francine is in the process of recruiting Oneida members as intern candidates for OTIE.

The Oneida members and three individuals who are members of other tribes that work for OTIE bring valuable experience and knowledge to OTIE in each of their respective positions. OTIE is motivated to add more Oneida members to the company who are looking for opportunities to grow in their career aspirations and contribute to a growing company that is proud to be owned by the Oneida Tribe.

OTIE strongly encourages interested Oneida members to submit resumes and applications for posted job and internship positions, and will continue to recruit and train Oneida members for employment throughout different levels of the company.



For those Oneida youth interested in engineering and science, OTIE is in a position to reinforce and support the education of Oneida high school students through the OTIE Scholarship and education outreach events that expose Oneida youth to the fields of engineering and science. Education outreach will be an ongoing activity so that OTIE can help inspire Oneida youth to study engineering and science.

For questions about the OTIE distribution plan, please contact OTIE Board Chairman Wilbert "Butch" Rentmeester at 920-664-5598. For questions about employment and the internship and scholarship programs, please contact Francine Skenandore at 414-607-6746.

Farewell to #80 Donald Driver

February 6 2013 was Donald Driver Day in Titletown. The wide receiver officially retired as a Green Bay Packer after 14 seasons with the NFL. Above, Gov. Scott Walker and Green Bay Mayor Jim Schmitt shared the stage to present him with a proclamation, a key to the city, and unveiled a sign which will be located downtown by Titletown Brewery as Donald Driver Way, as his wife Betina proudly looks on. Right, the signature smile that fans fondly embrace.
More than 1,500 free tickets were handed out last Friday and they went in about 20 minutes. Fans braved bitter cold temperatures to wait in line for tickets to see #80 say goodbye. The ceremony was held at the Lambeau Field Atrium.

Oneida Tribe supports Idle No More movement

Oneida, WI – The Oneida Tribe took action at a recent Oneida Business Committee meeting to support a proposal submitted by Native American Church of Oneida representatives to host an "Idle No More" event combined with a "Flash Mob" on Saturday, February 9, 2013.

The "Idle No More" will be a peaceful gathering of a diverse group of indigenous people who want to raise the awareness of issues affecting indigenous people all over the world. Since November there have been "Idle No More" events held across the world in an effort to heighten the awareness of indigenous issues.

Oneida organizers have partnered with the Wind Chases the Sun Foundation to present a peaceful event that will bring an increased awareness of the treatment of Native and Indigenous people pertaining to inherent and human rights. The issues will range from treaty rights, human rights and environmental rights as speakers will address various forums.

The day will kick off with a Flash Mob at noon in the parking lot of Walmart West at 2440 West Mason Street in Green Bay. The Flash Mob will sing and dance in unity and everyone is invited to attend and participate.

Following the Flash Mob participants are welcome to travel to the Norbert Hill Center in Oneida where there will be guest speakers addressing the anti-mining issues, and issues affecting Indigenous nations all over the world.

Oneida Chairman, Ed Delgado will welcome everyone to the event, he expressed concerns over the wide variety of issues that will be addressed, but in particular the mining issue. Chairman Delgado said, "The Oneida Tribe has good relationships with the leadership in Wisconsin, however, the mining issue is one which we cannot support and I hope the Wisconsin leadership will re-think their support of legislation that will change the present laws." Chairman Delgado will be followed by guest speakers from other Tribes in Wisconsin.

The keynote speaker invited is Bill Means who is an Oglala Lakota Sioux from South Dakota. Means has immeasurable knowledge and experience in dealing with Native American communities for more than 40 years. He is the founder of the International Indian Treaty Council and President of the Board. He is also co-founder of the UN Working Group of Indigenous Populations and an expert on US and Indian Treaty relations. He is a member of the American Indian Movement, a Vietnam War Combat Veteran and also a veteran of Wounded Knee, 1973.

In the evening of February 9, 2013, there will be a spiritual gathering of all nations behind the Norbert Hill Center-7210 Seminary Road, Oneida WI, there will be four teepee's set up where prayer meetings will be held simultaneously and run all night long.

Wind Chases the Sun Foundation is founded by interested parties who strive to seek the release of Leonard Peltier who has been imprisoned for several decades accused of murdering two FBI agents at Wounded Knee in 1973.

These people come together from diverse areas of the country in a peaceful and spiritual nature to raise awareness and bring support by addressing hunting and fishing rights, concern over the threat to continued land theft by corporations, mining issues and water pollution, just to name a few.

Food and refreshments will be available as long as supplies last. It is recommended that participants dress appropriately for the weather. Footwear that will keep you warm during long periods of standing outside as well as blankets and chairs for comfort.

New 'Native American Food Sovereignty Alliance' moving forward

Introductory Webinar drew nearly 200 National Participants

LONGMONT, CO – A new Native American Food Sovereignty Alliance is actively being formed following a successful introductory webinar about the effort that was held on Thursday, Jan. 31, 2013, and which attracted nearly 200 interested parties from across the U.S.

First Nations Development Institute (First Nations), based in Longmont, and the Taos County Economic Development Corporation (TCEDC), based in Taos, New Mexico, held the webinar and are working jointly to create the Native American Food Sovereignty Alliance, or NAFSA. TCEDC will be the lead coordinator (as a grantee of First Nations). Funding for the alliance effort was provided by the W.K. Kellogg Foundation, which also underwrites numerous other Native agriculture and food-related projects through First Nations.

NAFSA is intended to become a sustainable and organized movement that is Native American driven and controlled, nationally active and dedicated to addressing food security, hunger and nutrition in Native American communities at the national, tribal and local levels. Overall, the goal of NAFSA is to develop a national movement that gives voice to issues of Native food-system control and policy development, and which serves as a strong network for collaboration among various organizations engaged in Native food-system control. The organizers see the new entity as crucial in the areas of health, nutrition and cultural identity, of course, but also believe the reclaiming of control over Native food systems will promote further economic development in Native communities.

First Nations and TCEDC will move ahead with developing a leadership structure, vision and mission statements, goals and objectives, and other materials for NAFSA, as well as enlisting formal members. The first in-person meeting of interested parties will take place during the separate Food Sovereignty Summit in Green Bay, Wisconsin, April 15-18, 2013, an event that is jointly sponsored by First Nations, the Oneida Nation of Wisconsin, Intertribal Agriculture Council and Northeast Wisconsin Technical College. Those interested in attending the summit can find details at www.firstnations.org/summit. Those interested in attending the NAFSA meeting can go here for more information.

First Nations' support of this effort is a progression of its larger work to help Native American communities control assets. Under its Native Agriculture and Food Systems Initiative, First Nations funds numerous projects across the U.S. and is supported in the effort by visionary funding partners that include the W.K. Kellogg Foundation, AARP Foundation, Walmart Foundation, The Christensen Fund, the CHS Foundation, The Kresge Foundation, the U.S. Department of Agriculture Office of Advocacy and Outreach, and the USDA's Rural Development program.

Anyone interested in funding crucial food-systems work in American Indian communities should contact Sarah EchoHawk, executive vice president of First Nations.

College seeks veterans for PTSD research

UW-Madison seeks war veterans for PTSD research

MADISON, Wis. (AP) ~ Veterans who served in Iraq and Afghanistan are being invited to participate in a Wisconsin study designed to help soldiers adjust to life after combat.

The study is being conducted at the University of Wisconsin-Madison. Researchers there say veterans who return from a war zone may suffer from post-traumatic stress disorder, or PTSD, but not all respond to conventional treatment.

Scientists hope to develop new strategies for treating PTSD. The programs may involve group discussions, breathing exercises, meditation and gentle stretching.

A university news release says these sorts of programs are cost-effective and free of side effects, and veterans can practice the techniques on their own.

Veterans who are interested can call 608-263-0803. Those who participate could be paid up to $380 and reimbursed for gas.

Red Cliff: Barrels from lake contain explosives

DULUTH, Minn. (AP) ~ The Red Cliff Band of Lake Superior Chippewa says military waste barrels retrieved from Lake Superior contain active explosives.

The Red Cliff issued a preliminary report on the its effort to locate, raise and test the contents of the barrels that were dumped in the lake a half-century ago. The band's contractor, EMR of Duluth, located and extracted 25 barrels. The Red Cliff say the active explosives do not pose human health or environmental concerns.

The 25 barrels were recovered between July 30 and Aug. 13 and included either parts from cluster bombs or a composite of incinerated metal. The band said all recovered materials are securely stored, but provided no further details.

The Duluth News Tribune says the $3.3 million project was funded by the U.S. Defense Department.

Parents ask Wis. Supreme Court to hear mascot case

MADISON, Wis. (AP) ~ Two parents asked the Wisconsin Supreme Court on Friday to strike down a law that allows the state schools superintendent to order schools to drop American Indian mascots, arguing the statutes are unconstitutional.

The dispute centers on the Mukwonago Area School District's Indians nickname and logo, which features an Indian man in a headdress. The district has used the nickname and logo for more than 80 years.

In 2010, though, Democratic passed a law in 2010 that gave the state Department of Public Instruction the authority to force schools to drop race-based nicknames and logos if someone complains about them and the agency determines they're discriminatory. Months after the law passed an area resident filed a complaint about Mukwonago's nickname and logo. DPI officials ultimately ordered the district to drop them.

James R. Schoolcraft, and Craig Vertz sued to preserve the nickname and mascot.

They maintain that the law that allowed DPI to force schools to drop the nicknames violated the U.S. Constitution's equal protection and due process guarantees. They say the law places a complainant in a better position than district taxpayers who must bear the cost of changing nicknames, and spares some districts with Indian mascots that no one complains about.

Waukesha County Circuit Judge Donald Hassin Jr. ruled in Schoolcraft and Vertz's favor and preserved the nickname and mascot. But the 2nd District Court of Appeals last month reversed that ruling, concluding the men had no legal standing to sue because they weren't a party to the original proceedings between DPI and the school district. The appellate court also found the men should have sought judicial review of the DPI's order before they sued.

The men's attorney, Samuel Hall, argued in filings with the Supreme Court the men have grounds to sue because they'll sustain a loss if the district has to change its nickname and logo.

"No rational basis exists to explain the State's distinction between districts and taxpayers who are subjected to DPI scrutiny like Mukwonago and other districts and their taxpayers who utilize the same exact nickname and similar logos, yet face no such scrutiny," Hall wrote.

DPI spokesman Patrick Gasper referred questions to the state Justice Department, which is representing the agency in the case. A department spokeswoman declined comment.

It's unclear when the Supreme Court might announce whether it has accepted the case. The justices don't face any deadlines. If the court doesn't take the case, Mukwonago will have to change its nickname and logo by February 2014.

Mukwonago isn't the only district the DPI has ordered to change its nickname and mascot in the wake of complaints. The agency also has ordered Osseo-Fairchild to drop its Chieftains nickname and Berlin High School to ditch its Indians moniker. Parents there also have challenged the order in court.

Claims Must Be Filed By March 1, 2013
In $3.4 Billion Indian Trust Settlement

What is This About?

The Cobell v. Salazar Settlement is approved. The Settlement resolves a class action lawsuit that claims that the federal government violated its duties by mismanaging trust accounts and individual Indian trust lands. Payments to the Historical Accounting Class are underway. The process of considering claims for the Trust Administration Class is ongoing.

The final deadline if you need to file a claim form for the Trust Administration Class is March 1, 2013.

Am I Included?

The Trust Administration Class includes:

- Anyone alive on September 30, 2009, who:
  - Had an IIM account recorded in currently available electronic data in federal government systems anytime from approximately 1985 to September 30, 2009, or
  - Can demonstrate ownership in trust land or land in restricted status as of September 30, 2009.
- The estate (or heirs) of any deceased landowner or IIM account holder whose account was open or whose trust assets had been in probate according to the federal government's records as of September 30, 2009.

Do I Need to File a Claim Form?

You must file a claim form if you believe you are a member of the Trust Administration Class and you have not:

- Received IIM account statements at your current address anytime between January 1, 1985 and September 30, 2009 and continue to receive statements; or
- Received a payment as a member of the Historical Accounting Class. If you did, you will receive a second payment automatically as a member of the Trust Administration Class; or
- Filed a claim form already using your current address. If you have, the Claims Administrator will contact you.

You must fill out a claim form and mail it to Indian Trust Settlement, P.O. Box 9577, Dublin, OH 43017-4877, postmarked by March 1, 2013 in order to receive a payment.

How Much Money Can I Get?

Members of the Trust Administration Class will likely receive at least $800 or more. The actual amount will depend on the number of claims and the costs of administration.

Vice-Chairman's Corner...

Oneida Membership,

The Oneida dollar making sense!?!?

It's unfortunate that we all have to live such a busy and sometimes frustrating life that seems to be driven by chasing the dollar. I have heard so many complaints in the last 18 months and they almost always have a trail that leads back to money, the lack of, the abuse of, or sometimes too much of it. I have yet to hear someone say everyone has too much money, it is usually "they, him, her," or something to that effect. The reality is WE have a lot of money. The Oneida Tribe has a lot of money. We are the Oneida Tribe. Therefore WE have a lot of money if we can simply understand that as a whole and focus on what WE can do together to best use the money to serve the needs of ALL ONEIDAs we'll further our goals and responsibilities.

Time to step up

It's time to step up…all of us. Step up and get to know what is going on with your money. Your money is doing tremendous things! Like better health care, education, public safety, farming, food, language, culture, land, homes, etc. And not such tremendous things like well, we all have our list. The point is we are doing a lot of STUFF, but we could do so much more positive stuff if the entire membership steps up. That means all of you that come to the GTC meetings and get paid to participate. And those who stay away for varied reasons - are you paying attention? Are you there to make a difference? Are you going home and changing some of the negative things in your lives that create some of these burdens we all face? I want to make sure that I acknowledge those that DO step up on behalf of the entire Tribal membership at those meetings and that list is long. Thank You. I ask you to tell those that you know that haven't stepped yet that it is TIME, it is time for them to put away the cell phones, the iPods, the iPads, and any other distractions they have during the meetings and pay attention and tribal action. It's time and it's your money! It's your futures! Ask them to read this article and blame me. That's OK, but tell them…it's time.

The Budget Process and you

Speaking of time, it's time for the budget process to begin for the coming year. This Business Committee was given a directive from the GTC that requires us to establish and use the priorities established by the membership to create the budget. Reference my last article of January 10, 2013 for the present tribal priority details. I believe many times the past practice has been for the priorities to be funded based on the budget available. Thus the budget pushed the priorities. So people, it's time to get involved. The BC needs everyone's help to develop a budget that will best serve the Oneida People and have the priorities push the budget. Some of this will require the membership to participate in meetings both paid and unpaid, and that should be acceptable because it is your future and money that will be affected. It will require us to leave the past at the door so we can move forward, it will require us to focus on the Oneida Agenda and not the "industry standards" of a corporation and it will require us to answer some real tough questions about our responsibilities as Oneida members as well as being Oneida employees in some cases. There are efforts underway right now to set up Saturday meetings throughout the year that will have some food and drink. I think this will help provided additional forums for membership involvement /input and positive exchanges. Look for the dates in this issue as well as upcoming Kalihwisaks issues.

Vice Chairman's Report

By Greg Matson
Vice-Chairman
gmatson@oneidanation.org

Purpose of Government

The purpose of government has been debated for some time. I see the following as elements of that discussion and perhaps debate. It is time to clearly understand what the responsibilities of government and the membership are in relationship to each other.

Identity: Each nation is unique in its own way. Each nation has its own traditions and culture. They say for a nation to exist, it must have an identity with culture. For instance, no flags of nations are alike just as their language and songs. So, one of the most important functions of a government is to protect and uphold the identity of its nation.

Security: Whether it is land, water, food, clothing, shelter or any essentials for life, a Government needs to provide these through opportunity and or program structures.

Representation: A government represents the interests of the nation. To protect and safeguard the interests of the nation, the government enters into agreements, negotiations, treaties, and so on, with the governments of other nations.

Infrastructure: One of the main purposes of the government is to provide good infrastructure to all its lands in the form of roads, bridges, drinking water, electricity, and other resource networks.

Education: A Government needs to provide opportunity or a programing structure in education that assures equal opportunity for those they govern to be self-sufficient or competitive in their capacity to earn a living thru appropriate employment.

Social: The introduction of social welfare programs to protect and fulfill the needs of the people, such as providing education and healthcare facilities to the underserved classes of the economy, is one of the primary purposes of the government.

There is a tribal good government index and other measurements of what a good government should do to serve and protect the people, the environment and the community. These references will be shared during the budgeting process to adequately fund the priorities of the Oneida Peoples.

Commencement

The people have the power to address the various issues before us by defining the priorities for a solid foundation, for our community, membership and government. These priorities adequately funded and supported will provide the strength to protect and serve the membership by having strong government functioning in all capacities.

Our potential for tribal engagement for a better Oneida and thus a better community is limited by only our ability to imagine new possibilities and new realities. "There is no reason for us to fear or exaggerate the obstacles before us or the success possible when we rediscover our power and responsibilities to each other" – Ralph Nader.

OBC Forum...

Shekoli,

Clifford E. Webster Recreation Center

In mid-January I had the privilege of hosting the renaming ceremony for the old County H Recreation to the Clifford E. Webster, Sr. Recreation Center. This event was well attended and many of Clifford's family members were in attendance. The ceremony was brief, but was well deserved as Clifford has been very instrumental in being in the formative years of many of our youth.

Presidential Inauguration

On the weekend of January 20th I had the opportunity to attend President Obama's Inauguration in Washington, DC. This was the culmination of many months of campaigning and getting out the vote. During the summer I attended the Democratic Convention and found it to be a very enlightening experience and then attending the inauguration was a once in a lifetime opportunity for me.

David Jordan
Councilman

I know there has been some discussion in the community on those attending this event and some of the underlying expenses. I want the community to be aware that in September 2012 the budget was presented to the GTC and was passed. In this budget my office was allowed a travel expense of $10,000.00 for Fiscal Year 2013. As the Inauguration was considered a "special event" for the DC area, hotel rates were at a premium. I weighed these additional expenses and opted to stay in a hotel outside the DC area, although still at a premium rate. My total expenses for this trip including airfare, was $2,241.36, which is considerably less than originally anticipated.

I do feel that attendance at events like this are necessary for the continued support of our government here in Oneida, as contacts are made and networking possibilities abound so that we reap the benefits of grant dollars and continued funding for our youth and elders alike.

Again I want to thank you, the general membership, for taking the time to read these articles and as always I am available to meet with you, should you so desire. I can be reached at 920-869-4482 or you can e-mail me at djordan1@oneidanation.org.

Senate tries again to move anti-violence bill

By Jim Abrams
Associated Press

WASHINGTON ~ Senate Democrats, bolstered by Republican support, on Monday launched a new attempt to broaden a law protecting women from domestic abuse by expanding its provisions to cover gays, lesbians and Native Americans.

The legislation to renew the Violence Against Women Act appeared on a smooth path toward passage in the Senate, possibly by the end of this week. Monday's vote to make the bill the next order of business was 85-8.

Senate passage would send the bill to the House. Advocates hope that Republicans, smarting from election losses among women voters in November, won't repeat their resistance last year to the Senate approach.

"Allowing partisan delays to put women's lives at risk is simply shameful," Senate Majority Leader Harry Reid, D-Nev., said before the vote. He said he hoped convincing support for the legislation in the Senate would "send a strong message to House Republican leaders that further partisan delay is unacceptable."

House Republicans, including Majority Leader Eric Cantor of Virginia, say reauthorizing the 1994 act, which expired in 2011, is a priority. But resolving partisan differences remains an obstacle: last year both the House and Senate passed bills but the House would not go along with Senate provisions that single out gays, lesbians, bisexuals and transgenders for protection and give tribal authorities more power to prosecute non-Indians who attack Indian partners on tribal lands.

Kim Gandy, president of the National Network to End Domestic Violence, said that after last year's election both parties are eager to demonstrate that they are behind a pro-woman agenda. She said her group, which supports the Senate bill, had received "very positive responses" from the offices of both Cantor and Rep. Cathy McMorris Rodgers, the top-ranked Republican woman.

The Senate bill, while making minor concessions to meet GOP concerns, is essentially the same as the measure that passed that chamber last April on a 68-31 vote, with 15 Republicans voting yes. It focuses on ensuring that college students, immigrants, Native Americans and gays, lesbians, bisexuals and transgender people have access to anti-abuse programs.

Senate Judiciary Committee Chairman Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., said that since the Violence Against Women Act, or VAWA, was enacted in 1994 the

We have reached the halfway mark of the 2011-14 Oneida Business Committee term, and of course that means that the legislative term is nearly halfway over, too! This Legislative Operating Committee Update provides a brief overview of the legislative items that are currently being processed by the LOC.

Although the LOC performs several different functions, this committee's main responsibility is to process legislative proposals (i.e. requests and directives to create, amend or repeal Tribal laws and policies).

However, the LOC does not actually adopt, amend or repeal Tribal legislation—the GTC and Oneida Business Committee (OBC) are the only Tribal bodies with the authority to do so.

The LOC's role is more specialized—creating the final, written draft legislation that is then presented to the OBC or GTC for consideration.

By the time the LOC presents final draft legislation to the OBC or GTC, it has been reviewed and analyzed; appropriate parties have been consulted; the public has had one or more opportunities to comment on the proposal; and any public comments have been considered. This is all part of the legislative processing conducted by the LOC.

At the January 7, 2013 GTC meeting, the General Tribal Council approved three items, and the LOC is working to finalize these items for implementation:

- A new Judiciary Law, which replaces the Appeals Commission with an expanded Tribal Judiciary.
- New Judicial Canons, which expand upon the current ethical requirements in place for elected judges.
- A Legislative Procedures Act to carve out and expand upon several provisions currently found in the Tribe's Administrative Procedures Act.

The following items are also currently in some stage of the legislative process, but no formal action has been taken by either the GTC or OBC at this time. For each of these items, the LOC is working to place final draft legislation before the OBC or GTC for consideration.

Governance

- Amendments to the Election Law to address the Tribal referendum process and to include procedures for a recount process.
- A new Budget Management and Control Law, to manage the Tribal budgeting process.

Legislative Process

- A new Rulemaking Law to provide a more uniform process for the adoption of administrative rules.

Judicial System

- New legislation to address the transfer of cases between the state and Tribal court systems.

GTC & Membership

- A new GTC Meetings Law to govern the scheduling and operation of GTC meetings.
- Amendments to the GTC Meeting Stipend Payment Policy to limit attendance to those 21 and older until larger facilities are identified, and to prohibit stipends for those who leave the area of the meeting and related bathroom facilities.
- Amendments to the Membership Ordinance to allow New York Oneida and Thames Oneida blood quantum to count toward the minimum blood quantum membership requirements.
- General amendments to the Pardon and Forgiveness law to update the process.

Quick Stats For the 2011-14 Term to Date
Current items on the Active Files List:	54
Total Items Completed This Term:	33
Number of LOC Meetings Held:	23
Number of Public Hearings Held:	14
New Laws/Policies Adopted This Term:	6
Amendments to Laws/ Policies That Have Been Adopted this Term:	10

Housing & Community

- New Housing Legislation to comprehensively overhaul Tribal housing services.
- Amendments to the Community Support Fund Policy to provide clarity and consistency in how the fund is administered.
- The Oneida Housing Authority Relocation Policy and the Real Property Acquisitions Policies and Procedures are being reviewed by the LOC to determine whether changes are necessary.

Land & Resource Management

- A new Public Use of Land and Trespassing Law to prevent improper access, use, and trespass to Tribal lands and private property; and to protect the environment and natural resources.
- Hunting, Fishing and Trapping Law amendments to update the Law for upcoming seasons.

Economic Development

- HUD Compliance Amendments to ensure the Indian Preference Law is compliant with federal funding requirements.
- General amendments to the Indian Preference Law to comprehensively revise and update the law, which has not been amended since 2003.
- Amendments to the Independent Contractor Policy to address the Tribe utilizing Tribal employees as independent contractors in addition to their regular job duties.
- Amendments to the Small Business Project 2000 policy to increase the required owner's contribution rate and to revise the maximum loan amount.
- Amendments to the Room Tax Law to allow the OBC to revise the room tax rate as necessary.

Family Laws

- A new Children's Code to govern Indian Child Welfare matters.
- A new Guardianship Law to regulate 3rd-party guardianships

Law and Order

- The LOC is processing a request for Peace and Homeland Security Codes to establish a framework of civil, traffic, conservation and Homeland Security codes.
- Amendments to the Emergency Management and Homeland Security Law and the Law Enforcement Ordinance to clarify the interaction between the Emergency Management and Police Departments.

Tribal Workplace & Employment

- Amendments to the Early Return to Work Policy to ensure consistency in situations where an employee has reached the 180 day limit for modified work duty.
- Amendments to the Code of Ethics to strengthen and streamline the current requirements for officials and employees.
- Amendments to the Employee Protection Policy, or a new Whistleblower Law, to ensure adequate protections are in place to protect employees who report wrongdoing.
- Amendments to the Drug & Alcohol Free Workplace Policy to update the current requirements.
- Combining the Vehicle Driver Certification and Fleet Management Policies into a single policy with updated provisions.
- A comprehensive review and update of the Personnel Policies and Procedures (Blue Book) including specific changes for Area Manager Appeals and Career Development.
- A new Employee Advocacy Policy to address situations where an one employee acts as an advocate for another employee facing disciplinary action.
- New HRD Reorganization legislation is being developed to establish an independent Human Resources Department.

Other

The LOC is also working on (or has completed) various other projects, including:

- Conducting research and providing comprehensive reviews, reports and analyses on other potential legislative issues—for example, referendum questions and petitions.
- Processing changes to the bylaws for Tribal boards, committees and commissions, before those changes can be approved by the OBC.
- Drafting Resolutions.
- Hosting community meetings and other public forums to gather feedback from the membership on relevant issues.
- Performing any other legislative-related functions for the OBC and GTC that may be necessary.

LOC meetings are open to the public. During work sessions, the meetings are generally held on the first and third Wednesdays of each month at 9:00 a.m. in the OBC Conference Room, located on the second floor of the Norbert Hill Center, Oneida WI.

For more information about the LOC or any of the legislative efforts, please visit the Tribal website at https://Oneidansn.gov.

concerns after we denied a petition. There's definitely a process here that needs to be created if we are going to continue on doing this. I understand this is a very complex issue and it needs to be dealt with but the burden should be on the individual to continue this. A lot of questions were answered on Monday, with a lot of the concerns that we've already heard, they were answered on Monday by the General Tribal Council.

Unfinished Business

1. Review emergency operation plans to ensure Tribal offices and schools are prepared to respond to potential threats involving guns
Sponsor: Ed Delgado
Excerpt from Dec. 18, 2012: *Motion by Vince DelaRosa to direct the Emergency Management Director, Marty Antone to spearhead a report about updated security measures of all Tribal properties and report back to the Business Committee at the Jan. 9, 2013 regular meeting, seconded by Brandon Stevens. For the record: Melinda J. Danforth stated the Region 5 Tribal/Operations conference, Feb. 13-15, 2013 in Chicago, is being paid for from our General Assistance Program monies that are paid for by the EPA.
5. National Indian Gaming Association Annual Convention, March 24-27, 2013, Phoenix, AZ
Sponsor: Ed Delgado
Motion by David Jordan to approve the procedural exception to allow the Chairman's executive assistant to travel, seconded by Tina Danforth. Motion carried with three opposed:
Opposed: Patty Hoeft, Paul Ninham, Brandon Stevens
For the record: Paul Ninham stated I don't know who the executive assistant is, for one thing.
For the record: Tina Danforth stated we have approved other staff of the Chairman's, most recently a month ago to attend travel request with the Chairman. Diane House just went on a land claims travel and I believe Linda has accompanied the Chairman in the past to MN and other places, so I don't think this is out of the usual.
For the record: Brandon Stevens stated I believe we have, how many attending from the committee-five from the committee? I think that's well enough to attend a meeting and I don't know who the staff is. I don't think it's relevant but I think we have enough people going. We do need the numbers there. I do believe we need the numbers there, but I think, as far as the Committee's concerned, we have enough.
For the record: David Jordan stated it's always something to consider that if you've been there before maybe you should let someone else go, too.
For the record: Vince DelaRosa stated I support the Chairman in executing on behalf of the Council. I know NIGA is an important organization. We've made it known that it's important. We fund that organization. There's important business activity going on. I haven't had a chance to talk to the Chairman about the staff request. I know that other elected officials on this Council have taken staff elsewhere. So I'm ok with it.

Sponsor: Joanie Buckley
Motion by Patty Hoeft to accept the report, seconded by David Jordan. Motion carried with one abstention:
Abstained: Paul Ninham
2. Review request for proposal (RFP) process for construction and development of new SEOTS facility
Sponsor: Larry Barton
Motion by Vince DelaRosa to approve as a procedural exception to move forward with option two of the CFO's recommendation from his January 7, 2013 memorandum to approve moving forward with selecting Bonnilake Real Estate as the developer for the SEOTS Building in Milwaukee WI. This includes a phased approach which will speak to the full development of the preferred Electric Avenue site. This also includes a requirement that the developer work directly with the CFO, Larry Barton to accomplish the stated goals for the site and the project, seconded by Tina Danforth. Motion carried with one abstention and two opposed:
Opposed: Paul Ninham, Brandon Stevens
Abstained: Melinda J. Danforth
For the record: Tina Danforth stated I am approving this because it's been two years and our designated staff have not been to, in collaboration with other people who are responsible for getting this project off the ground. The other reason I support it is because funding has been made available for three years. Two year window in which the funding been available, one year window in which the notice has been given that this project would be funded and it's been many years, I don't know 10 years plus, since SEOTS has been waiting for a permanent home. The fourth reason I approve is because of the cost that we continue to incur to lease property that is not sufficient.
For the record: Paul Ninham stated I had opposed, but I know that something does need to occur. I was in favor of option A in the CFO's recommendations to the Business Committee.
For the record: Brandon Stevens stated I was as well as more amenable to option A, but this doesn't address the problem that we had for the three years, that we weren't holding anybody accountable in those three years and this is the fix that we have to do. I'm opposed of the quick fix of doing anything, so I just want to make sure we follow our own processes in the meantime.
For the record: Vince DelaRosa stated I support this for the record first and foremost because Bonnilake's proposal is outstanding. It's articulate; it speaks to the needs of that community. Second, this is not a quick fix; we've been in office over a year and a half. The bond is expiring, option A would do nothing but delay the project even further. More RFP's in a situation where we've sent out 28 RFP's is completely unnecessary and I just think it's time to move forward. GTC has given us directive on this and it's time to get moving on projects around here. We can't allow 3, 4, 5 years to be delaying projects. This one reportedly to some has been I heard 2005. Heard 3 years. Nonetheless building a square building at this size shouldn't take no more than 9-10 months. Completely unnecessary delays and Bonnilake's proposal once again is really outstanding, articulate and they will deliver. So that's my reason for support

Public Hearing Notices

February 14, 2013
Norbert Hill Center (BCCR)
5:00PM
Purpose:
Indian Preference in Contracting Law
The intent of the Indian Preference in Contracting law (the Law) is to replace the current Indian Preference Law. The Law sets out the requirements for hiring certified Indian-owned businesses and skills bank workers to complete Tribal projects. In addition, the Law would:
- Establish the Indian Preference Office in law and make that office responsible for the implementation, monitoring and enforcement of the Law.
- Clarify how a business qualifies as Indian-owned, by expanding on the criteria reviewed before certification is granted.
- Requires compliance agreements be negotiated by the Indian Preference Office to establish the number of Indian workers that must be hired for a project and their benefits and wages.
- Incorporate the provisions of Rider I for Construction Contracts into the Indian Preference Law.
- Remove the License Commission from the process, as that Commission is not being utilized.
- Establishes complaint and investigation processes in the Law.
- Enables the Indian Preference Office to create a fine schedule, with the approval of the OBC.
- Increase the contract minimum from $1,000 to $1,500 for the Law to apply.

Public Hearing Process
Testimony:
Oral: There will be a 5 minute limit for all oral presentations. Each participant is encouraged to provide a written transcript of his/her oral testimony, to be submitted while present at the public hearing or within ten (10) business days from the date of public hearing to the below named individuals.
Written: For those who cannot attend the scheduled public hearing or do not plan to speak at the hearing, the Oneida Tribe encourages those to submit written testimony. A maximum of ten (10) pages, doubled spaced, can be submitted within ten (10) business days from the date of public hearing to the Tribal Secretary (Patricia Hoeft) or Tonya Boucher, Legislative Reference Office at the Norbert Hill Center, 2nd floor or mail to PO Box 365, Oneida WI 54155.

From 1B/Anti-Violence Bill

annual incidence of domestic violence has fallen by more than 50 percent. "We have something here that's been a success. These are thousands of lives made immeasurably better," said Leahy, sponsor of the legislation with Republican Sen. Mike Crapo of Idaho.

Sen. Susan Collins, a Republican supporter from Maine, said helping victims of violence "should never be a partisan issue." She said that in her state nearly half of homicides were linked to occurrences of domestic violence and 13,000 Maine residents would experience some form of sexual violence this year alone.

White House press secretary Jay Carney urged Congress to move rapidly on the legislation. "Three women a day are killed as a result of domestic violence and one in five have been raped in their lifetimes. We should be long past debate on the need for the Violence Against Women Act," he told reporters aboard Air Force One Monday.

During election campaigns last year Democrats seized on the congressional stalemate over VAWA in claiming that Republicans did not represent the best interests of women.

Getting a bill to the president's desk this year could hinge on resolving the issue of tribal authority over domestic abuse cases.

Last year House Republicans objected to the Senate provision increasing tribal authority. Currently, non-Indians who batter their spouses often go unpunished because federal authorities don't have the resources to pursue misdemeanors committed on reservations.

The National Congress of American Indians says violence against Native American women has reached "epidemic proportions," citing findings that 39 percent of American Indian and Alaska native women will be subjected to violence by a partner in their lifetimes. It cited a 2010 government report finding that U.S. attorneys declined to prosecute half of violent crimes occurring in Indian country, and two-thirds of the declined cases involved sexual abuse.

Two House Republicans, Darrell Issa of California and Tom Cole of Oklahoma, last year offered a compromise that would allow non-Indian defendants to request that their cases be moved to federal courts, but the session ended before a deal could be reached. Cole is one of two House members claiming Indian heritage.

The White House, in a statement supporting the Senate bill, noted that rates of domestic violence against Native American women were among the highest in the country and the measure would build on existing efforts to improve the effectiveness and efficiency of tribal justice systems.

The Violence Against Women Act provides grants to state and local offices for legal assistance, transitional housing, law enforcement training, stalker databases and domestic violence hotlines. It also established the Office on Violence Against Women within the Justice Department.

The programs authorized under the act are still in place. But without reauthorization of the law, they cannot be expanded or improved. The Senate bill would consolidate 13 existing programs into four and set aside some $659 million over five years for the programs, down 17 percent from the last reauthorization in 2005. The bill would also give more emphasis to sexual assault prevention and take steps to reduce the rape kit backlog. In a concession to Republicans, it removes a provision in last year's bill that would have increased visas for immigrant victims of domestic violence.

Division of Land Managment

Oneida leading with TAAMS

Trust Asset Accounting Management System (TAAMS) is the new program that is being used by the Bureau of Indian Affairs to manage all of the Trust Assets for various tribes in the United States. Tribes that contract or compact the performance of the trust functions, are being allowed the opportunity to connect and use the TAAMS system. TAAMS provides key reports, document images and data for use in the management of the trust lands, right in our office.

Obtaining access to TAAMS is a great opportunity for the Division of Land Management to promote tribal control and self-determination over tribal trust lands and resources. Protecting and managing Tribal trust assets are a great foundation to strengthen Tribal sovereignty and reinforce government to government relationships.

Currently there are four Division of Land Management employees that have passed the required Federal Government background clearance. These individuals have also completed the required interview, training and testing needed to access the TAAMS system. On November 14, 2012 Michelle Hill, Residential Leasing Specialist made history by encoding the first residential lease into the Bureau of Indian Affairs Trust Asset Accounting Management System (TAAMS). Oneida is one of the first Tribes to encode documents into the TAAMS system. Within the Midwest and Great Plain Regions there are only three tribes that have access to the TAAMS, these tribes are the Fond du lac Band of Chippewa's located in Minnesota, the Ho Chunk Nation and the Oneida Tribe both located in Wisconsin. Two of the three tribes currently can only print reports, the Oneida Tribe has accepted the responsibility of assigning TAAMS numbers and encoding the various leasing documents into the TAAMS Leasing Modules.

With Oneida employees encoding our lease information into the TAAMS system, our intent is to streamline the leasing approval and recording process timelines. Implementation of TAAMS has allowed us access to key information and the ability to view and print various documents and reports in a matter of minutes, in the past we would submit our request to the BIA and wait days or even weeks for a simple informational report or a copy of a document.

A Special Thank You to the following Division of Land Mangement employees: Sandra Wondra, Title Examiner, Michelle Hill, Residential Leasing Specialtist, Sheila Huff, Commercial Leasing Specialtist and Carla Clark, Land Title & Trust Manager for taking on this additional responsibility. Land Management is extremely grateful for your hard work and dedication to this endeavor. It is this level of commitment that catapults Oneida into a Leadership Nation.

ATTENTION • IMPORTANT UPDATE • ATTENTION from Class Counsel:
ALL Individual Trust Land Owners

On December 12, 2012, the Court approved the commencement of payments to Historical Accounting Class Members. Distribution of checks began the week of December 17, 2012 to all living Class Members. Please note that payments to certain groups of Class Members (minors, persons with whereabouts unknown, individuals under legal disability, and adults in need of assistance) have been deposited directly into Class Members' IIM accounts. Funds were wired for these deposits into IIM accounts on December 21, 2012.

Payments to Class Members that are known to be deceased will not be mailed with the initial phase of distribution. The Court has ordered that estate payments be delivered to the personal representative, administrator or executor of the estate, or to the heirs of the deceased beneficiary pursuant to a final probate order. If you have any information regarding the estate of a Class Member that is deceased please provide it to the Claims Administrator by calling 1-800-961-6109.

In addition, based on Interior's records, almost 40,000 Historical Accounting Class Members are shown as "whereabouts unknown." The awards for these Class Members have been deposited in their IIM accounts and they only need to update their contact information to be able to claim their award. Another 10,000 Class Members have no contact information in the records furnished by Interior. If you are a member of the Historical Accounting Class and are not currently receiving statements on your IIM account from the government, then you need to provide contact information to the Claims Administrator by calling 1-800-961-6109 or mail your information to:

Indian Trust Settlement
P.O. Box 9577
Dublin, OH 43017-4877

You can also check to see if you are one of the missing and update your information by going to www.doi.gov/ost and clicking on the "Whereabouts Unknown" tab. You can supply the information online or send your information to:

Office of the Special Trustee (OST)
Attn: Trust Beneficiary Call Center
4400 Masthead St., NE
1- 888 - 678- 6836

Finally, the Court has entered a final deadline for submission of claims for the Trust Administration Class. Any claim forms must be postmarked by March 1, 2013. If you need to fill out a claim form you can access it to the left at the File a Claim/Register to Participate tab. If you have already filled out a claim form and/or need to update your contact information you can do so by accessing the Update Your Contact Information tab also to the left. Again, any claim forms must be postmarked by March 1, 2013.

OTIE Oneida Total Integrated Enterprises

OTIE and Federal Government Contracts

By Leslie Wheelock
OTIE Board of Managers

OTIE is an environmental engineering, science and construction management company that competitively bids for and wins federal government contracts in three categories. First, OTIE competes in the full and open market against other large businesses with its employee capabilities, and second, as a company with less than 500 employees under NAICS code environmental remediation which qualifies OTIE to compete with other small businesses. Third, OTIE competes as an 8(a) company because OTIE is an SBA-certified, tribally-owned 8(a) company.

As a federal contractor, OTIE is required to be reviewed, managed and audited by the Defense Contract Audit Agency (DCAA) to assure that OTIE's accounting and financial systems are in compliance with all of the procedures and requirements of the Federal Acquisition Regulations (FAR) and Code of Federal Regulations (CFR). OTIE's overhead rates and G&A rate are determined as a result of DCAA's audit.

OTIE annually has a third party accounting organization audit its accounting, financial records and systems to assure it is in compliance with Generally Accepted Accounting Principles (GAAP); this third party auditing report is used by DCAA to conduct their audit. OTIE's contracting procedures are administered and reviewed by the Defense Contract Management Agency (DCMA).

OTIE's contracting procedures must comply with FAR and CFR in order for OTIE to perform work for government agencies. OTIE prepares its financial reports based on the audited procedures mentioned above and submits the report to the Oneida Business Committee quarterly for the Business Committee members to review.

OTIE has the opportunity to sell its services to the federal government under special terms that recognize tribal ownership. When OTIE announces that it has won a government contract, it means that the dollar amount represents the value of the contract spread out over a certain period of time, usually 3-5 years and in some contracts up to 10 years.

The federal contract compensates the employees who work on a project, pays for all overhead costs and expenses related to the project work, including any subcontractors that may also do work on a project. After all expenses are paid, the net profit from a contract averages approximately 4-6 percent from the multi-year contract.

Additionally, the federal contracting cycle is very different from most business cycles. Every year, the federal government has a pot of money to spend, and the final three months of every fiscal year (ending in September) are the busiest times for OTIE as the company strives to win contracts and the federal government seeks to make awards before the end of its fiscal year.

In terms of business operations for a company like OTIE, it helps to understand the federal government contracting environment in which OTIE operates. Federal government contracting is regulated by laws, rules and regulations that apply to all federal projects.

Winning contracts with the federal government is not easy and depends primarily on three things: Reputation, Ability and Price. OTIE has achieved a reputation for providing very high level scientific and engineering services that meet government requirements at a good price. OTIE strives to maintain good working relationships with its government customers and the decision makers who select the companies to do government work.

OTIE's reputation for outstanding work is one of the factors that help the company win federal contracts. It is necessary for OTIE to maintain the quality of its workforce at the highest level possible, and the company works diligently to bring its professionals up through the company ranks to support the work and maintain the company's reputation with the government.

In its industry, the reputation of OTIE is based on the performance of its employees and maintaining that performance is central to the continued success of OTIE. The loss of an employee who is key to completing a government contract could lead to unacceptable performance by OTIE and potentially damage its reputation for future government contracts.

OTIE employees' technical skills, proven competence and reputation are recognized by OTIE's federal government customers. OTIE employees are the company's most valuable assets and most are sought after by OTIE competitors.

Like all companies, OTIE must prove to its customers that it is financially sound. Companies like OTIE rely on a line of credit and bonding to prove to potential government customers that they have enough financial support to operate and complete a project. Because it is difficult for most tribally-owned companies to obtain a line of credit, they generally rely on bonding which is usually backed by the tribe as owner.

To win large government contracts, OTIE is required to provide performance or payment bonds. Performance bonds represent a promise to the government that once the contract is awarded, OTIE will perform its obligations under the contract. Payment bonds represent a promise by OTIE to its suppliers that OTIE will pay all persons supplying labor or materials in the work provided by subcontractors on a contract.

Currently, OTIE's bonding capacity is guaranteed jointly by the Oneida Trust Committee and OTIE company assets. This bonding capacity is minimal in comparison to the capacity of OTIE's competitors and limits the types and sizes of projects that OTIE is able to pursue. As a result, OTIE must maintain a certain level of cash reserves to back project bonding requirements and satisfy the federal government.

As a company that performs environmental engineering and science work for the federal government through the federal contracts, OTIE does not fit the pattern of a tribal casino or commercial bank or any other commercial enterprise operated by the Oneida Tribe. However, OTIE does fit the business model for a company that does business with the federal government.

Along with diversifying the Tribe's revenue streams, OTIE provides employment alternatives to the jobs of the Tribe's other business enterprises. In particular, the high-level scientific and engineering positions in OTIE should attract Oneida youth who are studying the area of STEM (Science, Technology, Engineering and Math). OTIE encourages Oneida youth to apply for the OTIE Scholarship that is located on the Oneida Higher Education website. With a goal to continue its strategic growth and provide more opportunities on and near the Oneida reservation for Oneida youth for generations to come, OTIE is in a position to reinforce and support the education of Oneida youth.

Please contact OTIE Board Chairman Wilbert "Butch" Rentmeester at 920-664-5598 with any questions regarding this article.

Leslie Wheelock is an enrolled Oneida member and licensed attorney who serves on the OTIE Board of Managers, and has previously worked with one of the largest tribally-owned 8(a) companies and the federal contracting process.

LANDLORD/TENANT LAWS

Economic Support Services (formerly known as Center for Self-Sufficiency) will host a presentation by the Tenant Resource Center located in Madison, to provide education to community members who are currently renting an apartment/home or those who may be planning to enter into a rental agreement in the future. What your lease says, when something happens, where you live and the details of the situation will all impact what rights you have. Did you know …

… that landlords can declare your property "abandoned" at the end of your lease, or if they think you have left? (They can sell your property and make a profit off of it!)

… that if you move out early, the landlord doesn't have to return your security deposit until 21 days after the end of the lease?

… that a landlord can terminate your tenancy if a crime is committed in or on the rental property, even if the tenant couldn't have reasonably prevented the crime?

Come learn the answers and obtain more information about the following:

Eviction Law in Wisconsin* Carpet Cleaning/Damages*
Tenant/Landlord Law changes* Return of Security Deposits*
Legal Methods of Removal* Sheriff's Sale*
Landlord Duty to Disclose Foreclosure*
Explaining 5-day, 14-day, and 30 day notices*

Space is limited, so please call 490-3939 to reserve a spot.

Wednesday, March 6 from 10:00am – 2:00pm
Oneida Tribe Social Services – Green Room
(2640 West Point Rd, Green Bay)
(Lite lunch will be provided)

If you are unable to attend the presentation but still have questions or need information before signing a lease, you can call the Tenant Resource Center directly at 1-877-238-RENT, or by email at asktrc@tenantresourcecenter.org

Youth Event Explores Music

By Mark W. Powless

A Tribe Called Red? Elvis Presley? Social Dance Songs? The Sugar Hill Gang? Music appeals to many different tastes and is used in many different ways within our society. In addition, music can provide career opportunities to those with the passion.

On Wednesday, January 30, Southeastern Oneida Tribal services sponsored a youth event that explored the role of music in Oneida culture, and offered a presentation on DJ equipment, terminology and techniques. As an incentive to attract youth, all participants were included in a drawing for Beats by Dr. Dre headphones.

The cultural component was a video presentation starring Cultural Advisor, Randy Cornelius. Mr. Cornelius talked about the use of songs (Feather Dance Songs, Drum Dance Songs, Women's Dance Songs, and Corn/Beans/Squash Dance Songs) in ceremonies, the use of songs in healing (Medicine Societies), and the use of songs for entertainment (Social Dance Songs). He also included a quick presentation on the instruments used within Oneida culture, such as Squash Rattles, Water Drums, Cow Horn Rattles, and Hickory Bark Rattles.

Following the cultural presentation, DJ Alex 'Kidd Mixx' Sanchez, a Milwaukee DJ for the past 25 years, shared information about his career as a DJ, including equipment, terminology, techniques, and the latest technology. In addition, Mr. Sanchez conveyed the importance of keeping a clean and positive image at all times, especially in social media. Participants were also given an opportunity to blend and scratch.

Concluding the evening, Jake C won the coveted Grape colored Beats by Dr. Dre headphones that were raffled off to the participants. Congratulations Jake!

'Twilight' Casting Director to lead acting workshop at 2013 Green Bay Film Festival

Submit headshots and resumes by Feb. 15 for opportunity to audition

GREEN BAY, Wis. ~ The 3rd Annual Green Bay Film Festival – which kicks off Friday, March 1 – will host a free "Business of Acting" workshop in conjunction with the University of Wisconsin-Green Bay and SAGAFTRA National Native Americans Committee 1-4 p.m. Sunday, March 3, at the Radisson Hotel & Convention Center, 2040 Airport Drive.

The workshop features several industry professionals, including Rene Haynes, CSA, the Emmy Awardnominated casting director for "The Twilight Saga: Eclipse," "The Twilight Saga: New Moon," and the TNT mini-series "Into the West." Actress Delanna Studi ("Edge of America") and actor Brian Westcott ("Christmas in the Clouds") will also participate in the workshop.

The workshop will offer participants insight into headshots, resumes, reels, representation, audition tapes, social media resource, camera technique and an overview of the acting industry.

A select group from the audience will also have a chance to practice auditioning techniques, with feedback from the workshop leaders and casting director Rene Haynes. These auditions will be projected live on a big screen to showcase camera technique for actors.

A repeat session of the workshop will be held for UW-GB students Monday, March 4.

RSVPs are required to attend the workshop. To RSVP, email SAGAFTRAWORKSHOP@gbfilmfestival.org with the subject line "SAG-AFTRA Workshop RSVP."

To participate in the audition portion of the workshop, submit digital headshots and resumes to SAGAFTRAWORKSHOP@gbfilmfestival.org by 5 p.m. Central time Friday, Feb. 15. If selected to audition, participants will be notified in advance and will receive sides to practice. SAG-AFTRA membership is not required.

For more information or ADA accommodations, please contact: SAG-AFTRA EEO & Diversity at diversity@sagaftra.org or (323) 549-6644.

About SAG-AFTRA

SAG-AFTRA represents more than 165,000 actors, announcers, broadcast journalists, dancers, DJs, news writers, news editors, program hosts, puppeteers, recording artists, singers, stunt performers, voiceover artists and other media professionals. SAG-AFTRA members are the faces and voices that entertain and inform America and the world.

With national offices in Los Angeles and New York and local offices nationwide, SAG-AFTRA members work together to secure the strongest protections for media artists into the 21st century and beyond.

About the 2013 Green Bay Film Festival

The 3rd Annual Green Bay Film Festival will showcase 100 films from around the world and include work by local, talented filmmakers. The full programming schedule is available at www.gbfilmfestival.org.

The mission of the Green Bay Film Festival is to provide a rich cultural experience and educational opportunities for our community and visitors while promoting Green Bay as a hub for filmmaking and film appreciation.

Tsyunhehkwa receives $34,861 Grant for Indigenous Food Systems Project

Oneida, WI – The community based agricultural program of the Oneida Tribe of Wisconsin, Tsyunhehkwa recently received a $34,861 grant from the First Nations Development Institute of Longmont, Colorado. The award will support the efforts of the Tsyunhehkwa Program and our Indigenous Food Systems Project.

Through this project we are pursuing equipment and knowledge that will improve our work in Food Security and Food Sovereignty. We work toward securing one of our traditional staples for the Oneida Tribe, our Heirloom White Corn. Our pursuit includes a Corn Picker for our current six acres and allows for increased acreage to address the increasing demand for our products. Another equipment pursuit will be a Corn Shelling Machine, to increase the process of obtaining the raw product in an efficient manner. To aid us in the increased production and securing the storage for the White Corn, we pursue a dedicated building for proper storage techniques. We network with another tribal member from Canada who grows white corn and has many of these modernized steps in place. Our research will include his operation and how to adapt it to our certified organic site. A key part of the proper storage includes a large enough freezer space to cover our current harvest and future increases. All of these areas include a review to verify space and technological needs for such equipment.

We will enhance traditional food security by research and implementation of modernizing our harvesting, drying and storage techniques. These steps will ensure the white corn is processed in a timely and safe manner, while preventing crop loss due to animals, mold, pests and insects. We continuously evaluate our process to care for White Corn from seed to table and back again. Our work ensures traditional practices and cultural values of this responsibility are not lost or forgotten. Tsyunhehkwa is the main provider of White Corn in our community. Our research and development will not only help to maintain this responsibility, but will also ensure the safety of our foods. We provide hands-on education to our tribal and community members about farming, food preservation and traditional food practices. The travel funding provides site reviews of other traditional food growers, including bringing some of them to our program. We continue to connect and network with the other tribes in the State of Wisconsin, and all of our services and products are open to the public.

We are excited to be able to continue and provide the services, products and knowledge from our program and its people. With this continued support of the First Nations Development Institute, Oneida Tribe of WI and our community members we can improve our Community's food security" said Jeff Metoxen, Director of Tsyunhehkwa.

Wis. DNR names new tribal liaison

MADISON, Wis. (AP) ~ The state Department of Natural Resources has created a new American Indian tribal liaison position.

Michele Allness will be responsible for coordinating tribal contacts and building relationships with Wisconsin's tribes. Allness has worked for the state Department of Tourism since 2008, most recently as that agency's tribal liaison.

The DNR has been clashing with the state's Chippewa tribes over a number of high-profile issues, including plans for an iron mine near the Bad River Band of Lake Superior Chippewa's reservation, the state's new wolf hunt and the tribes' recent attempt to jump-start night deer hunting.

Oneida Finance Committee News

Community Fund request criteria

The Finance Committee is currently accepting Community Fund (CF) requests for FY 2013. CF requests will be reviewed on a monthly basis. Requests received at least one month in advance of actual event should be E-mailed to CF@oneidanation.org. The FY 2013 fiscal year runs from Oct. 1, 2012 to Sept. 30, 2013. Please contact the Finance Administration office for forms or information.

General Donation Requests

Requestors seeking donations from church groups are asked to send a letter specifying nature of request, how funds will be used, and return it to the Finance Committee c/o Finance Administration – NHC, P.O. Box 365, Oneida, WI 54155 or e-mailed to FAO@oneidanation.org

Please note that these are limited allocation funds and each request is limited up to $5,000 per year.

The Treasurer and the Finance Committee have restricted their focus to areas that directly affect Oneida tribal members, therefore for the FY 2013 fiscal year all other donation/sponsorship requests from private groups, charities, and other external organizations will not be reviewed.

If you have any questions related to submission dates and or the information to include you can contact Denise Vigue in the Finance Administration Office at 920.869.4325.

Public school open enrollment application deadline April 30

MADISON ~ Wisconsin's three-month open enrollment application window for the 2013-14 school year opens Feb. 4, allowing parents an opportunity to send their children to any public school district in the state.

Traditionally, children in Wisconsin are assigned to school districts based on the location of their parents' home. The state's open enrollment program, also known as public school choice, began in the 1998-99 school year and has experienced steady growth over the years. The open enrollment application period is the only tuition-free opportunity for most parents to apply for their children to attend a public school in a school district other than the one in which they live.

"Wisconsin's long-running open enrollment program supports parental involvement and shared responsibility for educating children," said State Superintendent Tony Evers. "Parents who are involved in their children's education contribute to the success of their students and the strength of local public schools. Wisconsin's open enrollment program is one way for parents to take an active role in their children's education," he said.

Under the full-time public school open enrollment program, parents must apply during the Feb. 4 to April 30 application period to the school district they wish their children to attend. Online application is encouraged. Application deadlines are firm. Early and late applications are not accepted. Districts will notify parents by June 7 whether their open enrollment applications have been approved or denied.

Under the current open enrollment law, transportation, in most circumstances, is the responsibility of the parent. However, some school districts may provide partial transportation. Parents with questions should call the nonresident school district office to find out if any transportation will be provided. Reimbursement of a portion of transportation costs is available for families whose children are eligible for free or reduced-price school meals based on federal income guidelines.

The Department of Public Instruction provides the following guidance for parents who wish to apply for open enrollment.

- Parents are urged to apply online directly from the open enrollment website http://sms.dpi.wi.gov/sms_psctoc. The online application will be available from midnight Feb. 4 until 4 p.m. on April 30.
- Paper applications can be obtained from the DPI or any public school district. Paper application forms must be received by the nonresident school district no earlier than Feb. 4 and no later than 4:00 p.m. on April 30. A postmark for paper forms will not meet the requirement.
- Parents may submit applications to up to three nonresident school districts for each child during the open enrollment application period.
- Forms must be filled out completely and accurately. Contact the local school district office or the DPI if assistance is needed in completing the application.
- Parents may request enrollment in a specific school or program in the nonresident school district; however, enrollment in the requested school or program is subject to space and other limitations and is not guaranteed.
- Most students who attended a nonresident school district under open enrollment last year are not required to reapply for the 2013-14 school year. However, if the student will be entering middle school, junior high school, or high school in the 2013-14 school year, parents should call the nonresident school district to find out if reapplication will be required.
- Parents may apply for their children to attend 4-year-old kindergarten under open enrollment only if the resident school district also offers a 4-year-old kindergarten program for which the child is eligible.

To assist parents in submitting open enrollment applications, a directory of public school districts is available on the DPI website at http://dpi.wi.gov/directories. More information is available from local school districts or from an open enrollment consultant at DPI, (888) 245-2732 (toll-free), or openenrollment@dpi.wi.gov

available to some low-income consumers

Telephone service is considered a necessity, yet the cost of activating and maintaining the service may be too costly for some consumers. For this reason, the government provides two low-income programs for qualifying customers through the federal Universal Service Fund – Lifeline and Link-up.

These programs provide discounts on initial connection fees and monthly service for qualified telephone subscribers.

The qualifications for these programs vary by state. To find out if you qualify or for more information, please contact Nsight Telservices – Pulaski at 920-865-7000.

Residents of Oconto, Oconto Falls and Abrams can reach Nsight Telservices at 920-826-5215.

USDA Finalizes New Microloan Program

Appleton, January 24, 2013 – Agriculture Secretary Tom Vilsack today announced a new microloan program from the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) designed to help small and family operations, beginning and socially disadvantaged farmers secure loans under $35,000. The new microloan program is aimed at bolstering the progress of producers through their start-up years by providing needed resources and helping to increase equity so that farmers may eventually graduate to commercial credit and expand their operations. The microloan program will also provide a less burdensome, more simplified application process in comparison to traditional farm loans.

The new microloans, said Vilsack, represent how USDA continues to make year-over-year gains in expanding credit opportunities for minority, socially-disadvantaged and young and beginning farmers and ranchers across the United States.

Administered through USDA's Farm Service Agency (FSA) Operating Loan Program, the new microloan program offers credit options and solutions to a variety of producers.

In assessing its programs, FSA evaluated the needs of smaller farm operations and any unintended barriers to obtaining financing. For beginning farmers and ranchers, for instance, the new microloan program offers a simplified loan application process. In addition, for those who want to grow niche crops to sell directly to ethnic markets and farmers markets, the microloan program offers a path to obtain financing. For past FSA Rural Youth Loan recipients, the microloan program provides a bridge to successfully transition to larger-scale operations.

Producers can apply for a maximum of $35,000 to pay for initial start-up expenses such as hoop houses to extend the growing season, essential tools, irrigation, delivery vehicles, and annual expenses such as seed, fertilizer, utilities, land rents, marketing, and distribution expenses. As their financing needs increase, applicants can apply for an operating loan up to the maximum amount of $300,000 or obtain financing from a commercial lender under FSA's Guaranteed Loan Program.

USDA farm loans can be used to purchase land, livestock, equipment, feed, seed, and supplies, or be to construct buildings or make farm improvements. Small farmers often rely on credit cards or personal loans, which carry high interest rates and have less flexible payment schedules, to finance their operations.

Producers interested in applying for a microloan may contact their local Farm Service Agency office.

JaNace has achieved "President's Honor Roll" at North Dakota State College of Science which is an award for athletes would carry a 3.5 GPA or higher. During JaNace's first year of college she made the starting roster of the fast pitch team. The Wildcats, NDSCS fast pitch softball team ended their season one game too soon in hopes of making it to the NJCAA National Division III Tournament. They finished as Region XIII Runner-Up.

Jairica has achieved the "National Science Award", which will place her in the United States Achievement Academy National Yearbook. Jairica was nominated by her chemistry teacher at Sissetion High School for carrying straight A's throughout the year. Jairica is also playing her 2nd year of Varsity basketball for the Sisseton (Lady Redmen). Last year they won State Consolation Championship in Rapid City, South Dakota

Get help with FAFSA

Parents and students can get free help in completing the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA) this February, at 31 locations around the state.

The FAFSA is the form all colleges and universities require of students to be considered for federal and state financial aid.

At College Goal Wisconsin, held either Saturday, February 23, or Sunday, February 24, depending on the venue, a quick overview of what financial aid is precedes computer lab time where applicants actually begin filling out the FAFSA. If they bring the necessary paperwork, they can complete the form that day and submit it. The events all start at 2:00 p.m. East High School in Green Bay and Fox Vally Technical College in Appleton will be hosting workshops on Saturday, February 23 as will Milwaukee Area Technical College.

Also, students planning to enter college in Fall 2013 can enter a drawing for scholarships of $250 to $1,000. At each of the 31 locations, one student will win.

College Goal Wisconsin is staffed by volunteers from postsecondary education, high school counselors, and community members. Vist http://www.college-goalwi.org/ for more information.

A new high school needed in Oneida

By Heather Stevens
Thunderhawk Times

Oneida Nation High School (ONHS) is currently residing in a building that is also shared with the Oneida Business Committee, Oneida Head Start and Day Care, and Oneida Higher Education. Our students are unable to go into certain parts of this building out of respect for the other occupants. Our students are also not given electives such as Home Economics, Mechanical Engineering, or Advanced Placement (A.P.) classes.

Not only are ONHS students sharing a building and not getting the classes they deserve, but are also not given the deserved recognition of a being a successful graduate by some community members. These things do not give our students the motivation or the courage to continue their academics at ONHS, nor to continue them to college.

Some of our community members see our students as lazy, non-working, and uneducated. Getting ONHS their own building will encourage students to attend school because the classes they asked for will be offered, they would have room for those classes, there would be no worries of disturbing other occupants, and there would be more room the occupants of the Norbert Hill Center to expand their offices.

Submitted photo

A look outside of the Norbert Hill Center, where the Oneida Nation High School is currently housed.

With the new building there could be more room for more students to attend ONHS. With more students attending ONHS, it will keep our culture, language, and spiritual attachment alive.

Adding these new classes would also open job opportunities to our community. ONHS needs a new building for our future leaders to develop into the wise, motivated, and productive community members that may be a part of our government one day.

"Voices came out stating that we needed a new high school," said Chad Wilson, project manager for the Oneida Tribe. "We need to do everything we can to make it a reality."

So far, the work being done to continue the plan for a new high school is open, but we do not have any funds for it. The project was requested by our Oneida Nation High School Board members.

Native American Education

By Paul Christjohn
Thunderhawk Times

Native American Boarding schools were schools that Native Americans were sent to in order to assimilate the natives into the white society. It targeted Native Americans, making them cut their hair short and telling them to not to speak their own language.

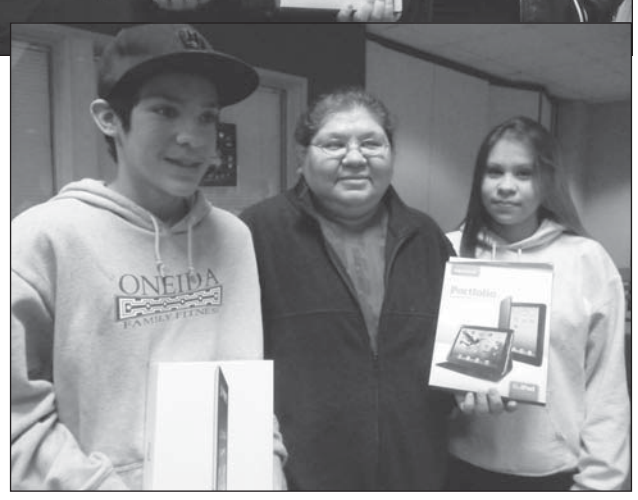
Trying to assimilate Native Americans by using boarding schools happened all over the United States from 1880-1902. The government wanted to get rid of the natives, and the way they started to do that was to trick the natives into giving them as much land as they could get and separate the natives on reservations.

According to Derrick Hunt from the Indian Country Today Magazine, they still had to deal with the BIA (Bureau of Indian Affairs) for funding and grant requests.

"The boarding schools were crowded beyond their capacity," said Derrick.

Our current high school is on the same grounds where a Native American boarding school was located as well. Maybe we should think about moving forward and learning about our heritage, culture, and language in a new building on a new site rather than on the same land that was home to so much Native American persecution, discrimination, and oppression.

Free iPads given out at school functions



By Heather Stevens
Thunderhawk Times

Oneida Nation Schools held parent teacher conferences on November 22nd. This year's conferences were busier than usual for ONHS staff members because more families participated in conferences than ever before. What was so different this year? There was a special prize offered – a new iPad!

"Who wouldn't want the chance to win the new iPad4?" said Craig Stevens, the lucky winner of the iPad raffled off at parent teacher conferences.

"I was very surprised and honored to win this amazing piece of technology. I had never won something like this before. I didn't even know that there was going to be a prize. I had attended conferences before, but there weren't any raffles. This was great," said Stevens.

Attending conferences wasn't the only way to win this awesome prize. On December 6th, the Oneida schools held The Sobriety Committed ThunderHawk's meeting. This event was to keep our Oneida students drug, tobacco, and alcohol free. Attendance was needed to win another iPad.

Georgia Foolbull the mother of two students that attend both the elementary and high school, won the iPad raffled off at the Sobriety Committed ThunderHawk rally. The next chance to win an iPad is on February 20 at the Parent Fitness Night at ONHS. We hope to see you there!

ONHS Student Athletes Playing in All-Star Games

By Diego Metoxen
Thunderhawk Times

This summer there will be four ONHS student athletes that will have a great opportunity to play in an All-Star game. The athletes that will be attending are Brandon Doxtator, Devonte Pointer, Michael Mills, and Diego Metoxen. All four of them are seniors that will be graduating with the Class of 2013 on June 6th, 2013.

Michael Mills said, "It's going to be a great experience for me and my teammates to compete against other all-stars, and it's a great opportunity to represent my nation."

This game is being held at Rice Lake High School on June 28th, 2013. The players will begin practicing on June 25th to get ready for the All-Star game. The four student athletes from ONHS were nominated to be on the team from their head coach, Bryan Peterson. The coaches then watched some film on the players which helped them decide which athletes should be selected for the team.

"Having this opportunity will make families proud of our students' great accomplishments on and off the field. This isn't only going to make our families proud, it's going to make our friends, school, and most importantly our community excited and proud that we can represent Oneida's hard work, dedication, and excellence."

Review: Gangster Squad

By Táwet White
Thunderhawk Times

Sean Penn, Josh Brolin, Ryan Gosling, Emma Stone, and Nick Nolte star in Gangster Squad, a movie set in 1949, Los Angeles. Sean Penn plays gangster Mickey Cohen who controls organized crime in Los Angeles. Mickey Cohen is one of the most powerful gangsters at the time and he isn't content with just the city of Los Angeles, he wants more.

A group of police officers is hired by Chief Parker (Nick Nolte) to destroy Mickey Cohen's work. The police officers (Josh Brolin and Ryan Gosling) recruit a group of skilled people to help them take down Mickey Cohen's reign over Los Angeles.

As the plot thickens, Sgt. Jerry Wooters (Ryan Gosling) is distracted by Mickey Cohen's girl and pursues a relationship with her, putting him and the squad in extreme danger if he were ever caught. The main protagonist, John O'Mara (Josh Brolin), has a pregnant wife who is expecting to give birth soon.

Although everyone has something to lose, they believe stopping Mickey Cohen is a necessity otherwise he will become too powerful to stop. This movie was well directed and quite artistic. This is a must-see for lovers of crime movies, although it can also be admired by those who are not fans of the genre. If I were to rate this film, I would give it 4 out of 5.

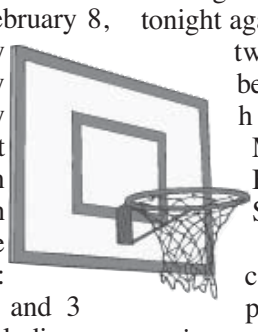
Basketball Teams' Play at Bradley Center

By Diego Metoxen
Thunderhawk Times

The ONHS basketball teams were given a great opportunity for this year's basketball season as they were able to play at the Bradley Center in Milwaukee. This event took place Friday, January 11th, 2013.

The players were all excited that we were able to play at the Bradley Center because it's where the Milwaukee Bucks play. There were two buses from ONHS that went to the game. One bus took students there so that they could go and support their T-Hawks, while the other bus transported the players.



It was a great experience for the student athletes because that is something that doesn't happen every year.

Senior Jessica House said, "It was an amazing experience, especially because not all schools get to play at the Bradley Center. I was thankful to get that experience as a senior at ONHS. It's definitely something I'll never forget."

Lady T-Hawks Season Coming to an End

By Jessica House
Thunderhawk Times

On Friday, February 8, it will be exactly 14 days away from the Lady T-hawks last regular season game. Within February, there are 5 games left: 2 home games and 3 away games, including an away game on the 21st.

So far the Ladies have been doing extremely well, earning a record of 13-2.

Don't miss the last home game of the season tonight against one of the two teams that beat the Lady T-hawks, Milwaukee Bradley High School.

The regional championship playoff games are just around the corner, beginning on February 26. As of now, the Lady T-Hawks are not sure who or where they will be playing in regionals.

Letters & Opinions...

Equality, sustenance, fortitude

I find it paramount to thank all members of the "Standing Stone," for edifying my life in various aspects; although 2012 has yielded fourth quite tumultuous times for many of our people. Most would attribute this to the economy, I do concur, however, inequality, and the lack of fortitude of some has encumbered the sustainability of some of the most viable components of the workforce, our people.

To solidify any economic base it requires that we employ personnel that are exuberant, dedicated, and committed towards exemplifying the integrity of our credo of ethics. During my tenure, it has always been my inclination to bolster moral, and seek to improve facets of communication! This can only be sought via the embracement of a diversified culture and workforce. It would be my true efficacy if not only that we tout these virtues but implement them as well. The stronger the morale, the greater the efficiency, productivity, and hence profitability. It also requires that we continue to utilize critical analysis, and continuously make strides to combat dissonance, such as conflicts that may arise between associates, and afford those prudence, tact, and most imperatively character, the opportunity to ascend!

With every new day that transcends, so to should our ability to foster changes on the affirmative. As a means to solidify equality, it should always be viewed as an opportunity to strengthen the infrastructure by continuously generating ideas of improvement. This is usually sought best when we collaborate, information via the utilization of gifts, talents, and skills of all personnel mutually. Yet it requires individuals who are steadfast and take heed to these attributes. There are no inferiors, just intolerance of cultural diversity.

It will always be an affinity of mine to "pay tribute to my nation through hard work and dedication!" As well to sacrifice for anyone in need of a pillar in their lives! For people, children in particular are my true efficacy in life! My life has always been encompassed by the lives of others. It is quite to my dismay that individuals have had the propensity to have been intimidated by me, for I will never post harm to anyone, it will always be an honor to be employed by the "Oneida Nation."

I sincerely request that those of leadership status, please gain the fortitude to eradicate these encumbrances, via the proper due rights process, the delegation of personnel that personify exemplary ethics and moral reasoning, we can all ascend, if we can perhaps acknowledge that we are all resilient, and when you have sought the best in another, you inadvertently edify the character of yourself! Please afford myself and others of whom have been subjected to unethical treatment and thus are enduring duress, of which can be attributed to such factors redemption, these are the virtues of true leadership. For someday I would like to become a great leader! The best all future endeavors to all!

Sincerely,
Thomas Espinosa

Purcell Powless Celebration Day

I am so excited about the annual Purcell Powless celebration day. I wish more of our community heroes would be celebrated as well and have a day named after them. We have calendars printed every year (I believe through gaming), and we celebrate all kinds of holidays. Today, for example, as I write this, it is Martin Luther King, Jr. day. We have heroes like that. What about Norbert Hill, Sr., Anna John, Amos Christjohn, Sonny King, just to name a few. If we had a day of celebration on our annual calendars, it may give inspiration to our younger folks to ask about these important people. In addition, if their names were included on our calendars, teachers could incorporate research assignments for students to find out who these folks were and how they contributed to the growth and development of our community.

If I understand the process, it's just a matter of submitting something to the OBC, naming a person and giving reason why you feel they should have a day named after them. Like in the case of MLK, Jr., I believe his DoD is the date we celebrate his contributions.

Thanks,
Susan G. Daniels

Letter from the Chairman

Dear Oneida Tribal Members

This past Monday, the Oneida Land Commission conducted a public hearing regarding the following issues (1) Rezoning the former Tower Foods Property located at N7329 Water Circle Place here on the Oneida Indian Reservation, and (2) the issuance of a conditional use permit to the Oneida Seven Generations Corporation for the purpose of creating an energy producing plant which would create oil out of plastic. As a Tribal member, I have concerns. The Water Circle Place area is in the heart of our Oneida Reservation Community and occupies and is surrounded by lands and wetlands that are in pristine environmental condition (it is clean land the way that our Creator intended). The rezoning of that area would be changed to allow light industrial industry to move into that area. We must know the environmental consequences of such industry being allowed to operate there. You, and I, still have the opportunity to comment on this very sensitive issue.

Although the hearing was conducted on Monday, Tribal members may still submit written testimony. Such testimony would have to be submitted no later than 4:30 p.m, Monday, February 11th. Written testimony must be submitted to:

Competeing with Cambodia

I was listening to National Public Radio (NPR) and they had a story about how Cambodia's forests are being clear-cut, mostly illegally, for China's building boom. In the story Cambodian activists confronted loggers and threatened to burn their timber. The logs were worth around $700 to the loggers, but to the activists from the area the trees' value came from its resin they collect to buy rice.

In theory, the villagers could be the ones selling the timber, or earning $10 a day as lumberjacks, but they see the long term value of living trees over the short term profit of fallen ones.

It seems something similar is happening in Wisconsin. For centuries, the indigenous people of the area have harvested wild rice, a crop that once grew throughout Wisconsin, but has proved sensitive to environmental degradation. The citizens of the Bad River Band of Lake Superior Chippewa in northern Wisconsin still harvest this important staple. Now Wisconsin legislators are working to change mining regulations that may clear the way for an iron ore mine at the headwaters of their reservation.

Gogebic Taconite Mining is pushing this legislation and hopes to open a $1.5 billion open pit mine. There's considerable talk about how their investment will create jobs and generate revenue, not much about their $700 profit or however much money they plan to rip out of the ground.

Officials from Bad River have spoken out against the proposed mine located six miles upstream from the reservation. Tribal Chairman Mike Wiggins Jr. has cited concerns over hunting, fishing and tourism that potential pollution from a mine would affect. The Republican legislators making $10 a day from Gogebic Taconite Mining don't seem to be listening.

It's hard to get some people to value a renewable resource like wild rice or tree resin over a short-term profit like iron ore or timber, especially if they're not the ones depending on that resource. But let's take a shot.

Wild rice sells for about $10-a-pound retail. Iron ore sells for around $120 a metric ton, or $.06 a pound. It seems to me wild rice is the more valuable commodity. Also keep in mind the expense the state would have to undergo to build up the region's infrastructure, provide services and oversee the mine. Meanwhile, pretty much all the items and infrastructure needed for wild ricing are in place. I'm still not seeing the iron advantage.

But what about all the jobs and industry and investments the mining company keeps toting (along with that, sweet, sweet lobbying money they seem to avoid talking about), how's wild ricing going to replace that?

I confess I have no answer for that other than improving all the waterways in Wisconsin so that wild rice can grow again in the Fox River. Seems like a stretch, but so is growing wild rice in water contaminated by mine tailings.

In fact, the area proposed for the mine is on the shores of the greatest source of fresh water in North America. How much does bottled water cost now? Is that the real plan – to boost the price up after water's not available from Lake Superior?

I would hope that Wisconsin, home of the late environmentalist Aldo Leopold, would be able to do a better job listening to its people and protecting its resources than Cambodia, listed as one of the most corrupt governments in the world. But I guess some people are all about the $700.

ONEIDA ADVENTURE

EXPERIENCE

Such a small word. Such a Large impact.

It's What we DO!

We are experience experts! Whether it be our work with students at the Turtle, Behavioral Health therapeutic groups, Oneida Departmental team development, Kayak classes, retreats, or our family recreational events, we create powerful [and fun!] experiences that our participants can learn from. Whatever activity we do—it is to learn about ourselves—How we act, think, and feel. You first must 1) DO IT! Do the activity, then 2) Ask what happened, 3) Make sense of the outcome, then 4) Decide what you will do differently in a similar situation outside of the adventure activity.

We create Experiences that you can learn from.

Turtle Students Climb

Every year, Oneida Adventures works with students at the Turtle as part of physical education and art classes. During our winter months, we teach students how to climb using arborist tree climbing techniques. During this unit we teach our goal setting and self talk curriculum. Through the climbing and classroom experiences students learn that our self talk [the voice inside our head telling us what to do] whether it be negative or positive talk, greatly impacts whether or not we achieve our goals. We believe fostering an awareness of our self talk aids students in achievement and building confidence. We teach that whenever we step outside our comforts, challenge ourselves, and come through the other end feeling successful, we feel pride. Our hope as experiential educators, is that our students are able to do just that in other areas of life as well, to feel pride in themselves and find success at developing toward their physical and inter-personal goals.

What some of the students said

"One thing I learned is how to tie knots, and how to climb and it was FUN! It took a lot of COURAGE but I was able to do it any ways!"
Thomas Stevens

"I learned how to INTERACT with people and help other people."
Thomas Arce

"I learned to NEVER GIVE UP"
Sequoia Metoxen

"I learned that I can ACHIEVE my goals if I really try"

When you are out of town and need medical attention:

During regular business hours

Please call the Oneida Community Health Center at (920) 869-2711 to speak with the triage nurse. The nurse will assess your symptoms and recommend care. If you need further evaluation and treatment, the nurse will direct you to the appropriate healthcare facility. Depending on the urgency of your symptoms, your healthcare insurance, and your current location, you may be sent to an urgent care clinic or emergency room (ER). Please present your healthcare insurance card and a list of your current medications. You are responsible to pay for any prescriptions you need. However, you may turn in your receipt into Contract Health Services (CHS) for reimbursement. Any bills received from the healthcare facility can be submitted to CHS for payment.

Your telephone call and recommended care by the nurse will be documented.

After regular business hours

Please call Oneida Community Health Center at (920) 869-2711. If you are certain that this is a life threatening emergency or injury and you need to go to the ER, please leave a message with the after-hours CHS notification line. The message should include the patient's name, birthdate, phone number and reason for ER visit, name of ER and healthcare insurance information.

If you need to discuss your symptoms with the nurse, stay on the line for the Answering Service. Those representatives will gather your contact information and have a nurse call you back. Depending on the urgency of your symptoms, your healthcare insurance, and your current location, you may be sent to either an urgent care clinic or emergency room. Please present your healthcare cad and list of current medications. You are responsible to pay for any prescriptions you need.

However, you may turn in your receipt into Contract Health Services for reimbursement. Any bills received from the healthcare facility can be submitted to Contract Health Services for payment.

Identifying Tribal Affiliation Important

Completing Claim form to IHS Clinics recommended

In order for a Wisconsin BadgerCare Plus premium exemption to be applied, members of tribes need to identify their tribal affiliation to the Indian Health Service (IHS) clinic when appearing for services.

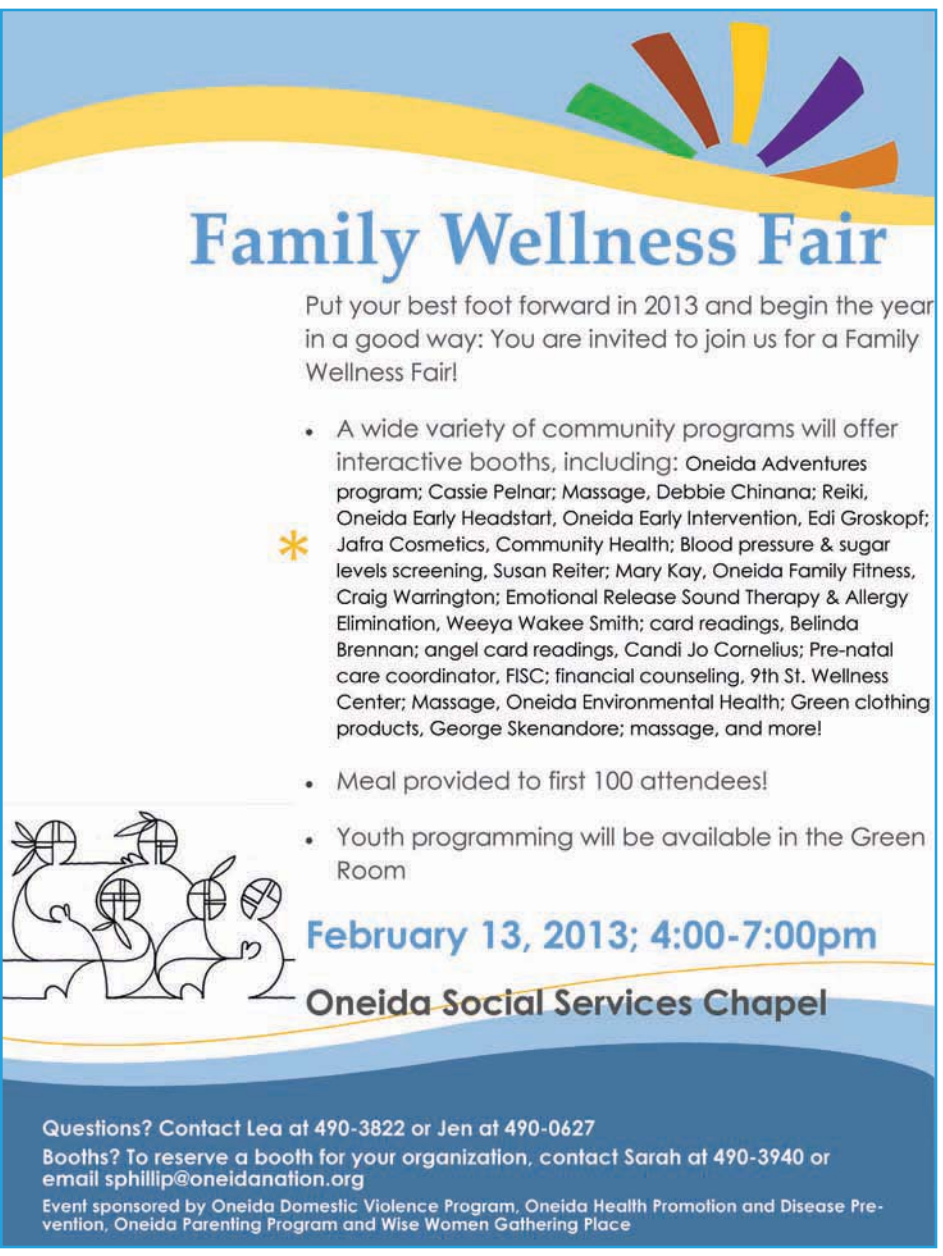
All tribal members (adults as well as children) regardless of Tribal enrollment status, need to verify their tribal affiliation at their IHS clinic. Medicaid services provided through a tribal clinic for these individuals are paid 100% by Federal funds, however not all individuals are accurately being identified through the Wisconsin BadgerCare Plus application or renewal process. Accurate reporting allows tribal clinics to efficiently allocate scarce resources ($) for the benefit of the tribe and its members.

An Affirmation of Tribal Affiliation Form can be obtained at Oneida Health Center or at the Center for Self-Sufficiency. The Tribal Affiliation information will be entered into the State's database by the agency where your health care coverage (BadgerCare Plus) is managed.

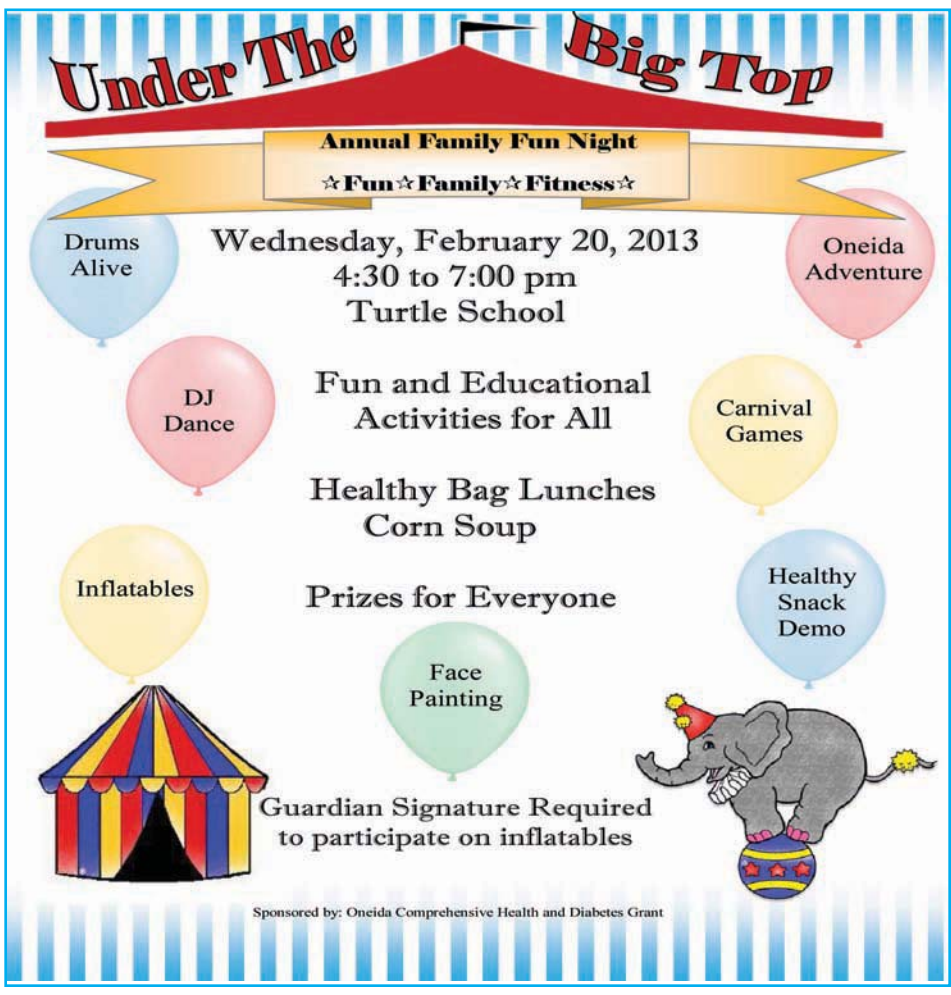
Question: Does a copy of the Tribal ID or other proof of tribal membership need to be provided with the Affirmation of Tribal Affiliation?

Answer: No, a completed Tribal Affiliation form acts as the necessary verification of tribal membership for purposes of entering tribal affiliation into the State's database. NOTE: Signing the Tribal Affiliation form means that the agency or clinic worker attests that the individual signing the form does have the Tribal affiliation status indicated (eligibility for IHS services will still be determined according to Oneida Health Center's established procedures).

Question: Can the Tribal Affiliation Affirmation form be filled out and faxed to the number listed on the form?



Answer: Yes, filling out the Tribal Affiliation form and faxing it to the number indicated on the form will allow the form to act as verification of the person's tribal affiliation. The individual State worker receiving the fax will update the tribal member's information in the State's database for purposes of exempting the tribal member from the health insurance premium.



Question: Is my agency or clinic required to use this form?

Answer: No, the State developed this form as a "tool" for tribal agencies and IHS clinics to easily update information within the State health insurance system. (Each agency or clinic can choose whether or not to use this form.)

Please contact your individual case manager with any additional questions. The contact number for Center for Self-Sufficiency is 1-800-216-3216 or 920-490-6800, or you can contact the Contract Health Office at Oneida Community Health Center at 920-869-2711.

Nicholas storms Blizzard tryout

By Nate Wisneski
Kalihwisaks

John Nicholas was an All-Conference offensive lineman at the University of Wisconsin – Oshkosh who thought his playing days were behind him. That was, until a friend put him through a workout that helped land him a roster spot on the Green Bay Blizzard.

Nicholas really wasn't staying in football shape at all since he stopped playing at Oshkosh in 2011.

"I actually didn't do anything. I didn't think I was going to play football again," Nicholas said. "Almost two weeks before the tryout with the Blizzard and Rollie Christjohn was going to try out. He put me through his workout and went to the tryout and did my thing."

The Blizzard are part of the nine-team Indoor Football League. The season runs from February to June. They play their home games at the Resch Center. The team had 28 players try out and only three made the cut.

After taking some time off Nicholas is excited to get to work and feels his talents as an offensive lineman will translate well to the indoor game.

"I think I should be all right. I have great feet and I'm athletic. I did come into camp about 10 lbs. under my playing weight," said Nicholas.

Blizzard Head Coach Robert Fuller sees potential in Nicholas that hard work can unlock.

"He has a good frame, good natural athletic ability, and he has a desire to be the best he can be. I think one area he could improve on would be his strength and power, which will come with time and training," said Fuller.

Fuller has a clear vision of what a Blizzard player is made of and Nicholas fits that molding.

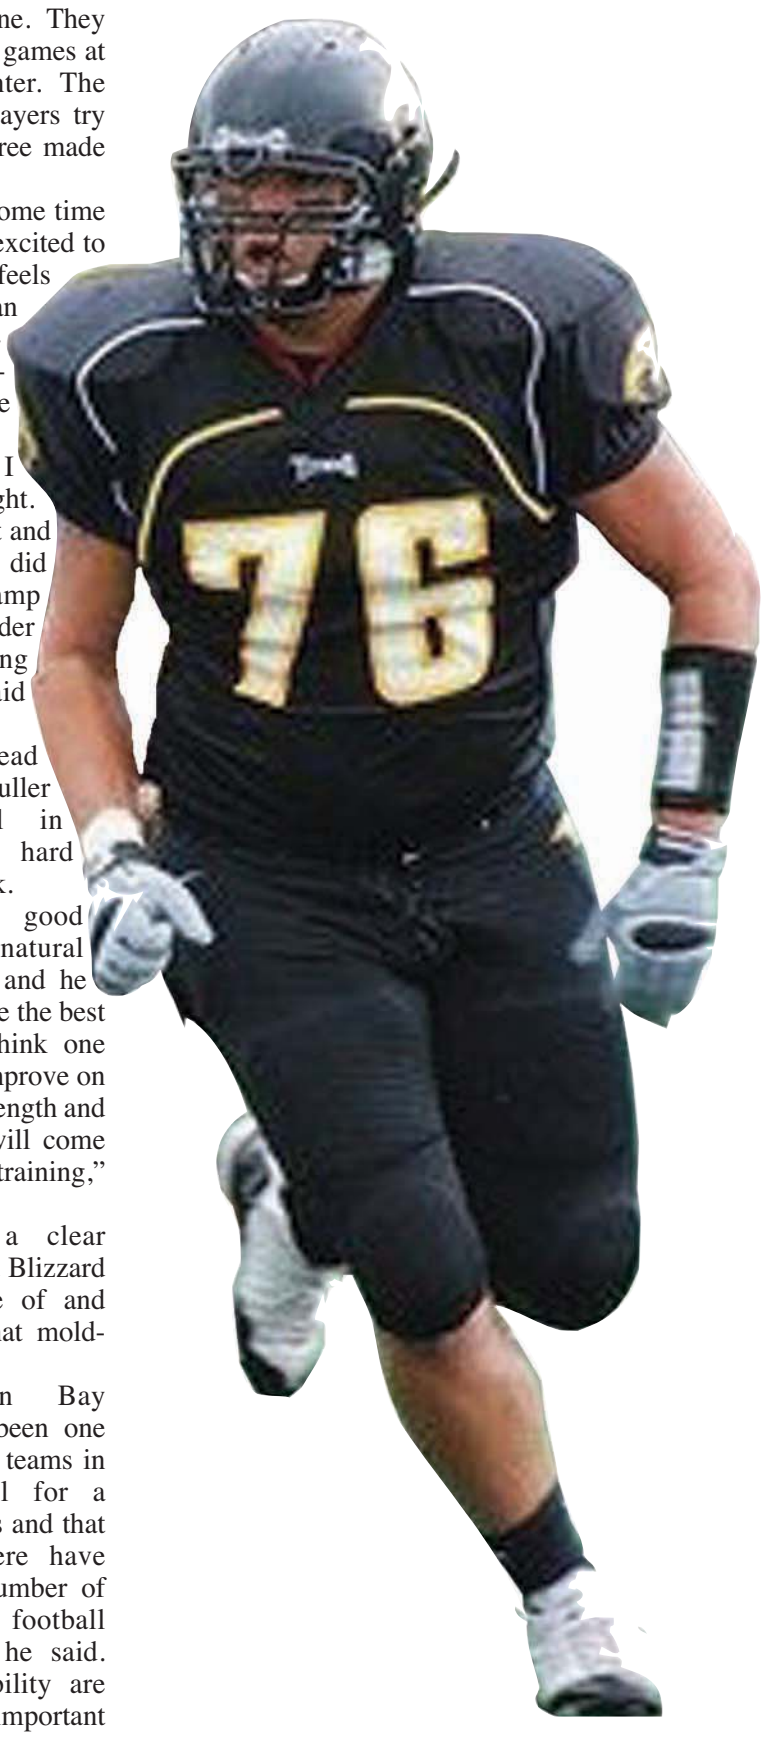
"The Green Bay Blizzard have been one of the strongest teams in indoor football for a number of years and that is because there have been a large number of exceptional football players here," he said. "Talent and ability are obviously very important but I put just as much emphasis on character and having guys that have a team first mindset."

Fuller was familiar with Nicholas and his skill set before the tryouts.

"I was familiar with John having watched him play at the All-American Bowl in Minneapolis. I knew he came from a very good program in Wisconsin - Oshkosh and had been well coached. Probably the thing that stood out to me was the level of skill he retained after being away from the game for a year," he said.

With the odds stacked up against most who tried out, Nicholas still believed in his abilities.

"I was pretty confident. That's the only way to go into it. You can't be afraid of competition. That should be something you strive for," he said.



Nicholas now pictures himself playing football a few more years before moving on to the next stage in his life. He is currently enrolled in the Fire Protection program at Northeast Wisconsin Technical College.

"I could see myself doing this for a while. I would like to move west and put that firefighting training to use. Maybe Colorado or Wyoming if I could find a firefighter position or even a ranger position."

Before that, Nicholas has a more current challenge in front of him.

"I want to make the travel squad. There are a lot of rookies coming in so there is an opportunity to be a starter. There's a lot of competition and a lot of talent. Its exciting," he said.

The Blizzard open the season February 15 at Sioux Falls.

Business Committee travel goes under the microscope

By Nate Wisneski
Kalihwisaks

The necessity, scope and frequency of Oneida Business Committee (OBC) travel is often debated by community members.

The total travel budget for the nine-person committee during fiscal year 2012 ended up at $101,262.33. Fiscal year 2012 had one officer; Treasurer Tina Danforth and three council members; Vince DelaRosa, Brandon Stevens, and Paul Ninham surpass their budgeted amounts.

With OBC travel making up about .02 percent of the overall budget some may question why the topic is bantered as much as it is.

Oneida tribal member Lisa Liggins feels as the OBC demands more with less from the tribal employee base the elected leadership should follow their own advice. The Inauguration of President Obama in which over half of the OBC traveled to caught her attention.

"I can't say how other employees feel, but, to me, this trip and the cost associated with it is slap in the face. We've done everything the OBC has asked in the way cost containment and doing more with less. Everyone else's travel has to be approved by the OBC and have had travel denied unless it is associated with keeping or obtaining a required certification but the OBC approves their own," she said.

According to Councilwoman Melinda Danforth a specific job duty of a member of the OBC is to officially represent the tribe at the local, state and national level.

"Examples include laws affecting tribal health care, family care, road funding or gaming regulations. Our ability to talk with members of Congress, State Representatives and local officials and Oneida's ability to have input on policy issues may require travel," said Danforth. "Also, networking is a valuable component to build relationships. Whether we believe it or not, federal, state and local governments operate on a who you know basis, and there is lots of value placed on friendships and relationships that are built over time. With Oneida being at the forefront of many issues, networking is a critical component to successful gains and the creation of opportunity."

Liggins understands how travel offers networking opportunities but feels a more open government should be in place.

"The inauguration is a celebration (with) two official balls, many other unofficial balls, and parades, and there are plenty of other more appropriate and effective opportunities for the OBC to represent us in DC. Plus I do believe we have lobbyists that handle some of this work," she said. "It also upsets me that the trip was not even brought up at the GTC meeting held just a few days before. To me, it seems that such an important event could have been announced at that GTC meeting and the fact that it wasn't gives the impression that this OBC doesn't value transparency the way they say they do."

The current approval process for OBC travel requires prior to travel committee approval. In some cases there is an exception process that utilizes an electronic poll. The poll requires a majority for approval. The requestor is then required to place the same travel request on the next available OBC meeting where retro-approval is needed.

According to Danforth, this process has not always been utilized.

"This practice has not been consistent and travel has been conducted and paid for without OBC's approval or retro-approval," she said.

In a group response the OBC stated efforts are made to ensure the most value is being sought when it comes to official travel.

"The OBC members are faced with many travel opportunities that require us to discriminate and select only those that can bring the most value back to the tribe. We also try to moderate our travel costs when we can by comparison-shopping with regard to hotel and airfare costs. For example, we usually compare the costs of flying out of Green Bay, Appleton, and Milwaukee for every trip to see if any savings can be realized," Councilman David Jordan offered more detail on his cost savings efforts.

"My assistant is constantly finding alternative ways to save money while I'm out on travel. At a four day conference in Las Vegas last year the host hotel rate was $240 per night. The hotel next door, connected through a walkway, was $45 for two nights and $40 for the other two nights. I stayed at the less expensive hotel and walked to the conference," said Jordan. "I have only been in office for 18 months and traveled four times

Anna John nursing home cuts ribbon on new facility

By Nate Wisneski
Kalihwisaks

After years of waiting and being placed on the back burner the Anna John Resident Centered Care Community (AJRCCC) held a ribbon cutting on February 8 welcoming the community to the new facility.

The AJRCCC is a 48 bed multi-purpose building that will house a nursing room, elderly meal site, and physical therapy offices. The facility is named after Anna John, who was integral in the establishment of the first nursing home in Oneida.

"This building is a shining example of what Oneida can do when they focus on their priorities. The priority for this facility is the elders and the disabled in the community that need to stay connected to the community and giving them a place there proud to call home," said Jane Smith, Anna John Nursing Home Director.

Long time supporter and advocate of the project Pearl McLester was thrilled to be part of the ribbon cutting.

"This is the day the lord has made. Many years ago we have been hoping and praying this day will come. We give thanks for this beautiful building," she said. "I kept saying I have to live old enough to open the doors."

Report puts $14 million on same-day registration

By Scott Bauer
Associated Press

MADISON, Wis. ~ Eliminating voter registration at the polls would cost Wisconsin taxpayers up to $14.5 million, more than double the original estimate, according to a state elections board report released Monday.

The higher costs identified in the Government Accountability Board report come from new registration responsibilities that would kick in at four state agencies if the same-day registration law is repealed.

Gov. Scott Walker and many Republicans support eliminating same-day registration, which they contend is a burdensome requirement on local election officials and can make it easier for people to commit in-person election fraud.

Democrats and other supporters of the 37-year-old law same same-day registration is a vital tool to help first-time voters and others unable to register in advance of the election to cast their ballots. They also say in-person voter fraud is extremely rare and that attempts to end same-day registration are really meant to disenfranchise voter groups that favor Democrats.

Walker said in December that he would not sign a bill to eliminate it if the cost was as high as $5 million, the original estimate. Neither Walker's spokesman, Cullen Wurwie, nor Republican Rep. Joel Kleefisch, who said he would introduce a bill doing away with same-day registration, immediately responded to messages seeking comment.

There have been no formal discussions of a bill in the Senate, said Tom Evenson, spokesman for Republican Senate Majority Leader Scott Fitzgerald.

"It's one of the many proposals out there that we'll take a look at," Evenson said.

Republican Assembly Speaker Robin Vos said he wanted to take a closer look at the report.

"I am highly skeptical of the estimate the GAB has given," Vos said in a statement.

The Wisconsin Municipal Clerks Association, the people in charge of running elections in communities across the state, last year passed a resolution opposing elimination of same-day registration in part over cost concerns. The state elections board in March 2011 went on record opposing eliminating election day registration.

Elimination of the state law would make Wisconsin immediately subject to both the National Voter Registration Act of 1993 and 2002's Help America Vote Act. Wisconsin is currently exempt from those requirements because it offers registration on Election Day at the polls.

Under those federal laws, Wisconsin would have to establish a system for offering voter registration services at state offices where people get driver's licenses and at agencies that provide public assistance or administer programs that assist people with disabilities.

Costs faced by the four affected agencies - Transportation, Health Services, Children and Families, and Workforce Development - total up to $10.5 million. Expenses to the GAB, which were first estimated to be $5.2 million over two years, were later lowered to about $4 million. That makes the combined cost about $14.5 million.

Wisconsin is one of eight states that allow same-day registration and the law is often cited as a reason why it is a leader in voter turnout. About 70 percent of Wisconsin's voting-age population cast ballots in the November presidential election. Nationally, turnout was less than 60 percent.

In major statewide elections, between 10 percent and 15 percent of voters either register at the polls or update their information there, the GAB report said.

Family Wellness Fair

Kali photos/Travis Cottrell

The Oneida Social Services Chapel hosted the Family Wellness Fair on Wednesday, February 13, 2013. The fair featured a wide variety of community programs that offered interactive booths that focused on the well being of individuals. A free meal was provided for the first 100 attendees.

From 1A/AJRCCC

Engberg Anderson was proud of his involvement with the project.

"There are projects in your life that stand out from others. This has been an extraordinary interaction for our team and I think you're going to find as you walk through this is an extraordinary result," he said. "We think that we got a little bit of the tradition and the needs of being Oneida and we hope that we accomplished that by putting it in this design."

Unique features of the facility include high tech nursing technology, patient lifts in every room, hair salon, spa area, and a hearing aide loop system that with a switch of the button patients can hear announcements, videos, and presentations through their hearing aide.

"The facility is beautiful in design but state of the art in technology. You will see something unlike anything else in the state of Wisconsin, unlike anything else in the rest of the country." Added Smith. "You will see how we paid attention to light, color, sound, the way our systems work to make this an amazing environment that promotes quality of life and healing."

Ninham, David G.
November 10, 1967 – February 12, 2013

David Geoffrey Ninham, 45, of Bowler, passed away Tuesday, Feb. 12, 2013, at his home.

The son of Maurice and Joan (Krakovec) Ninham, David was born on Nov. 10, 1967, in Milwaukee. Growing up, David was an exceptional child who never gave is family any problems. His interest in art started early and at the age of 17 he graduated from Rufus King's Gifted and Talented program with a full scholarship to Layton School of Art. He went on to the University of Michigan where he earned two bachelor's degrees, one in art history. He then received his Master of Fine Arts degree at Western Michigan University. David's artistic talents came in many forms, but his favorites were painting and sculpting. He became an accomplished artist who received many accolades for his artwork. He won first prize on a self-portrait at a juried exhibition as well as many other awards, gallery exhibits and sales of his paintings from his teen years on. When he wasn't painting, David enjoyed exercising, running, lifting weights, riding bike, and was known to splurge from time to time on his Aunt Yvonne's Indian tacos. He was a fan of the Green Bay Packers and enjoyed watching the games. David was an exceptional, loving, caring and compassionate person whose passing leaves a void in the lives of his parents and everyone who knew him.

David is survived by his parents; three aunts, Carol (George) Mohawk, Janet (John) Hill, Yvonne Creapeau; five uncles, Robert Ninham, Kenny (Florence) Ninham, Allen (Violet) Ninham, Craig (Shirley) Ninham, Bruce Ninham; numerous cousins, including a special cousin, Ronald Creapeau; and many friends, including special friend Mike Rudesil.

A memorial service was held at 10 a.m. Monday, Feb. 18, 2013, at the Assembly of God Church in Morgan Siding with the Rev. Randy Stocksdale officiating.

Swedberg Funeral Home in Shawano assisted the family with the arrangements.

Scalzo, Nancy Marie
July 8, 1929 – February 16, 2013

Nancy Marie Scalzo, age 83, of Kenosha, passed away peacefully on February 16, 2013, at Wynwood of Kenosha, assisted living.

She was born July 8, 1929 in Green Bay, WI and grew up in Trego, WI, with her beloved foster parents, Ted and Cliff Petersen.

Her best childhood friend was Ruth and it was Ruth's brother, George Pierce that Nancy fell in love with and married on June 22, 1948.

Nancy and George moved to Kenosha shortly after they were married, where they raised their five children until George's death in 1980. After George's death, she met James (Jim) Scalzo, whom she married in 1984. She and Jim spent 14 happy years together until he passed on Dec. 21, 1998.

In her early years, Nancy worked part-time at several places while her children were growing up, including the ticket booth at the Keno Drive-in movie theater in Kenosha, Abbott Labs in Illinois and Topps Discount Department Store. Nancy was also a wonderful seamstress and worked independently in this profession. When her kids were all in school, she became a realtor for Century 21 Colleen Realty which she did for many years. After her retirement from real estate, she became a tax preparation person for H & R Block.

Nancy loved life and was always ready with a joke. She liked to dance and play cards and she was an avid reader.

Nancy will be missed by her five children, Karl (Judy) Pierce of Waukesha, Kevin (Barb) Pierce of Kenosha, Keith (Eileen) Pierce of Madison, Gayle (Pamela) Hopwood of Ontario, Canada, and Georgia (Bob) Saemann of Hillsdale, MI. along with 7 grandchildren and 11 great-grandchildren.

Nancy was preceded in death by her mother, Nancy Reschke, her half-sister, Donna Hassler, her foster parents, Ted and Cliff Petersen, and her two wonderful husbands.

A funeral service will be held on Thursday, February 21, 2013 at 11:00 a.m. at Piasecki-Althaus Funeral Home. Interment will follow in All Saints Cemetery. A visitation will be held at the funeral home from 10:00 a.m. until the time of the service.

There is no charge for obituary notices to be published in the Kalihwisaks for enrolled Oneida citizens or spouses.

OBC hears petition concerning paternity

By Travis Cottrell
Kalihwisaks

The Oneida Business Committee (OBC) heard a petition to rescind Oneida's child placement, visitation, support, and paternity laws at the Wednesday, February 13 meeting.

Much of the morning was spent hearing testimony of young Oneida parents who felt the Oneida Judiciary wronged them. The debate focused on the need change the process in which cases involving Oneida youth are handled.

A main aspect of the petition centered on the fact that parents are not able to have their cases transferred out of an Oneida court to a county court system.

"I pay taxes to the county. A part of every pay check I get goes to the county so why do I not have the option to have my case heard by their court?" said Kerry Danforth, who brought the petition to the OBC.

Those supporting the petition also stated that they were denied the ability to have their cases transferred to county court. They also alleged that the Oneida Appeals Commission gave these denials.

OBC Chairman Ed Delgado strongly supported the idea that the Oneida Laws and court must be analyzed so that Oneida children are protected. Chairman Delgado also made it known that this issue needs to be expedited so that it may be resolved immediately.

"I know we have a time of around three months until this can be completed. Three months is too long. Oneida children are placed in bad environments and they are our future. They need to be safe," Chairman Delgado said.

The OBC made a motion to accept this petition and move it forward for the appropriate analysis (and be brought back in 30 days), where a date will be set for that petition.

A tentative date was also set to hold a General Tribal Council meeting intended to address this petition as well as two others. The potential date for the meeting was set for Sunday, May 5, 2013 at the Radisson Hotel and Conference Center.

Loretta Says...

A Place for a Garden

Ongoing Column • Providing a connection to the past

Loretta Metoxen,
Oneida Tribal Historian

About two weeks ago, I sat through a presentation/proposal at the Elder Meal Site on building cottages for their benefit. Any proposal for adequate, comfortable housing for the Elder community is certainly welcome.

When it was time for questions and comments, I offered: A Place for a Garden. Someone in the audience said that I would have to weed them. That is nothing new. Last year, I weeded our family garden from one end to the other three times. It was a very good garden, producing more tomatoes then we could use; peas, carrots, summer and winter squash, a lot sweet corn, potatoes and even sweet potatoes. There were pumpkins and bird house gourds, too.

This time of year, I receive more than a dozen seed catalogues from all over the country. Bloomington, Illinois has a concentration of seed companies. Some companies specialize in flower bulbs. I order fruit tree and shrubs from Faribault, Minnesota because they can withstand the subzero temperatures of our area. My three peach trees are doing great. Summer before last, I got a half-bushel of peaches off a tree that was a little taller than me—a dwarf peach called Reliance.

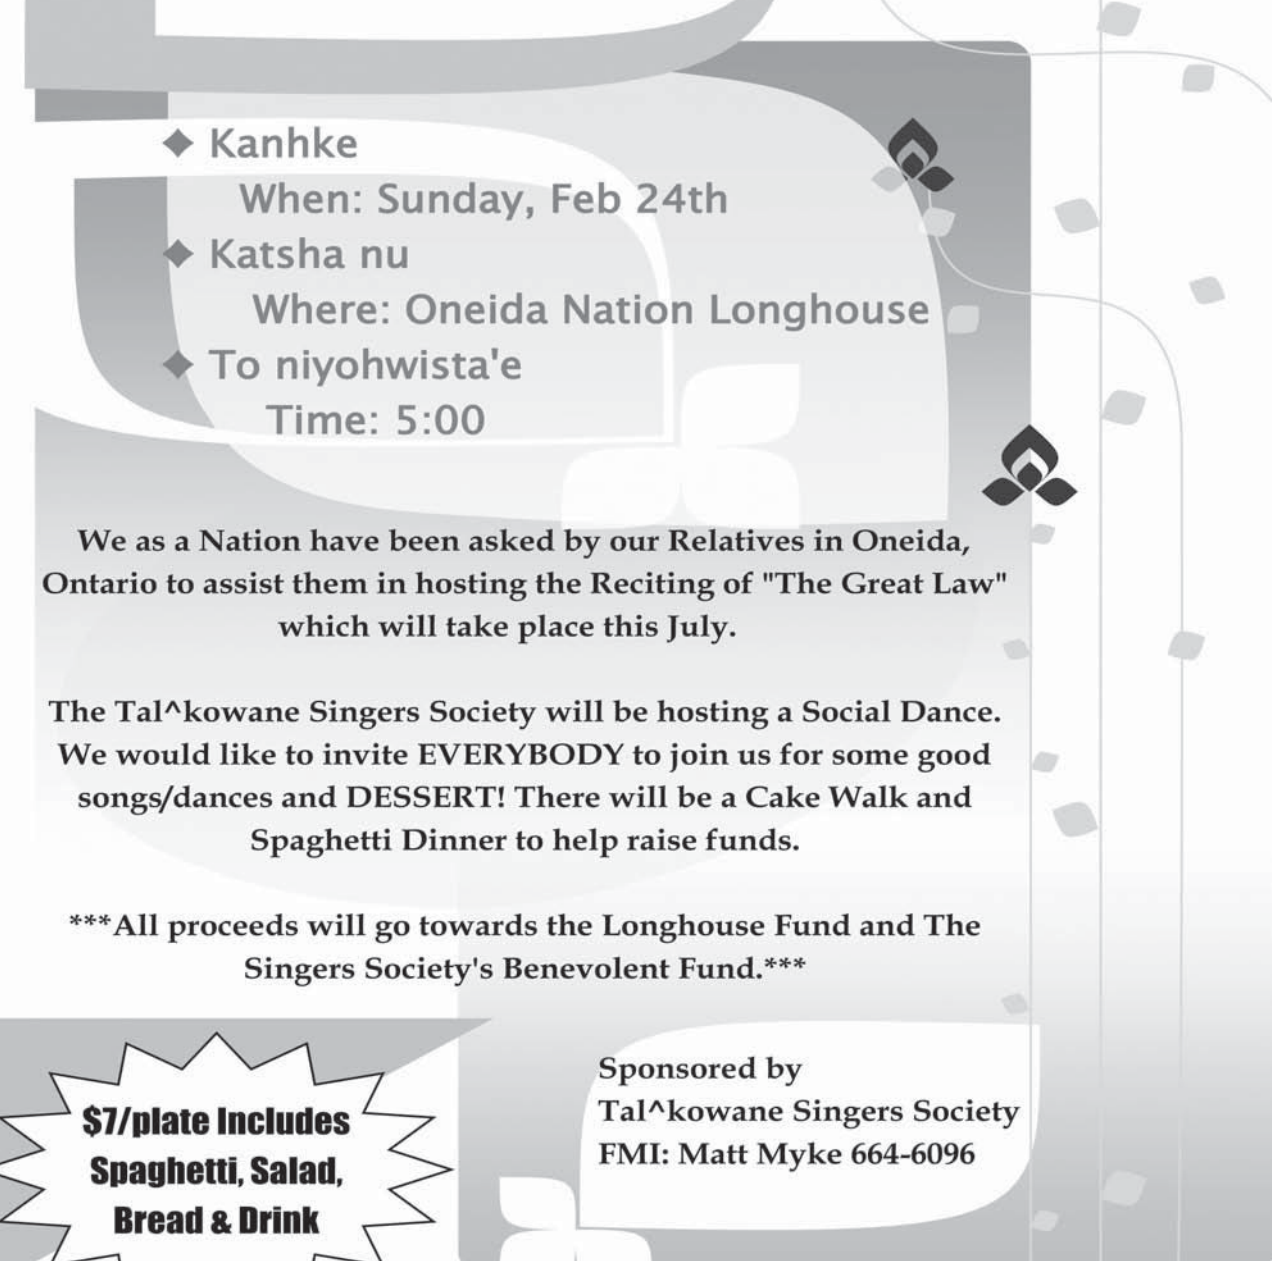
I have two full size pear trees planted about ten years ago. The Bartlett pear has yielded as much as five bushel in a season.

My comment "A Place for a Garden" was meant to be taken seriously. Gardening is therapeutic. It is good for our health. We will be exercising even though we are not conscious of it, and we will be doing it in the fresh air. The things we eat from our own gardens are better for us as well.

There are all kinds of gardens. Have you ever heard of "The Hanging Gardens of Babylon"? They occurred thousands of years B.C. between the Tigris and Euphrates Rivers where Bagdad now is. How about the potatoes of Peru? Nearly all potatoes originated with the Incas of that country. Holland grows tulips, hyacinths, anemones, and other bulb type flowers of one color in hundred or more acre lots. The Germans are known for their acres and acres of cabbage varieties. The monasteries and convents of medieval Europe developed and produced vegetables and fruits of all kinds. When General Sullivan marched through Iroquois country during the Revolutionary War, the diaries of his soldiers said that there were corn fields of 700 or more acres. They also said that there were apple and peach orchards containing 1500 trees which they destroyed by order of General Washington.

Chairman Ed Delgado envisions the Oneida Reservation to be a beautiful place where people want to come to live. My question to Oneida members who already live here is: How much effort and energy would it take to plant a short row of flowers in their yards? When our family resided on U.S. Air Bases, we were not allowed to plant vegetables in our front yards, so I just interspersed them with flowers and no one knew the difference and we had fresh vegetables to eat—notably lettuce and beans. Some flowers are good to eat, too. Nasturtiums are excellent in salads. They come in all colors, too.

There is a large planting of daffodils near Water Tower Circle. They are there as a project of the Falling Leaf 4-H Club. I offered to help transplant them in various places on the Reservation, but then my health gave way for a time and I was unable to follow through. It can still be done. Young persons should be acquainted with DIRT. By that, I mean that they should understand how and where their food comes from and that they could very well assist the process by learning to and cultivating a little garden of their own—or at the very least helping an older family member (parent or grandparent) to grow things.



One of my recommendations would be for Oneida Housing Authority to buy Grow Boxes for those who would want to plant a couple of tomato, pepper and cucumber plants.

Who knows? In just one summer season, this Reservation could be transformed.

Chairman's Report

By Ed Delgado

Current Hot Issue

Waste to Energy Project: Some are saying that I am being inconsistent regarding my position on the Oneida Seven Generations Waste-to-Energy Project. They say I supported the Project being placed in an industrial zone in Green Bay. That's true! Some also say, now that the Project has been rejected by Green Bay city officials, I do not support the Project being constructed on Water Circle Drive here in what many consider to be the heart of the Oneida Indian community (Reservation). This may sound like inconsistent logic on my part, but I don't think it is.

Approximately a year ago, I visited the Green Bay site which I supported. The site is zoned as industrial. I would not take my family to that area for a picnic. However, I would build a factory or energy plant there. The Green Bay site is a place where Green Bay city officials planned to expand their tax base and provide jobs for their citizens through industrial growth. Our project would have fit within this industrial area.

However, in the area on our Reservation known as the Water Circle Business Park, I would take my family to that area and eat there because it is clean to the point that I believe it to be "pristine." I believe that the employees working at the nearby Little Bear Development building would like to believe that the area has good clean air to breathe and that the Oneida Tribe would endeavor to keep it that way. The General Tribal Council will most likely make the final decision on the Project being placed here.

On a related issue, a recent edition of the Kalihwisaks said that the projected funding for the facility would come from "grants." Not true. The funding thus far has come primarily from loans, and that if the Project goes forward, the funding will come almost exclusively come from more loans, with Tribal collateral, land included, most likely being at risk. In my point of view, it appears that this whole Waste-to-Energy Project, once projected to be a bright shining star in Oneida's quest to diversify its economy, is now becoming an initiative whereby our credibility with our neighbors and our own people is being diminished and our environment along with our financial and property resources are being put at risk.

A Message to the Tribe...

The Oneida people are made up of three nations, the Oneida Indian Nation in New York, the Oneida of the Thames in Canada, and us, the Oneida Tribe of Indians of Wisconsin. Once we were one people. Once our warriors, both men and women warriors, fought and died together in the creation of the United States of America. Yes we are three nations, each separate with separate governmental structures, but we still have a common history and common blood lines. We are them, and they are us – God made it that way and that common history and our common blood lines will never change. In a truly twisted turn of events, yesterday, I was notified that the United States Supreme Court is currently considering whether or not they will decide on a case (Madison County vs Oneida Indian Nation) which is calling for the disestablishment of the Oneida Indian Reservation in New York State. If this case goes bad for our Oneida relatives, they would be homeless and landless and betrayed. Betrayed by a government that requested they fight and sacrifice their lives in the creation of the United States, only to destroy them as a people 230 years later. I hope we all pray for Oneida Indian Nation. I will be sending a letter to the Oneida Indian Nation offering my moral support in their fight to survive. I am sure that the Oneida Business Committee feels the same way.

Sincerely,
Ed Delgado,* Oneida Tribal Chairman

Treasurer's Report

By Cristina Danforth
Tribal Treasurer

I had the opportunity to attend the ribbon cutting ceremony at the new Anna John Resident Centered Care Community (AJRCCC) building and what a beautiful facility it is. The rooms are large with a full bathroom and kitchenette with a small microwave and refrigerator. Each room has a large window with a lot of natural light and is equipped to make each resident feel comfortable.

The AJRCCC has been a large project in the making for many years and to see it finally come to fruition was truly a wonderful experience.

My OTIE article has sparked many phone calls and emails to my office and I am glad the General Tribal Council (GTC) is getting involved with this issue. In the past, I have been one of the only Business Committee (BC) members to question OTIE and without the support of the BC, my questions continually go unanswered. With the support of the GTC my hope is I will finally get the answers I need and be able to share the full story with the GTC. I will continue my inquiries in hopes of gaining a clear understanding of the direction, scope and profitability of this company.

Travel has been an issue as well. I have clarified twice to GTC about my expenses. I do travel to attend the quarterly Native American Bancorporation (NAB) board meetings of which I am Chairwoman. The Oneida Tribe of Indians of Wisconsin is a founding member of NAB and I participate to assure regulatory compliance and as an investor participant. I am also a Director of Native American Bank, National Association (NABNA). This board meets monthly and coincides with the quarterly meeting. Both boards have worked on a strategy to promote financial services for its customers and raise capital to further grow the bank. I am also Second Vice President of the Native American Officers Association (NAFOA) and attend their conferences twice a year. The ability to network in the financial area is very necessary to do my job as Treasurer.

In addition to these meetings, in fiscal year 2012, I attended Reservation Economic Summit (RES) which is an economic and business development conference for Native Americans. The National Indian Gaming Association (NIGA) is also a conference I attended to learn about the latest technology and issues affecting Native American gaming. Women Empowering Women for Indian Nations (WEWIN) is an organization that promotes education to build and strengthen tribal cultures while shaping value based and dignified tribal leadership. As a woman in government, this conference reminds me of how important the balance is between my professional duties and my personal responsibility as well as instilling in me the importance of mentoring others.

Lastly, it is important for the Oneida Tribe of Indians of Wisconsin to engage in government to government relations. To this end, I attended the National Republican Convention to establish our presence and lobby Republican congressional members to vote in support of Tribal issues affecting Indian Country.

While some GTC members find it necessary to criticize my travel and the work I do. This allows me to show what I have accomplished so far this term and what I have left to do. Every event I have attended has brought value back to the Oneida Tribe. All of my travel experiences are related directly to my job and responsibility as defined in my job description. We will never move forward if we continually live in the past and repeat our past mistakes. I will continue to move forward and initiate positive change for our Tribe.

I want to thank everyone who has sent me an email, called my office, or spoken to me personally regarding my articles. It means a lot to me to have so many faithful readers who realize my only concern is the positive welfare of our Tribe and to benefit the community we live in.

As the snow begins to leave us and we look toward spring, I hope you will join me in seeking a positive future for us all.

5. Support transfer of child support cases to surrounding municipalities
Sponsor: Ed Delgado
Motion by Vince DelaRosa to have this item referred back to the Chairman's office to address the jurisdictional issue to refine the resolution submitted today and to discuss this in a special Business Committee meeting on Tues. Feb. 19, 2013, seconded by Patty Hoeft. Motion carried with one abstention and one opposed:
Opposed: Brandon Stevens
Abstained: Tina Danforth
For the record: Tina Danforth stated I am abstaining because I think issue needs to be addressed timely, and I'm abstaining because I am not available on Tuesday for a special meeting of the Business Committee at an undetermined time on Tuesday. Thank you.
For the record: Brandon Stevens stated I oppose this motion because in the LOC perspective this is a principle based decision, that we need to fix the institution and not repeal things or allow a waiver of our sovereignty when we need more time to develop-during the development of these laws, more collaboration needed to be made. If we do allow the district court, the district courts are very unlikely to take these court cases and the cases that they do take will very likely look at the current order and considerable time passing-will respect that order because of the child. Not because of the parents, the child. That there's a period of time that the child was accustomed to this order and that would be detrimental to the child and that's what they look at. The LOC will do whatever the Business Committee wants us to do and we will work hard, when we're given direction.

Sponsor: Geraldine Danforth/Louise Cornelius
Motion by David Jordan to oppose the request, seconded by Vince DelaRosa. Motion carried with one abstention:
Abstained: Brandon Stevens
For the record: Brandon Stevens stated I think there are some things we need to address, rather than outright not approving the premium pay-there's the employment law and there's also the accountability of the managers to effectively manage their areas. I think those are the things that really need to be addressed and this is kind of an outset thing- it's a band aide that we need to address on a bigger issue.
Motion by Patty Hoeft to direct our HR Director, Geraldine Danforth, to work with the impacted parties on the Enterprise side and the Program side and bring back some recommendations regarding premium pay at the Feb. 27 Business Committee meeting, seconded by Vince DelaRosa. Public Hearing Notices

March 28, 2013

Purpose:
Oneida Tribal Judiciary Canons of Judicial Conduct.

The intent of the Oneida Tribal Judiciary Canons of Judicial Conduct (Canons) is to provide ethical principles and guidelines for Oneida judges to follow.

The proposed Canons provide guidance to judges on the following issues:
- Judicial integrity and independence.
- Judicial diligence and impartiality
- Permissible extra-judicial activities
- The avoidance of impropriety or the appearance thereof.
- Encouragement of devoting time to the community and to public service.
- Discouragement of hearing cases in which the judge has personal knowledge of the disputed facts, a personal bias concerning a party to the case, earlier involvement in the case as a lawyer or advocate, or financial interest in any party or subject matter of the case.

The proposed Canons allow for disciplinary action against a judge who violates the Canons.

March 28, 2013

Purpose:
Early Return to Work Law Amendments.

The intent of the Early Return to Work Law (the Law) is to assist an employee who is temporarily unable to work due to an injury, return to work as soon as possible, even if there are restrictions placed on them by a medical provider. It allows employees to be temporarily placed in modified duty for a maximum of 180 days The proposed amendments to the Law are as follows:
- New Process for Work Related Injuries. If 180 days has expired and the employee is still unable to be medically cleared to return to work, an employee with a work related injury, that employee will be required to contact Employee Benefits regarding Worker's Compensation benefits. If an agreement with the employee is unable to be reached in regards to accommodations, that employee would be terminated for non-disciplinary reasons. This allows the employee to immediately return to work under modified duty and not give up their rights under the Worker's Compensation Law.
- New Process for Non-Work Related Injuries. If 180 days has expired and the employee is still unable to be medically cleared to return to work, an employee with a non-work related injury, shall be required to apply for disability benefits, or use their available personal and/or vacation time. If disability benefits are not available or the employee no longer has personal or vacation time available, that employee would be terminated for non-disciplinary reasons. This amendment will assist supervisors in being consistent with the treatment of all employees.
- Exception to Termination. In either instance noted above, if an employee has had a position transfer approved by HRD and it is in process at the time this law applies, the employees modified duty could be extended for an additional 90 days to allow that transfer to go through.
- Restrictions Definition. The definition of "Restrictions" was amended to allow for limitation of activities due to pregnancy as prescribed by a physician.

Public Hearing Process
Testimony:
Oral: There will be a 5 minute limit for all oral presentations. Each participant is encouraged to provide a written transcript of his/her oral testimony, to be submitted while present at the public hearing or within ten (10) business days from the date of public hearing to the below named individuals.
Written: For those who cannot attend the scheduled public hearing or do not plan to speak at the hearing, the Oneida Tribe encourages those to submit written testimony. Community Meetings for the Indian Community Development Block Grant Application

A new Oneida Housing Authority initiative is to provide housing for families in need of 4 and 5 bedroom homes.

OHA is sponsoring two community meetings to get your input and comments regarding 4 and 5 bedroom family housing in the community. The first community meeting is scheduled for Wednesday, February 27, 2013 at the OHA office conference room at 5 p.m. Light snacks and beverage will be available. The second community meeting will be held on Wednesday, March 6, 2013 at the OHA office conference room at 5 p.m. Light snacks and beverage will be available.

Topics for discussion during the meetings will include applicant income eligibility, application forms and documents needed to complete a housing application. Other topics will include site location and types of housing. You as a community member have a voice in housing in our community, please attend and let your concerns be considered. If you have any questions, please contact Laurel Meyer-Spooner;

When you are out of town and need medical attention

During regular business hours

Please call the Oneida Community Health Center at (920) 869-2711 to speak with the triage nurse. The nurse will assess your symptoms and recommend care. If you need further evaluation and treatment, the nurse will direct you to the appropriate healthcare facility. Depending on the urgency of your symptoms, your healthcare insurance, and your current location, you may be sent to an urgent care clinic or emergency room (ER). Please present your healthcare insurance card and a list of your current medications. You are responsible to pay for any prescriptions you need. However, you may turn in your receipt into Contract Health Services (CHS) for reimbursement. Any bills received from the healthcare facility can be submitted to CHS for payment.

Your telephone call and recommended care by the nurse will be documented.

After regular business hours

Please call Oneida Community Health Center at (920) 869-2711. If you are certain that this is a life threatening emergency or injury and you need to go to the ER, please leave a message with the after-hours CHS notification line. The message should include the patient's name, birthdate, phone number and reason for ER visit, name of ER and healthcare insurance information.

If you need to discuss your symptoms with the nurse, stay on the line for the Answering Service. Those representatives will gather your contact information and have a nurse call you back. Depending on the urgency of your symptoms, your healthcare insurance, and your current location, you may be sent to either an urgent care clinic or emergency room. Please present your healthcare cad and list of current medications. You are responsible to pay for any prescriptions you need.

However, you may turn in your receipt into Contract Health Services for reimbursement. Any bills received from the healthcare facility can be submitted to Contract Health Services for payment.

USDA Land-Grant Development/Tribal Fellowship Program accepting Applications

From June first through the eighth, USDA will host faculty and staff from the 32 land-grant tribal colleges and universities (TCUs) that work in the areas of agriculture, conservation, science, or community development to participate in the USDA Land-Grant Development/ Tribal Fellowship Program, a key component of the Terra Preta do Indio Tribal Fellowship Suite. The USDA 1994 Tribal Land-Grant Colleges and Universities Program office works with land-grant TCUs to develop their land-grant capacities and rural tribal economies to ensure the US' food security. In order to achieve this mission, the Department offers accepted applicants a Tribal Fellowship, a one-week intensive workshop which includes the cost of travel, lodging, and per diem.

Over the course of the workshop, Fellows learn about programs and resources available throughout USDA and where and how to access them. They have an opportunity to exchange ideas with their colleagues, ask questions of specialists, and to consider which of the resources discussed might benefit their institutions. Fellows apply their knowledge by developing or revisiting their strategic plan to address the needs of their 1994 tribal land-grant college in the areas of agriculture, conservation, and the development of their rural communities – in collaboration with their institutions tribal community and with support from our staff and USDA service centers.

A local USDA service center can really make the difference in the success of these land-grants to optimize their plan. While the Tribal Fellows Program offers participants an overview of the USDA landscape and opportunities to share ideas and develop potential partnerships and relationships, the support of the local service centers is crucial to develop these collaborations. USDA service center employees' expertise and regional knowledge will help schools to implement a well thought out plan and to realize its goals.

In 2013 USDA graduated its first group of Terra Preta do Indio Tribal Fellows. While participants left a bit overwhelmed they also left with a better understanding of USDA and the programs available to them. For example:

"There are actually quite a few programs that are not just for me and my program at the farm but for the college overall. The idea was for me to come here and learn as much as I can and help the college to be able to access a lot of these programs…"

Claims Must Be Filed By March 1, 2013 In $3.4 Billion Indian Trust Settlement

What is This About?

The Cobell v. Salazar Settlement is approved. The Settlement resolves a class action lawsuit that claims that the federal government violated its duties by mismanaging trust accounts and individual Indian trust lands. Payments to the Historical Accounting Class are underway. The process of considering claims for the Trust Administration Class is ongoing.

The final deadline if you need to file a claim form for the Trust Administration Class is March 1, 2013.

Am I Included?

The Trust Administration Class includes:

- Anyone alive on September 30, 2009, who:
  - Had an IIM account recorded in currently available electronic data in federal government systems anytime from approximately 1985 to September 30, 2009, or
  - Can demonstrate ownership in trust land or land in restricted status as of September 30, 2009.
- The estate (or heirs) of any deceased landowner or IIM account holder whose account was open or whose trust assets had been in probate according to the federal government's records as of September 30, 2009.

Do I Need to File a Claim Form?

You must file a claim form if you believe you are a member of the Trust Administration Class and you have not:

- Received IIM account statements at your current address anytime between January 1, 1985 and September 30, 2009 and continue to receive statements; or
- Received a payment as a member of the Historical Accounting Class. If you did, you will receive a second payment automatically as a member of the Trust Administration Class; or
- Filed a claim form already using your current address. If you have, the Claims Administrator will contact you.

You must fill out a claim form and mail it to Indian Trust Settlement, P.O. Box 9577, Dublin, OH 43017-4877, postmarked by March 1, 2013 in order to receive a payment.

How Much Money Can I Get?

Members of the Trust Administration Class will likely receive at least $800 or more. The actual amount will depend on the number of claims and the costs of administration.

out of state. I do not travel unless absolutely necessary or I feel the tribe would benefit from the attendance."

Danforth looks to technology as a cost saver.

"First, I don't believe that just because I have been allocated a certain dollar amount for travel that I need to spend all of it. If there is an opportunity to conference call or video conference, then I utilize that option first," Danforth said. "Many state and federal agencies are cutting back on their travel expenses as well, and video conferencing, Skype, and conference calls seem to be utilized quite frequently."

Vice-Chairman Greg Matson looks for opportunities to get the most bang for the tribe's buck when he travels.

"We try to evaluate what we can bring back as a return on investment. For instance, I was able to attend an Inter-tribal agricultural conference and present on the behalf of the OCIFS. While in attendance, I passed out and shared information regarding our Ag Summit we will be having at the Radisson," Matson said.

"When you consider the cost of my travel to the three day event it was about $1,900. The return we will get at the Radisson and gaming will be in the 10's of thousands of dollars. It will be up to us to capture it."

Matson offers another solution that he sees as more beneficial to the tribe.

"I think we should allow various staff to go in our place when it is a subject they have a real understanding of. This does not mean the government to government travel but many of the conferences and such should be opened up for discussion on whom will bring back the best value to the tribe," Matson added.

"I understand the community and organizations' frustration in what appears to be a double standard and encourage them to question the individual committee members on why they were over their budgets," Danforth said.

"It may appear to some that our travel is in excess. However, there are many responsibilities and issues that the OBC needs to monitor that even we cannot cover them all at times. For example, while many believe that the Chairman should always be the representative at external governmental meetings, this is not always feasible. Many times the Chairman has asked that other BC members represent the tribe on issues that they have an interest in or have taken the lead on in their advocacy efforts, either at the state or national level. This leads to that BC member expending additional travel dollars out of their respective budget that they did not anticipate nor budget for," the group response said. "The OBC hears these concerns and are currently taking steps toward bringing the travel expense issue forward in a more transparent way. "

At the February 27 OBC meeting the committee will be considering some changes to how travel is approved and how travel funds will be budgeted during the remainder of this fiscal year and future fiscal years.

Each OBC member was given the opportunity to respond. Vice-Chairman Greg Matson, Council member David Jordan, and Council member Melinda Danforth responded individually while Chairman Ed Delgado, Treasurer Tina Danforth, Secretary Patty Hoeft, Council member Vince DelaRosa, Council member Brandon Stevens, and Council member Paul Ninham elected to align with the group response from the committee.

Walker's voucher plan angers public school backers

MADISON, Wis. (AP) ~ Gov. Scott Walker's plan to expand the private school voucher program statewide, while not allowing public school spending to increase, drew a raft of angry responses Monday from those who fear his budget leaves public school students behind.

The debate over Walker's public education funding proposal and desire to grow alternatives such as private school vouchers is likely to be one of the fiercest in the Statehouse this year, even dividing Republicans who control the Legislature.

Opponents to another part of Walker's plan - allowing vouchers for special-needs students - went to the Capitol on Monday to urge the governor to reconsider.

Wisconsin state Superintendent Tony Evers, who has worked with Walker on some education initiatives over the past two years, said Monday he was "deeply disappointed and saddened" by the governor's latest proposals.

While 40 percent of the state budget is dedicated to public education spending, only 20 percent of the new money Walker intends to spend would go for that, Evers said.

"Leaving public school kids behind is not a path to shared prosperity," Evers said in a statement.

Walker's budget to be released Wednesday will include about a 1 percent increase in funding for public schools, but the cap on how much can be raised from state money and from local property taxpayers remains in place. That means the additional state money will likely go toward keeping property taxes down, not additional spending on students or schools.

Planned Parenthood to close 4 Wisconsin centers

MADISON, Wis. (AP) ~ Planned Parenthood says it is closing four of its 27 locations in Wisconsin due to a lack of state funding.

The group announced Monday that facilities in Beaver Dam, Johnson Creek, Chippewa Falls and Shawano will close between April and July.

Planned Parenthood says the closures are the direct consequence of the Legislature eliminated $1 million in state funding for the group in the last budget.

Planned Parenthood says the closures will mean affect services provided to 2,000 patients.

Apple production lowest since 1945

MADISON, Wis. (AP) ~ Apple production in Wisconsin has dropped to its lowest level since 1945.

The National Agricultural Statistics Service says apple production in 2012 was down 54 percent in Wisconsin. Yields decreased more than three tons per acre.

A heat wave last spring caused apple trees to bloom prematurely. And then frost in April killed many of the blossoms. A summer drought only made things worse.

Wisconsin Apple Growers Association director Ann Maenner says they're hoping this year will be different and that the trees will stay dormant until the frost is gone.

The State Journal says apple production dropped 4 percent nationally.

Alabama sues 3 Indian casinos, raids VictoryLand

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) - The state moved Tuesday to shut down four casinos it maintains are operating illegally in Alabama, filing suit to close three Indian gambling centers and seizing machines and cash from VictoryLand.

Attorney General Luther Strange's office filed suit against the Poarch Band of Creek Indians to close their casinos in Atmore, Montgomery and Wetumpka.

State troopers, meanwhile, served a search warrant with the aim of closing VictoryLand, located in Shorter in Macon County.

A statement from Strange said VictoryLand was operating in ``open defiance'' of laws against gambling.

``From my first day in office, I have worked to ensure that illegal gambling laws are enforced consistently across the state,'' Strange said in a statement.

Officials with the Poarch Band didn't immediately return calls seeking comment.

A lawyer for VictoryLand owner Milton McGregor, Joe Espy, said no court has ever ruled that the machines at the east Alabama attraction are illegal.

``No matter how one feels about legal gaming, this is a sad day for Alabama,'' Espy said in a statement. He called the lawsuit against the Poarch Band casino ``a smokescreen and a waste of taxpayer money'' since the state lacks control of Indian gambling.

The moves were the latest in the state's long-running effort to shut down what it contends are illegal gambling operations.

Both the tribal group and VictoryLand operators have contended their machines are legal.

The lawsuit over the Poach Band casinos, filed in Elmore County, asked a court to stop the use of illegal slot machines at the group's Wind Creek Casino in Atmore; the Creek Casino in Montgomery; and the Creek Casino in Wetumpka.

Federal law doesn't allow state police to enforce state law on Indian lands, but the lawsuit said the Poarch Band cannot operate slot machines or lotteries that are illegal everywhere else in Alabama.

State troopers blocked the entrance to VictoryLand, which was closed but reopened in December after federal jurors last year acquitted McGregor and others in an alleged Statehouse bribery scheme. Strange said officer seized several hundred gambling machines and case.

The state will ask a Macon County court to make the owners forfeit the machines and money to the state, Strange's office said.

Recycling Rates are On The Rise in Oneida

Great News! Recycling rates are continuing to rise in Oneida. Per household, there has been an increase in recycling from 330 pounds per year in 2011 to 363 pounds per year in 2012; this is an increase of 10%! Although our recycling rate is rising, we are still landfilling 78% of our waste. It is estimated that the residents of Wisconsin as a whole recycle approximately 40% of their waste. We are currently at about 22%, so we do have some work to do.

In order to continue raising our recycling rates, make sure you are recycling everything you possibly can. This includes:

- Mixed Paper-paper, cardboard, newspaper, magazines, books, paperboard
- Plastics-anything with a neck and the number 1 or 2 on the bottom
- Glass-glass jars and bottles (no serving ware, plates, drinking glasses)
- Metal-aluminum, tin and bi-metal cans from food and beverages

For questions on recycling please contact Amy Spears at 869-4549 or aspears@oneidanation.org.

Dumping or burning of waste prohibited on reservation

As Oneida people our original instructions given to us by the creator are to always take care of our Mother Earth and walk respectfully among creation.

According to the Recycling and Solid Waste Disposal Law, No dumping or burning of solid waste is allowed on the reservation. Those caught violating this law could be assessed a fine as high as $2000. Sometimes the Division of Land Management monitors sites with hidden cameras and reports violators to the Oneida Police Department.

Other disposal options exist on or near the reservation:

Brown County Transfer Station: Take garbage, tire and appliances for a fee Hwy 54, Oneida 920-492-4950

Brown County Household Hazardous Waste Facility: Take HHW for no charge, latex paint for a fee 2561 S. Broadway, Green Bay 920-492-4950

Best Buy: Electronic Waste some for free, some for a fee; and appliances for a fee All locations 920-494-2950

Milwaukee PC: Electronic Waste, some for free some for a fee Green Bay and Appleton locations 920-465-4430

Smittys Salvage: Take all scrap metal and appliances, some for a fee some receive $$ 920-468-7715

Please take care of and respect our Mother Earth.

Oneida Housing Authority

Single Family Housing Applications

The Oneida Housing Authority will be seeking an FY 2013 Indian Community Development Block Grant for infrastructure construction off of Seminary Road. We are currently working with Leander Danforth to give this property an Oneida name. This new site is designated for families in need of 4 and 5 bedroom homes. This is a new initiative in providing housing ownership homes and rental homes. We need your assistance in determining exactly how many units we will need to build. Housing applications are available at the OHA office. Your application completion date will determine where you will be on the waiting list. If you have questions regarding your eligibility please call David Webster, Housing Resource Coordinator at 920-869-2227 for details. Remember you can always turn a unit down, but you have to be on the list to be considered for housing.

Community Meetings for the Indian Community Development Block Grant Application

A new Oneida Housing Authority initiative is to provide housing for families in need of 4 and 5 bedroom homes.

OHA is sponsoring two community meetings to get your input and comments regarding 4 and 5 bedroom family housing in the community. The first community meeting is scheduled for Wednesday, February 27, 2013 at the OHA office conference room at 5:00 p.m. Light snacks and beverage will be available. The second community meeting will be held on Wednesday, March 6, 2013 at the OHA office conference room at 5:00p.m. Light snacks and beverage will be available.

Topics for discussion during the meetings will include applicant income eligibility, application forms and documents needed to complete a housing application. Other topics will include site location and types of housing. You as a community member have a voice in housing in our community, please attend and let your concerns be considered. If you have any questions, please contact Laurel Meyer-Spooner;

Discounted telephone service
available to some low-income consumers

Telephone service is considered a necessity, yet the cost of activating and maintaining the service may be too costly for some consumers. For this reason, the government provides two low-income programs for qualifying customers through the federal Universal Service Fund – Lifeline and Link-up.

These programs provide discounts on initial connection fees and monthly service for qualified telephone subscribers.

The qualifications for these programs vary by state. To find out if you qualify or for more information, please contact Nsight Telservices – Pulaski at 920-865-7000.

Residents of Oconto, Oconto Falls and Abrams can reach Nsight Telservices at 920-826-5215.

Section 184 Indian Housing Loan Guarantee Program Available at Bay Bank

Homeownership in Indian Country

In 1992, Congress established the Section 184 Indian Housing Loan Guarantee Program. The program was designed to offer homeownership and housing rehabilitation opportunities for eligible Native American individuals, families, tribes, and Tribally Designated Housing Entities. (Including Indian Housing Authorities) on their native lands and within and approved Indian area as defined in HUD P.I.H. Notice 2004-19.

Section 184 Program Highlights

- Nationwide program on trust land, allotted trust, or fee simple land. In the State of Wisconsin, Tribal Members may obtain financing through the 184 Program for properties located on or off the Reservation.
- Refinancing available
- Purchase and rehabs
- New construction including manufactured homes
- Low down payment
- No maximum income limits
- Flexible underwriting
- 1% guarantee fee at closing can be financed into loan
- No private mortgage insurance required
- Up to 30 year fixed rate financing at conventional rates!

Any Native American or Alaskan Native that is a member of a federally recognized tribe or an Alaskan village is eligible for a Section 184 loan.

To obtain additional information or to apply for a Section 184 loan, please contact a mortgage specialist at Bay Bank.

2013 USA Curling National Championships in Green Bay

Event sponsored in part by Oneida Tribe

Yvonne Kaquatosh
Kalihwisaks

The 2013 USA Curling National Championships were held last week (Feb. 9-16, 2013) at the Cornerstone Community Ice Center, (off of Packerland) 1640 Fernando Dr., DePere.

ONHS students along with their teachers attended the event. The students had the opportunity to give curling a try as experienced curlers worked with them at another facility prior to going to the competition. They included: Diego Metoxen, Noelle Metoxen, Shaun Hill, Curtis Doxtator, Shy House Lakota Martinez, and Yeyʌ · tét Stevens. "It was difficult but after they showed you (how) it was easier," said Shy House, when asked about the experience. "It was fun," added Curtis Doxtator. Sonny Hill and Ces Dawson, PE Teacher at ONHS, accompanied the students to the event.

With Sincere Appreciation and Gratitude…

Our family felt the neighborly love that we grew up with in Neopit once again when a core group of friends and family (People that we've known since we were kids in the ole neighborhood in White City) rolled up their sleeves by volunteering of their time, money and culinary skills on Friday, February 15 at the Keshena Rec Center.

First and foremost, we'd like to acknowledge the coordinators of the fundraiser, Pershing 'Sport' and Pam 'Hootsie' Frechette. Thank you both for doing such an awesome job!

With sincere appreciation and gratitude we would also like to thank and acknowledge the following people who made the scrumptious soups, biscuits and various baked goods. They include: Laura Doud (Wild Rice soups); Liz Shawanokasic, Buckle Waukau, and Wendell Waukau (Chili); Lori Waukau, Diana (Mrs. Roger) Waukau, and Gwen Awonohopay (Hull Corn soup); Georgia Frechette (Chicken soup); Dar Welk (soup); the Neopit Chiefs baseball team for their donation for the ingredients; Paula Waukau, Candy & Scott Leaman for their delicious baked goods; the biscuit makers–Kissy and Mary Denny, Jean and Susie Corn, Kathy Waukau, and (Aunt) Barb Tourtillott. Your home cooking made the sale a great success. Ronna Frechette for volunteering her time, Honey LaTender and Gene Caldwell for coordinating the 50/50 raffles in Keshena and Neopit respectively.

Thank you to the following for their monetary donations: Jon & Yvette Wilber; Sharon Waukau; Steve & Stephanie Awonohopay; Simon & Carol LaTender; Hub, Linda & Family; Manzie & Jerilyn Waupoose, Linda & Gene Caldwell and Jeff Komanekin.

We are humbled by the generosity that has been bestowed upon our family so we can be by our brother Gordy who is battling cancer. Round one is complete. The chemo and radiation have been successful. His last scan has shown that the cancer was minimized and has been contained. Round two is upon us. Surgery is scheduled for March 1st in Salt Lake City, Utah at the Huntsman Cancer Institute.

Dale and I expressed our desire to be with him and his family before, during and after the surgery when that time comes. Our family (Glenda and our children) put that in motion for us by presenting us with a start-up fund a few months back so we could be by him. Going forward, life changes are inevitable for our brother. Please keep him in your prayers. We will provide updates on his condition as time allows while we are with him and will pass on all well wishes.

No amount of time and distance changes the friendships formed in our lives. It was quite evident to us on Feb. 15th. The community support was and is always there for families in need. Thank you! The baked goods (Candy, you out did yourself. I hope your boys and husband Scott were able to enjoy something you baked) Ahh, the biscuits were heaven sent. Ten Nesco's filled to the brim with delicious secret soup recipes that were made by the ladies and men for others to enjoy on this day. Also, a huge Thank you for the use of the Recreation Center to hold the fundraiser.

Our strength comes from the support and love of family and friends. And our appreciation goes far beyond the spoken word. You ALL are a blessing. Thank You from the bottom of our hearts ♥ for being there for our family.

Tech Club to help ONHS students

By Heather Stevens
Thunderhawk Times

Elvis Bartlett is a former student of the Oneida Nation High School and now works for the Oneida Nation in the MIS Technology Department. He, along with his MIS collegue James Sommerfeldt, are planning to put together a Tech Group for students attending ONHS. Elvis feels that technology is growing faster and faster each day.

"Even if you are working at McDonald's, you are going to need to know how to use a computer," said Elvis.

Bartlett and Sommerfeldt created the Tech Group so ONHS students (and potentially Oneida students in other schools) can learn things designing websites and building computers. During this program, they plan to assist the students in taking apart and putting together computers. Once the computers are built, the students in the Tech Club will be able to take the computers home and keep them.

Also, ONHS students in the Tech Club will be Microsoft Certified by the end of the school year.

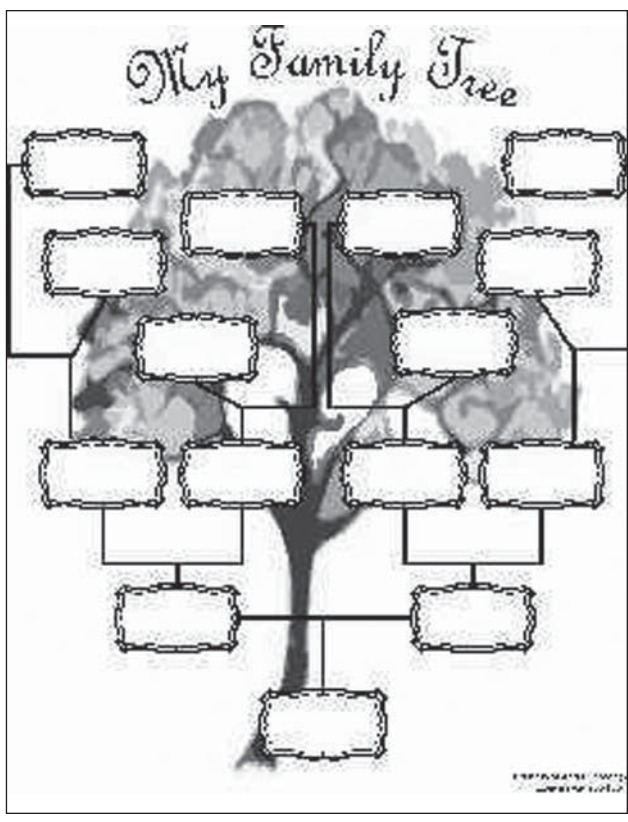
Bartlett came up with the idea of a Tech Club by talking with Jonie Buckly about how he wished programs like this would've been available when he was attending high school. Elvis then spoke with James Sommerfelt, a collegue at MIS, who decided to collaborate on this project and bring the ONHS Tech Club into existence.

Elvis hopes that it will have students more familiar with technology. This program also opens up opportunities for internships with MIS which only requires 1 year of experience and a high school diploma. The starting wage at MIS is a minimum of $13.00 an hour.

Elvis Bartlett

"This is a great opportunity for our students. I hope they take advantage of Elvis and James' generosity and expertise," said Gary Lancelle, computer teacher at ONHS.

How to Use the Genealogy Department in Your Local Library



By Bryan Quella
Thunderhawk Times

Did you know that you are able to easily access records about your ancestors? The most well-known place to complete that research is online on www.ancestry.com and other websites like that. You would be amazed at what you can find out about the people in your family from things like old censuses and other records.

Surprisingly, another place that you can find information is the downtown branch of the Brown County Library. On the second floor, there is an entire room that has all kinds of information.

Things you can find there are death notices which will tell you when someone died so that you can look at their obituary. Another record is the marriage index which will tell you when a couple was married. There are also records of cemeteries and who is buried in which cemetery.

Another place you can get information are old city directories which tell where people lived as far back as the 1870s. They even have the oldest phone books there, and plat maps which tell who owned property.

Teens Buckled Down by Green Bay Authorities

By Amanda A. Williams
Thunderhawk Times

Teenagers around the Brown County area are now getting heavier consequences for truancy or staying out past curfew due to the increase on burglaries and theft of vehicles. These illegal activities are happening more during the day while students should be in school.

Green Bay Police Captain Bill Bongle said, "Many of these offenses are committed by young people who are truant from school. If you enforce truancy and get kids back in school where they belong, then you're going to have an impact and reduce those types of crimes."

Green Bay reported that in 2011 crime rates went up 3% from 2010. No reports are yet on record for 2012, but they have gone up. Police are also worried about children as young as 13 years old are using the stolen property to support the habit of smoking marijuana or synthetic weed (K2 and Spice).

Captain Bongle added, "Parents and families need to take a bigger role in looking after their kids and making sure they're home and involved in supervised activities."

Green Bay City prohibits 16 and younger to be wondering the streets without a parent or guardian from 10 P.M. to 6 A.M. Truancy will be enforced heavily: the first offense is $114, second offense $177, and an unacceptable absence of 5 days carries a fine of $366. These orders are going to be carried throughout the Brown County area.

Get Your Very Own Library Card

By Bryan Quella
Thunderhawk Times

Getting and using a library card at the Brown County Library is as easy as 1-2-3.

First, you need to go to the Central Library at 515 Pine Street in downtown Green Bay. There are also eight branch libraries scattered across Brown County, and there is also a bookmobile that travels around.

If you are under 18, you better bring a parent or legal guardian with you when you get your card, because they are going to have to sign a "Child Card Application." If you are 18 or older, you are able to get a library card on your own.

Second, you will be asked to fill out an application with your legal name, address, phone number, and birthdate. Your parent or guardian will have to do the same. You will also be asked whether you are a male or a female. By filling out and turning in the application card, you get your library card.

Third, you can start checking out books, CDs, DVDs, and other materials. You can reserve books and other materials from any of the libraries online with your library card.

Once you have your library card, you also have responsibility. The library will hold your parent or guardian responsible for any fines or fees that you incur. Fines can be steep. Other things you should know: The library has free wi-fi, and your one library card will work at all of the branch libraries.

Student of the Month: Ayashe Ramirez

By Amanda A. Williams
Thunderhawk Times

Officially meet a real Native American teenage leader: Ayashe Ramirez. She resides in Green Bay, Wisconsin, along with her mother, Ana Ramirez, and 8 siblings: 4 sisters and 4 brothers. Her dad, Forrest Barton, attended ONHS when he was in high school, and now his daughter, Ayashe, is currently a sophomore at Oneida Nation High School and February's Student of the Month.

Ayashe is a great example of a young leader. Since October of 2012, Ayashe has been a part of the Brown County Teen Leadership program in Green Bay. This program is provided by the Green Bay Area Chamber of Commerce. The participants meet once a month during the school year. It is available to sophomores and can last throughout their high school career.

Ayashe Ramirez

During the program, Ayashe will learn leadership skills, meet new people, and discuss problems in Green Bay. They represent the young people's outlook and can make better changes to the city.

Ayashe says, "I think it's fun. Freshman who are about to be sophomores should apply. It's worth the time. You meet a lot of people and learn a lot of stuff you didn't know, such as social skills."

During her free time, she enjoys reading and drawing. Ayashe's favorite type of books are mainly horror, although she reads a variety of books.

Ayashe has incredible plans after high school. She would like to attend the Institute of American Indian Arts in Santa Fe, Mexico. After getting a degree in art, she is going to apply her drawing skills to a full time job as a tattoo artist. She lives by the motto "Hakuna Matata" which, in her words, mean: "Don't stress over things that won't matter in 5 years."

Taking the ACT & SAT tests

By Emmitt Big Medicine
Thunderhawk Times

The SAT and ACT are two of the most important test students will take in high school. The ACT is an achievement test; it finds out what all the students learned in their years of high school. The SAT test is an aptitude test; it tests reasoning and verbal abilities.

The ACT is set up by 5 different areas of testing: English, Mathematics, Reading, Science, and an optional Writing Test. The SAT is set up by 3 different tests: Critical Reasoning, Mathematics, and a required Writing Test.

It's recommended that students take these tests during their high school career. Students will get many benefits if they get a high score on the ACT. Many colleges give scholarships to people with scores above 23.

Estate Claims Assistant
Oneida Enrollment Department

As your Estate Claims Assistant, this issue will focus on what's involved with funeral arrangements. In the nine months that I've been here, several comments made by families who buried loved one stands out in my mind. The first comment is "how surprised they were at how quickly the cost of a funeral can add up". The second comment was "funeral directors may try to pressure you to buy goods and services you don't need or want". If you have never been in charge of handling funeral arrangements for a loved one, here are some things you can expect.

When a loved one dies

One of the first tasks is selecting a funeral home. One responsibility of a funeral director is to provide you with the emotional and spiritual support you will need to plan your loved ones memorial service. They will handle paperwork associated with a death such as: filing for death certificates, transport and preparation of body, prepare obituary, provide for the sale of goods and services such as casket, urn, cemetery vault, memorial book/card and to ensure family wishes are carried out from start to finish. In some instances funeral homes may also cash advance families for cemetery costs which may include the plot, marking/opening & closing fees, monument/headstone and food expenses.

Oneida Life Insurance Plan Plus

OLIPP (Oneida Life Insurance Plan Plus) is a $15,000 term life insurance plan which is a benefit to all enrolled tribal members. The intent of a life insurance policy is to help offset a person's final expenses (which can include funeral related expenses). Therefore, we encourage each adult tribal member to designate at least one beneficiary to carry out their final wishes. If you are one of the approximate 6000 tribal members who have not completed your Beneficiary Designation form, please contact me at the Oneida Enrollment Office at 920-869-6212, toll free at 1-800-571-9902, or visit our website www.oneidanation.org/enrollments

Funeral Planning Tips

When a loved one dies, grieving family members are often confronted with dozens of questions and decisions to be made in a short amount of time and this can be a very overwhelming experience. Here are some tips to consider:

Packaged Deals

Some funeral homes offer various "packages" of goods and services. When you're making funeral plans you have the right to purchase goods and services separately. You don't have to accept a package that may include items you do not want. If offered a package deal, find out what's all included in that price.

Shop Around

It's wise to compare prices from at least two funeral homes. People often select a funeral home because it's close to home, has served the family in the past, or has been recommended by someone else. By limiting your search to just one funeral home you may risk paying more than necessary.

Resist pressure

To buy goods and services you don't want or need.

Avoid emotional overspending

It's not necessary to have the most lavish casket or funeral to properly honor a loved one. Consider alternatives such as funding a memorial gathering at a future date.

Recognize your rights

Laws regarding funeral and burials vary from state to state. It would be advantageous to know which goods and services the law "requires" you to purchase. E.g. local cemeteries in the Oneida area may require you to purchase a vault or grave liner but Oneida Cemetery does NOT require a vault/liner.

The Funeral Rule

The Funeral Rule was enacted in 1984, (amended in 1994) under the U.S. Federal Trade Commission (FTC); the rule ensures protection for consumers who require information regarding the goods and services they may purchase from a funeral home. To find FTC Facts for consumers, visit www.ftc.gov/funerals, click "Consumer Information", click "order free resources", scroll down to "Paying Final Respects" and click on that document to print a copy.

Your Rights under the Funeral Rule-The Funeral Rule gives you the right to:

1. Buy only the goods and services you want. You have the right to buy separate goods (such as caskets) and services. You do not have to accept a package that may include items you do not want.
2. Get price information on the telephone-Funeral directors must give you price information on the telephone if you ask for it. You don't have to give them your name, address or phone number first, unless you want it mailed to you.
3. Get a written itemized price list when you visit a funeral home. The funeral home must give you a General Price List (GPL) which is yours to keep. It lists all the items and services the home offers, and cost of each one.
4. See a written casket price list before you see the actual caskets. Get the price information before you see the caskets, so that you can ask about lower-priced products that may not be on display.
5. See a written outer burial container price list. Outer burials containers are not required by state law but many cemeteries do require them for a burial. If you don't see lower priced outer burial containers on the price list, ask for them.
6. Receive a written statement after you decide what you want and before you pay for it. It should show exactly what you're buying and cost of each item, must show every good and service selected along with the price and provides the total cost immediately after you make the arrangements.
7. Get an explanation in written form from the funeral home that describes any legal cemetery or crematory requirement which requires you to buy any funeral goods or services.
8. Use an "alternative container" instead of a casket for cremation. No state or local law requires the use of a casket for cremation. Funeral homes that offer cremation must tell you that alternative containers are available and must make them available. Their generally made of unfinished wood, pressed wood, fiberboard or cardboard.
9. Provide the funeral home with a casket or urn you purchased elsewhere. The funeral provider cannot refuse to handle a casket or urn you buy online, wholesale or somewhere else and they can't charge you a fee to do this. The funeral home cannot require you to be there when the casket or urn is delivered to them.
10. Make funeral arrangements without embalming. No state law requires routine embalming for every death. Some states may require embalming or refrigeration if the body is not buried or cremated within a certain amount of time. Some states don't require embalming at all. If you choose services like direct cremation and immediate burial they don't require any form of preservation. Many funeral homes may have a policy requiring embalming if the body is to be publicly viewed after a certain amount of time has lapsed, but this is not required by law in most states. If some form of preservation is necessary, ask the funeral home if refrigeration is available.

In conclusion, funeral planning is something we all will experience at some point in our lives. Thus, the Oneida Enrollment Department has taken on the initiative of creating our own "Estate Planner" which will be uniquely and culturally designed for our membership. Please watch for further announcement when this project is completed. I hope this information is helpful and if you have any questions, please feel free to contact me directly at 920-869-6212, toll free at 1-800-571-9902 or email me at jdenny@oneidanation.org.

Next Kahli issue will focus on the Oneida Beneficiary Designation Form and the legal aspects when it comes to Power Of Attorney, Guardianship of the Person or Estate, Establishing Trust Accounts for Minors and designating Incompetent Adults as beneficiaries.

LANDLORD/TENANT LAWS

Economic Support Services (formerly known as Center for Self-Sufficiency) will host a presentation by the Tenant Resource Center located in Madison, to provide education to community members who are currently renting an apartment/home or those who may be planning to enter into a rental agreement in the future. What your lease says, when something happens, where you live and the details of the situation will all impact what rights you have. Did you know …

… that landlords can declare your property "abandoned" at the end of your lease, or if they think you have left? (They can sell your property and make a profit off of it!)

… that if you move out early, the landlord doesn't have to return your security deposit until 21 days after the end of the lease?

… that a landlord can terminate your tenancy if a crime is committed in or on the rental property, even if the tenant couldn't have reasonably prevented the crime?

Come learn the answers and obtain more information about the following:

Eviction Law in Wisconsin* Carpet Cleaning/Damages*
Tenant/Landlord Law changes* Return of Security Deposits*
Legal Methods of Removal* Sheriff's Sale*
Landlord Duty to Disclose Foreclosure*
Explaining 5-day, 14-day, and 30 day notices*

Space is limited, so please call 490-3939 to reserve a spot.

Wednesday, March 6 from 10:00am – 2:00pm
Oneida Tribe Social Services – Green Room
(2640 West Point Rd, Green Bay)
(Lite lunch will be provided)

If you are unable to attend the presentation but still have questions or need information before signing a lease, you can call the Tenant Resource Center directly at 1-877-238-RENT, or by email at asktrc@tenantresourcecenter.org

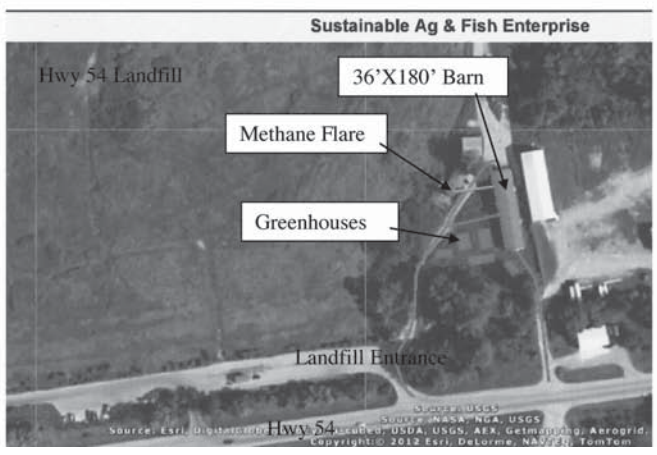
Proposed Brown County Hwy 54 Landfill Project

Dear Community Member,



You are invited to attend an informational meeting at the Harmony Café/ GoodWill on West Mason St. Green Bay, February 26, 2013 at 6:00pm (Peace Room).

We are seeking community input for utilizing the current 280SCFM methane burn-off at the highway 54 landfill site which includes a vacant 36'X180' barn as shown in the aerial photo below. Some ideas presented are listed below but are not limited to:

- Sustainable agriculture
- Farmed fish; perch, walleye, and blue gill
- Aquaponics
- Biomass recycling
- Beehives + honey
- Forest stock seedlings
- Nursery stock
- Verimculture
- CO_2 plant fertilization
- Community composting
- Job creation; agro-tourism, & internships

Please attend this informational meeting to support and help find ways to use the methane resource in a responsible manner. This project is being designed to benefit the community with jobs, sustainability, and will be a model project for global landfills in the future.

Thank you for your concern, time, and valuable input. See you next Tuesday.

Oneida's ANA Language Grant Providing a Spark

Submitted by ANA Language Program Staff

Since 2010, Oneida Cultural Heritage Department has been receiving grant funding from the Administration for Native Americans (ANA). The funds from the grants have made it possible for Cultural Heritage to provide the community with language classes, a Oneida language website and a mentorship program for committed language learners.

The program has seen increasing numbers since 2010 with the number of classes offered, the website has continued to develop and the mentorship program currently has 14 mentees.

Recapping 2012

Language Classes

One of the objectives of the grant is to create language-learning environments and there are language classes held daily in the community. The program has also found its way into the public school system with classes being held at Lombardi Middle School, MacArthur Elementary and West De Pere High School. In the first quarter of 2012 a total of 76 language classes were held and 260 participants in the classes.

Online Language Learning

Oneidanation.org/language is the Oneida language website. There you can find a base of units and levels of Oneida language with vocabulary and sound files for everything listed. In March a new website design will be unveiled which will be more user-friendly. Since October 2012 we have had 2,091hits!

Yes - There's and App for that!

The Oneida Language App is available for download in the Itunes, Google Play, Amazon, Barnes and Noble nook store for free!

We have Friends!

Find us on Facebook for updates on events and classes. Search for us at "ANA Lang Grant"

Mentorship Program

The Mentorship Program began in 2011. Potential mentees must apply and pass an oral assessment to be considered but everyone is welcome to classes and language materials. Interested mentees should have 2-3 years of language experience.

Oneida Cultural Heritage Department hosted a potluck to view a newly released Oneida language video. Another potluck will be held Tuesday, March 5 at 5:00pm at the Social Services Cottage #2.

Each mentee is assigned a mentor and they work together on language skills. Mentees are encouraged to spend as much as twenty hours a week in language activities. Once a mentee masters a unit or level of curriculum they will be evaluated in that unit or level before moving onto the next. There are currently 14 mentees in the program.

Positive outcomes from the mentorship have already begun to make a difference. Two of the mentees are teaching language classes for other beginners.

Language Materials

Our program has several language books, CD's, flash cards, and several types of promotional items like T-shirts, backpacks, bumper stickers, etc.

Stop by our office anytime to pick up anything. We are located behind the Social Services Building, at 1240 Packerland Dr., in Cottage #2.

Language materials are available for the community at our office located behind social services building at 1240 Packerland Dr. in Cultural Wellness cottage II.

We offer cd's, books, flashcards and several promotional items such as t-shirts, backpacks, bumper sticks, stop in today and check it out!

Upcoming Event

We have monthly pot lucks for anyone interested in learning more about our program. Our next put luck will be March 5, 5:00-7:00pm, at Social Services Cottage #2.

In the News with… Cultural Heritage

Archives: What are they?

By Loretta Metoxen

The definition of archives is:

1. An organized body of records relating to an organization or institution or
2. A repository of data.

In the case of the Oneida Nation, it is much more than that. Some clarification could be added that states that the Nation's original records, including Treaties, Constitutions, the Kayanlakowa, Kaliwiyo, and allotment documents all have an archival nature and value. There are thousands of papers, books, photos, films and now videos that tell our story.

The Culture Heritage Department has been working diligently with the Tribal Secretary's office and Steve Webster, the Director of Records Management to define the work to be done, to purge unnecessary records and to preserve old records. The intent of this work is to reduce redundant materials, i.e. several copies of one document, to organize hard copies, to scan documents so that they are available for research, electronically, and to make all Tribal information available, in the end, to Tribal membership.

This project is a huge undertaking, with at least a composite of ideas from a dozen people.

The History Program began collecting original documents and copies of extremely important papers, such as the Kansas Land Claims, about fifteen years ago. Over the years, much has been added. This current project to define the direction of both Archives and Records Management is critical. It is critical because resources need to be secured for adequate space which is climate controlled, a research room and trained personnel to care for the collections and assist clientele who wish to utilize the materials.

Several work sessions have been held to put together a master plan to address all the needs of this project so we can move forward for the good of the Oneida Nation.

Keep your eye out for our History Program's future events in 2013!
Dates and Locations TBA

This book begins with the Oneida Creation Story and quickly moves forward through time. Other topics include the Oneida Thanksgiving Address, Clan System, Iroquois Confederacy and Great Law, European Colonization, the American Revolution and the Oneida migration to Wisconsin and more. Wrapping up with reservation life in Wisconsin and a snap shot into the present, this book offers a great introduction to anyone who wishes to read and learn about the Oneida Nation of Wisconsin. (8.5 x 11 inches, 32 pages black and white, © 2013, Oneida Nation of Wisconsin).

This short book is a reproduction of a booklet that was originally printed 110 years ago. Tribal Historian Loretta Metoxen researched and wrote summaries to accompany the 38 black and white photographs depicting the Oneida Reservation and its inhabitants at the beginning of the 20th century. Topics include Churches on the Reservation, Oneida Families, Boarding Schools, Industries on the Reservation and more. (5.5 x 8.5 inches, 32 pages, black and white print, © 2001, Oneida Nation of Wisconsin).

Oneida Guard Diego Metoxen finishes a layup for the T-Hawks. The Oneida Thunderhawks played the first round of the WIAA State Playoffs in Sheboygan against the Sheboygan Area Lutheran Crusaders on Tuesday, February 19, 2013. The T-Hawks fought the full-court press of the Crusaders for the entirety of the game, struggling to put together consecutive baskets. Despite falling behind early Oneida continued to battle until the final buzzer. Final score Oneida 35, Sheboygan 73.

Mills to play in international game

By Travis Cottrell
Kalihwisaks

Standout football player Mike Mills will represent the Oneida Nation in an international football game, which will be played in Paris, France.

As a part of the American Football Worldwide organization, Mills advanced through a series of tryouts to make to all-star squad.

After putting together a pair of successful football seasons for the Oneida Nation Thunderhawks, head coach Bryan Peterson submitted Mills as a candidate for the program.

"Then the team contacted me and let me know they wanted me to come to a regional tryout in Chicago. So I went to that tryout and I guess they liked me because they moved me to the next level, which was in Texas," Mills said.

The regional tryout held in Chicago featured 1,000 players from the Midwest, while the tryout in Texas had over 500 athletes.

"When I went to the tryout in Chicago there was one other kid from Milwaukee and me that were from Wisconsin. Then at the Texas tryout I was the only player from Wisconsin," added Mills.

After surviving the tryouts Mills was invited to be a member of "Team Stars 'n' Stripes" at the high school senior level of college bound athletes.

To pay for the trip to France, Mills and his family have been putting together fundraising events to accumulate the funds needed for the trip.

Mike Mills

"I had to do fundraising and then send that money in and that pays for the flight, hotel, and the food. Then there is a tour that we will be taking when we are there," Mills explained.

In order for participants to retain their amateur status and allow them to continue their football career at the college level the athletes must personally provide the funds.

The American Football Worldwide organization not only provides the means to play the game of football, but it also provides educational and academic experiences for the visiting athletes by organizing cultural activities and museum tours.

Mills will use this experience to prepare him for college.

"I got a trip to Northern Michigan University to talk with coaches and check out the campus. Then I have to call the (University of) Oshkosh football coach back, UW-Whitewater's coach is supposed to call me today," Mills said.

As his departure date approaches Mills primary goal is to have fun and take in this once-in-a-lifetime opportunity.

"Hopefully they have people to help us get around and get things we need because I've never been outside the United States and I don't know too much French," Mills laughed.

Federal sequester may impact Oneida budget planning

By Dawn Walschinski
Kalihwisaks
dwalschi@oneidanation.org

The federal government is planning to cut $85 billion from its budget this fiscal year as part of sequestration, but the initial impact to Oneida should be minimal according to Oneida Business Committee (OBC) Treasurer Tina Danforth.

The cuts are split between national defense and non-defense which results in a five percent cut to programs such as Medicare, Medicaid, Health and Human Services, Housing and Urban Development, and other programs.

"Medicaid, Medicare will be more on an individual basis than a program, but we might see a reduction in third party billing," she said.

Oneida Headstart received a notice concerning the financial cut as did other Headstart programs across the country, however, Danforth is taking a wait and see approach to any other proposed cuts which may not start until April if a continuing resolution can't be agreed upon by the Obama administration and Congress.

One bright spot is that there are no plans to cut Veterans Affairs funding.

"It's nice that the veterans' programs and services will be untouched," she said.

Danforth explained that the five percent cuts will be spread over the country, and so Oneida won't feel a huge impact, but still has to deal with its own budget problems.

"If any grants or federal funding are cut at the 5% level that trickles down to the tribal level, there are no funds to replace that, especially for this year," she said.

The OBC is starting to plan the FY2014 budget and will be holding community meetings to get input from its citizens.

The OBC and community members discuss the budget at a meeting held Wednesday, March 6. There will be another meeting held Monday, March 18 from 10:00am to 12:00pm at the Norbert Hill Center, N7210 Seminary Road.

Lady Thunderhawks on historic tournament run

By Nate Wisneski
Kalihwisaks
nwisnes@oneidanation.org

The Oneida Nation Lady Thunderhawks basketball team is in the midst of a historic season not seen in team sports at the school. They are the first team to be WIAA Regional champions, finished the season with a 19 – 3 record, and are two games away from a state tournament berth.

"We knew we had the talent and anything was possible if we worked hard, committed our selves, and put the time and effort to make it a team game. We talked in length how our main goal was to get to the Regional Finals and finally win that game to get to Sectionals," said Head Coach Jamie Betters. "It was a great goal to accomplish."

Senior guard Jessica House is excited about the Regional win but has her sights on a bigger prize.

"It's awesome. It's something we wanted and a goal we made at the beginning of the season. We're trying to get to State and go as far as we can as hard as we can. All we're about right now is Thursday, we want to take it one game at a time," she said.

Junior Center Yasmine Denny sprained her knee during the Regional final and her status for Thursday's Sectional game is still not clear. She explains what makes the Lady Thunderhawks so tough to defend.

"We understand our places and everyone knows what they are to do. Everything is really coming together for us these last couple of weeks. We work so hard in practice," she said.

Betters is 57-14 in her 3.5 years as head coach. She saw untapped potential at the school when she took the job. They fell to Sheboygan Lutheran in the Regionals last season.

"Working in the building, I got to start to know a lot of the students and realize the talent the school had. I knew what such fine young ladies the high school had that was not being recognized. I felt I could make a difference. So I applied for the volleyball position for a month to get my feet in the door because ultimately I wanted the basketball position," she said.

The girls responded well to her volleyball coaching and even asked her to consider the vacant basketball coaching position.

"Bob Ganka gave me that opportunity. I wanted to show the community the value in these ladies and the school system as there were so many demeaning comments being made about these students as if they were not allowed to be successful and where the leftovers that didn't make the public school system. I knew we had to prove everyone wrong even our community and the

Wis. Senate backs bill boosting workforce training

By Scott Bauer
Associated Press

MADISON, Wis. ~ The state Senate on Tuesday unanimously passed one of Gov. Scott Walker's proposals that bolsters funding for workforce training and pays for the creation of a new database to better match job seekers with openings.

No one spoke out against the Republican-sponsored bill that also easily passed the Assembly on a 94-4 vote last week. The proposal is part of Walker's larger economic development agenda designed to make Wisconsin more competitive worldwide while also training workers to fill openings in growing sectors of the economy.

The measure would make $15 million available for job training grants over the next two years. Public and private organizations may be required to provide matching funds for the grants, which could be used to train both new and current employees in certain high-demand areas.

The state Department of Workforce Development would oversee the grants and also create the new database by next year to help fill jobs in high-demand areas more quickly. The bill gives the department $5 million to operate the program and database.

"It's a solid marriage between public sector, private sector and state government," said the bill's sponsor Sen. Rick Gudex, R-Fond du Lac.

Walker promised in the 2010 campaign, and has reiterated since, that he will create 250,000 private sector jobs by the end of 2014. He was about 212,500 jobs short of meeting that target at the end of 2012.

Wisconsin ranked 42nd in private sector job creation, based on the latest government data released last month that covered the 12-month period from June 2011 to June 2012.

Democrats have criticized Walker's focus, noting that the funding increase for worker training that he's proposing doesn't come close to making up for the hundreds of millions in dollars in cuts made two years ago to the University of Wisconsin and state technical college systems.

Other parts of Walker's economic development agenda that are a part of his state budget proposal include recommitting to a $75 million tax credit program to encourage business expansion and job retention; setting aside $25 million to invest in startup companies through a venture capital fund; adding $11 million to support a marketing program that promotes Wisconsin as a place to do business; and investing nearly $6 million in programs that support high-potential entrepreneurs and businesses.

A more controversial part of Walker's economic agenda, which is also included in his budget, is a proposal that would require the state's nearly 76,000 food stamps recipients to enroll in job-training programs.

Coins a passion for King

By Nate Wisneski
Kalihwisaks
nwisnes@oneidanation.org

Finneas King glows with excitement as he grabs and describes coins in his impressive collection that covers his entire dinner table.

"I have never shown my entire collection to anyone before," King said. "My wife doesn't even know what I have."

King, who turns 80 this month, didn't start his collection until the 1980's, shortly after he retired from the Navy.

"My father in law was a big coin collector, he gave me my first silver dollar, 1878, and I still have it. I started going to auctions in the late 80's. I saw coins coming up and I bought a few for good prices and didn't know their values at the time. I started with mostly silver dollars," said King.

King has accumulated most of his coins from dealers but has gotten lucky at auctions as well.

"One time I bid $12 and got a card full of pennies. I brought it home and looking all of a sudden I saw a 1914 D penny. I knew it was worth about $300 then," King said.

Many coin collectors like to get their hands on as many coins as possible. King has a different strategy.

"I just enjoy collecting them. I'll take them out and look at them. I think they're pretty. I want just one of each, that's what I'm happy with," he said.

King's wife has been supportive of his collection but learned a quick lesson about the price tag of some of his best coins.

"She would say go ahead, bid on them. I had a birthday once. She said get a coin. She said go ahead and get it. I will pay for it. It was $150. I got it and she paid for it but she never asked me again," he said laughing.

King doesn't have a favorite coin but he favors the Morgan dollar pieces of the new coins that come out.

"You know, I really just like them all," he said.

According to King, coin value is really an easy calculation.

"It depends on the condition, what year it was minted, what mint it came from, and how many were minted," he said.

Next time you decide to throw a few coins into the vending machine it may be smart to take a second look at them. They may just be that rare coin that would fill out Finneas King's collection.

Passing On...

Benson, Tina
July 19, 1966 – February 18, 2013

Tina L Benson, 46, of Green Bay, passed away February 18, 2013, peacefully with her family by her side. She was born July 19, 1966 in Green Bay, WI to Jimmy and Jeanne (Gilson) Hermsen. On June 1, 1991, she married Mark Benson in Green Bay. Tina loved nothing more than to spend time with her grandchildren baking, coloring and playing outside. She loved to ride up north on the back of her Honey's Harley on nice days and playing Bean Bags with her girlfriends in a weekly league.

Survivors include her husband, Mark Benson, Green Bay; her 3 children: Angela (Dean) Benson, Dustin (Alicia) Oleyniczak and Cory (Nicole) Benson, all from Green Bay; 9 Benson grandchildren: Caleb, Collin, Arla, Dylan, Tiana, Tailor, Ryan, Noah and Issac; goddaughter Jennifer Collard. many brothers and sisters: Gary (Debbie) Hyland (Omaha, NE), Tim (Boni) Tilkens (Louisville, TN), Teri (Ron) Hermsen (Green Bay), Peggy Goldman (Sturgeon Bay, WI), Jimmy Hermsen Jr (Anniston, AL), Danny (Traci) Hermsen (Germany), Mikey (Liz) Hermsen (Sturgeon Bay, WI), Scott Benson (Green Bay) and Debra Benson (Green Bay); 2 mothers-in-law: Carol Reynolds (Green Bay) and Judy Benson (Fredonia, WI), and many nieces, nephews and other family members.

She was preceded in death by her daughter, Kimberly Benson; parents, Jimmy and Jeanne Hermsen, and 2 fathers-in-law: Gary Pierquet (Green Bay) and Jerome Benson (Fredonia, WI).

A Memorial Service was held at 11:30 a.m. on Friday, Feb. 22 at the Pfotenhauer Funeral Home & Cremation Service, East-Town location, 2379 East Mason St., Green Bay.

Online condolences are welcome at www.PfotenhauerFuneralHome.com

Engelhard Summers, CSJ, Sr. Mary
January 22, 1914 – February 11, 2013

Rose Marie Summers aka Sister Mary Engelhard, age 99, of St. Louis, MO, passed away on Monday, February 11, 2013 at Nazareth Living Ctr. Born on January 22, 1914 in Eland, WI. She was a proud member of the Oneida Nation of Wisconsin. She was the daughter of the late Loomis Smith Summers and Elizabeth John of Oneida. She grew up in the Birnamwood area with her 6 siblings. She entered the Order of St. Joseph's Sisters of Caronelet at age 23 and took the name of Sister Mary Engelhard. She spent many productive years working for the St. Joseph Home for boys and also doing childcare duties. She worked as a Dietary Aide when residing at the Nazareth Living Ctr. She retired April 27, 1990 and resided at the Nazaretth Living Ctr. until her passing. She would have celebrated her 75th year jubilee in March.

Rose is survived by Special Niece and Nephew, Shirley and Jose Villarreal, numerous nieces and nephews, great-great, and great-great-great nieces and nephews.

Rose was preceded in death by her parents, 6 siblings, Hartman Summers, Joseph A. (Susan) Summers, Harriet (Harold) Williams, Raymond (Opal) Summers Sr., Lorraine (Roy) Keckhaver, Mae Summers, a nephew Roger Summers.

Funeral Services where held on Monday February 18, 2013 at 10:00 am at the Chapel of Nazareth Living Ctr., St. Louis, Mo. with burial at the Resurrection Cemetery in St. Louis, Mo.

Fey Funeral Home was in charge of arrangements.

Kindness, Josephine E.
deceased March 5, 2013

Josephine E. Kindness, age 74 Oneida died on the 5th of March 2013. She is survived by her best friends, Sandy Elm and Patsy Elm. Per Her wishes no services are to be held.

The RYAN FUNERAL HOME of De Pere is assisting the family.

Teller, Crystal
February 26, 1956 – February 23, 2013

Crystal Teller, 56, of Oneida, died unexpectedly on Saturday February 23, 2013 at a local hospital. The daughter of Jeanette Teller and the late Hugh John Teller was born February 26, 1956 in Shawano. She was a caretaker to many, had a big heart and will be sadly missed by all who knew and love her. Ant was a wonderful Mother, Nana, S.O., sister and friend. She had a great sense of humor and a Youthful Attitude.

Survivors include her S.O. Raymond C. Elm, her children, Fawne (Steve Rasmussen) Teller, Sheila (Zachariah Skenandore IV) Snake, her "son-son", Steven Boyd, Alexandria Skippergosh, her 6 grandchildren, Christian Rodriguez, Devyn Snake, Mitchell Kitzman, Gage Skenandore, Roman Rasmussen, Jaxson Skenandore, her mother, Jeanette Teller, her siblings, Brenda (James. Sr.) Skippergosh, Kerry (Ron, Sr.) Picotte, John (Leslie) Teller, Frank Teller, Shirley (Mike) Teller, Joe Teller, Joni (Rudy, Sr.) Beltran, Wanda Teller, LuAnne (Amado, Sr.) Saldana, and Lorrie Webster, as well as Raymond's family, and was notoriously known as "Ant" by her many nieces and nephews. She was preceded in death by her father, Hugh John Teller, her son, Gabriel Boyd, granddaughter, Cheyenne Snake, and two sisters, Judy Teller and Barbara Teller.

Funeral services were held at 11:00am Tuesday February 26, 2013 at the Oneida Methodist Church, Freedom Road, Oneida.

Ryan Funeral Home and Crematory, 305 North Tenth Street, De Pere assisted the family with arrangements.

Please visit www.ryanfh.com to send online condolences to the Teller family.

The Teller family extends a special thank you to St. Mary Hospital ER Staff for their kindness and support.

From 1A/OBC Budget

"The committee and the community have an opportunity to weigh in prior to the budget being formulated as far as 2014, so we're at least going to listen," she said.

According to Danforth, there will be some hard decisions to make.

"We have cut everything we can to the bone as far as any kind of discretionary funding, and now we need to look beyond that," she said. "This is really going to be the year we're going to make cuts beyond discretionary spending."

Discounted telephone service
available to some low-income consumers

Telephone service is considered a necessity, yet the cost of activating and maintaining the service may be too costly for some consumers. For this reason, the government provides two low-income programs for qualifying customers through the federal Universal Service Fund – Lifeline and Link-up.

These programs provide discounts on initial connection fees and monthly service for qualified telephone subscribers.

The qualifications for these programs vary by state. To find out if you qualify or for more information, please contact Nsight Telservices – Pulaski at 920-865-7000.

Residents of Oconto, Oconto Falls and Abrams can reach Nsight Telservices at 920-826-5215.

OBC discusses AJRCCC delay

By Dawn Walschinski
Kalihwisaks
dwalschi@oneidanation.org

The Oneida Business Committee (OBC) discussed a delay in opening the new Anna John Resident Centered Care Community (AJRCCC) at the Wednesday, February 27 meeting.

Comprehensive Health Division Director Debra Danforth explained that the transition from the Anna John Nursing Home to the newly constructed AJRCCC was "in limbo" awaiting response from the contract manager and structural engineer after soffits collapsed causing a few ceiling tiles to fall.

"The plan that we currently had in place is basically on hold at the point until we know a little bit more information," said Director Danforth.

Staff had been planning on entering the building to train on equipment, but that has been pushed back. The delay is estimated to take three to four weeks. The department is also attempting to hire a new nursing home administrator and finance coordinator, both of whom left their positions recently.

The OBC discussed the Oneida land claim and a desire to reach out to the Oneida governments in New York State and Ontario, Canada.

Of concern is a court case that could declare that the 300,000 acre land claim in New York was disestablished by the Buffalo Creek Treaty of 1842. A 2nd Circuit Court of Appeals ruled that the reservation remains intact and that the Oneida Indian Nation in New York can exercise sovereignty on lands it has purchased in the land claim area. The case has been remanded to the US Supreme Court. OBC Chairman Ed Delgado stated he wants to write a letter expressing his support of the Oneida Indian Nation.

"This is a travesty that those people along with us, we fought to create this nation, and they come back 200 years later and try to … disestablish that reservation – they'll be homeless, what a betrayal," said Delgado.

Oneida Total Integrated Enterprises (OTIE) presented its report and a check for $120,000, and OTIE Board of Managers Chairperson Butch Rentmeester answered questions on the company's hiring practices.

"The first thing when we purchased OTIE, it was to (get) economic diversification," said Rentmeester. "The secondary thing is to provide excellent jobs for qualified tribal members."

He stated that OTIE had recruited a couple of Oneida engineers and a few Oneida citizens as general staff. Treasurer Tina Danforth focused on the need to train a successor as part of the six year transition plan that will transfer full ownership of OTIE to Oneida.

"Within the first year we were going to identify a manager to eventually take over the company. Right now, the (husband and wife owners) plans to retire in the next four years … and when they leave, do we have an Oneida person to step into the position to run the company?" asked Treasurer Danforth.

"We have actively recruited qualified tribal people to come in so that they can be mentored, but some ... have said 'I'm only interested in being CEO right now,'" Rentmeester said.

Oneida Seven Generations Corporation (OSGC) Chief Executive Officer Kevin Cornelius stated that the properties are over 90% occupied, and there are plans to develop a sports bar in the Highway 29 Travel Center.

The OBC approved a $3 an hour premium pay for non-exempt employees who work during Easter and the Fourth of July holiday to avoid absenteeism. This is less than the $5 that was requested by gaming and retail management.

Native American Veterans Budget

By John A. Scocos
Secretary of the Wisconsin Department of Veterans Affairs

For the past 18 months, I have had the pleasure of serving as the Secretary of the Wisconsin Department of Veterans Affairs (WDVA) and leading our state's work on behalf of Wisconsin's veterans in recognition of their service and sacrifice to our state and nation.

One of my top priorities has been learning more about Native American veterans. I have had the opportunity to meet with tribal leaders and Native American veterans from around the state. I have also enjoyed visiting many of your communities and hope to visit those I haven't been to yet in the very near future.

At these meetings, I learned not only about needs that individual veterans had, but also about the needs of the Native American veteran community. Two reoccurring themes that I heard from you were:

- Tribal Veterans Service offices were performing a tremendous amount of work on a very small budget, and
- Veterans planning to attend tribal colleges were not eligible for tuition reimbursement.

John A. Scocos

Earlier this week, Governor Walker introduced his executive budget and shared his plans for statewide veterans' programs. I am proud to say that some items you suggested and raised during our visits are addressed in this budget.

Governor Walker's budget proposes increasing funding for Tribal Veterans Service offices to $15,000 per year, tripling the budget for many tribes. I have seen firsthand the remarkable support these offices provide to all veterans, not just Native American veterans. This budget increase will help strengthen their ability to provide services required by veterans such as claims, transportation, rehabilitation and mental health services.

This budget also provides grants for tuition and fees for eligible veterans who attend tribal colleges in Wisconsin. As a percentage, more Native Americans serve in the military than any other group – it is highly important that as a state we recognize this and ensure Native American veterans can attend the college of their choice and receive tuition reimbursement the same as they would at a state college.

In addition, the department is working on a separate package of veterans legislation that is not part of the budget. As we move forward with that, we will consider other suggestions to improve programs, benefits and services for Native American veterans.

In closing, I would again like to thank Governor Walker for including not just these items I mentioned in the budget, but for all the budget items that will no doubt help our state's veterans. I am proud to serve the veterans who have served us all, and I look forward to continuing to work with you to maintain the Wisconsin standard of being the best state in the nation for veterans.

John A. Scocos is the Secretary of the Wisconsin Department of Veterans Affairs. He is an Iraq War veteran.

Letters & Opinions...

Support for OSGC project

To all: From the start of Seven Gen's incinerator project to recycle garbage, I have been very supportive of it, and am concerned about the possible misinformation that has created failures in their attempt to find a location for it. When previous BC members toured an existing facility (in California?) at the early planning stages of this project it was reported that there was little or no damage to air quality once the vapor gas was siphoned off for generation of electrical power. Smokestacks are not needed to maintain good air quality in this process. As a matter of fact, the air quality released by California's incinerator gasification process (our model) was much better than the air it was released into.

Instead of being fearful of the politics that creep into every positive step we try to take for the Oneida Nation, I hope that everyone will keep the faith in Seven Generation's planners, engineers and consultants that this project is favorable to the Tribe's economy and to the environment. If it is going to be successful, we need to give our full support behind it.

Tribal Funds

There has been a lot of discussion about money, finances, expenses, frivolous spending, cost control and cutting directives etc. What is the average Oneida Tribal Member or employee to believe, or can we truly believe anything that is being said? However it is true that Gaming is our number one revenue generator, our cash cow, our golden goose or our white buffalo, Tribal Bank Roll . In 1988, a Congressional Law, the Indian Gaming Regulatory Act stated that the revenues generated from the Gaming Enterprises must be used to fund Tribal Government operations and programs (such as hospitals, health facilities, schools, police and fire departments, tribal courts and the like). The revenues should provide for the general welfare (this would cover housing, food and other essentials for living of the Tribal membership), and for Tribal Economic Development (that would be development other than Government operated C-Stores, tobacco shops and gas stations) , to make donations to CHARITABLE ORANIZATIONS (unlike the Packers who are not a charitable organization from whom we purchase Sky Boxes, and provide Statues, Clocks and the Oneida Gate, etc). The money should also help fund neighboring cities and counties, doesn't say make Payments in Lieu of Taxes (PILOT's). Remember, we are Sovereign Nation within a Sovereign Nation. Our Oneida Tribe of Indians of Wisconsin Code of Laws , Chapter 21. States "Oneida Nation Gaming Ordinance Matters of Interest to Where they Make Money; 21.3.-1 Territorial Jurisdiction reads" This Ordinance extends to all land within the exterior boundaries of the Reservation of the Tribe, as established pursuant to the 1838 Treaty with the Oneida, 7 Stat.566 and any lands added thereto pursuant to federal law". How is it that the Oneida Business Committee, a Tribal elected body sworn to uphold the Laws, is asserting their authority outside of the parameters of the Law and hire Consultants (definition of a CONSULTANT is a well dressed highly imaginative outsider paid to answer questions we already know and hasn't read the Tribal laws)to develop buildings and propose housing in Milwaukee? It would not matter if the proposed project were covered by a BOND issued, the principle plus interest would have to be paid back with Gaming revenue at some point in time, which is outside of the existing Law. The Indian Gaming Regulatory Act (IGRA) also states that once the afore mentioned obligations are met, a Tribe may petition the Secretary of the interior to approve a Revenue Allocation Plan, better known as Per Capita, this is where the Oneida Tribe preformed a heartfelt opportunity and provided the Per Capita prior to all of the obligations of the Law being met. However it did somewhat meet the providing for the general welfare of the Tribal members. Then a decision to pay members to attend General Tribal Council meetings, just another form of Per Capita for those over age 21 which may be against the Tribal Constitution that every member shall be treated equally.

Respectfully Submitted,
Shirley Hill

BBB Issues Alert: AFD Medical Advisors Targeting Seniors

Milwaukee, Wis. ~ The Wisconsin Better Business Bureau is issuing a nationwide alert, urging caution to seniors who may receive a telephone call from "AFD Medical Advisors", selling a prescription drug discount plan or referencing "Medicare" and requesting a bank account number.

The BBB is receiving roughly 60 inquiries each month from around the country, and has received fifteen complaints from thirteen states in a very short time period. All complaints are from children filing on behalf of an elderly parent.

Complainants report that their parent received an unsolicited phone call from AFD Medical Advisors, either advising of a problem with their Medicare program, or offering free medical prescriptions through a drug discount plan. In all cases, AFD Medical Advisors representatives requested a bank account number and withdrew $299.

The company has responded to most complaints, by making refunds. However, the company's report is an "F", the BBB's lowest grade, based on the nature of ("serious") complaints filed, information not supplied by the company and two unanswered Advertising Review requests by the BBB.

The company claims to be located in Wisconsin. However, the Stevens Point address listed on its website is a UPS store. The "suite" number is a rented box.

According to the Wisconsin Department of Financial Institutions, the company became incorporated in Wisconsin in June, 2012. Aaron F. Dupont (initials "AFD") is listed as the registered agent of AFD Advisors, LLC.

"The BBB is very concerned when we believe seniors are being preyed upon. In this case, every complaint to our office has been filed on behalf of an elderly parent, some who live in assisted living facilities and most who no longer have complete control over their finances", said Ran Hoth president/CEO of the Wisconsin BBB. "It's extremely important to monitor transactions and advocate for elderly parents or relatives. Often times, they're too embarrassed to come forward after giving bank account or other personal information over the phone to an unknown caller."

On December 6, 2012 the Wisconsin BBB requested AFD Medical Advisors address advertising claims made on its website. AFD Medical Advisors states it is "The leader in providing clients access to patient assistance programs created by pharmaceutical companies." In addition, AFD Medical Advisors claims to be affiliated with more than 20 pharmacies. The Wisconsin BBB requested that AFD Medical Advisors substantiate its relationship with the advertised pharmacies, as well as substantiate its title of "leader." The Wisconsin BBB also requested AFD Medical Advisors provide the names and contact information of at least five customers who have used the advertised program along with documentation on the discount program. The BBB did not receive a response.

In addition, on two occasions the BBB sent business questionnaires, requesting basic information from AFD Medical Advisors, but has received no response.

The Wisconsin BBB did contact and receive verification from two of the pharmacies previously listed on its website, stating they are not "participating pharmacies" nor affiliated with AFD Medical Advisors. The list was suddenly removed from AFD's website the week of February 18, 2013.

Richard J. of Arizona filed a complaint on behalf of his elderly mother, saying an AFD representative talked her into providing her bank account number. "She had no recollection of talking to (the company) and if we hadn't been taking care of her financial affairs, this would probably have gone unnoticed. I feel this is a terrible business practice that preys on vulnerable seniors."

Vicki T. of Mississippi filed a complaint on behalf of her elderly mother, who suffers from Alzheimer's disease. She writes, "The caller suggested she represented the U.S. government for a Medicare Drug program and requested (my mother's) social security number and bank account information. The consumer was misled. This was a misrepresentation of a product."

The BBB offers these tips:

- Register your phone number with the National Do-Not-Call registry at (888) 382-1222 and with the Wisconsin Do-Not-Call registry at (866) 966-2255 or visit www.donotcall.gov. Telemarketers who continue to call you after you have registered are subject to penalties.
- Never send money or give out personal information such as credit card or bank account numbers, date of birth, or Social Security numbers to unfamiliar companies or unknown persons.
- Report suspicious callers to family members, assisted living facility managers, neighbors or friends.
- Check with the BBB before dealing with any company or charity that you are not familiar with.
- Don't yield to high-pressure or emotional sales tactics.
- Consider changing your telephone number to an unlisted number.
- Check on seniors often and discuss their activities with them.
- Review their bank statements, looking for unusual withdrawals or charges.
- Remember, you may simply hang up the phone when a stranger calls.

For more information or further inquiries, please contact the Wisconsin BBB at www.wisconsin.bbb.org or 414-847-6000 (metro Milwaukee), 920-734-4352 (Appleton), 608-268-2221 (Madison) or 1-800-273-1002 (elsewhere in Wisconsin).

About BBB

For 100 years, Better Business Bureau has been helping consumers find businesses, brands and charities they can trust. In 2011, consumers turned to BBB more than 100 million times for Business Reviews on more than 4 million companies and Charity Reports on 11,000 charities, all available for free at www.bbb.org. The Council of Better Business Bureaus is the umbrella organization for 115 local, independent BBBs across the United States and Canada, as well as home to its national programs on dispute resolution and industry self-regulation.

Job training through OVR

The Oneida Vocational Rehabilitation (OVR) Services Program is a project charged with providing employment enhancement services to individuals who have physical or mental impairments that substantially limit them from obtaining competitive employment.

What We Do…
- Provide employment services and counseling to people with disabilities.
- Provide or arrange for services to enable an individual to go to work.
- Provide training and technical assistance to employers regarding disability employment issues.

Who We Serve…
- Individuals with disabilities who face a substantial barrier to employment.
- Employers

The Role of VR Staff…

The Oneida Vocational Rehabilitation (OVR) works as a team. This serves to maintain the unique relationship each consumer has with OVR. Team members can now respond to our consumers' questions and concerns in a timely, integrated fashion to achieve OVR's mission: To obtain, maintain and improve employment for people with disabilities by working with VR consumers, employers and other partners.

10 Things You Should Know About OVR…
1. OVR is here to help you find or keep a job.
2. You are eligible for OVR services if you have a disability that makes it hard for you to find or keep a job and you need OVR services to deal with your disability limitations. After you apply, OVR has 60 days to decide if you are eligible.
3. Information about your OVR case is protected by confidentiality rules, which your counselor will explain.
4. When OVR cannot serve everyone who applies, we use a waiting list called Order of Selection. If you are put on the waiting list, OVR will contact you when you can receive services.
5. You have a right to choose your job goal and the services you need to reach your goal. OVR will give you the help you need to make informed choices about your services. You and your OVR counselor will agree to your Employment Plan.
6. There is no charge to you for evaluation, counseling, job development and placement or post-employment services. You may be required to share the cost of some services, but your counselor will talk to you about any costs before services start.
7. If you disagree with a decision that OVR makes, you can contact the Client Assistance Program (CAP) at 800-362-1290 for help or to assist with an appeal. CAP can help explain the OVR process, why and how decisions are made and may help resolve problems.
8. OVR can't help you if you don't share information about your life:
- Contact OVR at least once per month – more often, if anything changes with your case.
- Call if you are going to miss a meeting with OVR.
9. Between your meetings with OVR staff, you will be asked to do the things listed in your Employment Plan as your responsibility. Your Employment Plan is written to help you reach your goal – take responsibility for your program.
10. When you have received the services listed in your Employment Plan and you have reached your job goal, your OVR case will be closed. Your counselor will talk to you before your case is closed. You can reapply for OVR if something changes in your life and you need our employment services again.

OVR offers a variety of services to assist individuals, who have documented disabilities, to obtain, maintain and improve employment. Examples of disabilities include but are not limited to:
- Alcohol and Drug addiction
- TBI or Head Injuries
- Blindness or Eye disorders
- Learning Disability
- Amputations
- Mental Illness
- Hearing Problems
- Seizure Disorder

Oneida Community Integrated Food Systems

OCIFS Farm to School project

The long road to success starts with the tiniest step - a vision!

Farm to school projects have the potential to provide multiple benefits to students, farmers, and communities. When these projects combine local farm products served in the cafeteria with nutrition education in the classroom and hands-on experience in school gardens the potential for positive outcomes is maximized.

The goals of the Farm to School project are: improve diets for students in the Oneida community, increase access to farm fresh foods, market development for small and mid-sized farms in Oneida, positive economic and social impacts in the Oneida community, decreased reliance on fossil fuel for transporting food, reestablish and strengthen local, sustainable food systems and increase agriculture literacy and food systems awareness.

We realized early on that just providing healthy foods to the school youth would be no guarantee that they would eat them, so education became a key component to our project.

2006 - Youth Day on the Farm

This is where we take the 6th grade class to the Apple Orchard, buffalo herd and Oneida Nation Farm to learn about food, health and agricultural opportunities.

2009 - OCIFS Cultural Activity Book

This Activity book was created in a fun format that allows K-6 grade youth learn about: food, agriculture, health, exercise and cultural significance of food.

2011 - Food Film viewing in schools

We have a large variety of food films for youth and adults.

In conjunction with education the OCIFS members began providing meat, fruits and vegetables to the Oneida schools.

2006 - Provided Oneida buffalo and black angus beef to the Oneida schools.

2007 - Provided apples from the Oneida Apple Orchard and organic produce from Tsyunhehkwa. We expanded apple supplies to several other area school districts.

2010 - Food Buyers Group started by the Oneida Falling Leaves 4-H club. We have 3 local farmers that deliver their produce to the school. The 4-H club pays the farmer and then gets reimbursed from the school.

2012 - Green Bay Live 54218 collaboration established on a grant that provided a part time Farm to School coordinator to Oneida, Green Bay and Ashwaubenon school districts.

2013 - Establish a Youth Summer Entrepreneur Food Program

With a grant from First Nations Development Institute we will establish a program where youth harvest, process and market various nutritious food items.

The Oneida Community Integrated Food Systems (OCIFS) entities are here as a team to help families by housing a community food system that will include traditional food products and help create a local economy that will provide jobs, and promote and encourage long term solutions to farm and nutrition issues on the Oneida Reservation.

The team is made up of Oneida Nation Farm/Apple Orchard, Tsyunhehkwa, Food Distribution, Health Promotions and the Oneida Market.

The Farm to School program is just one of many of OCIFS initiatives including: the Oneida Farmers' Market, Oneida 4-H club, Food film viewings, Growing Gardeners Workshops, Big Apple Fest, OCIFS Gift Boxes and more.

Treadmill desk designed to improve workplace activity

By Dawn Walschinski
Kalihwisaks
dwalschi@oneidanation.org

The dress code at Health Promotion Department is business casual, but employees may want to opt for tennis shoes over high heels when working at their new work station.

The department was able to use grant funds from the Diabetes Prevention Program cooperative agreement to purchase a $1500 treadmill desk. According to Health Promotion Disease Prevention Supervisor Tina Jacobsen the new office/exercise equipment will be used to encourage employees to move around more.

"We justified the use based on the effects of having more physical activity during the day in a sedentary job leads to less sick days, productivity, morale increases," she said.

The workstation has an adjustable table over a treadmill that ranges from a slow walk to a moderate jog. So far the employees using the station can do various chores like check email, stuff envelopes, and work with graphics.

"You can still work and get some physical activity, it's not going to get your heart rate pumping too high, but it's movement which is better than just sitting," she said.

However, Jacobsen stated she'd rather not write grants while walking.

"(That) wouldn't work because you'd come off to the side a little bit," she said.

The employees will be logging their time on the treadmill desk and measuring any impacts it has on the department.

"I'm hoping that I start to hear about other departments having a treadmill desk in their department for their employees," said Jacobsen.

Dawn Krines-Glatt hops on the computer while getting some miles in on the treadmill desk in the Health Promotions Department. The department hopes to encourage more physical activity while doing jobs that are normally sedentary.

ONEIDA ADVENTURE

Letting the wild of the Inside Out

"Man cannot discover new oceans without first losing sight of the shore."

Women's Porcupine Mountain Retreat

The Women's Porcupine Mountain Trip to Upper Michigan was filled to the brim with beauty, new discoveries, and letting the wild of the "inside" out. Many of the women on the trip were new to the sport of snowshoeing. Many women learned that they enjoyed snowshoeing, and when they felt like quitting, they didn't. In the end they felt empowered by the natural world around them, the interactions and encouragement of the other women with them, and their rekindled adventurous spirit within. For many ladies the one mile hike into the cabin became a metaphor for the retreat. As they reached the beautiful cabin in the woods with packs weighing heavy now, they felt accomplished. As they put their packs down, many decided it was also time to put the heavy weight of their world back home down at that time too. For the time they spent together in the woods, many would forget about the worry, stress, and distractions of life back home, and center on rest, peace and tranquility.

2013 Outdoor Survival Skills Class

Instruction will be provided on

The 3 Main Skills of Survival

Fire: A fire is an essential survival skill to master. Learn some fire building basics. Once the basics are master more advanced techniques can be learned. Flint and steel or a bow drill to start a fire can be a challenge.

Shelter: Learn how to build a survival shelter using the surrounding resources. Knot tying is an important skill to learn for survival and will be taught throughout the course. Choose your shelter for the overnight.

Water: Treating and collecting water are essential skills to have in any outdoor adventure activity. It can be a critical survival skill.

Demonstrate your Skills

Hands on Experience: Class will consist of traditional classroom instruction and outdoor skills practice to build confidence. A fun activity to do with kids!

Elder Assistance Program Draws Appreciation

By Mark W. Powless

Marquette University High School seniors Bobby (left) and Cesar (right) have been an invaluable help to Oneida Elders.

Marquette University High School (MUHS) annually extends their Senior Shared Life Project to organizations throughout the Milwaukee area. According to their website, "It's that time of year when seniors serve and deepen their awareness of the needs of the less fortunate by assisting more than 75 community agencies within the Milwaukee area." This is the 41st year that MUHS offers this program and this year deployed 250 seniors into the community for a period of two weeks.

Southeastern Oneida Tribal Services (SEOTS) applied to the program and was granted two youth for the purpose of providing in-home assistance to Oneida Tribal Elders residing in southeast Wisconsin. During the first week of activities, the seniors swept and mopped floors, cleaned kitchen cabinets, ovens, refrigerators, vacuumed floors, wiped down door handles and doorways, cleaned ceiling fans, wiped down blinds, removed unwanted clothing and appliances, and more. In addition, every home visited received a bag of healthy food, including Oneida White Corn.

The seniors, Bobby and Cesar, have been irreplaceable. An orientation with the youth informed them about the Native American community and touched on Oneida culture and history. In each encounter with Elders, both young men displayed high levels of respect and a desire to serve the households in any way possible.

During a quick reflection on the weeks' activities, Cesar responded that he was amazed at the deep appreciation shown by the Oneida Elders. "I'm not looking to be thanked for helping people, but I am a little surprised at the appreciation being shown. I can tell this really means a lot to them."

The Elder Assistance Program kicked off on Monday, February 25 and concluded on Friday, March 8. This program was a direct result of an Elder focus group that identified in-home assistance as a need within the Elder community. Yawʌko to MUHS, and Bobby and Cesar for all their help!

Wis. gov wants new rent-to-own rules

By Todd Richmond
Associated Press

MADISON, Wis. ~ Republican Gov. Scott Walker has quietly tucked provisions into his executive budget that would free rent-to-own businesses from Wisconsin's consumer protection act, ensuring they wouldn't have to disclose what industry opponents say are exorbitant interest rates.

The proposal promises to re-ignite a fight percolating for more than 20 years between the industry and advocates for the poor in Wisconsin. Rent-to-own businesses insist their contracts aren't credit transactions and the state's consumer act shouldn't apply to them. Opponents contend the businesses prey on the poor and charge exorbitant interest rates similar to payday lenders; they maintain people deserve to see exactly what they're paying for when they sign rent-to-own contracts. Even some of Walker's fellow Republicans are hedging on the budget language.

"I'm in general not in favor of policy in the budget. I'm particularly concerned when the policy seems designed to help what I would describe as a sleazy industry that preys on the poor by giving them contracts that no mathematically literate person would sign," said Sen. Glenn Grothman, R-West Bend, a member of the Legislature's powerful finance committee.

Rent-to-own businesses offer customers a chance to rent items such as appliances, electronics, computers and furniture with no credit check. Typically, customers can exit and rejoin the deals as they wish with no effect on their credit rating. People who complete their contracts can exercise options to buy the items.

Proponents say the industry offers low-income people or people who need something for a short time a way to obtain goods. More than 8,500 rent-to-own storefronts were operating in all 50 states and Canada in 2009, generating more than $7 billion and employing more than 50,000 people, according to research by Columbia University economics instructor Alejo Czerwonko. Walker's office says about 50 rent-to-own businesses currently operate in Wisconsin.

Consumer advocates contend the industry targets the poor. They maintain the businesses grossly overcharge needy customers and collect far more than what the item is worth. Some critics contend the businesses charge interest rates three to four times higher than credit card buyers pay, according to Czerwonko's analysis.

Community Corner: On Wisconsin!

By Jackie Scharping
IV-D Director of Wisconsin Bureau of Child Support

Jackie Scharping

I'm a proud Wisconsinite. My first dog was named "Bucky," after Bucky Badger, University of Wisconsin's mascot. At age 3, my son would introduce himself as the Badgers' quarterback, Brooks Bollinger. I have a can opener that plays "On Wisconsin" when it's used.

I'm also a proud state IV-D Director. Wisconsin has an outstanding program, which has ranked near the top among states in most performance measures for a number of years. We are a state-supervised, county-administered program with 71 county agencies. Our IV-D caseload is just over 357,000 cases.

One of the areas of which I am most proud is our growing relationship with the Wisconsin Native American tribes. Currently, several tribes have comprehensive child support programs in our State: the Forest County Potawatomi Community; Lac du Flambeau Band of Lake Superior Chippewa; Menominee Nation of Wisconsin; the Oneida Nation; and, Lac Courte Oreilles. Others are on the horizon: the Ho-Chunk Nation; Red Cliff Band of Lake Superior Chippewa; and, the Stockbridge-Munsee Community.

In 2004, the Governor issued Executive Order #39, which recognized and affirmed the government-to-government relationship between the State of Wisconsin and Native American tribes. It says in part, "The State of Wisconsin, a sovereign state within the United States, recognizes the unique status of Indian Tribes and their right to existence, self-government, and self-determination…"

In 1995, a non-Native American sued in civil court to enforce arbitration of an employment dispute. It was realized that Wisconsin courts have concurrent civil adjudicatory jurisdiction with tribal courts and that no procedure existed to resolve conflicts when both courts had jurisdiction over same case. Fortunately, the judicial branches of each government were proactive and a State-Tribal Justice Forum was created to discuss inter-jurisdictional issues. Additionally, our Supreme Court adopted s.801.54, Wis. Stats., which created factors to consider in determining proper jurisdiction.

In the child support world, county agencies had been working with some of our tribal partners for a number of years, filing and registering orders in both jurisdictions, providing and sharing notices, documentation, and case file information. The adoption of s.801.54, Wis. Stats, and its subsequent amendment in 2009, provided us with a new way of doing business.

The process is fairly simple. The tribal child support agency and State work together to identify tribal members in Wisconsin's statewide system known as KIDS.The tribe sends a "welcome" letter or notice to introduce the case transfer concept. Parties are given the opportunity to request a hearing if they contest the potential transfer. If the case is transferred, the local clerks of court and child support agencies work with the tribal child support agency to ensure the exchange of orders and case files occurs.

In 2007, while I was the Administrator of the Brown County Child Support Agency, in Green Bay, Wisconsin, I was contacted by our state office to begin a pilot program of transferring cases from county circuit courts to tribal court with the Oneida Nation. Brown County's IV-D caseload had the largest population of Oneida Nation members in the State.

It was quite an undertaking, as we had identified hundreds of potential cases that could transfer. After many meetings, exchanges of information, and development of procedures and policies, the project started and, to date, hundreds of cases have successfully transferred. Subsequently, the process has expanded to more counties and more tribes.

The success of the case transfer process came from the collaborative efforts of the State's Department of Children and Families, Bureau of Child Support, its legal counsel, state and county judiciary, and especially the local county and tribal agencies.

Wisconsin's child support program has learned some lessons along the way. At the State level, we're continuing to develop standardized memoranda of understanding, services agreements, and data sharing agreements. One of the most important lessons we've learned is that each tribe is unique. Each tribe has its own ordinances, rules, or codes and each transfer process will be different. We're learning that we need to communicate those differences more effectively to county staffs, so we're developing training with the tribes to share with county and tribal agency staffs alike.

Some tribes want to use our statewide system, others do not. We've recognized the importance of affording those tribes who choose not to use our system the opportunity to at least have query access. Currently we are looking into ways of improving our system to accommodate and make it easier to work intergovernmental cases from county to tribes, tribes to tribes, and tribes to other states.

Success comes with setbacks. Not every case is exactly the same, but we will continue to build on our experience as more tribes open agencies and offer services to their members.

I'm proud of Wisconsin's efforts to work with our tribes. On Wisconsin!

Jackie Scharping is the IV-D Director of Wisconsin Bureau of Child Support.

Congress passes bill renewing anti-violence law

By Jim Abrams
Associated Press

WASHINGTON ~ The House on Thursday passed and sent to President Barack Obama a far-reaching extension of the Violence Against Women Act. The vote came after House Republican leaders, cognizant of divisions in their own ranks and the need to improve their faltering image among women voters, accepted a bill that cleared the Senate two weeks ago on a strong bipartisan vote.

The bill renews a 1994 law that has set the standard for how to protect women, and some men, from domestic abuse and prosecute abusers. Thursday's 286-138 vote came after House lawmakers rejected a more limited approach offered by Republicans.

It was the third time this year that House Speaker John Boehner has allowed Democrats and moderates in his own party prevail over the GOP's much larger conservative wing. As with a Jan. 1 vote to avoid the fiscal cliff and legislation to extend Superstorm Sandy aid, a majority of House Republicans voted against the final anti-violence bill.

Obama, in a statement, said "renewing this bill is an important step towards making sure no one in America is forced to live in fear" and said he would sign the bill ``as soon as it hits my desk."

The law has been renewed twice before without controversy, but it lapsed in 2011 as it was caught up in the partisan battles that now divide Congress. Last year, the House refused to go along with a Senate-passed bill that would have made clear that lesbians, gays, immigrants and Native American women should have equal access to Violence Against Women Act programs.

It appeared the scenario would be repeated this year when the House introduced a bill that didn't mention the lesbian, gay, bisexual and transgender community and watered down a Senate provision allowing tribal courts to prosecute non-Indians who attack their Indian partners on tribal lands.

House Majority Leader Eric Cantor, R-Va., who has spent months working on the issue, defended the Republican plan: ``Our goal in strengthening the Violence Against Women Act is simple. We want to help all women who are faced with violent, abusive and dangerous situations. ... We want them to know that those who commit these horrendous crimes will be punished."

But the House proposal encountered quick and strong opposition from women's groups, the White House, Democrats and some Republicans, and on Tuesday, the GOP leadership agreed to give the House a vote on the Senate bill. It passed immediately after the House rejected Cantor's bill, 257-166, with 60 Republicans voting against it.

The GOP decision to show the white flag came after the party's poor showing among women in last fall's election and Democratic success in framing the debate over the Violence Against Women Act as Republican policy hostile to women. President Barack Obama won 55 percent of the women's vote last November. Republican presidential candidates haven't won the women's vote since 1984, when Ronald Reagan held a 12-point lead over Walter Mondale among women.

The anti-violence bill should never have become partisan, said Sen. Patty Murray, D-Wash., a sponsor of the Senate bill. "That is why I applaud moderate Republican voices in the House who stood up to their leadership to demand a vote on the Senate bill."

The Senate passed its bill on a 78-22 vote with every Democrat, every woman senator and 23 of 45 Republicans supporting it.

A turning point in the debate came earlier this month, when 19 Republicans, led by Rep. Jon Runyan, R-N.J., wrote a letter to their leadership urging them to accept a bipartisan plan that would reach all victims of domestic violence. The letter, Runyan said, was a catalyst in showing the leadership "a willingness of people in the House to really compromise" and see that the Senate "has a pretty good bill."

Rep. Tom Cole, R-Okla., a Native American, also wrote his Republican colleagues saying he was voting against the House alternative because "it falls short of giving tribes what they need to keep their women safe."

Indian women suffer incidents of domestic violence at rates more than double national averages, but Indian courts don't have jurisdiction over non-Indians, and federal prosecutors don't take up about half the violence cases on reservations because of lack of resources to pursue crimes on isolated Indian lands. The Senate bill would give Indian courts the ability to prosecute non-Indians for a limited set of crimes limited to domestic violence and violations of protecting orders. Opponents have said that raises constitutional issues.

The Violence Against Women Act is credited with helping reduce domestic violence incidents by two-thirds over the past two decades. The Senate bill would authorize some $659 million a year over five years to fund current programs that provide grants for transitional housing, legal assistance, law enforcement training and hotlines.

The Senate bill adds stalking to the list of crimes that make immigrants eligible for protection and authorizes programs dealing with sexual assault on college campuses and with efforts to reduce the backlog in rape kit analyses. It reauthorizes the Trafficking Victims Protection Act.

From 1A/Lady Thunderhawks

only way to do that is to dominate on and off the court. That is why we strive for academic excellence," Betters added.

Even though they finished with the best record in their bracket they received the three-seed, which was not really a surprise to the Lady Thunderhawks.

"I talked a lot about the possibilities of what seed we would get and why we would possible get no respect and we should expect the worse but will work hard to get the best seed. Sixty percent of our games are away - and when I mean away - we are talking about a few trips to Milwaukee, then up to Fish Creek, then to Wausau, onto Gresham, followed by Goodman-Pembine. We were literally all over the place. But I knew no matter how hard we played teams and what our record was, the schools in our Region were not going to give us the one seed because we don't play in a conference," said Betters. "I shared that with my team so they wouldn't be so disappointed that they would lose focus. We knew we had to prove our selves and we deserved that one seed. We knew we had to yet again prove ourselves to get the respect we deserved."

House, despite the perceived slight by opponents, is proud of the way the Lady Thunderhawks went about their business during the season.

"Everyone doubts us all the time. People are always putting bad words out about us. They say we play a weak schedule. We got there with good sportsmanship and good minds instead of hurting people," House added.

With history set, Betters is now working on keeping her team focused on their new goal, a state tournament appearance.

"I keep telling them that our mission is not done yet, we are still contenders. Yes, we accomplished our goal but there are new goals to be made to work towards and that we are two games away from state, just saying that gives us goose bumps," she said. "I still challenge them at practice and tell them to give it all they have to bring that momentum into their next game because we have every opportunity to get through Hilbert if we play as a team and if we play smart."

With being a small school, community support is very important to the team.

"I think the community support has really been the catalyst on why these girls have so much success. They understand that they are not only working hard for themselves but they want to make their community proud and they play hard for them," said Betters.

As the team accomplished a few of their goals, House accomplished one of her personal goals. She scored her 1,000-point on February 23 against Milwaukee Bradley Tech.

"I never thought I was going to get there, my cousin, Maria Stevens, got her 1,000 points. That's why I came here, I wanted to play ball at Oneida and get my 1,000 points. It was amazing and one of the best feelings just after winning Regionals," said House.

She admits nerves did settle in as the milestone approached.

"Jamie didn't tell me until about a week and half before. It was fine until the game it was to happen. I was stressing out I was glad when I finally got it. It was a relief and now I can get back to my game," House said.

Wise Women Gathering Place hosts Canadian award winner at training

By Travis Cottrell
Kalihwisaks
tcottrel@oneidanation.org

The Wise Women Gathering Place hosted a special guest at its White Bison Mending Broken Hearts training held February 25th through 28th. Vincent Pawis traveled from Ontario, Canada to attend the training and brought a pair of awards he recently received from the Canadian government.

For the last 18 years Pawis has worked in the Canadian prison system.

"My job there is to advocate on behalf of Aboriginal offenders, both male and female who are incarcerated. Another part of my job is to bring in programs to help rehabilitate the offenders," Pawis said.

Using culture as his main tool Pawis has been successful is rehabilitating offenders so that they may carve out a positive niche after their time is served.

"What I found was that the age of the offenders typically ranged from 18 to 29. What I found was that most of those people knew very little, if any, of their identity, of who they were as Aboriginal people. They knew very little of their culture, language, and traditions," Pawis explained.

Under the direction of tribal elders, for the last 18 years Pawis has been running culturally based programs inside the prisons. These programs allow offenders to be heard in a setting that reflects their values and traditions.

"When they connect back to their spirituality, to the land, to the animals, to the water, the air, and fire then they know who they are as Native people. It doesn't happen overnight, sometimes it will take awhile. But we have found in almost all cases that when they find their spirituality their minds become clear and really improve," said Pawis.

His work has not gone unnoticed. On February 6, 2013 Pawis was awarded the Order of Ontario honor. The Order of Ontario is the highest honor officially awarded to civilians by the government of Ontario. Pawis was one of 25 people to receive the award, of which he was the only Aboriginal recipient.

Along with the Order of Ontario Pawis was also honored with the Queen's Jubilee, a medal that honors significant contributions and achievements by Canadians.

"It was a major accomplishment for our people to be recognized. I had to listen to what the elders were saying because they're the ones who were giving me the direction. I was always taught by the elders to never seek out recognition. So when I was told I was a recipient of this award I really was hesitant to accept. But it was the elders who said you have to accept this award for all of the people that you've helped," Pawis said.

Illegal Dumping on the Oneida Reservation

By Amy Spears
Environmental Specialist - Pollution Prevention

It has recently come to our attention that there has been illegal dumping occurring on the reservation. We have found two locations where TV's, tires and just general trash have been illegally dumped.

Illegal dumping is any unauthorized disposal of waste on public or private property. Usually, people dump illegally to avoid collection and disposal fees, or because they believe proper disposal is just "too much trouble."

Illegal dumping can be a serious problem for our community for three reasons: Health, Money, and the Environment. Illegal dumping is:

- An eyesore
- Decreases neighborhood property values
- Costs the Tribe a lot of money in clean-up costs
- Negatively impacts plants and wildlife
- Poses safety hazards to people, especially children
- Provides a breeding ground for disease carrying rodents, insects and other vermin
- Disrupts natural land and water processes and ruins wildlife habitat
- Pollutes surface and ground water
- In general, lowers the quality of life for Oneida residents

We need your help to STOP Illegal Dumping!

- If you witness illegal dumping in progress, note the license plate, vehicle make and model, and description of violator and immediately call the Oneida Police Department's non-emergency number at (920) 869-2239.
- If the illegal dumping is not in progress, call Amy Spears at 869-4549 to report the location, you may remain anonymous.

Where can you legally dispose of trash, tires and e-waste?

We have many disposal options located on and near the reservation. Tires, appliances and general waste can be disposed of for a small fee at the Brown County Transfer Station located on Hwy 54. Tires and appliances will be charged a per item fee and waste will be charged a per-ton fee. E-waste, including TV's can be recycled at many locations including the Brown County Household Hazardous Waste Facility located at 2561 S. Broadway for a small fee, and at the local Best Buy and Goodwill locations for free for most items.

The Environmental, Health and Safety Division in conjunction with Oneida Housing Authority and Department of Public Works will also be hosting the Household Clean Sweep again this year. We will hold two clean sweep events with dates being released soon.

For questions please contact Amy Spears at (920) 869-4549 or aspears@oneidanation.org. Please "like" us on facebook!

Old electronics and tires are a few items that are dumped in various natural areas across the reservation; all of which need to be cleaned up at additional costs.

Oneida Nation Celebrates 20 Years of Pursuing Fishing Rights in Duck Creek

The Oneida people established the Oneida Reservation on February 2, 1838. More than 175 years ago Oneida people moved from the State of New York, following the nearly complete destruction of their homelands following the Revolutionary War. Oneida warriors fought to defend the United States in the Revolutionary War and as an ally of the U.S. the enemy burned and pillaged most of their village.

The Oneida began their migration to Wisconsin in the early 1820's. The major groups that came to this region included two Christian Parties and one party that maintained their traditional religion and philosophy. Since the arrival to this territory the Oneida people found sustenance by farming, hunting and fishing. The Duck Creek was a major source of food and pristine water in the 1800's. Most Oneida settled on and near Duck Creek.

Oneida people found a source of sustenance, enjoyment and camaraderie around the annual fishing season which began when the ice broke and the first major thunderstorm signaled the run of the fish up creek for spawning. This was a time for families to meet at the north end of Duck Creek and spend time harvesting the fish and meeting friends.

In 1993, the Department of Natural Resources began to issue citations to Oneida who fished Duck Creek in the spring. The courts eventually awarded in favor of the Oneida and upheld and recognized the sovereign rights of the Oneida to fish the Duck Creek.

Today we are exercising our sovereign right to fish these waters. Make no mistake, this right was not given to the Oneida, it was always our right to hunt and fish on the Oneida reservation. The treaty was an official document that recognized and respected our right.

Officially the Oneida Reservation celebrates 175 years as of February 3, 1838, when the Buffalo Creek Treaty established this reservation. But since 1822 Oneida began to live and grow in this community. Our ancestral roots precede the State of Wisconsin and City of Green Bay. Actually we have been here more like 190 years.

We celebrate and honor those Oneida people who have been instrumental in preserving our treaty rights, history and culture. The traditional Sucker Fishing Season has begun. There are as many different recollections and stories about "sucker fishing" as there are Oneida folks to tell stories. Although there were Northern Pike and other fish harvested, suckers seemed to be the most frequent caught and probably most plentiful.

Jessica House Reaches a Thousand Points

By Diego Metoxen
Thunderhawk Times

This year, there was a huge athletic achievement at ONHS that hasn't happened since the early 2000s. Senior Jessica House has reached 1,000 points in basketball throughout her three years attending ONHS. She is only the third player at ONHS to reach the 1,000 point mark. Jessica scored her 1,000th point on February 23nd, 2013, as the Lady Thunderhawks played their last regular season home game against Milwaukee Bradley Tech. During the game, Jessica House was nervous as she was trying to reach her historic goal.

"In the heat of the game, I wasn't thinking about how many points I had or how many more I needed to get. I wasn't thinking about my points at all. I was focused in on the game. It wasn't until after I took a shot and scored a basket that Tasha (Stevens) threw her hands up in the air, ran over to me, and gave me a big hug that I realized that it was my thousandth point," said Jessica.

Amazingly, Jessica didn't attend ONHS as a freshman. She transferred in as a sophomore and has been playing for the Lady T-Hawks ever since. She became a big help for the Lady T-Hawks in the last three years.

House plans on continuing to play basketball after she graduates from high school. She plans on playing at the college level as that is the next step to further her future. She is still undecided on where she would like to play college ball.

Reflecting on her achievement, Jessica House said, "I was very grateful to have my fans, family, coaches, and of course my teammates to help me reach my goal. I couldn't have done it without each and every one of them."

Success Tips for Incoming Freshman

By Emmitt Big Medicine
Thunderhawk Times

Many incoming freshman are frightened by the words "high school." Many may think of bullies, lots of homework, and reputations, but other students look at it as the start of a new life and the beginning of their future.

High school is a great experience. It gives an idea of what college is going to be like, somewhat. The first tip about being successful in high school: Do not worry so much about what people think about you. In four years, you will not even see most of these kids after you graduate.

Another tip is to not fall behind. It can be cruel to your grades and your sleep if you fall behind. It does not hurt to ask for help from teachers, support staff, or even other students; no one will judge you for that.

It's true that in high school you might lose friends that you had in middle school, but that's okay: you will make new friends.

The final tip is to take notes when a teacher tells you to, and to study two hours a day.

May the next four years of high school be your best. You will make mistakes, but learn from them. Try and try again!

Looking for Fun? Try the Children's Museum!

By Amanda A. Williams
Thunderhawk Times

If you have young ones at home, you're probably wondering what there is to do in the city of Green Bay during this long, blustery winter that is catered to young ones.

One of the best of things you can do with your family is to take them down to the Children's Museum, open every day except for Mondays. It's filled with exhibits, fun activities, and education. The museum was created for families to be together and learn education with fun and hands-on projects.

Gina Anderson, with 10 years of education, is the programmer. She does Wee One Hour, Pint-Sized Picassos, Recycles Art Studios, Kidz Creation, Sense-ational Art, and Science Saturdays among tons of other activities that follow throughout the months.

"Children's museums serve as town squares and build local capital. For children and families, the children's museum has emerged as the community institution providing a unique, interactive environment where children and adults connect."

Dr. Suess Celebration at ONSS

By Marcus Tucker
Thunderhawk Times

On Friday, March 1, the Oneida Nation School System observed Dr. Seuss' birthday by participating in Read Across America Day, an informal holiday which celebrates Dr. Seuss' contributions to improve children's literacy. Read Across America Day has always been held on or around Seuss' birthday, March 2. If he were still alive to this day, he would be 109 years old.

Since Dr. Suess' birthday falls on a Saturday this year, ONSS decided to observe his birthday on Friday, March 1, by having Dr. Suess-themed activities all day long. From holding a costume contest for the best Dr. Suess character to serving green eggs and ham for lunch, the ONSS really put a lot of time, effort, and thought into making the day special for students.

Also, the Oneida Nation High School students did a little something special for the elementary students at the Turtle School. To celebrate Read Across America, a group of 22 Oneida Nation High School students brought some of Dr. Seuss's books to the elementary school and read the stories to the children. The students were Noelle Metoxen, Marcus Tucker, Josanna Daubon-Cornelius, Dylan Oshkeshequoam, Lindsey Danforth, Shy House, Tasha Stevens, Isaac Reed, Brandon Blackowl, Byran Halona, Autumn Oshkeshequoam, Tavia Moore, Kevonna Neal, Talon Skenadore, Makayla Doxtator, Michaela Welch, Lillian Stands, Grace Powless, Kasey Counard, Travis Stevens, and Ta-koma King.

"Like" Us on Facebook

By Heather Stevens
Thunderhawk Times

In October, the Oneida Nation School System (ONSS) set up a Facebook page to get information out to the public about school events and activities. Debbie Meahojh and John Bestul were the creators of this page, and are required to follow tribal guidelines when it comes to posts and social media.

The way it works is when to viewing the web address, a "like" button will appear in the upper right hand corner of the webpage. After viewing, click the "like" button and their posts will pop up on your news feed. If eventually you don't want to be informed anymore, there's always an "unlike" button in the same spot that the "like" button was found.

The overall goal of the website is to inform parents, students, staff members, and the community about school events more easily.

OBC Forum...

I hope all is well for you and your families. In this article I will cover housing matters, budgetary issues, SEOTS in Milwaukee, and a brief summary of some thoughts on topics recently discussed by the Oneida Business Committee (OBC).

Housing

As the Oneida Housing Liaison, I want to give a briefing on housing matters. We have to deliver some new and more robust housing opportunities on behalf of the Oneida people.

We have tried to hone in on years of collated ideas, concepts and delivery methodologies, and completed studies on housing matters. Through joint efforts with various Oneida staff, departments, and through work in conjunction with an advanced housing consultant, we are now on the verge of an exciting housing movement.

We have zeroed in on the creation of options to address diverse housing needs and opportunities on the reservation. Options would include various levels of housing opportunities from single family to large family residences. The various brackets of options will allow for a new continuum of housing options at various stages of life. Long term, a new growth pattern will plant a firm housing development footprint here on the reservation.

We have been mindful of creating an econometric housing model which is sustainable and affordable; the housing consultant's work has paid off in this regard. In fact, our housing consultant is trying to create a housing model which could see us placing tribal members in brand new housing stock for around $400 to $600 a month. This new housing movement will allow Oneida homeowners and tenants to keep more money in their pockets.

Recent Housing Discussions

We have met with various staffers in the Chicago Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) offices. Everyone is in support of diversifying of our housing stock on the reservation through the use of HUD loan programs.

HUD wants to see us achieve great success in developing housing on the reservation, adjacent to the reservation and in the Milwaukee/SE area of Wisconsin. HUD has confirmed that the future of grant funding will be through the Indian Community Development Block Grant (ICDBG) which is formula based and has a cap. Although HUD will not tell a Tribe how to spend their money, they have suggested using the grant money for infrastructure whenever possible.

Sadly, on the housing front, HUD staff has confirmed that the Rural Housing and Rural Investment funds have gone to zero with no replacements in sight. In order to leverage the IHBG, many tribes have taken on housing debt using the Title VI loans. The Tribe will need to consider taking on housing debt on behalf of the Oneida people in order to secure a prosperous housing future.

We understand the use and benefits of the Title VI program. In addition to being new money available to the tribe, the loans can be repaid using IHBG money if the loans were procured using federal standards. Based on the current grant, Oneida qualifies for approximately $12 million in loans. We will see if this is a route we can take.

The current Oneida Housing Plan should be adjusted to reflect the many Tribal members living in SE Wisconsin by adding SE Wisconsin to the Oneida Service Area. This would help Tribal members obtain HUD 184 loans and would also allow participation in other program services in the future, including Title VI. There is a belief this could benefit the formulas used for addressing our overall housing needs.

The Tribe could take advantage of the Title VI opportunity, but HUD suggested that "for a quick win, use HUD 184 loans on and off the reservation." If we know what we want to build, 184 loans could be ready to go by March 2013. Some of the details have to remain confidential for obvious reasons, but the locations are commonly known areas amongst many tribal members.

Section 184

The Section 184 program is a home ownership loan program used for providing housing alternatives but also allows for the development of rental housing. Options through Section 184 allow for renting a home, renting with an option to purchase, or the direct purchasing of a home by a tribal member. This program would allow apartments, town homes or single family homes configured in 1 to 4 units and would allow up to 20 units in one package. So, many of the housing projects currently built or bring considered for building on the reservation could be built under this program. We could build four-plex housing or 8, 12, 16 or 20 unit town house or apartment projects.

For over a year or so, we have been looking at the Section 184 program as middle income (not low income, not high income). It needs qualified buyers and reasonable price options.

Councilman

Financing

Some housing developments are more evident than others. Some projects will have a large and broad impact; others will make only a subtle change. But, the most important element here is financing, how can we move our visions and concepts forward? This is the current focus as we continue to study the various housing facets and housing finance options. Recently I asked about Section 184 loans rates from Oneida Bay Bank and they will look into our options. The idea is to make sure our loan rates and closing costs are competitive.

The Section 184 program and Title VI loans will require typical financing due diligence. In order to have a diversified housing plan we need to consider making some investment and take on a reasonable amount of project related housing debt. This will allow us, as an urban tribe, to compete with housing opportunities offered off reservation.

Housing Site Selection

There are numerous developable sites on the reservation. We have spent many hours reviewing and prioritizing several options and opportunities as we pursue financing. We have modified the housing type mix and layout of some sites which had been identified in previous housing plans.

Although these opportunities have been identified, we still need to address the cost and source of funding necessary to make them attractive alternatives to living off the reservation at a higher cost. We are having internal discussions to frame out the pathway.

On the housing issues more broadly, we need to address seasonal homeless shelter issues or other transitional housing projects which could include group homes.

We continue to invite input with regard to site selection, implementation of earlier proposals, funding sources, etc. Together we can make some exciting changes to the Oneida Housing landscape.

Budgetary Issues

Financially, we are moving into deeper water and we need to get back on track. In so many ways we are still reeling from our flat-footed response to the 2007 and 2008 economic downturn. As I have mentioned at several GTC meetings, things are going to get tougher and tighter financially within the Tribe. Our challenge will be to forge a new path that creates some financial breathing room for Oneidas. In the past, severance and across the board cuts were thought to be the solution to bring things back on track. Today, however, we need to be more strategic and need to scorecard our economic results from the financial moves in order to come up with the best solutions to sustain operations.

I must say the OBC has been working diligently to ensure all Oneida enterprises get turned around and back on track so that they are generating the expected profits for the Oneida people. Soon you will see changes at the Radisson Hotel and golf course where things are in full-swing as the boards for both of these enterprises are doing a great job.

Milwaukee SEOTS Building Project

The SEOTS project is moving forward, after years of hold-up, we are now working with a forward moving approach. We had a briefing meeting on the subject on Saturday, February 9, 2013 in Milwaukee, WI and were able to share a draft conceptual drawing of the projected new SEOTS Building. The concept drawing was met with a nice review at the Milwaukee community event. If you'd like see a copy of the information provided, please contact my office.

Over the next month or so we will firm-up the plans and see what types of services SEOTS will ultimately offer in the new facility. There are some draft plans outlined. I think the SEOTS Board will be holding a meeting to discuss these matters soon, so you can weigh in through the SEOTS Board.

Tribal School Curriculum

At a recent OBC meeting I asked the Oneida School Board about the issue of curriculum mapping and if we were actively engaged in this type of process. I had been hearing some concerns and suggestions from community members around curriculum, classroom teaching methods, and being able to be on the leading edge. I was happy to confirm that we do have processes in place and the School Board and staff appear up to date on these issues. My thoughts are and always will be, how can we be amongst the world's most improved school systems and how do we keep improving our school system? It is assumed things are going well at the school and I feel that the direction of the school seems on par with other school systems.

I have read some reports on an organization which analyzed 20 systems from around the world, all with improving but differing levels of performance. The group was examining how each school system had achieved significant, sustained, and widespread gains in student outcomes, as measured by international and national assessments. Their reports identify the reform elements that are replicable for school systems elsewhere as they move from poor to fair to good to great to excellent performance.

When I read through this information and these reports, it seemed to me the school is on a solid track. So, I believe we can feel good about that.

Oneida Golf Enterprise Corporation

The OBC had a good discussion about the new direction of the Oneida golf course and things seem to be on track. I offered some suggestions and have asked as they go through their re-tooling process to consider having a firm come in and take a free look at the operations.

Seven Generations Corporation

The 29/32 gas station has had difficulty holding a successful restaurant operation due to the site's isolated location. I have not really heard any viable ideas for the usage of that portion of the facility and I am seeking some feedback from the community on any ideas you may have on what we can do to make the site successful.

Premium Pay

I would really like to obtain some feedback from tribal members on the issue of premium pay as it relates to the next budget cycle. The OBC has been having discussions on these matters and it seems some feedback would be helpful. The talk is about a $5.00 an hour rate for holiday premium pay (on top of other pay). More information on this issue can be gathered from HRD. People who have to work during holidays do make a sacrifice so it seems reasonable on some levels to formalize plans long-term as a matter of policy around this issue. On February 27th the OBC meeting approved a premium pay add-on for those employees who work holidays. What are your thoughts? Is this something we should continue to do? Also, if we do continue down this policy path, should it include all holidays, like Easter, etc.?

The Anna John Nursing Home

As some of you may be aware, we have had to cancel our temporary occupancy plans for the new nursing home. The ceiling (soffits) have collapsed on a scale that has caused a major delay in the transition. We are in the process of reviewing what happened. As of this writing, there has not been a finalized report on what happened, how severe the problem is, and who is liable for this unfortunate situation. Luckily, no one was hurt.

Hopefully, there will not be a financial impact to the Tribe, however, we need to understand what all of the impacts will be as the entire project has been put on hold for now. More details should be contained in the tribal newspaper as more is known on this subject matter.

Thank you for reading my article, I hope the information was helpful. If I can be of assistance, please feel free to call my office at 920-869-4426 or email my assistant Cathy Bachhuber at cbachhub@oneidanation.org.

Respectfully,
Vince DelaRosa

Open Session

1. Proposed policy to allow transfer of Oneida Tribe original child support cases to concurrent jurisdictions
Sponsor: Ed Delgado
Excerpt from Feb. 13, 2013 regular Business Committee meeting:
Motion by Vince DelaRosa to have this item referred back to the Chairman's office to address the jurisdictional issue to refine the resolution submitted today and to discuss this in a special Business Committee meeting on Tues. Feb. 19, 2013, seconded by Patty Hoeft. Motion carried with one abstention, one opposed.
Motion by Patty Hoeft to reject the resolution presented today, seconded by Greg Matson. Motion carried unanimously
For the record: David Jordan stated I am opposing this resolution twofold. Individuals already have the capability of having their case transferred back to circuit court if they choose as only a stay was placed on their case. They need to file a motion with the circuit court to start this action. This is a communications area and individuals should be notified by the Child Support Agency of this opportunity. Or in the alternative, by the court when asked by either party to transfer their case back to the circuit court. My second opposition to this—cases of original jurisdiction may not be allowed to be moved to the circuit court as we do not have a memorandum of understanding or other agreement with the circuit court to take jurisdiction of these cases. Right now it looks as if the parties are 'judge shopping' as they feel they did not receive a judgment in their favor. This whole incident is politically charged and should not be in front of the Business Committee at this time. There are laws in place and those laws either need to be adhered to or changed through the proper channels. We cannot be passing emergency amendments or changing the law on a whim.
Motion by Patty Hoeft to send to the LOC and LRO a request for them to include in their study of Chapter 78 and Chapter 79, the review process and the two years after the final order that they consider examining the prospects of decreasing that two year wait period, that they also study how child custody evaluations are performed during that review process and that they look at the appeals process to determine if 30 days is too short of a time period and that they include a review of enforcement of strengthening child support, seconded by David Jordan. Motion carried with one opposed:
Opposed: Brandon Stevens
For the record: Brandon Stevens stated I half agree with the motion and I think it's not the LOC's task to investigate anything. It is our job to legislate and create policy and I do believe that child support does need a little stronger enforcement mechanisms in there and some suggestions, well noted.

Adjourn
Motion by Patty Hoeft to adjourn at 5 p.m., seconded by David Jordan. Motion carried unanimously

Public Hearing Notices

5:00PM • Norbert Hill Center, 2nd Floor (BCCR)

March 28, 2013

Purpose:
Oneida Tribal Judiciary Canons of Judicial Conduct.

The intent of the Oneida Tribal Judiciary Canons of Judicial Conduct (Canons) is to provide ethical principles and guidelines for Oneida judges to follow.

The proposed Canons provide guidance to judges on the following issues:
- Judicial integrity and independence.
- Judicial diligence and impartiality
- Permissible extra-judicial activities
- The avoidance of impropriety or the appearance thereof.
- Encouragement of devoting time to the community and to public service.
- Discouragement of hearing cases in which the judge has personal knowledge of the disputed facts, a personal bias concerning a party to the case, earlier involvement in the case as a lawyer or advocate, or financial interest in any party or subject matter of the case.

The proposed Canons allow for disciplinary action against a judge who violates the Canons.

March 28, 2013

Purpose:
Early Return to Work Law Amendments.

The intent of the Early Return to Work Law (the Law) is to assist an employee who is temporarily unable to work due to an injury, return to work as soon as possible, even if there are restrictions placed on them by a medical provider. It allows employees to be temporarily placed in modified duty for a maximum of 180 days The proposed amendments to the Law are as follows:
- New Process for Work Related Injuries. If 180 days has expired and the employee is still unable to be medically cleared to return to work, an employee with a work related injury, that employee will be required to contact Employee Benefits regarding Worker's Compensation benefits. If an agreement with the employee is unable to be reached in regards to accommodations, that employee would be terminated for non-disciplinary reasons. This allows the employee to immediately return to work under modified duty and not give up their rights under the Worker's Compensation Law.
- New Process for Non-Work Related Injuries. If 180 days has expired and the employee is still unable to be medically cleared to return to work, an employee with a non-work related injury, shall be required to apply for disability benefits, or use their available personal and/or vacation time. If disability benefits are not available or the employee no longer has personal or vacation time available, that employee would be terminated for non-disciplinary reasons. This amendment will assist supervisors in being consistent with the treatment of all employees.
- Exception to Termination. In either instance noted above, if an employee has had a position transfer approved by HRD and it is in process at the time this law applies, the employees modified duty could be extended for an additional 90 days to allow that transfer to go through.
- Restrictions Definition. The definition of "Restrictions" was amended to allow for limitation of activities due to pregnancy as prescribed by a physician.

Public Hearing Process
Testimony:
Oral: There will be a 5 minute limit for all oral presentations. Each participant is encouraged to provide a written transcript of his/her oral testimony, to be submitted while present at the public hearing or within ten (10) business days from the date of public hearing to the below named individuals.
Written: For those who cannot attend the scheduled public hearing or do not plan to speak at the hearing, the Oneida Tribe encourages those to submit written testimony. A maximum of ten (10) pages, doubled spaced, can be submitted within ten (10) business days from the date of public hearing to the Tribal Secretary (Patricia Hoeft) or Tonya Boucher, Legislative Reference Office at the Norbert Hill Center, 2nd floor or mail to PO Box 365, Oneida WI 54155.

Oneida Tribal Judicial System

Quarterly Summaries for Oct. - Dec. 2012

Initial Review

Rule 9(D) - Criteria for Acceptance:

The Initial Review Body shall accept an appeal for appellate review if one or more of the following elements are sufficiently alleged to exist in the original hearing body decision by the Appellant in the Notice of Appeal:

(1) A violation of constitutional provisions;
(2) The decision is outside the scope of the authority or otherwise unlawful;
(3) The decision is clearly erroneous and is against the weight of the evidence presented at the hearing level;
(4) The decision is arbitrary and/or capricious;
(5) There is exhibited a procedural irregularity which would be considered a harmful error that may have contributed to the final decision, which if the error had not occurred, would have altered the final decision;
(6) There is a presentation or introduction of new evidence that was not available at the hearing level which, if available, may have altered the final decision.

To conserve time and space provided, the Oneida Tribal Judicial System will only put into print the Initial Review Decisions which have been denied. The cases that have been accepted at Initial Review will be published when the final adjudication has been entered.

Denied Initial Review Decisions

Kim Appel vs. Andrew Doxtator. Docket No. 12-AC-022, October 30, 2012. Judicial Officers Winnifred L. Thomas, Lois Powless and Janice L. McLester presiding. Denied. Untimely.

Kim Appel vs. Andrew Doxtator. Docket No. 12-AC-022, November 8, 2012. Judicial Officers Winnifred L. Thomas, Lois Powless and Janice L. McLester residing. Reconsideration denied. Failure to meet criteria set in Rule 24(B) and (C) Reconsideration of the rules and definition for new evidence.

Appellate Court Cases

Tenielle Johnson vs Debbie Danforth. Docket No. 12-AC-011, October 9, 2012. Judicial Officers Winnifred L. Thomas, Janice L. McLester, Lois Powless, Jennifer Webster and Stanley Webster presiding. This was an appeal of Oneida Personnel Commissions Initial Review Hearing Panel's decision dismissing Ms. Johnson's complaint appeal. A letter of Complaint was filed with Debbie Danforth, Comprehensive Health Division Operations Director, against Dr. William Stempski. The complaint concerned an incident of January 12, 2012 between Ms. Johnson and Dr. Stempski. Ms. Johnson, a Dental Supervisor at the Oneida Health Center, asserted she had a confrontation with her supervisor, Dr. Stempski during which Dr. Stempski yelled and came close into her physical space in a threatening manner. Ms. Johnson was not disciplined or terminated. The court found there was no adverse employment action and Ms. Johnson's submission was treated as a grievance, it was not timely filed. The Appellate Court dismissed.

Mari Kriescher, Supervisor, Oneida Behavioral Health vs Evangeline Suquet, AODA Counselor. Docket No. 12-AC-010, October 23, 2012. Judicial Officers Winnifred L. Thomas, Janice L. McLester, Lois Powless, Jennifer Webster and Stanley R. Webster presiding. This case was an appeal of the Oneida Personnel Commission's (OPC) decision ruling in favor of Ms. Suquet, citing Sec. IV.D3.a.l of the Oneida Personnel Policies and Procedures (OPPP); leaves of absence must be signed by the supervisor, Area Manager, Human Resources Department Manager, and General Manager. The Appellate Court agreed with the OPC decision overturning the involuntary leave of absence. Ms. Suquet is a Substance Abuse Counselor In-Training working for the Oneida Medical Department at the Oneida Behavioral Health Department of the Oneida Comprehensive Health Division. Ms. Kriescher is Ms. Suquet's Supervisor. Ms. Kriescher stated she had received letters of complaints regarding Ms. Suquet's abuse of alcohol while in the community. Ms. Kriescher determined that the complaints were valid yet they had not been substantiated through an investigation. In placing Ms. Suquet on a Leave of Absence, there were procedural irregularities exhibited. The process for placing an individual on a Medical Leave of Absence is outlined in the OPPP in Sec. IV.D.3.a)l)i. All Leaves of absence must be approved by the Supervisor, Area Manager, HRD Manager and General Manager. The OPC correctly determined Ms. Kriescher did not acquire all necessary approvals to place her on medical leave as evidenced through the hearing. The OPC overturned the leave of absence based on procedural irregularities and ordered Ms. Suquet to receive back pay for lost vacation and personnel time while on leave. The Appellate Court affirmed the OPC's decision overturning the involuntary leave of absence.

Claudia Skenandore vs Florence Petri and Martha Braeger Indispensable Party. No. 12-AC-009, November 27, 2012. Judicial Officers Winnifred L. Thomas, Janice L. McLester, Lois Powless, Jennifer Webster and Stanley R. Webster presiding. This was an appeal of OPC decision that overturned Supervisor Claudia Skenandore's termination of employee Martha Braeger. The Appellate Court, by a split decision, ruled in favor of the Supervisor. In this case Claudia Skenandore is the Supervisor, Florence Petri is the Area Manager, and Ms. Braeger is the Employee. Ms. Skenandore terminated Ms. Braeger for Excessive absenteeism. Ms. Braeger appealed to Florence Petri, the Area Manager. There had been a history of excessive absences and written warnings filed by the Supervisor Skenandore, the employee appealing to the Area Manager, Petri and the Area Manager overturning or modifying the disciplines. The court had confronted issues of this same type in the past and ruled in favor of the Supervisor based on the evidence presented. The history of the Case Law prevailed. In the case of Oneida Bingo and Casino v. Oneida Human Resources, Docket # 02-AC-007 (8/12/02) the employee was issued an eight-day suspension by his supervisor. The employee appealed the disciplinary action to the Area Manager. The Area Manager was on vacation upon his return sought an extension of time to complete his investigation with the Oneida HRD. The request was denied and the disciplinary action was voided by the Oneida HRD on the grounds that Area Manager had filed an untimely request and that the investigative period had passed. The supervisor filed an appeal with the OPC which denied the grievance hearing. The OPC held that the supervisor had failed to establish a right to relief or an adverse employment action which could be resolved by the OPC. The OPC stated that the supervisor who had issued disciplinary action, but had that action overturned, did not establish a sufficient adverse action for which relief could be granted. The supervisor appealed to the Oneida Tribal Judicial System. The Appellate Court reversed the OPC's decision denying Oneida Bingo and Casino a grievance hearing. The Appellate Court ruled in their decision, that supervisors have a sufficient stake in seeing their disciplinary actions upheld to allow them to appeal: In that decision the court stated "It is the finding of this court that Oneida entities, as the employer, have an equal interest in the resolution of disciplinary action questions and that this interest qualifies as an adverse employment action." The Appellate Court, in the Braeger, Petri, decision; not only affirmed the Supervisor had standing but sent a message to the Legislators reminding them of the Resolutions that had been passed by the GTC to make the amendments to the OPPP when the laws are silent. When past decisions that have been rendered by this court have not been addressed and the laws remain silent it falls to the court to default to precedent case law, which in this case led to the split decision of the Judicial Officers. In this case the Appellate Court stated in their decision "The decision to terminate Ms. Braeger's employment from the Oneida Tribe of Indians of Wisconsin by Supervisor Claudia Skenandore is affirmed by this Appellate Court. The decision to overturn the termination by the Area Manager is reversed by this Appellate Court. The OPC decision to uphold the Area Manager's decision is reversed. Remedial training for Area Manager on how to conduct a proper investigation with notice to Appellate Court when training is complete no later than 3 months."

Dissenting opinion by Judicial Officers Janice L. McLester and Stanley R. Webster. OPPP (Blue Book) do not support the right of a supervisor to appeal an Area Manager decision.

Carol Penass vs Connie Hill, Mickey Petitjean, Oneida Bingo & Casino, Cage Vault Department. Docket No. 12-AC-017, December 3, 2012. Judicial Officers Janice L. McLester, Lois Powless, Winnifred L. Thomas, Jennifer Webster and Stanley R. Webster presiding. This was an appeal of OPC decision upholding a modified discipline to a written warning from a suspension. Ms. Penass alleged the decision to be a violation of constitutional provisions, outside the scope of authority, clearly erroneous and against the weight of the evidence. The Appellate Review body found Ms. Penass failed to supply proof of any of her allegations and cannot substitute a judgment of the original hearing body unless the relevant facts of evidence or a clear error of judgment is established. Personnel Commission decision upheld.

Tina Pospychala vs Florence Petri & Leslie Cornette. Docket No. 12-AC-008, December 5, 2012. Judicial Officers Winnifred L. Thomas, Janice L. McLester, Lois Powless, Jennifer Webster and Stanley R. Webster presiding. This was an appeal of OPC decision which upheld the Area Manager's decision to overturn the Supervisor's suspension of employee, Leslie Cornette. Tina Pospychala is the supervisor of employee Leslie Cornette. Mr. Cornette was a home chore worker for the Oneida Elderly Services. Supervisor, Pospychala, issued a 2 day suspension to Mr. Cornette for being a no-call/no-show for 2 days. Mr. Cornette appealed the suspension to the Area Manager Florence Petri who overturned it. Supervisor, Pospychala, filed an appeal to the OPC which upheld the Area Manager's decision. Appellate Court found in favor of the Supervisor Pospychala. When the law is silent it falls to the court to interpret, again the court defaults to precedent case law; Claudia Skenandore vs. Florence Petri & Martha Braeger Docket #12-AC-009 and Oneida Bingo and Casino v. Oneida Human Resources Docket #02-AC-007 (8/12/02). This case resulted in a split decision with the majority ruling "The Oneida Personnel Commission's decision is overturned. The Area Manager's decision to overturn the Supervisor's decision is overturned. The Supervisors decision to suspend Mr. Cornette for two days is upheld."

Dissenting opinion by Judicial Officers Janice L. McLester and Stanley R. Webster. OPPP (Blue Book) do not support the right of a supervisor to appeal an Area Manager decision.

Carol Penass vs Connie Hill, Mickey Petitjean, Oneida Bingo & Casino, Cage Vault Department. Docket No. 12-AC-018, December 27, 2012. Judicial Officers Janice L. McLester, Winnifred L. Thomas, James Van Stippen (Pro Tem), Jennifer Webster and Stanley R. Webster presiding. This is an appeal of an OPC decision upholding a six (6) day suspension for negligence. Ms. Penass alleged the decision to be a violation of constitutional provisions, outside the scope of authority, clearly erroneous and against the weight of the evidence. The Appellate Review body found Ms. Penass failed to provide sufficient proof of her allegations that would allow this review body to substitute its judgment for that of the original hearing body unless the relevant facts of evidence or a clear error of judgment is established. Personnel Commission decision upheld.

Trial Court Cases

Carmela Oshkeshequoam vs Dale Wheelock, Oneida Housing Authority Director. Docket No. 12-TC-107, October 19, 2012. Judicial Officers Jean M. Webster, Sandra Skenadore and Janice L. McLester presiding. On August 29, 2012 Respondent's filed a Motion for Enforcement and Deficiency Judgment stating Petitioner failed to conform to the order to not commit waste on the premises. Petitioner was evicted on June 8, 2012. October 12, 2012 a hearing was held and Petitioner failed to appear. By the Petitioner's failure to appear at the hearing the Court found the Petitioner in default, therefore, granting the Respondent's motion and ordered the Petitioner to reimburse the Respondent for the repairs recommended to the unit due to neglect and/or waste.

Mike King vs HRD/Benefits and Crawford & Co., Insurance. Docket No. 12-TC-129, November 13, 2012. Judicial Officers Jean M. Webster, Mary Adams, Leland Wigg-Ninham presiding. Petitioner requested personal day, eight (8) hours be reinstated and the Workers Compensation Claim remain open to allow Petitioner to seek a second opinion in the event reconstructive surgery is needed. January 27, 2012 Petitioner underwent a right knee arthroscopy. Petitioner's request to have the case remain open denied. Per the Petitioner's doctor Petitioner had reached maximum medical improvement and assigned a 5% permanent partial disability to the right knee. Oneida's Workers Compensation law states only percentages exceeding seven and one half percent (7-1/2%) will be deemed compensable. Petitioner's request to reinstate the eight (8) hours of personal time was denied. In the Oneida Workers Compensation law compensation other than payment of medical benefits will be allowed for temporary disabilities beginning with the third day of disability.

Oneida Tribe, Accounting Department vs Cathy L. Metoxen. Docket No. 12-TC-121, November 15, 2012. Judicial Officers Mary Adams, Sandra L. Skenadore and Jean M. Webster presiding. Between February 23, 2012 and April 5, 2012, Respondent, Cathy L. Metoxen, received services from Anna John Nursing Home (AJNH). The AJNH provided long-term rehabilitation, case management, skilled nursing care and on-site physical therapy with the amount due for these services rendered to Ms. Metoxen of $8,678.70. Ms. Metoxen did not deny that she received the services and that this amount remains unpaid. The AJNH sent letters seeking payment on April 16 and May 16, 2012. A third and final letter was sent by Oneida Central Accounting on June 27, 2012, which included a $15.00 collection fee. As of the date of the hearing, the balance owed remained unpaid. At the November 13th hearing, Petitioner proved its claim. Respondent Cathy L. Metoxen did not contest

Comprehensive Plan Community Meeting

Submitted by Oneida Planning Department

The eighth comprehensive plan community meeting was held at the Oneida Community Health Center on February 12, 2013. The plan element presented was Health Care.

The comprehensive planning process represents the Oneida community people's voice in addressing all 16 plan elements affecting the social, economic, and physical growth of our community. Our plan is developed through a "grassroots" approach where community has a forum to express their ideas, reactions and concerns of well-being and quality of life. The Oneida community, executive leaders, managers, and Tribal departments use the comprehensive plan as a reference and guide in the development of Tribal plans, initiatives, and policies.

The 16 plan elements are, 1. Health Care, 2. Education, 3. Housing, 4. Community Design, 5. Parks and Recreation, 6. Utilities, 7. Community Facilities, 8. Transportation, 9. Public Safety, 10. Government Coordination and Regulations, 11. Economic Development, 12. Agriculture, 13. Natural Resources, 14. Environmental Protection, 15. Tsi? Niyukwaliho' tʌ' (Department of Culture), and 16. Land Use.

The Oneida Comprehensive Health Vision statement is "We provide the highest quality, holistic health care to ensure the future wellness of OUR Oneida Community".

The Comprehensive Health Division proudly reported out efficiency trending in lowering their number of employees, increasing their number of services provided, and reductions of Tribal contribution to their budget.

The Health Division's three key strategies to accomplishing their goals are

1. Improved access to care across the Health Division 2. Unending clinical quality improvement, and 3. Coordination and integration of services through technology. The two key initiatives or special projects being focused on are implementation of the electronic medical record and completion of the construction phase of the Oneida Resident Centered Care Community with the projected move in date of mid to late Spring, 2013 at which time it will become Anna John Resident Centered Care Community.

The Health Division has 3 goals and 14 objectives in the comprehensive plan, all of which are being met by applying one of their key strategies listed above. The goals and objectives are as follows:

Goal 1: Provide quality health care programs and services to the users of the Oneida Comprehensive Health care Facility, aligned with traditional Oneida Values.

- Objective 1.1: Establish, incorporate and maintain area specific standards for care utilizing current best practices.
- Objective 1.2: Recognize the high esteem afforded our elders.
- Objective 1.3: Recognize the high esteem afforded our Veterans.
- Objective 1.4: Recognize the lifelong commitment to a healthy Oneida Community.
- Objective 1.5: Address gaps in services determined on a needs-based system.

Goal 2: To provide easy access to a broad spectrum of preventive, curative and rehabilitative services.

- Objective 2.1: Complete a health needs assessment on the Oneida Community User population to determine gaps, priorities, and duplication.
- Objective 2.2: Maximize the utilization of all funding sources.
- Objective 2.3: Increase efficiency through the use of best business practices.
- Objective 2.4: Maximize the utilization of all facility resources available.
- Objective 2.5 and 2.6: These two objectives have been reassigned to the Governmental Service Division.

Goal 3: Recruit and retain dedicated, highly competent and courteous staff, especially professional staff, who are patient/client/community focused and knowledgeable of the community and patients we serve.

- Objective 3.1: Advertise vacant and new professional positions in health care journals, newspapers, professional meetings, etc.
- Objective 3.2: Customer service training for all employees including specific training on cultural history, cultural sensitivity and cultural values.
- Objective 3.3: Development of formal preceptorship and mentorship programs for staff and students.
- Objective 3.4: Provide a professional work environment which attracts qualified professionals and promotes the development of leadership skills.

Accomplishments for FY 2012

- Implementation of Technology/Software enhancements
- National recognition for catastrophic health emergency fund cases
- Improved health care access
- Re-certification of the alcohol, tobacco, and other drug addiction program (ATODA)
- Progressive employee development
- Diabetes prevention program
- National recognition of health promotion disease prevention (HPDP/TRIAD) program

Challenges

1. Uncertainty within the National Health care system.
2. Resource constraints with implementation of technology projects.
3. Oneida Resident Centered Care Community.
4. Recruitment and retention of professionals.
5. Organizational priorities.

Opportunities

1. Leverage our resources toward health and wellness.
2. Efficiencies from technology.
3. Improved coordination and collaboration of services.
4. Improved communications.

A summary of the public/community concerns and comments on health care included a desire for a central location and larger facility for health, mental health, health education and fitness activities for all age groups. Suggestions for improvement included increased customer service by allowing patients to have more say in their health care decisions; easier access by providing additional extended hours of operation; and by talking to a person when contacting the health center by telephone. Input included encouragement to maintain current professional staff and to hire more to lesson wait times for access to health care. When asked what additional health care services people would like to see there were plenty of suggestions. Some suggestions included chiropractic care, a dialysis clinic, drive up pharmacy, cooking classes by a registered dietician, massage therapy, incorporation of Oneida culture and traditional medicines, organic food and medicines, and offering of employment health incentives.

The Court granted Petitioner's motion for a money judgment against Ms. Metoxen for the amount of $8,678.70.

Julie Mitchler vs Oneida HRD-Benefits, Crawford and Co. Insurance. Docket No. 12-TC-108, November 30, 2012. Judicial Officers Mary Adams, Sandra L. Skenadore and Jean M. Webster presiding. Previously, Petitioner suffered a fall at the Oneida Casino in February 2010, injuring both knees resulting in surgery on her right knee. The Trial Court awarded Petitioner some permanent partial disability and denied other benefits in the decision Mitchler v. Oneida HRD, et al., 11-TC-038, 5/12/11. This claim is for an injury she suffered on November 21, 2011, where she tripped over a mat at work and fell on her right knee. On July 9, 2012 Dr. Brian Lohrbach performed surgery on Petitioner's right knee. Petitioner argues that the partial knee replacement was medical necessary, that's it's covered by Oneida Worker's Compensation Law and that the Tribe be obligated to pay for the surgery, lost personal/vacation time for rehabilitation in order to reach her point of healing. The Court concluded that Ms. Mitchler's permanent partial disability is 7% and therefore not compensable under Sec. 13.6-10(h). The Court also found that Ms. Mitchler's knee replacement should not be subject to benefits because the underlying condition requiring the knee replacement was not sufficiently related to her workplace injury, nor one that is compensable under the ordinance. Further benefits were denied.

Summers to base coaching in Oneida culture

By Travis Cottrell
Kalihwisaks
tcottrel@oneidanation.org

Curt Summers

Lacrosse is one of the fastest growing sports in the United States. But to the Iroquois people lacrosse is much more than a game; it is a spiritual tradition. The Iroquois believe lacrosse to be a gift from the Creator. That is what new Oneida Nation Lacrosse head coach Curt Summers is planning to instill in his players.

"The basis of this year and for the players the majority of our focus is going to be based on our tradition of lacrosse. Our discipline and strength is going to come from our respect for the Creator's game. That will be where we get everything," said Summers.

Initially Summers wasn't so sure about leading the Thunderhawks lacrosse team.

"It took me awhile to really think about it. You realize how much time you have to put into it. Being the new coach and everything, starting new with the kids, I know the majority of the kids already, but just getting everyone to mesh and work together would present a challenge," Summers said.

Summers' love for lacrosse ultimately won out and he accepted the head coaching position with hopes of building an enduring Oneida lacrosse program.

"The past few years I have been participating in a non-profit community based lacrosse program. Just to get kids familiar with our game; get them to know where the game came from and to be proud of that," Summers added.

The program put together lacrosse games for area youth to attend and participate in the game. The games attracted kids ranging from five years old to high school players, along with some adults.

Assisting Summers with coaching duties this season is Johnson Jimerson, an experienced lacrosse player from the Seneca Nation in New York.

"He has been playing all his life too. He has been trying out for professional lacrosse teams, too, so he knows about our game and he is going to be a great asset to the program and to what we can offer the kids," Summers said of Jimerson.

This season Oneida will be participating at the junior varsity level in the Bay Valley Lacrosse Association. If the program is successful in its first season in the association it will be moved up to play at the varsity level.

Summers believes Oneida's players already have the ability to play at the varsity level.

"There is no reason why this team shouldn't be on the higher level. Starting us out at JV for this year is fine, that's understandable. But the potential is there to be very good and a lot of these kids showed that last year," Summers said.

In addition to joining the Bay Valley Lacrosse Association the program is also working on a cooperative agreement that would allow players from Pulaski, West DePere, and Seymour school districts to play lacrosse for Oneida.

OSGC appeals ruling that upheld permit revocation

By Nate Wisneski
Kalihwisaks
nwisnes@oneidanation.org

The Oneida Seven Generations Corporation (OSGC) has appealed a ruling upholding the Green Bay City Council's decision to rescind a conditional use permit (CUP) in October of 2012.

In January Brown County Circuit Court Judge Marc Hammer ruled that OSGC misrepresented plans for their waste to energy facility when obtaining the CUP from the city. Hammer focused on the absence of smoke stacks from plant renderings submitted by OSGC.

"I'm not finding any evidence in this record that would allow a reasonable person to conclude that there may be a smokestack," said Hammer during the January hearing. "Mr. Cornelius (OSGC's CEO Kevin Cornelius) indicated that there are no smoke stacks, no oxygen, and no ash. I am satisfied that is a misstatement."

"The Oneida Seven Generations Corporation filed an appeal in its case against the City of Green Bay for its revocation of a previously approved conditional use permit, a decision we believe was arbitrary and unreasonable," said a statement released by OSGC. "The appeal seeks to overturn the ruling of Circuit Court Judge Marc Hammer. The project has met and continues to meet all of the conditions specified in the CUP and the city's zoning code as well as extensive state and federal environmental regulations expressly designed to protect the health and safety of the public."

The waste to energy facility is designed to take municipal waste that would otherwise be placed into a landfill, sort it, and put nonhazardous, non-recyclable materials through a gasification process. It will generate power, which will be sold to Wisconsin Public Service. It is set to be built at 1230 Hurlbut Street on the city's northwest side. It received the CUP in March of 2011.

The plant has moved multiple times after finding temporary homes in the Town of Oneida, Village of Hobart, and Village of Ashwaubenon. The Town of Oneida location was not selected

The site of OSGC's waste to energy facility sits idle as the City of Green Bay and OSGC wait for court rulings. The plant is set to be constructed at 1230 Hurlbut Street on Green Bay's northwest side.

ONHS and Russian students exchange music

Kali photos/Travis Cottrell

On Tuesday, March 19th four students from Kurgan, Russia stopped by the Oneida Nation High School for an exchange of arts and culture. The students traveled to the Fox Valley area from Russia as part of the Fox Cities Kurgan Sister Cities Program. Instruments such as the violin and the accordion were used to play traditional Russian songs. Oneida students used traditional rattles and drums to sing songs and dance. The visiting students also participated in Oneida songs and dances during the cultural exchange.

Just Move It Oneida awards regular attendees

By Dawn Walschinski
Kalihwisaks
dwalschi@oneidanation.org

The Oneida Health Promotions Department honored 22 people who "just moved it" during at least 70 percent of the Just Move It Oneida (JMIO) events held throughout last year. Those dedicated to physical activity received certificates for N7 Nike shoes at a JMIO event held Wednesday, March 20 at the Oneida Fitness Center.

Health Promotions Specialist Stephanie Reinke said the people with high attendance deserved recognition.

"It shows a commitment to being active and I think it sets a good example for the community, and I think it's should be something that should be highlighted," said Reinke.

One individual earning extra praise is Cheryl Dubois who attended 100 percent of the events last year.

"She's been to the last 16 straight events if not more," said Reinke.

Dubois was introduced to JMIO through the Diabetes Prevention Program. She was motivated to commit to improving her fitness after seeing her brother struggle with major health problems.

"I'm keeping my numbers so I don't go into diabetes range," said Dubois referring to her blood sugar and other indicators of diabetes.

From 1A/JMIO recognition

Dubois said she and her family often go to the events together.

"We really try to attend all of them," she said. "My husband has diabetes, so for him walking and keeping active's important."

Going to the monthly events is also a social occasion for her and her family.

"We get to know a lot of people in the community that we don't see anywhere else," she said.

It can be difficult to get to the events sometimes due to work and family commitments, but Dubois says she makes the effort because she enjoys the events.

"It's not easy; it's a lot of planning and moving things around," she said. "They're really worthwhile, they're a lot of fun, and what it says, just move it, so just by moving, even if you're doing one mile or less, getting out there, because there's a couple that are always there, and there's one lady, she has a cane, but she always tries to do one lap, and there's two elderly gentlemen that are there, and there's another elderly friend, and you make friends just by going there and keeping active."

Through her job at the Oneida Early Headstart Program, she's able to spread the word about the JMIO events and see her clients outside of work.

"A lot of times they're starting to involve their family in it, too, so it's pretty nice," she said.

Reinke says Dubois is a good example for the community.

"She shows up, she's got a smile on her face and she's excited to be there," said Reinke. "She has been very successful in that and making lifestyle changes, and as we all know these types of things are always a battle, you're always change to healthy eating, you're trying to be more active, and she has dedicated herself to that program and has participating in these types of events as part of that. So she has really has shown dedication in that lifestyle change of wanting to be physically active. She really was someone who was a really positive role model. It's a commitment to stay active after all that is pretty impressive to us."

Reinke stated that attendance to JMIO averages around 100 people, up from around 50 people a few years ago.

"We started out as just a walk, and then we added working with the fitness center, and they offer different fitness classes, so that they can try those out for free that day," she said.

Cheryl Dubois

She attributes the jump to word of mouth.

"It's really fun for us to see the same people coming and enjoying themselves and then they'll bring someone new with them, and they're so excited to show them, and just have them have that workout partner and make it a fun thing," said Reinke.

There's a light lunch served at the events, and activities for children.

"We just hope we can continue to do this for the community, and that more people find out about it through things like this, and maybe highlighting these individuals will be motivating," said Reinke.

From 1A/OSGC appeals

due to costs associated with running power line to the Wisconsin Pubic Service substation. The Village of Hobart location was changed due to the village's demands that the parcel of property the project was set be on be removed from the trust application process and that the tribe waive its sovereign immunity in regards to the project. The village of Ashwaubenon location was moved after gathering community input and being approached by the City of Green Bay offered a location for the plant.

OSGC has shifted their focus to a new project to be located within the industrial park off of Highway 54 in Oneida. The project will house a gasification system designed to convert high food grade plastic products like fast food drink cups, pasta boxes, orange juice containers, and other food based recyclables into base oil. That oil will then be sold to oil refineries, and ultimately blended into fuel. The proposed facility would employ up to 20 people.

"Seven Generations remains convinced this project is beneficial for the area's economic development, the jobs it will create and, ultimately, enhance the environment for future generations," said OSGC.

Happy Birthday
Tami Jo (Sam) Cornelius
3/25/1969

We whispered a little prayer today to ask everyone up above, To sing you a Happy Birthday Song and give you all our love!

Missing you on your birthday and every day!

Love, Mom & Dad, Brandon, Corey-Brody-Blake, Stephanie & Family

In Loving Memory of
Patricia A. "Patty" Lilly
January 1, 1954 - March 15, 2012

It's been one year that you were born with the Creator, And the memory of you has grown stronger with time.

The tears of sadness have been replaced with tears of laughter, As we fondly remember all the special times together.

The memories of you are a reminder to all who knew you, Of your most special gift to us, the gift of patience and love.

Love, your family and friends

In Loving Memory of
Stephanie Cruz

What we know now, We would have spent more time with you. Time goes by so fast, We wish we could get you back. Even with the days that have gone by, We think of you still, and often cry. People say time makes the hurt go away, But we still think of you each day. I miss all the things we did, My Best Friend for life you will always be, Now there's one more thing I wish I could do, I wish I could tell you how much we miss you.

Sadly missed by children, family & Becca

Kevin's family wishes to express their deep appreciation to the dedicated and caring staff of Kindred Hearts, where he resided.

Ninham, Tammy
March 7, 1969 – March 6, 2013

Tammy Michelle Ninham, age 43 of Oneida passed away on Wednesday, March 6, 2013. She was born on March 7, 1969 to Cletus and Marion (Duprey) Ninham I. Tammy's disability never held her back; she had a great zest for adventure. Whether it is swinging at Pamperin Park, riding a horse or going for a ride with her dad and having him race down a road real fast. Her smile would brighten up any room, and being with family and friends is what she treasured the most.

Tammy is survived by her parents, Cletus I and Marion, as well as her brother Cletus II and his wife Carrie. Her niece and nephew Bryanna and Alex as well as numerous loving aunts, uncles, and cousins survive her.

Tammy's sister Amy Ninham and her grandparents preceded her in death.

Friends may have called at the RYAN FUNERAL HOME 305 N. Tenth Street in De Pere after 3pm on Tuesday March 12, 2013 until time of service at 6pm with Pastor Dennis Toyne officiating. The Oneida Hymn singers sang at 5:30pm. Please go to www.ryanfh.com to send online condolences.

OBC recognizes Lady T-Hawks at meeting

By Travis Cottrell
Kalihwisaks
tcottrel@oneidanation.org

The Oneida Business Committee (OBC) honored the Oneida Nation Lady Thunderhawks basketball team on their historic season at the Wednesday, March 13th meeting.

"Really what I wanted to commend the ladies on was the representation of the community. Their attitude, their sportsmanship, and how they carried themselves on and off the court was very admirable. You could see it and you could tell the pride that they carried for their community," said Councilwoman Melinda Danforth.

The OBC presented the team with letters of recognition and Head Coach Jamie Betters, who stated this was her last year as coach, received a Pendleton blanket.

After the OBC returned to its agenda the subject of the New York land claim settlement monthly report was discussed, as members of the OBC were invited to Canada for a conference to discuss the settlement.

As the potential travel would require the proper credentials to cross the United States/Canadian border Chaz Wheelock suggested this would be a time to support the Haudenosaunee passport.

"I don't know if it has been talked about in your chambers but this would be an opportunity to support your Haudenosaunee passport as the Iroqouis Nationals have done in the past," Wheelock said.

Community member Dale Powless suggested to the committee that report be published to clarify the monetary investment into the land claims.

"Over the 40 years of this issue we have spent around $20 million. It needs to be explained a little bit more to the membership on why this kind of money is being spent and what are the results," Powless said.

Chairman Ed Delgado reiterated that no land will be sold without the permission of the General Tribal Council.

The New York land claim settlement monthly report was accepted but no travel plans were set during the meeting.

Another issue that sparked discussion was the Oneida Seven Generation Corporation's (OSGC) proposed waste-to-energy project on the Oneida Reservation.

The proposed project was sent to the Legislative Reference Office to determine the potential legislative impact. The office determined that there is no legislative impact so there is no legislative analysis that could be completed.

The proposed facility is scheduled for discussion during the May 5th General Tribal Council (GTC) Meeting.

"The project hasn't been approved by the board yet and to have a petition meeting on an action that hasn't even taken place yet, is that appropriate use of tribal funds and tribal member time?" asked Councilman Brandon Stevens.

It was stated that the GTC previously decided to delegate their authority, indicating GTC no longer has the power to make and land use and zoning decisions.

"Any entity that comes in, I don't care if they're Indian or non-Indian, if there is a potential for damage to Oneidas or Oneida land I think that is the General Tribal Council's decision," stated Chairman Ed Delgado.

A motion was passed to keep the OSGC waste-to-energy facility on the agenda for the May 5th GTC meeting.

Stenzel gets new appointment

Oneida Tribal Judicial System Staff Attorney Paul Stenzel has been appointed as a Deputy Family Court Commissioner in Racine County Circuit Court. Circuit Court Commissioners have limited judicial powers under state statute. They are often used by counties to handle routine or less complicated matters that don't require being placed in front of a judge but still need a decision made or action taken.

"Most of my docket right now is child support enforcement and paternity establishment," Attorney Stenzel said. "I have hearings two days per week."

Paul Stenzel

After working as an advocate, sitting in the commissioner seat is different Attorney Stenzel says. "It definitely gives you a different view of things."

Racine County Circuit Court is the fourth largest in the state with 10 judges.

"I've worked with Indian tribal courts for almost 18 years in a variety of roles including advisor, prosecutor and as an attorney for litigants. Working in the state courts is a little different, but is a natural extension of my work up to now."

Chief Judicial Officer Janice McLester agreed. "Paul has been an asset for our judicial branch and his new position complements his work for us."

Attorney Stenzel's appointment as a Court Commissioner was effective January 3, 2013. He has been with the Oneida Tribal Judicial System since November 2005 and worked in various capacities for Indian tribes since 1995.

Skenandore Jr., Myron G. "Chubby"

September 18, 1934 – March 15, 2013

Myron G. "Chubby" Skenandore Jr. age 78 of Green Bay passed away Friday evening March 15, 2013 surrounded by his family from complications of Diabetes.

He was born September 18, 1934 to the late Myron and Lucy (Denny) Skenandore Sr. On May 25, 1974 he married Marlene Skenadore. Myron was an avid follower of sports, whether it be the Packers, Brewers, or NASCAR, he enjoyed them all. His great grandfather played for the ACME Packers, long before they became the Green Bay Packers. Sunday dinner was a time for the family to gather, which was the most important thing to Myron. He had been one of the original members of the Buckskin Club in Milwaukee. Myron was a Dock Worker for 27 years and a member of the Teamsters. After retiring in 1990 he went to work security for the Potawatomi Casino, then moving to Green Bay and doing custodial work before retiring due to ill health.

He is survived by his wife Marlene, his children, David (Rae) Skenandore, Laura (Mark) Link, Chrissy (Randy Powless) Skenandore, and Wendy (Robert) Madrid. Myron's step children also survive, Lynn (Mark) Corbeil, Kirk (Yvonne Jordan) John, Michael (Zandra) John Sr., and Bradley (Julie) John. Myron is further survived by 19 grandchildren, 10 great grandchildren, his sisters; Joan Biddle, Annette (Juan) Padron, Joyce Skenandore, as well as Marlene's family, Gordy L. (Judy) Skenadore, Richard D. (special friend Patsy Elm) Skenadore, Patricia Skenandore and Carol Skenadore, and numerous nieces and nephews.

He was preceded in death by his parents, his first wife Lois Jean, and his siblings; Ronald Skenandore, Lorraine Red Hail, Dona Skenandore, Kenneth Skenandore, and Wayne Skenandore.

Funeral services were held at 10:30am at Ryan Funeral Home, 305 N. Tenth Street in De Pere. Fr. Robert Clarke officiated with burial in Holy Apostles Episcopal Cemetery.

Please go to www.ryanfh.com to send online condolences to the family. The family would like to thank St. Vincent Wound Care for the years of care to Myron, Dr. Tim Moreau and nurse Connie, as well as Southern Care Hospice for making it possible for Myron to return home to be with his family for his final days. Special thanks to Dr. Sauvey, Nicole, Elizabeth, Erin, and the rest of the staff. Also special thanks to Dr. John Hutto for years of care.

Lambeau construction on schedule, budget

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) ~ The majority of the outdoor construction on Lambeau Field's new south end zone is done.

Green Bay Packers officials say the $143 million renovation project is on budget and on schedule. Some outside seating work still needs to be done, but crews have largely turned their focus indoors.

WLUK-TV says doors and counters are done in the new end zone suites. And work is progressing on the new concession stands and premium seating areas.

The project is expected to be done in time for the Packers' popular Family Night scrimmage this summer. Stadium District Board members toured the construction site Monday afternoon.

Wis. DNR seeks sturgeon guards

MILWAUKEE (AP) ~ The Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources is looking for sturgeon guards.

Volunteers are needed to guard sturgeon as the fish make their annual spawning run up the Wolf River in eastern Wisconsin sometime between late March and early May.

Because lake sturgeon gather in such large numbers, they are susceptible to people wading in the water to grab them or netting them from a boat.

Sturgeon guards do not stop poachers. The volunteers are asked to observe, collect information and call a warden.

The Milwaukee Journal Sentinel reports information on the program and responsibilities of a guard is provided by answers to frequently asked questions posted online.

Loretta Says...
GLITC, INC.

Ongoing Column • Providing a connection to the past

Loretta Metoxen,
Oneida Tribal Historian

Great Lakes Inter-Tribal Council, Incorporated was first established in 1965 as a 501c3 organization. The Tribes in the state of Wisconsin saw the need to formally organize to respond to the Great Society legislation that had recently passed in Washington under the guidance and promotion of President Lyndon Baines Johnson. Those officers who signed the incorporation documents were Arvid Miller, Chairman of the Stockbridge-Munsee Tribe, Norbert Hill,Sr., Chairman of the Oneida Tribe and Mitchell Whiterabbit, an officer and a clergyman with the Ho-Chunk Tribe.

The very first headquarters of GLITC, Inc. was in a building on the Stockbridge Reservation. There was neither water nor central heat in this building. We hauled wood and water and dressed quite warmly. Most of the small number of staff were from the local tribe, Stockbridge, but there were others from several reservations, such as myself from Oneida. Persons from outside of Stockbridge Territory had to travel many miles, sometimes on very bad roads. Mileage, in the line of duty, was 7 cents per mile.

When Director Arvid Miller passed, Angelo LaMere took his place and GLITC, Inc. moved upstairs over the bank in downtown Bowler. That was quite a step up, literally and figuratively. Not long after that, the entire operation moved to an old Bureau of Indian Affairs building at Lac Du Flambeau. The building had been a residence hall for BIA teachers. Pete Christensen, from LDF, was the new Director and I was employed as the Assistant Director. Our offices were now on Flambeau Lake. We tried to pretty up the place with brightly colored blinds and chair covers. Everyone had an office with their name over the door.

Now the work began. GLITC, Inc. was the sponsor and administrator for all the programs on ten reservations simultaneously. Some of them were: Headstart, Community Health Representatives, Emergency Food, Jobs Training Partnership, Neighborhood Youth Corps, Volunteers in Service to America (VISTA), Community Action Program, among others. We wrote all the proposals for grants and contracts. The GLITC, Inc. Board, consisting of the ten tribal chairmen (or women), which met monthly, decided how to distribute the services. Pete and I filed the quarterly and year-end reports. Occasionally, we had to hand deliver the paperwork to Washington, D.C.

The original plan was to rotate the offices from one member tribe to another, but that plan was not carried out and the main offices now seem to be permanently fixed at Lac Du Flambeau where a new building was established for them. The charge has been changed, as well, in that each tribe began operating their own programs individually, instead of collectively, putting more people to work on each reservation. GLITC, Inc. ultimately served as a springboard for all the tribes in Wisconsin to be self-determined and become self sufficient. The entire operation, fortuitously, provided the infrastructure for each tribe necessary to operate Gaming and other diverse businesses when they came along. Now, the biggest advantage of GLITC, Inc. to the member tribes is the political unification it provides when dealing with the state of Wisconsin and the United States in government to government forums.

Education issues, from early education programs through advanced college agendas, were always at the top of the agenda. In 1968, the GLITC, Inc. Education Committee was established, with two representatives from each reservation, including the Menomonee Reservation. The Menomonees were not restored until December of 1973 and weren't a formal member of GLITC, Inc. until later. There were also representatives from urban areas. Technical advisors from the Bureau of Indian Affairs, the Department of Public Instruction, the Higher Educational Aids Board and others attended the meetings of the Great Lakes Education Committee. Sisters, Veda Stone and Frieda Wright, both of whom had a high interest in promoting Indian education, attended as well.

I chaired the GLITC, Inc. Education Committee from 1968 to 1980. The Committee was extremely successful in creating positions in every school district near reservations called Home-School Coordinators. It also established the Wisconsin Council on Indian Education, later designated as the Wisconsin Indian Language and Culture Board. Further, under their auspices, a state resolution was passed designating April as Indian Tribal recognition month. Under the Committee's recommendation, Indian scholarships were transferred from DPI to HEAB and increased. Unfortunately, Governor Tommy Thompson line item vetoed most of this progress, previously made. I believe that the Indian Communities were not vigilant when this happened. The Committee also seized the Johnson O'Malley funds from the state in the '70s and directed them to the tribes.

GLITC, Inc. also had a newspaper called "The Voice". The first editor was Harry Ritchie, Potawatomi. Then his daughter, Betty, took up the work on it. It would be a major effort to gather continuous copies of all the editions.

I wrote this summary history because I had a number of inquiries recently on how it all started.

Yawʌʔkó from OCHC

Submitted by Sandy Schuyler
RN, BSN, Director of Nursing

The Oneida Community Health Center (OCHC) On-Call Nursing staff would like to say thank you to our patients for their increased awareness of utilizing after clinic hours calls for urgent concerns only. Our On-Call nurses also work at OCHC on a daily basis. Your positive response to our previous (Kalihwisaks) articles ensures that our nurses get adequate rest after (usually an 8+ hours/day on the job). We will continue to print reminders, but please be aware that we are grateful for your understanding. This further enhances our capability to give optimal, safe nursing care.

Yawʌʔkó

The Oneida Comprehensive Health Division (OCHD) would like to thank all of our patients for your patience and understanding during our Electronic Medical Record (EMR) transition.

The EMR will improve the quality and efficiency of health care and heighten the patient's awareness of their medical care and safety.

We strive to adopt this new technology's systems to further our productivity, while enhancing the quality of healthcare to our community. Once again, our thanks and look forward to your continued support.

Yawʌʔkó

When you are out of town and need medical attention

During regular business hours

Please call the Oneida Community Health Center at (920) 869-2711 to speak with the triage nurse. The nurse will assess your symptoms and recommend care. If you need further evaluation and treatment, the nurse will direct you to the appropriate healthcare facility. Depending on the urgency of your symptoms, your healthcare insurance, and your current location, you may be sent to an urgent care clinic or emergency room (ER). Please present your healthcare insurance card and a list of your current medications. You are responsible to pay for any prescriptions you need. However, you may turn in your receipt into Contract Health Services (CHS) for reimbursement. Any bills received from the healthcare facility can be submitted to CHS for payment.

Your telephone call and recommended care by the nurse will be documented.

After regular business hours

Please call Oneida Community Health Center at (920) 869-2711. If you are certain that this is a life threatening emergency or injury and you need to go to the ER, please leave a message with the after-hours CHS notification line. The message should include the patient's name, birthdate, phone number and reason for ER visit, name of ER and healthcare insurance information.

If you need to discuss your symptoms with the nurse, stay on the line for the Answering Service. Those representatives will gather your contact information and have a nurse call you back. Depending on the urgency of your symptoms, your healthcare insurance, and your current location, you may be sent to either an urgent care clinic or emergency room. Please present your healthcare cad and list of current medications. You are responsible to pay for any prescriptions you need.

However, you may turn in your receipt into Contract Health Services for reimbursement. Any bills received from the healthcare facility can be submitted to Contract Health Services for payment.

Music's Gaines to headline 360° Thursdays lecture

Concert on jazz styles set for March 28

UW-Green Bay Music will present the next installment in its popular new 360° Thursdays lecture and concert series March 28, welcoming Associate Prof. Adam Gaines for a session on exploring jazz styles.

The event will kick off at 6:30 p.m. in Fort Howard Hall at UW-Green Bay's Weidner Center for the Performing Arts. True to the 360° Thursdays format, Gaines will offer a pre-show lecture before entertaining the audience with a jazz concert. Admission is free but donations are appreciated.

Gaines is a trumpeter who directs the University's Jazz II and New Music ensembles and teaches Trumpet Studio, Jazz History and Brass Techniques. He is a member of the UW-Green Bay Faculty Jazz Combo, which will join Gaines during the concert for a number of standards, displaying the myriad ways they can be manipulated and modified to fit a plethora of jazz tastes and styles.

"Standards are songs that have become staples of the jazz repertoire, and as such are used as the basis of the language that jazz musicians speak when dealing with each other on the bandstand," Gaines said. "A jazz musician can go around the world and sit down to play a standard with a musician he or she just met and make an instant connection through a well-worn and familiar melody."

The jazz styles concert is the fourth installment of the innovative new 360° Thursdays series, a component of UW-Green Bay's new 360° of Learning brand. The 360° theme reflects UW-Green Bay's unique approach that enables students to explore their education from a variety of angels, dimensions — and ultimately, possibilities. The 360° Thursdays series does this by helping students, faculty, staff and community members connect with music in more meaningful ways. Performances feature scintillating and provocative pre-concert discussions by a composer, performer or arranger. Attendees will consider a single aspect of the music through multiple perspectives.

The 360° Thursdays series features a diversity of performance styles designed to broaden attendees' horizons and deepen their understanding of music.

Rental Opportunities through the Oneida DOLM

The Division of Land Management (DOLM) has residential rental opportunities available to tribal members.

We offer 62 rental units consisting of single family homes, duplexes, and apartments. Twenty-six are apartments in a secured building setting. Monthly rental rates are competitive and almost all units are located within the Oneida Reservation boundaries (Oneida or west Green Bay area). When renting a home or duplex the tenant is responsible for all utilities, lawn care, and snow removal.

Our eighteen Standing Stone apartments are approximately 900 sq. foot, 2 bedroom, 1 bath units. A stove, refrigerator, dishwasher and wall unit air conditioner is provided. The garage has a remote and the entry into the building hallway is secured. There are onsite laundry facilities. Tenants in the apartment setting are provided with snow removal, grass cutting, water/sewer, and heat.

Applications are processed by means of a point system that focuses on the applicants' residential history, credit and employment history, and the ability of the applicant to comfortably afford additional necessary living expenses. Applications are held for one year and will be scored for each unit as they become available. The highest scored applicant will be offered the available rental unit. Declining a unit will not move you to the bottom of the list.

An existing tenant may elect to transfer from our apartments to duplexes or homes that become available. Payroll deduction is available to tribal employees.

The Oneida Tribe has designated the Comprehensive Housing Coordinator as a one point entry into the Tribe's rental opportunities. David Webster, Comprehensive Housing Coordinator is located at the Oneida Housing Authority, 2913 Commissioner St., Oneida. Please call ahead to schedule an appointment with Mr. Webster at 920-869-2227. Mr. Webster will forward all qualified applications to Land Management.

Please be aware that the application requires extensive information such as;

1. Your current living arrangements
2. Dependent(s) information
3. Employment verification
4. Proof of income
5. Landlord inquiry
6. Copies of social security cards, photo ID, etc.

Failure to provide all required information deems your application incomplete thus delaying it from moving forward. It is strongly recommended that interested applicants schedule an appointment with Mr. Webster prior to submitting this application. He is equipped with the knowledge and information to assist you in deciding if our rental options will meet your needs as well as direct you to outside sources that may be of some use to you.

If interested in renting with the Tribe, please call (920) 869-2227 to schedule an appointment with Mr. Webster.

A Tenant's Point of View

Bill and Deanne Schultz have lived in the same home for the past 22 years. Prior to that they had been living in a rental in Appleton, and became homeless as a result of a garage fire. They were placed on the Wait List and were able to move into Oneida housing in less than six weeks. They felt that their move to Oneida gave them a sense of purpose and stability. It relieved them from the financial pressure they had been under. Bill felt that with the reduction of the stress he was able to quit smoking and drinking.

Their initial experience was positive and felt that Housing staff were very approachable. Lois Dalke was the Tenant Services Specialist at that time and was extremely helpful. The Schultz' wanted to give Lois special recognition for her years of service at OHA.

The Schultz' describe a period of time when Housing staff was not approachable or responsive to requests. Over the years several situations have lead them feeling this way. Today Bill and Deanne have experienced a positive change with Oneida Housing Authority and feel that service and responsiveness is on the upswing.

Bill & Deanne feel that service and attitudes are on the upswing at this point. They had a recent experience where an outside contractor came into their home to repair a crack in the basement. They did nothing to control the dust the job was creating. Bill has asthma and asked the men to contain the dust. When they refused, Bill asked them to leave. He called the Housing Office to complain. The Interim Director came out in person to view the project and listen to their concerns. The project continued to their satisfaction.

Bill and Deanne feel that the current maintenance crews have a much more positive attitude and are easy to work with. Deanne feels that staff is willing to listen and they are not afraid anymore. They would like to see more police presence in the Wolf Drive neighborhood and a revitalization of the Neighborhood Watch program.

Gone are the days when Housing needs can be met in less than six weeks. Applicants are often on the Wait List in excess of one year, depending on the number of bedrooms the family requires. We continue to take action to improve our customer service and responsiveness to tenant needs.

For more information about housing, contact David Webster, Housing Resource Coordinator, at 869.6184 or at dwebste3@oneidanation.org.

Museum staff says Yawʌ́ko

Acknowledge key individuals for their assistance

Dear Oneida Nation Community Members:

The Oneida Nation Museum would like to send a heartfelt Yaw^ko to our community members, tribal departments, artists, visitors and supporters who made our 2013 Exhibit Re-opening a success.

We especially want to thank the Institute of Museum and Library Services for the funding which was necessary to conserve the Corn Husk Man, including:

- The Midwest Art Conservation Center staff: Colin Turner, Executive Director; Nicole Grabow, Objects Conservator;
- Senior Registration Technician at the Walker Art Center, Jonathan Erickson, Business Manager;
- Minnesota artist, David Bartley:
- University of Minnesota Fairview Medical Center Radiology Department; Dan Busian, CT/MRI/Nuclear Medicine Manager; Andy Fenske, (CT Technician);
- Midland Plastics, Green Bay, WI;
- Nadia Kurd, Curator at Thunder Bay Art Gallery.

We are also fortunate to have a fantastic exhibit of Corn Husk Dolls that represents the nine chiefs created by Amelia Cornelius and Kim Nishimoto.

We truly appreciate the efforts of the following that assisted with exhibition content or donated items, which helped make the exhibits and this event possible:

- Judith Jourdan
- Jerry and Jo Ann Dow
- Jennifer Stevens
- Nicholas Reynolds
- Loretta Metoxen
- Ron Hill
- Bob Brown
- Anita Barber

We also want to thank the tribal departments and talented individuals who devoted their time and energy towards the re-opening:

- Oneida Experiential and Adventures
- Vickie Cornelius – Oneida Cannery
- Ida Stevens – DPW Grounds
- Oneida Printing
- Al King – DPW
- Eliza Skenandore
- Bill Doxtater – Oneida GLIS

Grandparent Scams

Submitted by the Oneida Police Department

In these types of scams, the perpetrator often calls a grandparent or other relative pretending to be their grandchild/niece/nephew, etc. The caller sounds upset and typically states there are only a few moments to talk. The caller may say that they have a cold if you don't quite recognize their voice, or cue-in on feedback from the call to sound even more convincing (scam victims often report being sure they were talking to their actual relative, but it's a clever trick!). Their story generally follows a familiar line: they were traveling in another country with a friend, and after a car accident or legal infraction, they are in jail and need bail money wired to a Western Union account as soon as possible for their quick release.

Sums can vary from several hundred to several thousand dollars, sometimes over the course of two or three calls. In some instances a second scammer calls back later pretending to be a law enforcement official or attorney, to confirm the story or ask for additional money. They may even claim to be an employee of a U.S. embassy or consulate overseas!

Should you be targeted in this type of scam, there are actions you can take to protect yourself. Although the supposed grandchild may plead with you not to tell their family, you should immediately reach out to parents or other relatives to verify the information you receive. In the vast majority of cases, the real relative is safely where they should be at work, school or home.

Another way to determine whether the story is true is to look at the country code or area code of the number they are calling from. A quick check online can confirm if the country or area code is appropriate to the story. For example, we have noticed many of these sophisticated scams originate in Quebec, Canada, which has the area code "914". If your caller has a number beginning with 914, there is a good chance the call is a scam.

When in doubt, and BEFORE YOU SEND ANY MONEY, contact the State Department's Office of Overseas Citizens Services (OCS) at 1-888-407-4747. We will help you verify whether the situation is legitimate or a scam!

You can also report the incident to the Internet Crime Complaint Center (IC3) - a partnership between the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) and the National White Collar Crime Center (NW3C). IC3 was established to receive internet related criminal complaints and to research develop, and refer complaints to federal, state, local, or international law enforcement appropriate.

For more information contact the Oneida Police Department at 920-869-2239.

Financial Exploitation

By Joyce A. Johnson, CSW
Oneida Elder Services

Financial Exploitation is one of the most reported elder abuse crimes both nationally and statewide.

In 2011 there were 5,285 elder at risk reports filed in the State of Wisconsin. Of those numbers 17% or approximately 898 involved financial exploitation.

Financial Exploitation causes harm that cannot always be seen physically. The damage does not leave outward and visible scars. Unfortunately it is a culprit that can and does sometimes cause harm to a victims trust, confidence and self-esteem. Added to this damage are the actual monetary effects that it has on elder's finances.

One of the ways to protect your assets is to draw up a Power of Attorney for Finances document (POA-F). This document can be completed while you still have autonomy and the capacity to make your own decisions. The POA-F form gives you the liberty to consider a wide range of options and you are able to choose your own agent who will base their decisions on your predetermined wants. The Power of Attorney document can be revoked at any time and may also delay or replace the need for a financial guardianship.

There are other ways that you may protect yourself from Financial Exploitation and you may get further information from this website: http://www.dhs.wisconsin.gov/aps/Fin%20Ex/FEIndex.htm

To report suspected cases of Financial Exploitation or any other form of elder abuse involving Oneida Tribal community members please contact the Elder Abuse Prevention Coordinator, Joyce Johnson, 869-2448 x 6833. If it is an immediate life threatening emergency call 911.

Tribal same-sex bill OK'd, male couple marries

By John Flesher
Associated Press

HARBOR SPRINGS, Mich. – With an exchange of rings and a kiss, two men became spouses Friday during a ceremony at a northern Michigan Indian reservation after the tribal chairman signed a measure approving same-sex marriage in a state where it's officially banned.

Tim LaCroix, 53, a member of the Little Traverse Bay Bands of Odawa Indians, wed longtime partner Gene Barfield, 60, during a ceremony that blended familiar-sounding vows with native symbolism including drumming and the burning of pungent sage. The men joyfully embraced as Tribal Chairman Dexter McNamara pronounced them married.

"I'm the happiest, luckiest guy in the world," Barfield said.

The men, who live in Boyne City, acknowledged the state of Michigan does not recognize their union but said they hoped the tribe's approval would be one more step toward acceptance across the U.S. Federally recognized Native American tribes are self-governing and not bound by the state law.

Same-sex marriage is prohibited under an amendment to the state Constitution approved by voters in 2004. Attorney General Bill Schuette agrees with an opinion issued by his predecessor, Mike Cox, that Michigan law does not regard gay marriages performed in other states as valid, according to spokeswoman Joy Yearout.

The federal Defense of Marriage Act lets states refuse to recognize gay marriages performed in states that allow them, although the law is being challenged before the U.S. Supreme Court. The outcome of that case could affect a pending suit in Detroit that contends Michigan's ban violates the U.S. Constitution.

Either way, the tribe's new policy is likely to result in an eventual legal showdown with the state, said Richard Monette, a professor and federal Indian law specialist at the University of Wisconsin. Gay couples married under tribal jurisdiction may adopt children, get divorced or be required to pay child support. If they move off the reservation and try to have tribal court orders enforced in state courts, "it could be ... a bit of chaos," he said.

At least two other U.S. Indian tribes recognize gay marriage. The Coquille Tribe in North Bend, Ore., began recognizing the unions in 2009 and the Suquamish Tribe in Suquamish, Wash., did so in 2011. Oregon, like Michigan, has a constitutional ban on same-sex marriage.

Approval from the 4,531-member Michigan tribe didn't happen immediately.

Annette VanDeCar, who is gay, said she and other members began discussing the matter a couple of years ago and proposed a marriage statute to the Little Traverse Bay Bands tribal council in February 2012. It was rejected last summer on a 5-4 vote. But the council approved it by the same margin this month after adding a provision requiring that at least one member of a wedded same-sex couple be a tribal citizen.

"Our tribe is making history. I'm very proud," said Cherie Dominick, who works in its legal department.

The idea that same-sex relationships are immoral is "an imposed Western belief" that contradicts the traditional native concept that people have "two spirits" with male and female natures, she said.

Law change brings disaster declaration for tribes

By Suzanne Gamboa
Associated Press

WASHINGTON (AP) – President Barack Obama issued a disaster declaration for the Navajo Nation Tuesday, making it the second American Indian tribe to receive such a declaration after a law change in January.

The Eastern Band of Cherokee Indians of North Carolina was the first federally recognized tribe to get a disaster declaration after an alteration to the Stafford Act, sought for several years by Native Americans.

The change gives tribes the option of requesting disaster declarations directly from the president, rather than applying to a state that then makes the request.

The revision was included in the $50.5 billion emergency assistance package for Superstorm Sandy victims. Some tribes complained that their recovery needs sometimes are not given priority and that going through state governments fails to recognize their status as sovereign nations.

Obama signed the Sandy aid bill into law Jan. 29. The Eastern Band of Cherokee Indians got its declaration March 1.

During a Dec. 15 through Jan. 21 freeze in Arizona, temperatures dipped to the mid-20s at night. Water lines froze, and more than 10,000 people in different communities of the Navajo Nation were without water for weeks, Navajo Nation President Ben Shelly said in a news release.

Repairing the water lines and system cost about $5.2 million, the release states. "I thank President Obama for making federal aid available to the Navajo Nation," Shelly said.

The White House said the declaration makes federal funding available to the two tribes and certain nonprofit organizations on a cost-sharing basis.

For the Navajo Nation, the money is available for emergency work and repair or replacement of damaged facilities and for "hazard mitigation."

The Eastern Cherokee Band will have funding to fix or replace facilities damaged by severe storms there earlier this year. Several days of heavy rain and storms in mid-January led to flooding and caused a landslide that took out a section of US 441, a major road between the Great Smokey Mountains National Park in Gatlinburg, Tenn., to the Eastern Band of Cherokee Indians' reservation in Cherokee, N.C.

The tribe's chief, Michell Hicks, said the storms caused an estimated $10 million in damage, with about $3 million of that to reservation property and land.

"That's significant for us," Hicks said.

Craig Fugate, head of the Federal Emergency Management Agency, discussed the disaster declarations for tribes Tuesday at a legislative summit sponsored by the National Congress of American Indians in Washington.

He said rules still must be written on the process for providing assistance to tribes. He has asked the president to submit declarations under the provisions of a pilot program "so we would not wait until rules are written to being processing requests from tribes."

The rules will need to be able to assist tribes when disaster strikes, ensure additional response aid is available and recognize tribes' diversity. Writing the rules is likely to take four to five years, Fugate said.

"But we're not waiting four or five years to implement the legislation," he said.

Iroquois Clan System: Clans of the Oneida People

By Bob Brown

The clans are taken from the animal, bird or fish life. Clan relationships are inherited from the mothers. This type of transmission of the clans is called a matrilineal system. Spiritual, social, economic, and political life are interwoven; one without the other is not considered whole or complete. (Spiritual and political are inseparable.)

INTRODUCTION

The following is a transcript of an interview with Bob Brown, Bear Clan Chief of the Oneida Tribe. The interview was conducted in the late fall of 1996 by Dr. Carol Cornelius, Area Manager of the Oneida Cultural Heritage Department.

THE BEGINNING

What we have to do is go back to the beginning, to bring everybody to a point of beginning. Then we need to understand how everything that takes place is related. You can't just throw yourself in the middle of something and think that's going to be a solution because what that does is create more confusion. So we always go back to the beginning.

The first thing that we talk about is the time of the creation. There was the time of the right handed twin, or the creator. He appointed all of the different forces and what their responsibilities were going to be and how they were going to help with everything of the creation. He made those agreements with those forces.

The hatuwi, the False Face, is one of those forces. Kahtsi?sha, the winds are another of the forces. The Kahtsi?sha, they are the ones that circulate the wind around us. All things in nature are related. That is just a part of what we talk about when we talk about our founders and their responsibilities

Those appointments were made and not long after, the different animals and birds, they too came together. They too had things of knowledge. They could help with the creation of the human beings that were going to walk about on this earth.

And so, all of the different kinds of animals and birds that could be imagined were given certain responsibilities to the human beings of what they had to offer. And so that came about.

ORIGIN OF THE CLANS

After a while, the human beings were created on this earth. As time went on there were families of human beings here and there. They started creating their own villages where they were going to live. Pretty soon they started branching off from these villages. They started going off into other areas and other places.

As is normal when many people are gathered, there began arguments and disagreements between these people. No one could agree with anything anymore. Even within their own families, there were disagreements.

Each time the elders of these villages would come together, they would sit down and try to come to some sort of resolution. How could they be more helpful to the families and with things that were going on!

There was a young man who lived there. He would always attend these meetings and he would say to himself, "If there were a way that I could speak to the people, I would tell them of my plan, if they would allow me that time." They had come to know this young man as someone who rarely spoke out. He would attend the meetings, but he didn't really give any of his opinions. He just sat and watched how things were going.

One day the young man decided that maybe this would be the time that he should speak up. So he asked if he could address them. He said, "What we need to do is divide ourselves into different families. We know that we all have families here. But, if we divide ourselves into different families, and if we follow the ways and responsibilities of those families, then maybe we can solve our problem."

And so he started giving examples of the different families in nature. "You know, there are different kinds of animal families here on this earth, bird families, and the different kinds of trees and plants. There are all different kinds of families throughout the insect world and they all have responsibilities to each other. They all have a place on this earth. If we could fashion ourselves in that way, if we could live like those families and do things as they do things, then we could follow in that same way."

After he finished talking, the elders sat there and they thought about what he had said. They came up with the conclusion that maybe what he was saying was not that far off. So they asked him, "Is there such a way that we can do this?" The young man said, "Yes! What we need to do is go to different places. Then we will begin to find what is around us. First, what we need to do is prepare ourselves to travel."

And so they agreed that's what they would do. Each of them went back and prepared to go on the journey.

The next morning they all got all their things together and they began to travel. They followed one particular river that

Oneida Community Library News

By Kymberley Pelky

The Oneida Community Library had another fun Seussabration serving Green Eggs and Ham on March 3, 2013! Things, Sneetches, Fox and Knox in Socks, and Cats in Hats were all part of the fun! Our next major event will be our Open House celebrating National Library Week, held on April 20, 2013, from 11:00 am - 1:00 pm. Usually we have a staff chili cook-off as part of the day, but we're changing it up this year, so be on the lookout for our posters! During National Library Week we'll be having fun activities throughout the week. On Thursday, April 18, 2013, We'll be celebrating Teen Literature Day on April 18, 2013 as part of our YA CAN! (Young Adult Craft/Activity Night)/Teen Regime program. On Tuesday, April 16, some of the staff will be celebrating National Wear Your Pajamas to Work Day. http://www.punchbowl.com/holidays/national-wear-your-pajamas-to-work-day . If you join in our festivities (come on, you can do it!) we'll waive any overdue fees that you may have on your account!! (Poof! They'll magically disappear!) Fun and money-saving!

Money-saving is what we're all about! Conservation of the Corn Husk Man

The Oneida Nation Museum obtained a very unique object in 1995, a life-sized male figure made of braided corn husks. The museum has not been able to display the Corn Husk Man because of structural issues. In 2011, the Museum was awarded a grant from the Institute of Museum and Library Services to repair the object.

In May of 2012, the Corn Husk Man was transported to University of Minnesota Fairview Medical Center for a CAT scan. The scan revealed that the internal structure of the object was made with a wire cage and two pieces of wood. Unfortunately, one of those pieces of wood had shifted and was pushing against the chest causing a cavity to form.

The conservator, Nicole Grabow, informed us that the Corn Husk Man was in relatively good condition. Her examination revealed that the object was stuffed with newspaper. Newspaper is generally highly acidic and can deteriorate rapidly over time. Since the newspaper has been inside the Corn Husk Man and not exposed to light, the process of deterioration was slowed.

The conservator recommended minimal repairs to avoid changing the artistic intent of the artist. Therefore, her recommendation was to preserve the internal structure and concentrate on adding a filler to reshape parts of the object that were collapsing. The corn husks were starting to discolor because of exposure to ultra-violet radiation. Unfortunately, this cannot be reversed but further deterioration can be prevented by using a UV filter in the display case. She also recommended designing a mount that would hold the Corn Husk Man upright.

The conservator mended some of the broken stitches, reshaped the moccasins, and filled in the chest cavity. The object was transported to the Walker Art Museum, in Minneapolis, to construct a customized mount. The mount is made of clear bendable plastic and is slightly noticeable.

The Corn Husk Man returned to the museum in February of 2013 and will be on display until January 2014. The exhibit includes text panels and photographs that explain the conservation process.

The exhibit also contains objects from the Museum's collection, loans from community members, and a special display of the Oneida Chiefs made by Amelia Cornelius and her daughter, Kim Nishimoto.

The Museum is open from 9:00am-5:00pm Tuesday through Friday. Our phone number is (920) 869-6539.

Greetings Oneida Tribal Members:

As a child, I was raised by Christian parents whom were active members of the Oneida Methodist Church. I recall sitting thru Sunday sermons and hearing the pastor addressing the congregation "do you have your house in order". As I got older, I remember hearing that same phrase amongst elder family members and still didn't give it a whole lot of credence to what that truly meant. Over the years, I've come to learn this statement was made in reference to the scriptural sense that our time on this earth will come to an end someday and are we prepared for both mentally and spiritually? In our native culture I've learned through ceremonies, the Creator has given each one of us only a certain number of days on this earth and only the Creator knows when our time will be called. It's very ironic, serving in the position as the Estate Claims Assistant, this phrase has literally come full circle for me and I can now ask the tribal membership "do you have your house in order"? Oneida Life Insurance Plan Plus (OLIPP) provides enrolled tribal members the financial means to start getting your house in order.

First Step:

The Oneida General Tribal Council passed the Oneida Life Insurance Plan Plus (OLIPP) which is a $15,000 Term Life Insurance Policy that became effective October 2009. This benefit is for all enrolled tribal members. Members over the age of 18 years old, need to designate a primary beneficiary. Your beneficiary should be someone whom you entrust to pay your final expenses (which could include funeral related expenses). I strongly encourage the membership to submit your Oneida Beneficiary Designation form to our office. We still have 6284 members who have not submitted their forms to our office.

Selecting Beneficiary(ies)

Members can elect whoever they wish to carry out their final expenses. But you need to be aware of certain situations which could have adverse or negative results.

Adult Members Declared Incompetent

If a tribal member is declared incompetent by the courts system and the tribal member has been assigned a Guardian of the person/or of the Estate , the Guardian needs to SPECIFICALLY request the court system to authorize them the power to assign or designate beneficiary information to a life insurance policy. If a guardian is not granted that authority then any current Beneficiary Designation form on file will be deemed invalid. Once the court grants authority to designate or appoint beneficiary(ies), submit that original court document along with a new Oneida Beneficiary Designation Form.

Designating Minor Children as Beneficiary(ies)

If a minor child/grandchild is list as a primary beneficiary, EPIC will pay either the custodian/legal guardian on behalf of the minor child according to the Uniform Transfers to Minors Act. CAUTION: Therefore, at the time of insured's death, there will be no monies available for your final expenses as it will all go to the minor children's custodian/legal guardian. Those monies cannot be turned back over to pay your final expenses as the legal guardian is required to spend the money specifically on the children.

EPIC life insurance does NOT establish trust accounts for minors. The minor's custodian/ legal guardian may establish a trust for minor child(ren) if they choose or you as the parent can establish one in advance.

Who Makes Sure the Benefit Proceeds are being Used for the Minor(s)?

The custodian/ legal guardian of the minor would be required to use the benefit proceeds according to the Uniform Transfers to Minors Act. The custodian/ legal guardian should refer to the Uniform Transfers to Minors Act state statute for their responsibilities. The Oneida Tribe of Indians of Wisconsin or EPIC Life Insurance ARE NOT involved in this.

What About Unborn (In Utero) Children?

Any unborn child may have a right to the benefit proceeds from a life claim. Payment of the benefit proceeds would need to wait until the child is born and reaches 120 days old. In some cases, documentation of paternity may be requested.

Can My Funeral Be Paid Before the Benefit Proceeds are Distributed to Minor Children?

Yes, benefit proceeds may be paid to funeral related expenses first, ONLY if you check the box in Section B-Designated Primary Beneficiary and designate the Oneida Enrollment Department as a primary beneficiary, then any remaining balance could go to the minor children's custodian/legal guardian.

Can I Use the Benefit Proceeds to Pre-Pay My Funeral Expenses and Lock Into Pricing Now?

No, the reason is the OLIPP benefit proceeds are only dispersed after the death of the member or in accordance with the Living Benefit Provision. But you can begin shopping around and get price comparison on specific merchandise you want and inform your beneficiary of your wishes. Which leads us to the special project being developed.

Update on "Estate Planner for Membership"

–We held our first meeting with various representatives within the tribal organization for purpose of gathering input of what details should be included in a planner. We received some valuable information and thank all those who participated. Our next step is meeting with those unable to attend and start incorporating ideas and recommendations received.

My Contact Information:

Please feel free to contact me at 920-869-6212, email address is jdenny@oneidanation.org, our toll-free number is 1-800-571-9902, or check out our website at www.oneidanation.org/enrollments. Or, if your in the local area, just stop in Monday-Friday from 8am-4:30 pm. No appointment necessary. If your unsure how to fill out the Oneida Beneficiary Designation Form I can guide you thru the document or if you have a current Beneficiary Designation form on file, we can review it to ensure this is what your intentions are.

was close by their village. As they were going down along this river, pretty soon they came to a spot the young man thought would be the place.

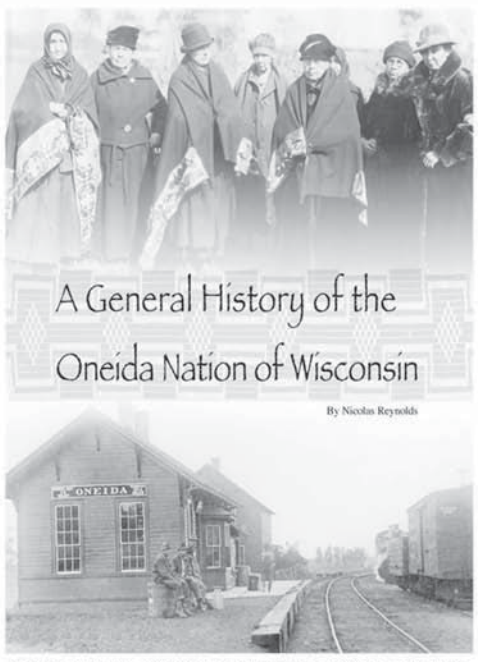
He took some of the other young men that were with them and they pulled down a vine from the nearby trees. They took a vine and threw it as hard as they could across this river. As they did this, the vine got caught between some rocks and so it was able to hold.

He said, "Of all of the people that are gathered here, go across this river and as many people that go across before the vine breaks free, those people will stay on that side of the river. And those people that are left, they will stay on this side of the river. When we set up our campfires, then I will tell you what we will do."

So carefully they began to cross the river. There were quite a few of them. More than half of them were able to cross the river before the vine gave way from where it was stuck in between the rocks.

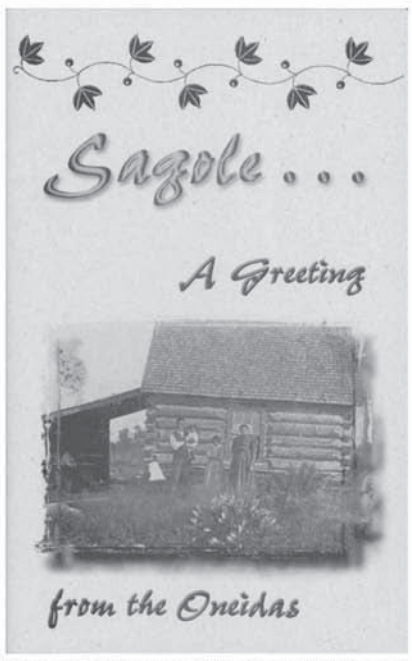
He told them to make their campfires and stay there and he would come back in a few days after he had talked with the other group of people first. So they all began to make their campfires and set up their lodges.

As he gathered the people that evening, he told them, "What we need to do is take all the eldest women that are here, the ones who are heads of these families. We will ask each of you, when you wake up in the morning and when you go to the river, or whatever you do during that time when you awaken, the first unusual thing that you notice, bring that information back to me and we will talk about what you saw." And so they all agreed that's what they would do. Then they all went and slept that evening.



In the morning they all got up and one older lady began to prepare her meal for the morning. She had gone to the river to get some water. As she a sudden, she heard a noise from behind her. She stood up and looked around her and there was a wolf standing there, staring at her. The wolf didn't do anything, he just stood there looking at her. She didn't say anything and the wolf quietly turned and went away. So the old lady went back to where the rest of them were camped.

Later on that afternoon, the young man asked to meet with the people that were gathered and the old lady retold what happened to her that morning.



The young man, said, "That is a sign. You and all of your family members will be the sign of the wolf." She agreed that from then on everybody from her family would follow the ways of the wolf family.

And so as we go on in the story, each of the eldest women from each of the families told of the different things they saw, either when they were preparing their meal or during the course of the day. They each had seen different things that had happened.

Of all of the clans that we have, this was the first inception of how it all began. The Mohawk and the Oneida people each had three clans; the turtle, the wolf, and the bear. The other different kinds of clans that our people belong to in addition to the turtle, bear, and wolf, are the snipe, the beaver, the deer, the hawk, the eel and the heron.

This book begins with the Oneida Creation Story and quickly moves forward through time. Other topics include the Oneida Thanksgiving Address, Clan System, Iroquois Confederacy and Great Law, European Colonization, the American Revolution and the Oneida migration to Wisconsin and more. Wrapping up with reservation life in Wisconsin and a snap shot into the present, this book offers a great introduction to anyone who wishes to read and learn about the Oneida Nation of Wisconsin. (8.5 x 11 inches, 32 pages black and white, © 2013, Oneida Nation of Wisconsin).

This short book is a reproduction of a booklet that was originally printed 110 years ago. Tribal Historian Loretta Metoxen researched and wrote summaries to accompany the 38 black and white photographs depicting the Oneida Reservation and its inhabitants at the beginning of the 20th century. Topics include Churches on the Reservation, Oneida Families, Boarding Schools, Industries on the Reservation and more. Walker signs bill easing mining permit process

MADISON, Wis. (AP) ~ Gov. Scott Walker signed Republicans' polarizing mining bill into law Monday, completing a months-long, all-out campaign to jump-start a giant iron mine in far northwestern Wisconsin.

The legislation will dramatically reshape Wisconsin's mining regulations to ease the permitting process for the open-pit mine Gogebic Taconite wants to dig just south of Lake Superior. Environmentalists maintain the measure guts the state's environmental protections, but Republicans say it will help create thousands of jobs.

"This will do tremendous good for the people of Iron County," Walker said after he signed a copy of the bill at Joy Global Inc., a Milwaukee facility that makes mining equipment. The county has the state's second-worst unemployment rate in the state.

Gogebic Taconite President Bill Williams didn't immediately return a telephone message Monday.

Whether the mine will ever open remains a question. The new law doesn't approve the project, so Gogebic Taconite still must apply and win a state permit. The company also needs federal approval since the mine would impact federal wetlands. The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers says that permit process could take up to four years.

Conservation groups' attorneys have been circling, too, mulling legal challenges. The most powerful entity could be the Bad River Band of Lake Superior. The tribe's reservation lies just downstream from the proposed site for the mine, and members fear run-off will pollute their water. The tribe's status as a sovereign nation affords it an array of unique legal rights it could use to protect itself.

Tribal chairman Michael Wiggins Jr. said Monday the band will begin raising money immediately for a lawsuit to stop the permitting process. The tribe plans to solicit private donors, other Chippewa bands and anyone else willing to contribute to its cause; people will be able to donate through the tribe's website by the end of the week, Wiggins said.

Roggensack says 'heart aches' over court attacks

MADISON, Wis. (AP) ~ Wisconsin Supreme Court Justice Pat Roggensack said Wednesday her "heart aches" over the approach taken by her opponent Ed Fallone in the race for the state's highest court.

Fallone, a Marquette University law professor, blames Roggensack for contributing to what he calls a dysfunctional state Supreme Court best exemplified by a physical altercation in 2011 involving two other justices.

"The reason for the dysfunction is incivility among the justices," Fallone said.

Roggensack and Fallone made their cases during a joint appearance before the Madison Rotary in advance of the April 2 election. The winner will serve a 10-year term.

Roggensack, who was first elected to the Supreme Court in 2003, said Fallone's attacks on the court are counterproductive and intended to distract from what she says is his weakness - she has nearly 17 years' experience as a judge versus none for Fallone.

"My heart aches a little bit with the choice my opponent has made for his campaign because he attacks the court as an institution," Roggensack said. More needs to be done to educate the public about the good work the court is doing, she said.

Roggensack said Fallone's criticism "creates further injury to the court. We will all lose if that perception is not repaired. I will work hard to continue to repair it."

In the court's most highly publicized incident, Justice David Prosser placed his hands around the neck of fellow Justice Ann Walsh Bradley in 2011. Prosser said he was making a defensive move, but charges have been brought against him alleging that he violated the judicial ethics code. Roggensack and two other justices have recused themselves from his case.

In another sign of discord, Prosser called Chief Justice Shirley Abrahamson a derogatory name in 2010 in front of other justices.

In response to a question about whether the court should move out of the Capitol to be perceived as less political, Roggensack said that's not the issue.

"We're kind of in a political phase where people have developed a habit of where if they don't like an opinion they say it's political, if they do like it they say it's well-reasoned," Roggensack said. "It's just a phase. I think we'll pass through that just as we have other phases."

Fallone rejected that.

"The court is not just going through a phase like some unruly teenager," he said. "If it's a phase, it's a phase that's been going on for at least three years."

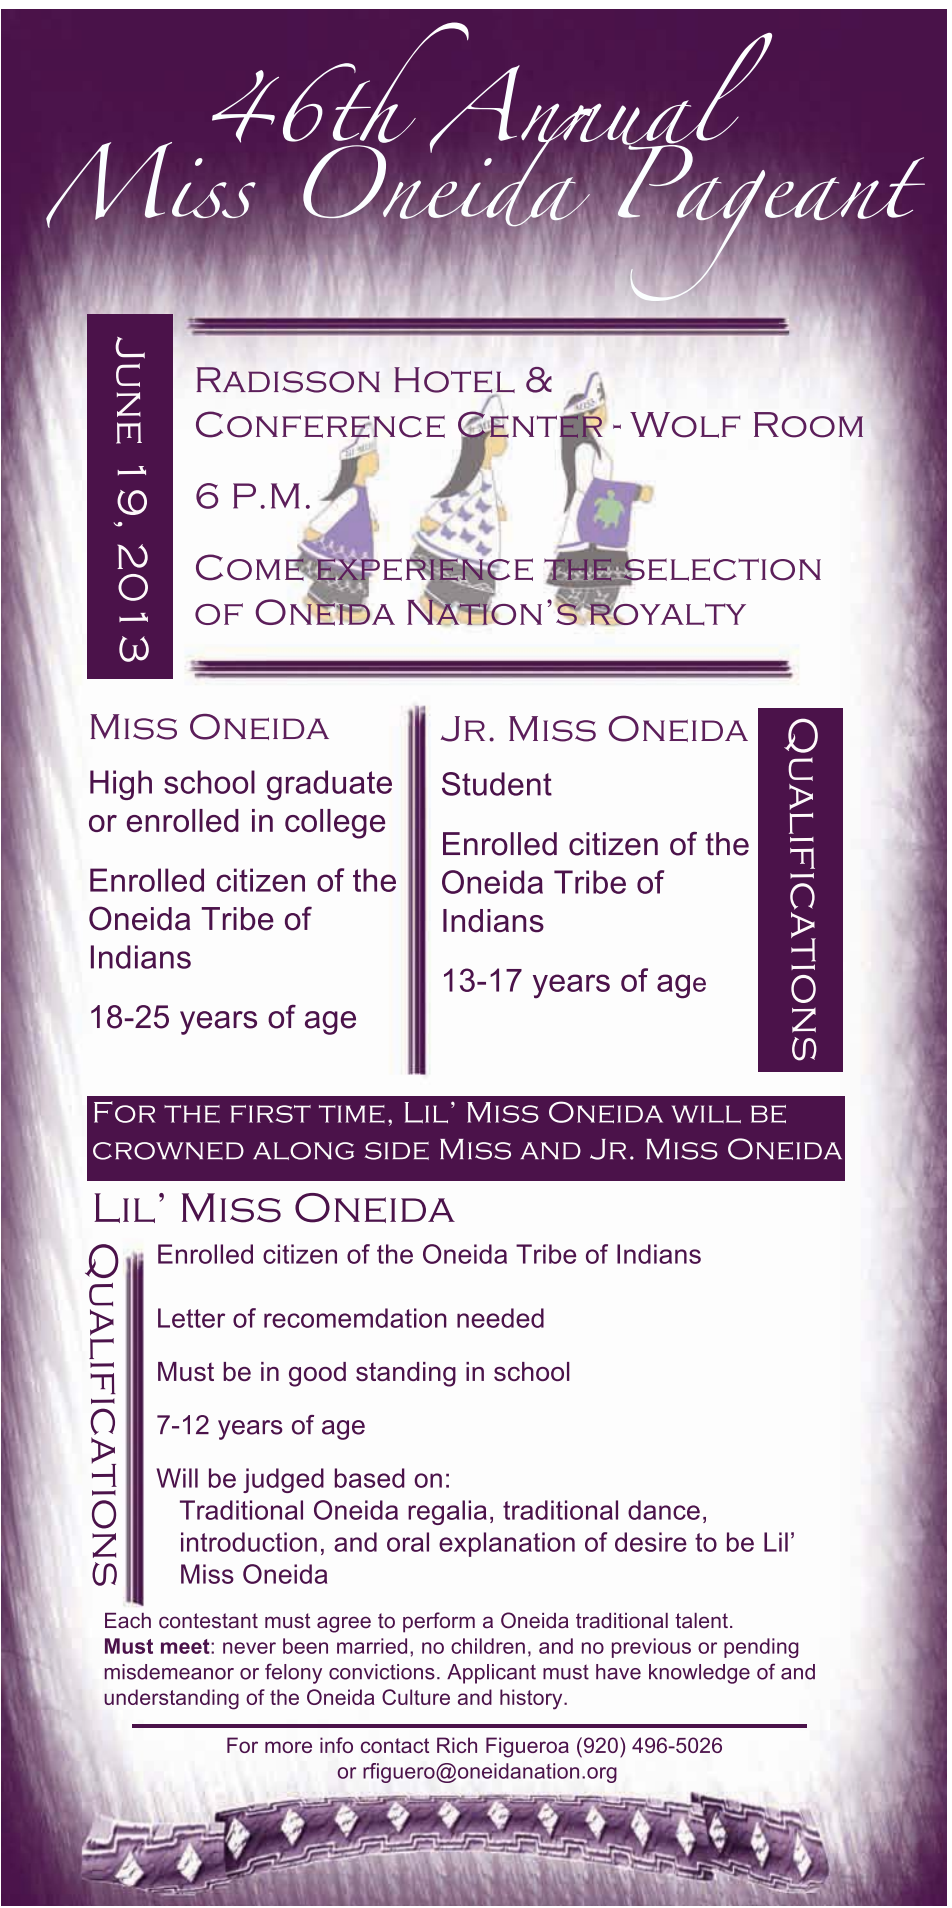
Fallone said one improvement the court could make would be to require justices to step aside in cases involving parties who had made political donations to members on the court. Roggensack was one of four justices who voted for the rule allowing such donations in 2009.

Allowing justices to hear those cases only opens the door to special interest money in judicial campaigns, Fallone said.

Spending in the past four Supreme Court races have averaged about $5 million each, with an average of about $3 million in each coming from outside groups. Spending hasn't come close to that yet in this race. The only outside group to run ads so far in this year's race is the conservative Club for Growth, which spent an estimated $300,000 in the primary in support of Roggensack.

Roggensack aired one TV ad in the primary and Fallone hasn't run any.

Wis. Chippewa declare near record walleye spearing



MILWAUKEE (AP) ~ Chippewa tribes in northern Wisconsin intend to spear a near-record number of walleyes during the annual spring harvest.

\Department of Natural Resources officials say the six tribes declared their intentions to spear 59,399 walleyes in off-reservation lakes.

After calculating the potential impact to the lakes, the DNR said Monday the sport bag limits would be reduced to one fish on 197 lakes, two fish on 331 lakes and three fish on seven lakes.

The standard daily sport bag limit on Wisconsin waters is five walleyes.

The Journal Sentinel reports the DNR acknowledges the Chippewa tribes are acting lawfully within their treaty rights. But DNR Secretary Cathy Stepp says this year's "drastic increase in lakes named at a one-walleye bag limit is significant, unprecedented, and a challenge to long-standing partnerships."

Tribes plan for worst with looming budget cuts

By Felicia Fonseca
Associated Press

FLAGSTAFF, Ariz. (AP) ~ When it comes to the automatic spending cuts that began taking effect this month, federal lawmakers spared programs that serve the nation's most vulnerable - such as food stamps, Medicare, Medicaid and veterans' assistance - from hard hits.

That wasn't the case with programs for American Indian reservations, where unemployment is far above the national average, women suffer disproportionately from sexual assaults, and school districts largely lack a tax base to make up for the cuts.

The federal Indian Health Service, which serves 2.1 million tribal members, says it would be forced to slash its number of patient visits by more than 800,000 per year. Tribal programs under the U.S. Department of Interior and the U.S. Bureau of Indian Affairs that fund human services, law enforcement, schools, economic development and natural resources stand to lose almost $130 million under the cuts, according to the National Congress of American Indians.

"We will see significant impacts almost immediately," Interior Secretary Ken Salazar told The Associated Press, referring to the BIA. "We will have to furlough some employees. It will mean that there's going to be a slowing down of the processing of applications and so there will be an impact on the work that the BIA does on behalf of Indian Country."

The timing and magnitude of most of the cuts are uncertain as Congress looks for a way to keep the government operating beyond March 27 with no budget in place. In the meantime, tribes across the country are preparing for the worst.

Some are better-positioned than others.

In northwestern New Mexico's McKinley County, where about a third of the population lives below the federal poverty level, the Gallup-McKinley County School District is facing a $2 million hit. The cuts could result in job losses and more crowded classrooms. The district that draws mostly Navajo students from reservation land not subject to state property taxes relies heavily on federal funding to pay its teachers and provide textbooks to students.

"To me, it seems very unfair that one of the poorest counties with one of highest Native enrollment in the country has to be impacted the most by sequestration," said district superintendent Ray Arsenault. "We are very poor, we're very rural, and it's going to hurt us much more."

The district faced enormous public pressure when it wanted to close schools on the Navajo Nation due to budget shortfalls, so it won't go that route under looming cuts, Arsenault said. Instead, he would look to reduce his 1,800 employees by 200 - mostly teachers - and add a handful of students to each classroom.

The Red Lake Band Of Chippewa Indians in northern Minnesota expects 22 jobs, mostly in law enforcement, will be lost immediately. Tribal Chairman Floyd Jourdain Jr. said police already operate at a level considered unsafe by the BIA. Deeper cuts forecast for later this year will increase job losses to 39, and "public safety operations at Red Lake will collapse," he said.

On the Rosebud Indian Reservation in south-central South Dakota, a new $25 million, 67,500-square foot jail that was to provide cultural and spiritual wellness programs for tribal members charged with crimes sits empty. The annual operating budget of $5 million would be reduced to around $840,000 because of the automatic budget cuts, said jail administrator Melissa Eagle Bear.

"I don't think this is intentional, but I do feel like it's the government's way of controlling things," she said. "They definitely have control, and we're going to keep going. ... I know Indian people. We tend to survive off what resources we have."

The National Indian Education Association said the cuts to federal impact aid will affect the operation of 710 schools that serve about 115,000 American Indian students. Those cuts would be immediate because the money is allocated in the same school year it is spent.

In Oklahoma, the Cherokee Nation said it is well-poised to handle cuts to its diabetes, housing rehabilitation, Head Start and health care programs. The tribe put a freeze on nonessential hires and halted most travel and training for tribal employees. The tribe's $600 million budget for services and programs comes largely from federal funds, but tribal businesses also post annual revenues in the same amount that have been used to fill in gaps, said Principal Chief Bill John Baker.

"What this really is going to boil down to mean is that there won't be any new purchases, new equipment, and probably we'll hold our programs but not be in a position to add new programs," Baker said. "Luckily, we're in pretty good shape."

Baker and other tribal leaders have argued against the cuts, saying the federal government has a responsibility that dates back to the signing of treaties to protect American Indian people, their land and tribal sovereignty.

While food distribution, welfare programs and health care services that serve the needy are exempt from the cuts, similar services on reservations aren't, said Amber Ebarb, a budget and policy analyst for the National Congress of American Indians.

"Tribes have too little political clout, too small numbers for those same protections to be applied," she said. "I don't think it's the intent of any member of Congress. The ones we hear from, Republicans and Democrats who understand trust and treaty rights, think it's outrageous that tribes are subject to these across-the-board cuts."

Democratic Rep. Raul Grijalva of Arizona said he doesn't believe Congress as a whole understands the potential impact to tribes and the duty that federal agencies have to meaningfully consult with them on major actions. He and Republican Rep. Don Young of Alaska are urging their colleagues to spare those populations from automatic budget cuts, particularly when it comes to health care.

"It's not about creating a niche for American Indians. It's about addressing areas in which need is great," Grijalva said.

Clara Pratte, director of the Navajo Nation's Washington, D.C., office, said regardless of the outcome of the budget talks, tribal leaders should press Congress to make funding for Indian programs mandatory, not discretionary.

Nearly two-thirds of the Navajo Nation's $456 million budget comes from federal sources that go to public safety, education, health and human services, roads and infrastructure. The tribe is facing up to $30 million in automatic budget cuts.

"A lot of these programs go to people that cannot lift themselves up by their bootstraps," Pratte said. "I'm talking about grandmas, grandpas, kids under the age of 10. We can't very well expect them to go to work."

Leo Frigo Bridge construction ramps up

Large path of I-43 work soon to follow

Green Bay, WI – Motorists who cross the Fox River on Green Bay's Leo Frigo Memorial Bridge may want to consider using an alternate route, as construction activities on a stretch of I-43 begin Monday, March 25. The Wisconsin Department of Transportation (WisDOT) resumes work on the 3.5 mile stretch of I-43 from Irwin Avenue to Military Avenue in Brown County. WisDOT expects to continue work on the bridge and portions of the I-43 corridor through July of this year, including repairing three bridges.

WisDOT warns motorists northbound I-43 over the Leo Frigo Bridge will be down to one lane of traffic. Later in April, the southbound stretch will be restricted to a single lane. Motorists should expect significant travel delays on the bridge during peak travel periods. WisDOT will begin work on the Atkinson Drive interchange and the Webster Avenue interchange next month, with full ramp-closures for both. Additionally, the Military Avenue Bridge will be closed from May through June. With four 1-43 construction staging areas busy at work this spring and summer, motorists are encouraged to consider carpooling, public transit and alternate routes, including US 41, US 141, WIS 172, WIS 29, WIS 54/57.

WisDOT will suspend construction activities during holidays, but lane and ramp restrictions are expected to remain in place. Below is a list of site-specific dates and activities:

March 26 – Late July

I-43 southbound will be reduced to one lane in various locations and the I-43 southbound on-ramp from Atkinson Drive will be closed. Work includes deck repairs, place the deck overlay, finish painting the outside steel girder, remove the median crossovers, and replace the arch span pins.

First week of April – Early/mid May

I-43 southbound off-ramp to Webster Avenue will be closed to all traffic. Work includes deck repairs, place the deck overlay, and finish painting the outside steel girder.

Week of April 1 – Mid May

Atkinson Drive over I-43 will be restricted to one lane in each direction. Work includes deck repairs, place the deck overlay, and remove the median crossovers.

Late April – Late May

Military Avenue over I-43 will be closed to all traffic. Work includes replacement of the expansion joint, deck repairs, and place the deck overlay.

Late May – Late July

Traffic along I-43 northbound in the work zone will be reduced to one lane and the I-43 northbound on-ramp from Webster Avenue will be closed to all traffic. Work includes pavement markings, remove the median crossovers, and replace the arch span pins.

A Brief History of St. Patrick's Day

By Brandon Doxtator
Thunderhawk Times

St. Patrick's Day is a cultural and religious holiday celebrated on March 17th. It is named after Saint Patrick (c. AD 385–461), the most commonly recognized of the patron saints of Ireland. It was made a holiday in the early 17th century by the Catholic Church, the Anglican Communion, the Ireland church, the Eastern Orthodox Church, and the Lutheran Church. For Christians, the day represents Saint Patrick and the arrival of Christianity in Ireland. People usually wear green clothes or shamrocks on that day.

A shamrock is what people of the 20th century call clovers. It is known as the symbol of Ireland. Ireland, Britain, Canada, the United States, Argentina, Australia and New Zealand are some of the other places around the world that celebrates St. Patrick's Day.

Most people in America celebrate this holiday by drinking green beer and going crazy as the Irish do. But that's just a stereotype; not all Irish drink alcohol. There is usually a parade that happens in Shawano, Wisconsin.

Originally, the color associated with Saint Patrick was blue. Over the years, the color green was associated with Saint Patrick's Day. Green ribbons and shamrocks were worn in celebration of St Patrick's Day as early as the 17th century. Saint Patrick is said to have used the shamrock, a three-leaved plant, to explain the Holy Trinity to the pagan Irish. The wearing and display of shamrocks and shamrock-inspired designs have become an absolute symbol of St. Patrick's day.

Student of the Month: Michaela Welch

By Diego Metoxen
Thunderhawk Times

Michaela Welch is a freshman at Oneida Nation High School. She has attended the Oneida Nation School system for 6 years. During the times she didn't attend Oneida, she was enrolled at Bowler and Seymour.

Welch is a student athlete that plays on the volleyball and basketball teams. She plans on going to college after she graduates with the Class of 2016. For her career, she plans on opening up her own salon.

Welchs' favorite class is Iroquois Music with Kalʌ́na. She also knows how to say the Kanehelatúksla. The Kanehelatúksla is a speech giving thanks to everything around us.

When asked about her grades, Welch modestly replied, "I guess my grades are pretty good this year." In reality, Michaela actually had the highest grades in the entire school for the 2nd quarter – a 4.0 – and the second-highest in the school last quarter.

Welchs' hobbies outside of school is hanging with her friends and going shopping. Her favorite musical artist is Tyga because he's a good rapper. She enjoys listening to hip-hop and rap. Welchs' favorite color is pink because it is cute. Her favorite food is pizza because she can switch it up all the time. Her favorite TV show is Buckwild because it's a funny show to watch.

Welch likes to read the Clique series. Her favorite celebrity is Kim Kardashian because she is pretty and Mickaela likes the way that she dresses. Her favorite sports team is the Green Bay Packers because Packer fever runs in her family.

Welch said her mom is her hero because she has always been there for her.

Her motto to live by is "Give it Your All."

I Wish Someone Would've Told Me This!

By Amanda Williams
Thunderhawk Times

Every year for the past several hundred years, kids have been advancing from grade school into high school. Grade school is supposed to prepare them for the next four years; only if young teenagers wanted to actually listen. At that age, each one of us thought we already knew everything we needed to know. Well, guess what? Most don't, and they can either take the advice or learn the hard way.

When coming into high school, have an open mind. Open your mind to new programs, school gatherings, and maybe even student council. Activities like this will help later in life. It may be a couple months or maybe even a year or two afterwards, but it still helps with finding a job or getting into the college you want.

There are summer programs out there to gain extra credits while getting a college experience. Having these types of programs gives you a boost in school areas. It helps you jump ahead and shows dedication for what you want in life.

Pi Day At ONHS

By Jessica House
Thunderhawk Times

Pi is the symbol used in mathematics to represent a constant — the ratio of the circumference of a circle to its diameter — which is approximately 3.14159. But have you ever done anything to celebrate Pi?

Well, Oneida Nation High School (ONHS) does. The math teachers at ONHS, Mike Hanke and Tony Romandine, always prepare something fun to do on Pi day – which is celebrated throughout the world on March 14th. The reason why March 14th is Pi day is because the value of Pi is roughly 3.14, and March 14th is written as 3/14.

This year for Pi Day the Math department decided to have fun activities like cross word puzzles, Pi necklace making and other fun things. They even made waffles for everyone and of course mini pies.

"Pi Day is actually really cool because we could hang out and play trivia. It was a lot of fun!" said Aleah Jimenez.

In order to earn a pie, students had to win at Math Trivia.

On top of all the fun, students were learning about Pi and its usefulness in math. Also, students were able to earn extra credit points if they participated in the extra activities.

The Big Blue Hole

By Amanda A. Williams
Thunderhawk Times

Around the spring and summer time, tourists travel to Big Pine Key, Florida, to witness the Big Blue Hole located in a diameter pool in Florida Caverns State Park. The Blue Hole is good for picnicking, swimming, sunbathing, and for the beauty of the scenery. The temperature of the water is 67.8 degrees Fahrenheit in the winter, while in the summer and spring it is cold. The Blue Hole is about 38.5 feet deep.

The blue hole was first recognized in 1818 by Captain Hugh Young. At first sighting, he thought he saw water disappearing into a big hole. The Blue Hole was a landmark used for immigrants who were traveling north and south.

History also happened there during the Reconstruction Era. Jackson's County African Americans were holding a picnicking event. A gun was fired, and war broke out. This is known as the "Jackson County War."

Treasurer's Report

By Cristina Danforth
Tribal Treasurer

Spring marks budget season for the Tribe and this can very challenging. A three year budget cycle continues to help tribal entities forecast and plan their fiscal objectives and program initiatives. If our grant money is reduced we will not be in a position to fund these initiatives. In preparation we need to seek collaborative and further efficiencies of our organization.

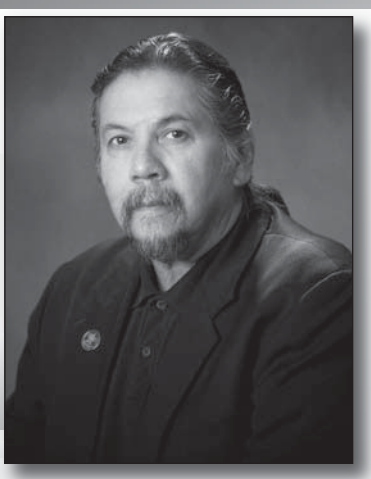
Balancing the budget is not an easy task and takes hard work and dedication from all of the department managers throughout the Tribe. Financial resources are declining and despite our best efforts we are still falling short. We need to assess our profitability in relation to maintaining or decreasing services. This is a true reality.

The budget kick-off meeting was held with all department managers on March 1, 2013. There were not many comments or questions as most are aware we need to do more with less. The suggestion was made for me to ask General Tribal Council (GTC) to reduce their mandates. I can only imagine that would mean asking for a cut in per-capita, elder per-capita, land acquisition, scholarships, etc. As Treasurer of the Oneida Tribe, it is my job to ensure the GTC mandates are followed and administered appropriately as the GTC provides my office with direction. At no time would I feel comfortable asking the GTC to adjust mandates because of a budget deficit. Just because departments do not want to do more work with fewer resources is not justification to reduce any of the GTC mandates, at least in my opinion.

The GTC gave the Business Committee (BC) the task of restructuring the organization. It was my hope that when this was complete we would see a more efficient configuration of our employees through which we would see savings. This has not come to fruition and I am not aware of any meetings on the subject.

Without any progress on restructuring the organization, I would have to believe the same type of budget deficit will continue to occur. This is a reasonable statement as we had a budget shortfall the last few years and have done little if anything to realign the organization. While I understand the resistance to change, if we choose to remain stagnate we will never progress and I for one do not want to see that happen.

On a good note, I had the pleasure of reading to the 3rd grade class of Ms. Maloney at King Elementary. The kids were great and I have been invited back. Reading opens doors and minds!



This past week I attended the Reservation Economic Summit (RES) where I was able to network with people from other Tribes. Topics covered had a wide range from leadership and management methods, Small Business Administration, Federal 8(a) contracts sequestration, Indian preference and hiring, Buy Indian initiatives, procurement, hub zones, networking opportunities with other Native business and partnering with major corporations. I also had an opportunity to meet with the Inter-Tribal Economic Alliance Board, representatives from Arctic Slope Regional Corporation and the Inter-Tribal Energy Network. Numerous business contacts were also made at the reception. There are opportunities to do joint ventures, to align ourselves with other Tribal owned vendors, to invest in other Tribal Economic and Enterprise development and to strengthen our presence beyond small business. All of these will take time and require utilization of the growing and vast resources throughout Indian Country. It is my hope to follow up on these opportunities.

I would like to thank the community for their continued support of my office, finance staff and our collective fiscal initiatives. Together we will be progressive and persevere.

Issues of the Day

It is 6:00 a.m. on the morning of Wednesday, March 20th. I came in early to write about our Homeland Security Department and their safety, and ours too. Early dawn in Oneida is so quiet and beautiful. I gazed upon our Oneida flag flying at half-mast. We have lost so many of our loved ones this year and sometimes it is just right to just reflect and think about how important and loved they were.

Homeland Security

Later today I will be flying to the Tohono O'odham Indian Reservation in Arizona to tour and learn about their highly acclaimed Homeland Security program. From there, I will be driving on to the National Indian Gaming Association Conference in Phoenix as Oneida's Delegate. Approximately a year ago, a glitch was found in our laws which did not allow our Emergency Management Homeland Security (EMH) personnel to carry arms, which could have resulted in significant liability to them and to our Tribe. As a result, for the last year, our EMH personnel have had to carry out their duties without side arms (a common practice but after researching the issue for the last year, I don't recommend an unarmed EMH workforce, especially during emergencies). My research shows that the potential of an emergency caused by nature or human beings is an ever increasing possibility. Our Mother Earth has been under extreme environmental assault and has reacted causing natural disasters. The War and Terror is not over and Wisconsin is a border state increasing the possibility of terrorists coming in thru Canada. And further research shows that America is increasingly becoming a very violent Country. My research shows that since the Newtown shooting tragedy, Americans are arming themselves at record numbers mostly trying to protect themselves and their families. And finally, a check on YouTube will reveal a disturbing number of extreme right wing hate groups (dimwits) that pose a danger to everyone. It is in this environment that our EMH personnel have to work, and we want them safe, and we want our community safe. We will fix our law.

Oneida Indian Reservation

Some years ago, there was the move to not recognize the fact that the Oneida Indian Reservation still existed. Many of our non-Indian neighbors of that day said that the Reservation had gone away. They argued in Court that the Oneida Indian Reservation no longer existed. They lost. The Oneida Indian Reservation still exists. Indians exist. Indian treaties exist and are the law of the land according to the US Constitution. But still, our leaders of that day had trouble putting up signs that contained the true fact that our Reservation is an Indian reservation. But today is a new day. Being Indian is something to be proud of. Being an Oneida Indian is a great thing. Indian Reservations across the Country attract tourism. Some exist on tourism dollars. Wisconsin Governor Walker, although weak on the environment, is strong on wanting to attract tourism, including Indian reservation tourist. And if you have not already noticed, signs are going up identifying and posting our lands as the "Oneida Indian Reservation."

A Message to the Onyote'a·ka (Oneida People)...

The Oneida people are made up of three nations, the Oneida Indian Nation (in New York), the Oneida of the Thames (in Canada), and us, the Oneida Tribe of Indians of Wisconsin. There also are the Marble Hill Oneidas, also in New York. To date, I know little about them. Once we were all one people. Once our warriors, both men and women, fought and died together with white and black Americans in the creation of the United States of America. Yes we are three, maybe four nations, each separate with separate governmental structures, but we still have a common history and common blood lines. We are them, and they are us – God made it that way and that common history and common blood lines will never change.

In a truly twisted turn of events the United States Supreme Court is currently considering whether or not they will decide on a case (Madison County vs Oneida Indian Nation) which is calling for the disestablishment of the Oneida Indian Nation Reservation in New York State. Unfortunately, the Marble Hill Oneida leader has submitted a legal brief in opposition to their Oneida relatives. If this case goes bad for the Oneida Indian Nation, they could be homeless, landless and betrayed. Betrayed by a government that history tells us had asked the Oneida to fight and sacrifice their lives in the creation of the United States and in return, promised them land and survival. I have sent a letter to the Oneida Indian Nation offering my moral support and the support of the Oneida Tribe in their fight to live as Oneida people.

Sincerely,
Ed Delgado,* Oneida Tribal Chairman

5. Support transfer of child support cases to surrounding municipalities

Sponsor: Ed Delgado

Motion by Vince DelaRosa to have this item referred back to the Chairman's office to address the jurisdictional issue to refine the resolution submitted today and to discuss this in a special Business Committee meeting on Tues. Feb. 19, 2013, seconded by Patty Hoeft. Motion carried with one abstention and one opposed:

Opposed: Brandon Stevens
Abstained: Tina Danforth

For the record: Tina Danforth stated I am abstaining because I think issue needs to be addressed timely, and I'm abstaining because I am not available on Tuesday for a special meeting of the Business Committee at an undetermined time on Tuesday.

For the record: Brandon Stevens stated I oppose this motion because in the LOC perspective this is a principle-based decision. That we need to fix the institution and not repeal things or allow a waiver of our sovereignty when we need more time to develop during the development of these laws-more collaboration needed to be made. If we do allow the circuit court, the circuit courts are very unlikely to take these court cases and the cases that they do take will very likely look at the current order and considerable time passing, will respect that order because of the child, not because of the parents, the child. That there's a period of time that the child was accustomed to this order and that would be detrimental to the child and that's what they look at. The LOC will do whatever the Business Committee wants us to do and we will work hard, when we're given direction.

Sponsor: Geraldine Danforth/Louise Cornelius

Motion by David Jordan to oppose the request to approve $5 per hour additional compensation Easter holiday and Powwow weekend premium pay for all Tribal programs and enterprises with 24-hour operations, seconded by Vince DelaRosa. Motion carried with one abstention:

Abstained: Brandon Stevens

For the record: Brandon Stevens stated I think there are some things we need to address, rather than outright not approving the premium pay-there's the employment law and there's also the accountability of the managers to effectively manage their areas. I think those are the things that really need to be addressed and this is kind of an outset thing- it's a band aid that we need to address on a bigger issue.

Motion by Patty Hoeft to direct our HR Director, Geraldine Danforth, to work with the impacted parties on the enterprise side and the program side and bring back some recommendations regarding premium pay at the Feb. 27 Business Committee meeting, seconded by Vince DelaRosa. 1. Premium pay compensation recommendation

Excerpt from Feb. 13, 2013: Motion by Patty Hoeft to direct our HR Director, Geraldine Danforth, to work with the impacted parties on the Enterprise side and the Program side and bring back some recommendations regarding premium pay at the Feb. 27 Business Committee meeting, seconded by Vince DelaRosa. Motion carried unanimously.

Motion by Brandon Stevens to approve the premium pay request, with the noted change of $5.00 per hour to $3.00 per hour premium pay, seconded by Paul Ninham. Motion carried with one abstention and two opposed:

Opposed: Melinda J. Danforth, Greg Matson

Abstained: Tina Danforth

For the record: Melinda J. Danforth stated I think when you're hired as an employee and you know what industry you're working at, you understand that you have to be available during the holidays. Our entities in previous years, or previous decades were very creative in the way that they were able to serve the employees on holidays. For instance retail on Christmas, in order to service the population; in order to gain as much revenue as possible, if there was an employee at the store they would ask for the employees to come in for two-hour shifts and we would be grateful that we only had to go in for two hours and not the whole entire day. So I know that probably won't work for entities like Anna John nursing home or whatever, but I think that there's an opportunity here to think outside of the box and go into that separate direction. I don't support the Easter part of it, so I'll be opposing.

For the record: David Jordan stated I know that our Tribe does have an Easter egg hunt thing for our children down at the Civic Center, every year.

2. Appointment to Oneida Personnel Commission to replace Peril Huff who declined appointment

Excerpt from Feb. 13, 2013: Motion by Patty Hoeft to approve the recommendation to appoint Peril Huff to Oneida Personnel Commission, seconded by Vince DelaRosa. Motion carried with two abstentions.

2. Approve Rebecca Webster attorney contract amendments

Sponsor: Jo Anne House

Excerpt from Feb. 13, 2013: Motion by Patty Hoeft to defer this to the next executive session Business Committee meeting, seconded by David Jordan. Motion carried with two opposed.

Motion by Patty Hoeft to approve amendment #2 to the Attorney Webster contract submitted for the February 26, 2013 Executive Session meeting, seconded by David Jordan. Motion carried with two abstentions:

Abstained: Tina Danforth, Greg Matson

For the record: Greg Matson stated I just think that the recommendation was brought by the supervisor, once again we had the opportunity to look at that individually with recommendation for performance above and beyond and we're not recognizing it.

For the record: Tina Danforth stated I'm abstaining because my understanding was that this really doesn't have an affect right now and it would have an affect going forward, but that still isn't clear for me and because I had asked for the full contract so I can see it comprehensively rather an excerpt, and an amended excerpt, and a second amended excerpt. It's really hard for me to follow something without having the full document and it just isn't clear to me why there wasn't an amendment at this time.

New Business/Requests

1. Oneida Health Center: Reconsider previous action to deny wage adjustment request for employee based upon position re-grade from NE10 to NE12

Motion by Patty Hoeft to approve a limited waiver of sovereign immunity for the State-Transportation-Intergovernmental Agreement, seconded by Greg Matson. Motion carried unanimously

3. FY2013 Employment, Compensation & Benefits – Geraldine Danforth, HR Area Manager

a. Environmental Health & Safety Division: Procedural exception to convert the Field Technician Trainee LTE positions to five regular employee positions Motion by Patty Hoeft to approve a procedural exception changing the five (5) Limited-term Employee (LTE) Field Technician Trainees' status to regular status with the understanding that these are grant funded and will go away when the grant funding goes away, seconded by Paul Ninham. Motion carried with two abstentions:

Abstained: Melinda J. Danforth, Tina Danforth

b. Community Education Center: Approve 10 percent wage adjustment of Office Manager

Motion by Patty Hoeft to approve the request for 10 percent wage adjustment for additional duties of the office manager, seconded by Vince DelaRosa. Motion failed with two abstentions and four opposed with the Chairman vote breaking the tie:

Opposed: David Jordan, Paul Ninham, Brandon Stevens

Abstained: Melinda J. Danforth, Tina Danforth

Tie: Ed Delgado opposed

For the record: Vince DelaRosa stated the reason I supported the motion, we have in the past approved the 15 percent kickers for additional duties. This was a 10 percent request, I thought it was reasonable. I view that area as being critically important to a whole host of intermediary educational aspects and I won't go into all those details, but I just think it's a critical area and that's the reason for my support.

For the record: Ed Delgado stated I opposed because we're considering the budget and now is not the time to raise individual raises. We don't have a policy called 'kickers' and we don't do kickers. We do have, when employees get additional duties added to their contract or their job description then we've added those, but we don't have kickers.

For the record: Brandon Stevens stated I oppose this motion because there's not an overall policy and we're advised by finance that it's a tough position to have an individual come forward for an increase when we don't have a broad policy for a lot of individuals who really deserve raises also. In the budget crunch that we're in, looking at $17 million dollar deficit, that in totality that's my consideration.

4. Approve Health Center Services attorney contract with Quarles & Brady

Public Hearing Notices

5:00PM • Norbert Hill Center, 2nd Floor (BCCR)

March 28, 2013
Purpose:
Oneida Tribal Judiciary Canons of Judicial Conduct.
The intent of the Oneida Tribal Judiciary Canons of Judicial Conduct (Canons) is to provide ethical principles and guidelines for Oneida judges to follow.

The proposed Canons provide guidance to judges on the following issues:
- Judicial integrity and independence.
- Judicial diligence and impartiality
- Permissible extra-judicial activities
- The avoidance of impropriety or the appearance thereof.
- Encouragement of devoting time to the community and to public service.
- Discouragement of hearing cases in which the judge has personal knowledge of the disputed facts, a personal bias concerning a party to the case, earlier involvement in the case as a lawyer or advocate, or financial interest in any party or subject matter of the case.

The proposed Canons allow for disciplinary action against a judge who violates the Canons.

March 28, 2013
Purpose:
Early Return to Work Law Amendments.
The intent of the Early Return to Work Law (the Law) is to assist an employee who is temporarily unable to work due to an injury, return to work as soon as possible, even if there are restrictions placed on them by a medical provider. It allows employees to be temporarily placed in modified duty for a maximum of 180 days The proposed amendments to the Law are as follows:
- New Process for Work Related Injuries. If 180 days has expired and the employee is still unable to be medically cleared to return to work, an employee with a work related injury, that employee will be required to contact Employee Benefits regarding Worker's Compensation benefits. If an agreement with the employee is unable to be reached in regards to accommodations, that employee would be terminated for non-disciplinary reasons. This allows the employee to immediately return to work under modified duty and not give up their rights under the Worker's Compensation Law.
- New Process for Non-Work Related Injuries. If 180 days has expired and the employee is still unable to be medically cleared to return to work, an employee with a non-work related injury, shall be required to apply for disability benefits, or use their available personal and/or vacation time. If disability benefits are not available or the employee no longer has personal or vacation time available, that employee would be terminated for non-disciplinary reasons. This amendment will assist supervisors in being consistent with the treatment of all employees.
- Exception to Termination. In either instance noted above, if an employee has had a position transfer approved by HRD and it is in process at the time this law applies, the employees modified duty could be extended for an additional 90 days to allow that transfer to go through.
- Restrictions Definition. The definition of "Restrictions" was amended to allow for limitation of activities due to pregnancy as prescribed by a physician.

April 4, 2013
Purpose:
Family Court.
The purpose of the Family Court Law (the Law) is to establish a new court to provide for the administration of law and justice as it applies to the family and/or to our children. Generally, the Law establishes new qualifications for a Judge who would hear matters pertaining to the family, then exist with the Tribe's current judicial system. The proposed Law does the following:
- Establishment. Establishes the Family Court prior to the effective date of the new Judiciary. Then places the Family Court as a branch of the new Judiciary when it takes effect on November 1, 2014.
- Jurisdiction. Provides for when the Family Court will have jurisdiction over the subject matter and over parties to the action.
- Review of Oneida Appeals Commission Orders. Requires the Family Court Judge to complete a de novo review of the most recent order in any case where a party submits a request for review within sixty (60) days of the effective date of the Law.
- Judge Qualifications. Requires a Family Court Judge to have a Juris Doctor (J.D.) degree from an accredited law school, have at least five (5) years of experience practicing in family law, and be licensed to practice in the State of Wisconsin or eligible to be licensed within one (1) year of taking office.
- Powers. Provides for the powers of the Court and the specific duties of the Judge, which besides hearing cases includes administrative duties.
- Rules. Requires the Judge to establish internal operating procedures, as well as Rules of Procedure to guide the public in availing themselves of the Court. The Rules of Civil Procedure must now be approved by the Oneida Business Committee.
- Reprimand, Suspension, Termination, and Retirement. Provides that each one of these issues will be conducted in accordance with Chapter 150 of the Judiciary Law.

April 4, 2013
Purpose:
Marriage Law Amendments.
The intent of the Marriage Law (the Law) is to exercise the sovereign right of the Oneida Tribe of Indians of Wisconsin to regulate the rights and responsibilities relating to marriage. Generally, the Law establishes who may marry and regulates the issuance of marriage licenses. The proposed amendments to the Law are as follows:
- License. Require the Licensing Department to send the original marriage license to the state of Wisconsin Vital Statistics Department and retain a copy for Tribal records. The purpose of this is to ensure that community members can receive a valid certified copy of their marriage license that will be recognized by other entities, such as Social Security and those issuing passports. The State is not accepting copies of the documents to issue people certified copies.
- Court. Change "Commission" to "Court" and amend the definition to a general definition since the Tribe is undergoing a transition from the Appeals Commission to a new Judiciary and a Family Court.

Public Hearing Process
Testimony:
Oral: There will be a 5 minute limit for all oral presentations. Each participant is encouraged to provide a written transcript of his/her oral testimony, to be submitted while present at the public hearing or within ten (10) business days from the date of public hearing to the below named individuals.
Written: For those who cannot attend the scheduled public hearing or do not plan to speak at the hearing, the Oneida Tribe encourages those to submit written testimony. A maximum of ten (10) pages, doubled spaced, can be submitted within ten (10) business days from the date of public hearing to the Tribal Secretary (Patricia Hoeft) or Tonya Boucher, Legislative Reference Office at the Norbert Hill Center, 2nd floor or mail to PO Box 365, Oneida WI 54155.
If you would like to obtain a copy of the above proposed law or have any questions as to the public hearing process you may contact Tonya Boucher at the Legislative Reference Office, via GroupWise tboucher@oneidanation.org Or call 1-800-236-2214 or 920-869-4240*. Oneida Planning Comprehensive Plan Community Meeting

Submitted by Oneida Planning Department

The ninth comprehensive plan community meeting was held at the Little Bear Development Center on March 7, 2013. The plan element presented was Public Safety.

The comprehensive planning process represents the Oneida community people's voice in addressing all 16 plan elements affecting the social, economic, and physical growth of our community. Our plan is developed through a "grassroots" approach where community has a forum to express their ideas, reactions and concerns of well-being and quality of life. The Oneida community, executive leaders, managers, and Tribal departments use the comprehensive plan as a reference and guide in the development of Tribal plans, initiatives, and policies.

The 16 plan elements are, 1) Health Care, 2) Education, 3) Housing, 4) Community Design, 5) Parks and Recreation, 6) Utilities, 7) Community Facilities, 8) Transportation, 9) Public Safety, 10) Government Coordination and Regulations, 11) Economic Development, 12) Agriculture, 13) Natural Resources, 14) Environmental Protection, 15) Tsi? Niyukwaliho' t^' (Department of Culture), and 16) Land Use.

Oneida's public safety comprehensive plan element consists of a wide range of responsibility. It ranges from emergency management and homeland security to law enforcement, to programming for community, building, grounds and employee safety.

Emergency Management and Homeland Security is a part of a national response framework that organizes how the nation comprehensively responds to disasters and emergencies through coordinated information sharing. Locally, Emergency Management collaborates with surrounding municipalities for public safety agreements.

Our Oneida Police Department provides law enforcement and community public safety awareness activities, as well as, community-building and partnership programs. Other organizational programming of public safety include Environmental Health and Safety with food borne, water borne and communicable disease prevention, protecting indoor air quality, and injury prevention. Additionally, the Oneida Community Health Center provides public safety programming for patients through the Safety Town and Car Seat programs. Employee Health Nursing teaches and monitors workplace public safety programming for the Tribal employee base. Oneida public safety agreements for police, fire and rescue are made with surrounding municipalities and organizations through a collaborative effort.

Goals and Objectives

Goal 1: Protect the Oneida Community in times of emergencies.

Objective 1.1 Develop and implement a comprehensive emergency preparedness plan. The Nation should continue to update and enhance its local emergency plan to ensure that it has adequate resources in place for effective emergency response under various scenarios.

Objective 1.2 Develop and implement a public safety training program.

Objective 1.3 Develop and implement strong, effective communication throughout the Tribal organization and community.

Objective 1.4 Educate and alert all those in the community of the proper procedures for the various types of emergency situations.

Goal 2: Tribal buildings will be healthy and safe for employees, customers and visitors.

Objective 2.1 Research, review, update and ensure compliance with applicable codes.

Objective 2.2 Research, review and implement best practices that promote healthy environments.

Objective 2.3 Develop and implement a schedule(s) for inspections, monitoring plans and follow up reporting requirements to the enforcing entity within the Tribal Organization.

Goal 3: The Nation will protect and serve the Oneida Community and its assets.

Objective 3.1 Improve and expand injury prevention and other preventive measures on all levels to all groups.

Objective 3.2 Research the need and appropriateness of various codes, i.e. traffic, alcohol and drug abuse.

Objective 3.3 Seek out ways to improve cooperative efforts between Oneida and surrounding units of government regarding public safety.

Objective 3.4 Have all applicable public safety codes up to date while identifying the appropriate enforcement regulations.

Goal 4: Improve cooperative efforts between Oneida and surrounding units of government regarding police and fire protection, as well as emergency response services.

Objective 4.1 Research the need for a rescue service for the Oneida Reservation.

Objective 4.2 Seek out additional funding sources for the purpose of increasing and improving all safety services as an on-going activity.

Objective 4.3 Establish and maintain government-to-government relationships between surrounding units of government and the Oneida Nation.

Objective 4.4 Create more positive interaction opportunities between police and community members as an on-going activity.

Programs and Activities

It enhances collaboration of all area emergency departments (police, fire, and rescue), and has a positive impact on community. It helps to build stronger relationships and pay it forward events.
- The Cops and Bobbers program establishes good relationships with our youth and promotes healthy activities and choices, officers can create good relationships with the youth and families, officers are positive role models and mentors, and officers are perceived by our youth in a different light, instead of enforcer, now a friend.
- Take 25 is a national program that encourages families to take 25 minutes to talk to youth about safety. The Oneida Police Department collaborates with local fire departments, County Rescue and other police agencies. The event establishes unity between other departments and it also creates a positive influence towards all those involved.

Environmental Health and Safety Division

- Keeping People Safe's goal is to prevent food borne, water borne, and communicable disease. Activities are food safety training, restaurant inspections, swimming beach sampling, food code enforcement and tattoo vendor inspection.
- Protecting our indoor air quality goal is to protect the health of employees and community by safeguarding the quality of indoor air. Activities include asbestos assessments and management, identify indoor air quality complaints, to work with Tribal departments and community members to manage and eliminate indoor air quality issues, and respond to complaints.
- Preventing Injuries in Oneida goal is to prevent injuries in Oneida. Activities include seat belt and child car seat observation studies and outreach, bully-proofing program at the Oneida Nation Elementary School, elderly exercise incentive program designed to prevent falls, healthy home assessments that identify and fix common home safety hazards, and fund and assist the Oneida Child Passenger Safety Seat Program.

Oneida Community Health Center

- Emergency preparedness for facility interruptions such as power outage, epidemic, weather disaster, emergency evacuation, fire drills, tornado drills which are held semi-annually.
- Safety Town is a camp for approximately 80 4 – 6 year olds to learn about many safety subjects such as bus, pedestrian, water, pet, fire, helmet, seat belt and car seats, poison, sun, and strangers.
- Car Seat Program gives instruction and education to an average of 350 people per year on how to properly install a car seat. Car seats are sold at 25% to 40% of cost.
- The Infection Control/Safety Committee conducts inspection for quality assurance for the health and safety of employees, customers and visitors.
- Yearly training is conducted for employees on incident reporting for work related injury.
- Monthly participation in greater Green Bay area safe kids meeting to discuss and provide education on injury prevention.

Employee Health Nursing

- Vision is optimal health and wellness for the Oneida Nation employees.
- Teach cardio-pulmonary resuscitation, first aid, blood-borne pathogen awareness, safety in the workplace, universal precautions and personal protective equipment use, emergency procedures (code blue and code red), hazard communication and infection control awareness and proper hand washing.

- Ergonomic workplace assessments and recommendation.

- Medical evaluation for respirator use and respirator fit testing.

- Employee CDL physical exam per DOT requirements.

- Illness and injury evaluation and treatment.

- Slips, trips and falls awareness education.

Community response included the question, "What process do we follow and how do we measure accomplishment toward the goals and objectives?" It is the intent of the comprehensive planning process that Tribal members, leaders, managers, departments, committees, commissions use the Oneida Reservation Comprehensive Plan as a reference and guide in the development of Tribal plans, initiatives and policies. As Tribal entities develop their annual work plan and budget, they should strive to identify tasks that support the comprehensive plan, which, ultimately, represents the voice of the people. Individual Tribal entities would define measurements to determine if, how, or when they are meeting their goals. A brief status report is submitted to the Planning Department documenting accomplishments, updating the status of relevant goals and objectives and, where needed, identifying opportunities for new goals and objectives in updates to the Comprehensive Plan.

Another community response asked the questions, "Community voice is?" "Employee voice is?" and "Membership voice is?" An assumption that the comprehensive planning process is based upon, is the notion that the People of the Oneida Nation will come forward to participate with the planners, department and program managers and staff, the elected officials and all other interested parties, to identify the vision the community has for its future.

LOC Update

Introducing the Revised Administrative Procedures Act & New Legislative Procedures Act

At the January 7, 2013 Annual GTC meeting, the General Tribal Council took several historic actions.

In addition to the broad changes to the Tribal Judicial System (which will be discussed in a future LOC update), the GTC approved changes to one of the laws that establishes the foundation for the Oneida Tribal government—the Administrative Procedures Act (called the APA, for short).

Before the GTC approved these changes, the APA was the Tribal Law that set out the basic rules and processes for two basic and essential functions of the Tribal government: 1) Tribal lawmaking and 2) Tribal hearing bodies. But in January, the GTC took action to split the APA into two separate laws, with each law addressing one of those governmental functions.

Now, the APA only sets out the processes for Tribal hearing bodies. A new law, called the Legislative Procedures Act (or LPA, for short), has been created to set out the processes for Tribal lawmaking.

However, this change did not just remove all of the legislative procedures from the APA and put them into a new, separate law. The APA was first enacted in 1990, and the lawmaking provisions in that law were largely untouched over the years. Many of the requirements were outdated, and some of the provisions had become obsolete as the Tribe's legislative body has evolved; becoming more sophisticated and discovering more efficient ways to do things.

Therefore, the new LPA also updates and expands upon the requirements for Tribal lawmaking that were in the old APA.

This LOC Update was created to show the membership exactly how the system has changed.

Tribal Lawmaking

What's new and/or different in the LPA?

NEW

Standardized Process For Legislation

The LPA standardizes the legislative process—any and all legislation (i.e. proposals to adopt, amend or repeal Tribal law) that will be forwarded to the OBC or GTC for consideration must follow the LPA. Among other things, this means that all legislation (except emergency legislation) must be accompanied by a legislative analysis and fiscal impact statement(s), and must have met the requirements for public notice and comment.

The LPA also expands on the old standardized format for legislation, so that all laws will be more consistent in how they are laid out.

NEW

Creates the Oneida Register

The LPA adds a new requirement for public notice. Now, legislative proposals will be published in the Oneida Register. The Oneida Register is a free legal periodical that will be published on the Tribal website by the LOC—it will contain notices, agency regulations, the proposed legislation, a legislative analysis and any fiscal impact statements.

This is similar to the Federal Register, which is used by the federal government to give public notice of law/regulation changes.

DIFFERENT

Legislative Analysis Requirement

Although the LOC already requires that a legislative analysis be created for each legislative proposal, this requirement was never set out in the APA or any other Tribal law. The LPA establishes this requirement by law, and requires that the legislative analysis be provided with the proposal when it goes through the public meeting process, as well as when it is sent to the OBC.

A legislative analysis is a plain language analysis that describes the important features of the legislation and provides a factual background. It generally also identifies things like whether the proposal conflicts with other laws, potential impacts if the proposed legislation goes into effect, policy considerations, and the intent of the legislation.

NEW

Fiscal Impact Statement Requirement

Although the LOC has occasionally requested fiscal impact statements in the past, it had never been a mandatory requirement. The LPA requires all legislation (except some emergency legislation) to be accompanied by fiscal impact statements when it is submitted to the OBC for consideration. The LOC is responsible for determining which tribal entities would be impacted by the proposed legislation, and directing those entities to submit the fiscal impact statement. The LOC can also request that the Finance Office submit fiscal impact statements.

A fiscal impact statement is an estimate of the total financial effects associated with the proposed changes (startup costs, personnel, office space, etc), as well as an estimate of how long it will take to comply with the changes that would occur if the legislation passes.

DIFFERENT

Expanded Role of the Legislative Operating Committee

The Legislative Operating Committee (LOC) has been around for a long time, and was given responsibilities under both the GTC's Ten Day Notice Policy and the old APA. The new LPA formally establishes the LOC's role pertaining to all legislation, not just for GTC legislation. The LPA also identifies specific duties as the responsibility of this Committee—the development of Tribal law, the development and maintenance of the Oneida Register, and any other duties as provided by Tribal law.

DIFFERENT

Updated Legislative Request Process

The old APA said that when a person wanted to request legislation (i.e. that a law be adopted, amended or repealed) they had to make the request directly to the OBC or to another Tribal entity; which would then have 120 days to consider the request and either start the legislative process or deny the request.

This was not actually how things have been done in recent years. The LOC has allowed any person to come directly to the LOC to request legislation, and the request usually was considered at the next LOC meeting. The LPA now provides for this.

Several other obsolete requirements have also been eliminated. The person or entity requesting legislation does not have to actually write the legislation or provide a detailed summary of the purpose, intent and any applicable procedures—the LOC handles the drafting, and the requester just needs to fill out an Agenda Request Form, identifying what is being requested. The requester also does not need to provide 50 copies of their proposal to the Tribal Secretary.

DIFFERENT

The Public Comment Process

Under the old APA, most legislation had to go through a Public Hearing process. The LPA replaces that process with a somewhat less formal, more interactive Public Meeting process. This is intended to allow for more dialogue between the LOC and the public. The LOC member(s) hosting a meeting can answer questions and engage in deeper discussion, instead of just accepting oral testimony.

Only one LOC member is needed to host a Public Meeting, instead of the three OBC members required for a Public Hearing. There is no longer a five-minute time limit for speaking—the LOC can set a time limit for people to speak, but it can't be less than five minutes.

The LOC can set a Public Comment Period that is longer or shorter than the strict 10-day period required by the old APA; it just cannot be less than five business days.

NEW

Statement that Membership Rights Unaffected

The LPA clarifies that these changes to the lawmaking process do not affect the right of Tribal members to petition for a special GTC meeting Although the LPA sets out a process for lawmaking, it is not intended to replace or infringe upon the rights guaranteed to members by the Tribal Constitution.

2013 OFF Fitness Poker

6 Week Incentive: Starting Monday, April 8, 2013 and ending Saturday, May 18, 2013
Cost: $5.00
Weekly $10.00 Retail card winners to the Top 3 hands…$50.00 Retail card given to each male and female winner

Fitness Poker Rules

1. All members of Oneida Family Fitness (ages 14 and up) are eligible to participate. The fee to participate is $5.00.

2. In order to win the grand prize, participants will need to weigh in during the 1st week of the incentive (April 8-13) and again during the last week of the incentive (May 13-18). The person with the most weight lost will win the grand prize listed below. Any ties between participants will be broken by the best overall poker hand during the incentive.

3. After a member is finished with their workout (30 minutes or more) they must draw a card at the front desk before they leave. It is the responsibility of the member to ask a staff member for a poker card before they leave. Members will not be allowed to pick cards for past workouts. Staff will not review past check-ins in order to draw for members! The OFF staff will record the card for that person on that day.

4. The members who have the three highest poker hands in each given week will win a $10 Oneida Retail Card. There will be 3 weekly winners. Then participants cannot win back to back weeks in the weekly drawing. Example… Participant can win in weeks 1, 3 and 5 or 2, 4 and 6. The male and female member who loses the most weight from the initial weigh-in to the final weigh-in will receive a grand prize of a $50 Oneida Retail Card. No substitutes, no changes, no trades; prize awards are final!

5. Here is a breakdown of the best poker hands:
- Royal Flush (10, Jack, Queen, King, Ace of the same suit)
- Straight Flush (Combination of Straight and Flush)
- 4 of a Kind
- Full House (3 of 1 card, 2 of another)
- Flush (5 of same suit)
- Straight (5 cards in a row)
- 3 of a Kind
- 2 Pair
- 1 Pair

6. The more days a person comes in and works out, the more playing cards they have to create their best poker hand. A person will be able to draw one card on Mondays through Thursdays, and two cards on Fridays and Saturdays, for a total of 8 cards per week. The top 5 cards will be used to create their best poker hand. If there is a tie between two members, cards will be reviewed to find highest hand. If there is still a tie, then the members will draw one card each, with the high card breaking the tie.

7. The weekly winners will be posted at OFF front desk each week.

8. The game is scheduled for Monday to Saturday each week. Every Monday a new poker game begins.

ONEIDA NATION LADY THUNDERHAWKS

The historic 2012-2013 Lady Thunderhawks season came to an end as Oneida lost to the Hilbert Wolves in the Sectional round of the WIAA tournament on Thursday, March 7. The Lady Thunderhawks were the first team to win a Regional championship in the school's history. Jessica House led Oneida with 18 points while Lindsey Danforth chipped in with 17. They finish the season with a 21-4 record.

Softball team sees improvement

As winter weather maintains its grasp on the area, the Oneida Nation high school softball team is preparing for the spring thaw and the start of their season.

While the ladies are forced inside the Norbert Hill Center gymnasium for practice, the team gets the opportunity to improve their fundamentals.

"We're fleshing out our roster a little bit. But we are improving everyday, working on our fundamentals and building up from there," said Dawson.

In previous seasons the team struggled to attract enough players to complete a roster. However this year that involvement has increased.

"We have a larger roster than we're used to. This year we have eleven girls for sure, possibly twelve so it is always nice to have more players," Dawson added.

This season the team is made up of mostly underclassmen with only three seniors on the roster.

High school seniors Rachel Ninham and Noelle Metoxen form the team's primary pitcher-catcher combination. The two have also been a part of the softball program since it's return three years ago.

"It's definitely nice having more players because we can play positions that we are best at. Last year we were just cutting it so some girls had to play positions they didn't before or weren't really comfortable with," Ninham said.

The duo was also impressed by not only the involvement of the underclassmen, but also attitude they brought to softball practice.

"Some of the younger players seem excited about the season. They take it more seriously than we do. That's good because hopefully the team can keep getting better in the future," Metoxen laughed.

While the team works at improving their softball fundamentals indoors, their hopes of success on the field continue to grow.

"This year we got an early start, we have been practicing for two weeks and our first game isn't until April 1st. Coach Ces is always on top of things and we just keep saying we want to get that first win," said Metoxen.

The Thunderhawks first game is scheduled for April 1st at St. Thomas Aquinas in Marinette with their home opener scheduled for April 9th against Stockbridge. Of course the dates of these games are at the mercy of the spring weather.

Conference looking to put healthy foods on plates

By Nate Wisneski
Kalihwisaks
nwisnes@oneidanation.org

A conference aiming to get Native American tribes together to discuss food solutions will be taking place April 15-18 at the Radisson Hotel and Conference Center.

The Food Sovereignty Summit was developed by the First Nations Development Institute, the Oneida Nation of Wisconsin, the Intertribal Agriculture Council and Northeast Wisconsin Technical College to foster discussion related to Native American food systems. It is expected to have about 250 attendees.

"The conference was developed so that we could bring together tribes, tribal programs and Native nonprofit organizations to share and learn from one another about successful programs aimed at food system control all taking place in Indian Country," said Raymond Foxworth, Senior Program Officer at First Nations Development Institute. "This conference acknowledges that there are very exciting things taking place in Indian Country related to Native food systems and that Native communities do possess the knowledge and expertise to develop mechanisms for food system control. This conference is a forum to bring together tribes, tribal programs and Native nonprofits to share best practices, challenges and successes."

Ted Skenandore, T s y u n h é h k w ʌ Agricultural Supervisor, will be presenting on white corn seed saving, aquaponics, and microgreens. He feels feeding yourself is an important part of sovereignty.

"A lot of these different tribes, for their own specific area, have their own traditional food crops. It could be the same crop but farmed different because of conditions," said Skenandore. First real step is having that first garden. Start feeding themselves even on a small scale. Then preserving their food is the next step. You aren't going to start that right away, it's a building process."

Skenandore also sees a link between disease and out of area produce.

"The diseases that are coming in, you have to

More participation wanted for Special Elections

By Dawn Walschinski
Kalihwisaks
dwalschi@oneidanation.org

Spring elections for Wisconsin have just wrapped up, but election season for Oneida is getting ready to kick off with the 2013 Special Election Caucus being held Saturday, April 27 at 1:00pm at the Norbert Hill Center.

But much like state elections, participation in Oneida voting has peaks and valleys, with special elections attracting between 20 to 30 percent of the approximately 1500 voters that take part in tri-annual elections for the Oneida Business Committee (OBC).

Vice Chairwoman for the Oneida Election Board Raquel Hill would like to see more voters overall.

"We're trying to get (General Tribal Council) members to vote, not only in general elections but the special elections as well," said Hill.

She and Election Board Chairwoman Vicki Cornelius hope scheduling voting during the Oneida Powwow will help this year's voting rates.

"I think voting is important because you vote to get the kind of people you want," said Cornelius.

While boards, committees and commissions don't seem as powerful as the OBC, they often oversee the services offered to Oneida citizens.

"You really should do your homework ... look at what (a candidate's) bringing to the table," said Hill.

Hill joined the Election Board after being approached by another board member.

"I was on for three years and at that time I noticed there wasn't a lot of processes in place as far as written guidelines," said Hill. "I wanted to create change in case if something were to happen that there would be something in place for others."

Cornelius started out on the Election Board as an alternate and then was appointed to fill out a term of a board member who left.

"I started as an alternate just to get my feet on the ground and knowing what all the different processes are," said Cornelius.

There are thirteen positions on seven boards, committees or commissions up for grabs in this year's special election. Any GTC member interested in running for a seat can attend the April 27 Caucus to be nominated. However, an interested person who can't make it to the caucus can petition to have their name placed on the ballot by filling out an application from the Oneida Secretary's Office.

"Be involved because as tribal members we have a vested interest in our tribe and our government," said Hill.

For more information on the April 27 Caucus, see page 9A.

NIGA Chairman's Leadership Award goes to Former Wisconsin Governor

44th Governor of Wisconsin James Edward "Jim" Doyle recognized for fighting for Forest County Potawatomi Tribe and Others

> "Governor Doyle worked with tribes sign compacts that respected tribal sovereignty and the federal Indian Trust Responsibility, we need more leaders who want to build bridges with Indian country, and we respect what he accomplished for the State of Wisconsin."
> – Ernie Stevens, Jr., NIGA Chairman

Jim Doyle

Phoenix, AZ – In a seated luncheon located in the Phoenix Convention Center, former Wisconsin Governor Jim Doyle received the 2013 Chairman's Leadership Award given by National Indian Gaming Association Chairman Ernie Stevens Jr.

Governor Doyle has been recognized for his strong relationship with Wisconsin tribal governments and understanding tribal sovereignty and self-determination. There are currently 11 gaming tribes in Wisconsin out of 28 tribes.

"This is a man who understands what is good for Indian country, is good for all of us," Chairman Stevens said. "Governor Doyle worked with tribes sign compacts that respected tribal sovereignty and the federal Indian Trust Responsibility, we need more leaders who want to build bridges with Indian country, and we respect what he accomplished for the State of Wisconsin."

In 2005, he signed an executive order titled, "Relating to an Affirmation of the Government-to-Government Relationship Between the State of Wisconsin and Indian Tribal Governments Located Within the State of Wisconsin". Its purpose is to create and define the processes by which the Wisconsin Department of Transportation and Federal Highway Administration work in collaboration with Wisconsin's eleven sovereign Indian Nations.

This agreement, and many others worked on by Governor Doyle, acknowledged and supported American Indian sovereignty through the government-to-government relationship among the Indian Nations within the boundaries of Wisconsin, the State of Wisconsin agencies, and Federal Agencies. He continued to do this throughout his two terms.

"There is so much more at stake here, I am very proud for what we have and accomplished together, a system of consultation that required every one of my cabinet members to visit every single reservation annually, passed Indian child welfare legislation, and moved on environmental issues," Governor Doyle said. "All of this produced much better results. I congratulate all of the tribes who fought to protect their sovereign rights."

EchoHawk Departing First Nations Development Institute to become CEO of AISES

Sarah EchoHawk

Longmont, CO – Sarah EchoHawk, executive vice president of First Nations Development Institute (First Nations), will become chief executive officer of the American Indian Science and Engineering Society (AISES) on May 1, 2013.

EchoHawk has been with First Nations for six years, joining the organization in 2007 as director of development and communications, and eventually assuming the position of executive vice president. She is an enrolled member of the Pawnee Nation of Oklahoma.

"While Sarah's departure is a loss for our organization, we are delighted to see her take the leadership reins at AISES," said Michael E. Roberts, president of First Nations. "She has contributed a great deal to advancing First Nations' work and effectiveness, and she will be missed. We are fully confident her contribution to AISES will be just as significant as it was to us."

Prior to joining First Nations, EchoHawk was an independent consultant offering training and services to American Indian and nonprofit organizations. As a consultant, she focused primarily in the areas of organizational development, board management and fundraising.

From 1997 through 2003, EchoHawk worked for the American Indian College Fund raising support for tribal colleges. During her tenure there, she served in many areas, including program management, communications, foundation relations and individual giving. Since 2004, she also has served as an adjunct professor of Native American Studies at Metropolitan State University of Denver.

really think about those. What we are growing are specific to our area help fight those diseases. The local produce bought at grocery stores doesn't have the vitamins, the nutrients, they're not growing to ripe and being picked before mature. We're really not getting those vitamins," he said.

Foxworth echoed Skenandore's thoughts on the link between health issues and food.

"Everyone knows that many Native communities have significant health issues related to diet and the consumption of unhealthy foods, including high instances of diabetes, heart diseases and obesity. We know that some Native communities continue to experience scarcity in terms of access to food. We also know that these dynamics of food scarcity and deteriorating health are related to poor diets are issues that are new to tribal societies and largely a result of colonization, federal food distribution programs, and lack of healthy and nutritious food options available in Native communities," Foxworth added. "Tribes should take an active role in aspects of food, diet and health to continue to grow strong and healthy tribal citizens and communities that can continue to thrive in the 21st century and beyond."

Conference organizers are hoping goers take information learned and apply them in their own communities.

"We hope that attendees take the information learned at the conference back to their communities and use this information to develop projects and programs that can increase Native food system control," said Foxworth.

April is National Distracted Driving Awareness Month

Wisconsin DOT launches new TV and radio messages featuring the LG U.S. National Texting Champion

April has been designated by Congress as National Distracted Driving Awareness Month, and the Wisconsin Department of Transportation (WisDOT) is using this opportunity to urge drivers to pay attention to what's really important when they're behind the wheel.

"Despite laws to prevent distracted and inattentive driving, too many motorists talk and text on cell phones while driving. They eat a meal. They rummage for things on the seats, floor, dashboard or compartments. They even stare intently in the rearview mirror to comb their hair or apply make-up. Their attention is focused everywhere except where it should be, which is on the road," says State Patrol Maj. Sandra Huxtable, director of the WisDOT Bureau of Transportation Safety. "Because they're not paying attention to traffic conditions and road hazards, distracted drivers drastically increase their risks of causing a crash or failing to avoid one."

Although many multitasking activities can cause distracted driving, talking and texting on cell phones have received significant public and legislative attention. In November 2012, a state law went into effect that prohibits drivers with an instruction permit or probationary license, which includes many teenagers, from "using a cellular or other wireless telephone except to report an emergency" while driving. A previously enacted state law made texting while driving illegal for all motorists.

To help motivate drivers to never text while driving, WisDOT has produced new Zero In Wisconsin TV, radio and online messages featuring high-school senior Austin Wierschke of Rhinelander, who is the two-time LG U.S. National Texting Champion.

The premise of the media messages is that Wierschke has amazing texting abilities even while he performs astonishing physical activities. But he also emphatically states, "I never text while driving," because it's too dangerous. The messages will air statewide in April and also are available online along with behind-the-scenes footage and interviews at www.zeroinwisconsin.gov/texting.asp.

Wierschke's messages are designed to help prevent traffic crashes, which are the number one cause of death for teenagers nationwide. In a national Pew Research study, 40 percent of American teens say they have been in a car when the driver used a cell phone in a way that put people in danger. The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration reports that 11 percent of all drivers under the age of 20 involved in fatal crashes were distracted at the time of the crash. This age group has the largest proportion of drivers who were distracted.

Texting and cell phone use are just two of many types of distractions that increase the risk of a traffic crash. And a few seconds of inattention can have tragic consequences, according to Major Huxtable.

"Every time you drive, you are legally and morally responsible for safely operating a potentially destructive and even deadly force," she says. "That's why driving requires your undivided attention. Any lapse in attention to traffic or road conditions is a grave danger to you, your passengers and everyone else on the road. No attempt to multi-task in your vehicle, no phone call, and no text message is more important than a human life."

Wis. casinos bring in less; too many facilities?

APPLETON, Wis. (AP) ~ Opponents of gambling expansion are arguing a 5 percent revenue drop at Wisconsin's 20 Indian casinos from 2007 to 2011 is evidence the state has reached its saturation point for casinos. But a tribe trying to open a new casino in Kenosha is blaming the economy.

Gamblers wagered nearly $16 billion at Wisconsin casinos last year, or $282 million less than the amount wagered in 2007, The Post-Crescent of Appleton reported. Wisconsin's gambling revenue has declined along with betting _ to about $1.2 billion in 2011, down nearly 5 percent from 2007, according to a February report from the Casino City's Indian Gaming Industry.

The numbers show there are "more than enough (gaming) opportunities out there," said Brian Nemoir, the executive director of Enough Already WI, a coalition opposed to the expansion of off-reservation gambling. "The desire to participate in gambling is a personal decision, but at the same time, the costs associated with it and the effect on society cause concerns."

Menominee tribe spokeswoman Lisa Waukau says that as the economy bounces back, people will be looking for more places to play.

"I don't think we've reached the saturation point," she said. "The people in northeastern Wisconsin and the surrounding area like to gamble."

The Menominee have operated a casino in Keshena since the late 1980s and the tribe is now seeking federal approval to open an off-reservation gaming facility in Kenosha.

One indicator that approximates how many people are gambling is the number of calls to the Wisconsin Council on Problem Gambling. Rose Gruber, the council's executive director, said it fielded 14,464 calls last year, a 7 percent increase from 2011. Those who sought help had an average debt of $38,500.

"What we've seen with our helpline in the last few years - with the economy down - is them gambling more because there is a sense of desperation," Gruber said.

New casinos have been proposed in Beloit, Sheboygan and Shullsburg. But the Menominee tribe's proposal in Kenosha, which has been in the works for years, seems to be closer to fruition than the others.

The tribe's plan, which is awaiting action by the federal Bureau of Indian Affairs, was dealt a recent setback when Gov. Scott Walker said all 11 Wisconsin tribes must agree before any new off-reservation casino could be opened in the state. Federal law requires the governor's approval.

Waukau said she was surprised by Walker's stance.

"Our attitude has always been that there's room for everybody at the table," she said. "And we would never keep another tribe from doing well - ever. We're talking 3,000 good jobs with benefits."

OBC gets update on ORCCC

By Dawn Walschinski
Kalihwisaks
dwalschi@oneidanation.org

With three members of the Oneida Business Committee (OBC) away on travel, the remaining six zipped through the Wednesday, March 27 OBC meeting.

Present – Vice Chairman Greg Matson, Secretary Patty Hoeft, Council members – David Jordan, Brandon Stevens, Vince DelaRosa and Melinda Danforth.

The OBC accepted a report from the Comprehensive Health Division in which the updated timelines for the opening of the new Oneida Resident Center Care Community (ORCCC) were shared by Division Director – Operations Debra Danforth.

"We should be able to begin getting staff back into the facility sometime around the 17th of April," said Danforth. The meal site for elders will be moved to ORCCC on May 28. When the residents of the current Anna John Nursing Home (AJNH) are moved onsite, the ORCCC will officially become the Anna John Resident Center Care Community (ARJCCC).

During his report on the Development Division, Rentmeester stated that the Department of Public Works (DPW) is over budget due to the frequent and heavy amounts of snowfall this winter. He also noted that the divisions' budget has dropped over the years while the number of buildings it's responsible for has gone up.

"We are doing more with less, we realize that we have to do that," said Rentmeester.

Land Management Division Director Fred Muscavitch reported that do to the federal sequester, Bay Bank will not be able to offer 184 loans, and that fee to trust training has been canceled.

The OBC adopted the Indian Preference in Contracting Law. Indian Preference Manager Marjorie Stevens asked for support in getting young people interested in the building trades as a career.

"The population of qualified trades-workers is aging, and the young people are not coming in," said Stevens.

A petition to rescind Oneida family laws was deferred for 30 days due to the amount of legislative analysis needed to review the petition. The item will not be on the Sunday, May 5 General Tribal Council meeting agenda.

Grants available to provide job training, employment services for homeless veterans

WASHINGTON – The U.S. Department of Labor today announced the availability of up to $5 million to fund 16 or more Homeless Veterans Reintegration Program grants. Approximately 2,600 veterans will receive job training and related services to help them succeed in civilian careers.

"Every day, our service members and their families make tremendous sacrifices for their country. Although homelessness among veterans has fallen, too many of our heroes still are without jobs or homes," said acting Secretary of Labor Seth D. Harris. "Through these grants, the Labor Department will provide those who have served our nation with the opportunity for a fresh start and a good job."

Funds for the grants will be awarded on a competitive basis to state and local workforce investment boards, public agencies, nonprofit organizations, tribal governments, and faith-based and community organizations. Because these groups are intimately connected with their local economies and the needs of homeless veterans, they can offer occupational, classroom and on-the-job training, as well as job search and placement assistance, including follow-up services. Awards will range from $100,000 to $300,000 each.

HVRP is recognized as extraordinarily efficient and effective, and is the only federal program that focuses exclusively on the employment of homeless veterans.

OSGC Project

To all: From the start of the Oneida Seven Generations Corporation project to recycle garbage, I have been very supportive of it, and am concerned about the possible misinformation that has created failures in their attempt to find a location for it. When previous Oneida Business Committee members toured an existing facility in California at the early planning stages of the project it was reported there was little or no damage to the air quality once the vapor gas was siphoned off for generation of electrical power. Smokestacks are not needed to maintain good air quality in this process. As a matter of fact, the air quality release by California's incinerator gasification process, our mode, was much better than the air it was released into.

Instead of being fearful of the politics that creep into every positive step we try to take for the Oneida Nation, I hope that everyone will keep the faith in Seven Generation's planners, engineers and consultants that this project is favorable to the Tribe's economy and to the environment. If it is going to be successful, we need to give our full support behind it.

Forgiveness

Shekoli,

Giving honor to all my ancestors, who came before me, my victim, my community, my family, and friends. This I write humility, sorrow, and much regret for the shame, disapointment, humiliation, and embarrassment I brought upon all our Native American heritage, by my poor choices and destructive actions.

I did not take into consideration the pain and damage I would cause to everyone because of my selfishness, but I am becoming more aware of the changes I need to make. It is by no means about me. I write this, if you never forgive, or pardon me for my sins, I still would like all in the community to know how sorry, and contrite I am to have caused this great pain to my victim and everyone.

For the rest of my life I will seek and search out any and all ways possible to make amends for what I've done so with that being said I'll end here. Thank you.

Tony Metoxen

Spring Public Lectures will focus on Literary Magazine, Social Media

A faculty lecture series in celebration of the College of Menominee Nation's 20th anniversary year continues on April 23 and May 14. The free, public programs will be presented from 12 noon until 1 p.m. on each date in the mezzanine classroom of CMN's S. Verna Fowler Academic Library

Dr. Dennis Vickers

On Tuesday, April 23, Dr. Dennis Vickers will talk about the origins and purposes of the College's literary publication, "Feather Chronicles." He will also discuss selected creative work that appears in the most recent issue. Copies of the new anniversary edition of the book will be available for those attending the address. The volume includes original writing chosen as the best from earlier publications along with new essays, poetry, art and photography by CMN students, faculty and staff, including members of the Oneida community.

Vickers will highlight the publication's evolution from its first web-only edition to the print anniversary issue made possible with a grant from the College's Scott Zager Venture Fund.

BACKGROUND ON BUSINESS

Shane O's Tools looks to expand clientele

Offers professional grade tools to area businesses

By Travis Cottrell
Kalihwisaks
tcottrel@oneidanation.org

It is never too late to make a living doing something you enjoy. That is what Shane Wallenfang believes after his career path took an unexpected turn.

Wallenfang and his wife Jessica, who is an Oneida citizen, are the owners of Shane O's Tools, LLC. Their business specializes in selling tools, the majority of which are Mac Tools brand, to area mechanics, shops, and local handymen.

"I got into the tool business because my buddy was doing the same thing up in Fremont. He's been doing it for five years. What had happened was I had a job pouring concrete walls for 15 years, then the economy went bad, my bosses came in and told us they were going to be taking away all of our vacation days and 7% of our wages to make up for the loss," Wallenfang said.

Unwilling to accept that decision Wallenfang left the job he spent so much time at, setting out to be his own boss. After completing his schooling and license requirements he started on the road with a tool truck the following week.

"What I do is I hand out flyers with tools that are offered to whoever is interested; a new flyer comes out about once every month to a week. Guys will come out and say 'Hey I'll take one of these' or they come out to my truck and pick stuff out they want. Then I can sell it to them on the spot, they can set up a payment plan as well," said. Wallenfang.

Not only can customers order tools or buy them on the spot but they can also trade in their old tools for new Mac Tools.

Shane O's Tools currently services close to 500 customers in the Oneida, Freedom, and De Pere areas. The Oneida Department of Public Works and Dipsticks in downtown Oneida are regular stops for Wallenfang. But the business transition was not without bumps in the road.

Kali photos/Travis Cottrell
Shane Wallenfang stands beside his tool truck which houses the numerous products for sale (inset).

"Mac Tools had a guy working this route, but he wasn't worth a hill of beans. He wasn't doing warranty work. He didn't care. So working with businesses in the area was a rough road to get patched up when I started. I had to turn these guys back into Mac customers and every week its been getting better," Wallenfang said.

Having been in business for 13 months, Shane O's clientele continues to grow. But he is willing to speak with anyone interested in purchasing tools.

"I'll take any customer. If they have their own set of tools they would like to trade in for Mac Tools I can do that or sell them new Mac Tools I can do business with them."

Those interested in contacting Shane O's Tools can dial (920) 362-6290.

Green Bay is New Site of SBA Emerging Leaders Course

Second Wisconsin Location Seeks Native American, Tribal CEO's

MILWAUKEE–Green Bay will be the second Wisconsin site for Emerging Leaders, a Small Business Administration training course for small business CEO's. Milwaukee and Green Bay are now the only locations east of the Mississippi bringing the course to Native American businesses.

"The purpose of the second location in Green Bay is to make the course more accessible to the Native American-owned firms north of Milwaukee," says the SBA's Wisconsin District Director Eric Ness.

The Emerging Leaders Initiative is the only federal training initiative focused on CEOs of established small businesses that are poised for growth.

Interise, a Boston-based business- and management-training company, provides the instruction for the seven-month course, which includes about 100 hours of classroom time as well as networking and mentoring relationships. The Emerging Leaders Initiative is modeled on Interise's StreetWise "MBA" program.

The SBA is seeking 15 Native American business owners, to participate in the 2013 program. The application deadline is April 9, and classes begin April 24.

Participation is free for entrepreneurs who are chosen. A business must be at least three years old, have at least one employee besides the owner, and have gross annual sales of at least $300,000.

The SBA and Interise said that since the Emerging Leaders Initiative was started in 2008, more than 1,300 business owners have gone through the training. More than two-thirds of participants reported seeing their companies' revenues rise, and three-quarters said their companies were able to maintain or create new jobs.

Eighteen Wisconsin entrepreneurs graduated from the program during the past two years, with 350 graduating nationwide in 2012.

"Emerging Leaders has a proven track record of helping small businesses in underserved communities," said outgoing SBA chief Karen Mills.

To apply or learn more about this program, contact Robert Giesfeldt, Lead Business Opportunity Specialist with the SBA, at 414-297-1455 or visit www.Interise.org/SBAe200.

Radisson Hotel & Conference Center Green Bay
Friday, April 26- Saturday, April 27, 2013

Radisson announces New Management Team

GREEN BAY, Wisconsin – The Radisson Hotel and Conference Center Green Bay is excited to announce that the hotel, which is managed by Aimbridge Hospitality, has hired Steve Ninham as General Manager, James Elm as Sales and Convention Services Director, Vivek Trivedi as Food and Beverage Director, and Kim Lindner as Controller.

Steve Ninham brings with him extensive hotel management experience and aims to raise Radisson service to new levels. A Green Bay native, Ninham most recently served as the general manager of the Hyatt Lisle in the metropolitan Chicago area, where he oversaw a $7 million renovation and received an award in 2011 for increasing the hotel's performance year over year. In addition, Ninham boasts more than 20 years of hotel management experience spanning hotel properties in Arizona, Illinois, North Carolina and Wisconsin.

James Elm will be taking on the role of Sales and Convention Services Director. Elm first worked at the Radisson Green Bay in 1990, where he started as Banquet Supervisor and worked his way up to Director of Catering, Assistant Manager and eventually General Manager. He brings more than 18 years of hospitality managerial experience.

Vivek Trivedi, the new Food and Beverage Director, comes to the Radisson Green Bay from the Hyatt Lisle in Illinois where he served as the banquet manager. Trivedia has worked on the food and beverage side of the hotel industry for more than 25 years, including positions at the Hyatt Regency O'Hare, the Hyatt McCormick Place Chicago and the Sheraton Chicago Hotel and Towers.

Kim Lindner joins the Radisson Hotel and Conference Center from the DoubleTree Milwaukee-Brookfield, where she began as a Guest Services Agent and worked her way up to Accounts Receivable Manager, Human Resources Manager, and Assistant General Manager.

Board President Janice Skenandore-Hirth is confident that the right team has been brought to the Radisson Hotel and Conference Center to provide guests with the best possible experience.

"We look forward to working with the hotel's new staff members to increase profits and ensure that guests are provided with an unparalleled level of service," said Skenandore-Hirth.

Join the Fun; Do the Bellin Run

Annual Run/Walk is Saturday, June 8

Bellin Run organizers are passionate about getting people active – off the couch, out of the house and onto the streets. That's why year after year they enthusiastically encourage people to participate in the annual Bellin Run.

But you can join the 2013 Bellin Run simply because it's fun.

The 37th annual Bellin Run is scheduled for 8 a.m. Saturday, June 8. The 10K (6.2-mile) run/walk winds through the city of Green Bay and the village of Allouez.

"We're all about getting feet on the street," said Linda Maxwell, assistant race director for the Bellin Run. "That's been our mantra for a while now. We're focused on our community's overall health, wellness and improved fitness and we've worked diligently to incorporate all those potential improvement areas into the Bellin Run through free training programs and support.

"But yes, at a basic level we also want people to join us for the Bellin Run because it's just a really fun time," Maxwell said.

The Bellin Run attracts participants of all skill levels – world-class athletes and weekend warriors as well as casual runners, walkers and wheelchair racers. And if it is your first time, don't worry about it. On average 40 percent of Bellin Run participants are first-timers translating to nearly 7,000 first-timers last year.

"With just under 100 percent of respondents in our annual post-race survey indicating they'd recommend participation in the run/walk to a friend or family member, that's a lot of people we know for certain, had a good time," Maxwell said. "We'd like for you as well to experience the fun at the Bellin Run."

Adult online registration for the 2013 event is $20 through Tuesday, May 1. All registrants receive an official 2013-style Bellin Run T-shirt.

Join Team Oneida!

Register by April 30 to receive a FREE Bellin Run Corporate Challenge water bottle and t-shirt.

ulty. A prolific writer, he is the author of novels including "Bluehart," published in 2002, "Witless," published in 2009; and his most recent works, "The Second Virtue" and "Passing through Paradise," both published in 2013. He holds B.A. and M.A. degrees in philosophy from the University of Wyoming and Bowling Green University, respectively, and earned his doctorate in philosophy from the University of Texas.

Professor Lisa Bosman

The Tuesday, May 14, lecture by Lisa Bosman will focus on "Social Media: Business Applications and Educational Opportunities." Bosman teaches in the College's program in Material Science and Pre-Engineering. She holds B.S. and M.S. degrees in industrial engineering from the Milwaukee School of Engineering and Clemson University, respectively, and is a Ph.D. candidate at the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee.

Bosman will lecture on how the widespread phenomenon of social media has concentrated attention on connecting, sharing, and collaborating, and has bridged popular acceptance from personal lives to business settings and the world of education.

In relating social media to education, Bosman will focus on opportunities that exist for applying different kinds of social media tools in the classroom. Her discussion of social media in business applications will tell on how different electronic social networks are impacting organizational performance, with examples drawn from non-profit fundraising on a popular online website. "The results," Bosman says, "provide insights into the multi-faceted, complex nature of social capital in electronic environments."

The College's 20th Anniversary Faculty Lecture Series will resume in Fall Semester with talks by Dr. David Overstreet, Professor Eric Jurgens and Professor Ryan Winn. All are free and open to the public.

CMN enrolled its first students in Spring Semester 1993. Today, the College serves nearly 700 students on campuses in Keshena and Green Bay. Degree programs include three Bachelor's Degree and a dozen Associate Degree offerings. CMN also serves the region with several technical and trades diploma programs and continuing education workshops. The College is accredited and open to all.

College of Menominee Nation

CMN has Courses, Aid for Nursing

The College of Menominee Nation is encouraging students interested in nursing careers to enquire now about summer and fall semester courses. Special opportunities are available, including the Health Profession Opportunities Grant (HPOG) for low-income, unemployed and underemployed applicants.

The College's Nursing Career Ladder includes studies at the Nursing Assistant or Practical Nurse level that prepare students who are seeking CNA or LPN credentials. The College also offers a two-year program leading to an Associate of Applied Science Degree in Nursing for students seeing the RN credential. Special nursing education opportunities at CMN are supported by a grant from the Administration for Children and Families, U.S. Department of Health & Human Services (HHS).

CMN's main campus is located in Keshena on the Menominee Reservation and its urban campus is in Green Bay near the Oneida Nation. For more information on the College's nursing programs, call 1-800-567-2344, ext. 3207, during business hours or email bwill@menominee.edu.

The College of Menominee Nation is an open enrollment school with approximately 720 students registered last fall, including 435 American Indian students from a number of tribes. Along with nursing programs, CMN offers three baccalaureate degrees, more than a dozen associate degrees, and technical/trades diplomas. The College is fully accredited by the Higher Learning Commission, with nursing programs approved by the Wisconsin Board of Nursing and National League for Nursing Accrediting Commission. CMN hosts AIHEC National Academic Competition

Oneida students among those to receive top honors

Submitted by Irene Kiefer
Director, Advancement CMN

Members of the Oneida community were among the more than 800 students from around the U.S. who gathered in Green Bay March 17-20 for the annual conference of the American Indian Higher Education Consortium (AIHEC).

Conference events included academic and skills competitions in categories including business, science and public speaking, with College of Menominee Nation students bringing home several prizes.

Oneida award winners from the College of Menominee Nation were Neset Skenandore of Oneida and Elyssa Hawk, De Pere. Skenandore won a 1st place with teammate Brian Lee of Antigo in the Oral Duo Interpretation – Serious competition. In the same category, Hawk took 3rd place with teammate Bradley Hixon of Shawano. In the category of Oral Duo Interpretation – Humorous, Skenandore and Hawk had a 2nd place win.

The conference was hosted by the College of Menominee Nation and 10 other colleges affiliated with the Woodland Indian tribes of Wisconsin, Minnesota, Michigan and Nebraska.

Professor Donna Powless, Ph.D., of the CMN Education faculty, was lead coordinator of local planning for the event. Native comedian Charlie Hill was among featured entertainers.

Applications Available for SMSC Endowed Scholarship at U of M

Prior Lake, Minn. – Applications are now available for the Shakopee Mdewakanton Sioux Community Endowed Scholarship at the University of Minnesota for the 2013-2014 academic year. The SMSC Endowed Scholarship was established in 2008 through a $2.5 million gift from the Shakopee Mdewakanton Sioux Community into a matching endowment fund, creating a $5 million endowment to provide scholarships for American Indian students. To date, 112 students from across the United States have received SMSC scholarships.

"We encourage qualified graduating high school students from any state who are planning to attend any of the University of Minnesota campuses to look into this scholarship. While preference is given to enrolled members of federally recognized tribes, students who qualify under the Indian Education Act are also eligible if they meet the other requirements," said SMSC Chairman Charlie Vig.

The SMSC scholarship program is designed to recruit and retain talented American Indian students with demonstrated financial need to the University of Minnesota. The SMSC scholarship program is administered by the University's Office for Equity and Diversity. The primary goal of the SMSC scholarship program is to support incoming University of Minnesota freshmen and transfer students with demonstrated financial need. Scholarships may also be awarded to qualified, newly admitted graduate and professional students in specific disciplines.

"In today's society, an education is essential, especially for Indian people. We need our young people to work for their tribes, help their people, and protect our tribal sovereignty," said Chairman Vig.

Scholarship criteria

To be considered for an SMSC scholarship, students must meet the following criteria:

- Admission to one of the University of Minnesota's five campuses (Twin Cities, Crookston, Duluth, Morris, or Rochester) as a full-time undergraduate or graduate student.
- Enrollment or eligibility for enrollment in a federally recognized tribe or students who qualify under the Indian Education Act.
- Graduate and professional students must have an academic focus in one or more of the following areas: medicine, dentistry, or other health-related disciplines; public health; engineering; business administration/accounting; math; science; technology; public policy or government administration; education; or law.
- Undergraduate scholarship recipients must maintain a minimum cumulative 2.5 grade point average for SMSC scholarships to be renewed after the first year.
- Graduate and professional scholarship recipients must maintain a minimum cumulative 3.0 grade point average for renewal.

For undergraduates, scholarships are renewable for up to four years or until graduation (whichever comes first), contingent upon academic performance. For graduate and professional students, the length of funding is contingent upon academic performance, the school of enrollment, and degree program and is determined on a case-by-case basis. Grades and financial need determine if the scholarship is renewed for the following school year for each student.

Application Information

For more information about SMSC scholarships, please visit www.shakopeedakota.org/scholarships.html or e-mail Rickey Hall, assistant vice president for equity and diversity at the U of M, at hallrl@umn.edu. Applications must be postmarked on or before August 1, 2013.

Scholarship recipients will be selected by the SMSC Selection Committee, which is comprised of representatives from the Shakopee Mdewakanton Sioux Community and U of M staff.

ONEIDA
Trust Scholarship

The $3,000 lifetime scholarship shall assist with:
Required prerequisite credited classes,
Post graduate preparation and admission exams or related preparatory courses.
The lifetime gives the student the ability to utilize the scholarship as they progress throughout different levels of their educational degrees. e.g. Associate degree, Bachelor degree, Masters and Ph.D.
The Scholarships will remain dependent on the student being in good standing with Oneida Higher Education office. Students must abide by the established Higher Education program guideline.
The Oneida Trust Committee (the donors) requests that all recipients of the Oneida Trust Scholarship keep in mind the prospect of returning to the Oneida Tribe to share their acquired knowledge, experience, and education.

College's Student Leaders Announce Spring Events

Special to Kalihwisaks

Student Government leaders at the College of Menominee Nation have a full agenda of activities planned for Spring Semester, with a highlight being a Faculty/Staff Art Showcase opening on May 8 on the Keshena campus in celebration of CMN's 20th anniversary year.

The exhibit will be open to the public and feature beadwork, collections, writings, clothing, crafts, woodwork, artwork and photography by CMN people. Working with student leaders on planning are the CMN Department of Letters and Science and Library.

In celebration of Global Youth Services Day, CMN Student Government is sponsoring the third annual "Plant a Tree Day" to be held on "the weather friendly day" of April 26. Students also plan to take part in the annual Highway Clean-Up project on April 14.

Campus and community people are invited to participate in Student Government's Cross Blood Drives, scheduled for April 1 at the Green Bay campus and April 4 at the Keshena campus. Prospective donors who are healthy, at least 17 years old, weigh at least 110 pounds, and are able to perform normal activities can make advance appointments by contacting www.redcrossblood.org or by calling 1-800-733-2767.

Michael Faulds, JD, is Student Services and Student Government Advisor for the College. CMN's 2013 Student Government representatives include members from several communities and five different tribes. They are:

- President Sally Hill, a Comanche Tribe member from Oneida who is studying in CMN's Sustainable Development and Liberal Studies/Social Sciences programs;
- Vice President Lee Stoehr, Bad River Band of Chippewa Tribe, who is studying for a Bachelor of Science in Business Administration;
- Treasurer Harold Bowman, Stockbridge/Munsee Tribe, who is studying for a B.S. in Business Administration;
- Co-Secretary Shanae Hickman, Lac du Flambeau Chippewa Tribe, whose major is Biological and Physical Science;
- Co-Secetary Jesse Kaquatosh-Williams, Menominee Tribe, a Sustainable Development student;
- Keshena Campus Representative Mani Boyd, Menominee Tribe, who is studying for a B.S. in Business Administration;
- Green Bay Campus Representative Antonio Hernandez, an Oneida Tribe member from Green Bay who is studying in Liberal Studies/Social Science.

Green Bay Symphony Orchestra will observe 100th season

Jennifer Stevens, Oneida composer/lyric soprano, invited to contribute

By Dawn Walschinski

dwalschi@oneidanation.org

Jennifer Stevens

The Green Bay Symphony Orchestra (GBSO) will celebrate its 100th season starting this October, and has asked composer and lyric soprano Jennifer Stevens to be part of the concert series.

"They're trying to think of ways of demonstrating through music the history of Green Bay and Oneidas are part of that history since we've been here since 1822," said Stevens.

Stevens has been asked to adapt a couple of her original compositions to be performed by the GBSO. Converting her voice and piano works for full orchestra will be a new challenge for Stevens.

"I've had people say 'Jennifer, you should really consider writing bigger works.' I've had people request that I do chamber works with more instruments. And I was like 'You know, I'm really an amateur, I'm just starting out,'" she said.

Stevens writes lyrics in English and Oneida, and finds Oneida fits in the opera world very well.

"I have sung in Oneida in different communities, different venues, and I have to say a lot of people when they hear it they're very intrigued by it," she said. "They said it's a very beautiful language, it's very open. I've sung in so many languages, I have to say Oneida language is one of the easiest because the vowels are more open and the consonants are soft … Our language is very fluid which is perfect for a melodic line."

While not a fluent Oneida speaker, Stevens says she's been encouraged to write and perform in Oneida and does so to honor her grandmother Maria Hinton and all her ancestors.

"I've been asked to do it, I've been honored to do it, and I feel like it's another way of showing our younger generations how we can still thrive on having our language be a part of us, and through song, that's a beautiful thing," she said.

Both Stevens and GBSO Executive Director Dan Linssen agree that collaboration between different communities through music creates positive results.

"To have a great community you have to have great music," said Linssen. "We believe in the unifying power of music, today so much dividing us all over political issues and things like that and music tends to bring us together because I think it's a language we all understand."

Wisconsin Vision-Walk

Sunday • May 19, 2013 @ 10:30AM
Veteran's Park • 1010 N. Lincoln Memorial Drive • Milw., WI 53202

You can help restore sight to millions living in darkness by attending Vision-Walk, either by making a donation, walking or both.

I am walking in support of my 3-year old daughter, Gloria, who has Optic Nerve Hypoplasia. She was diagnosed with this when she was only 8 months old.
Your financial support and walking side by side with Gloria and me on Walk Day will bring us closer to a cure – and that Cure is in Sight!

The 3-mile walk is set for May 19, 2013 at 10:30AM at Veteran's Park, just north of the Milwaukee Art Museum and east of the lagoon, next to the kite rental building.

SEOTS Research Reveals Education Concerns of American Indian Families

By Mark W. Powless

Over the past two years, Southeastern Oneida Tribal Services (SEOTS) has partnered with the University of Milwaukee (UWM), Department of Educational Psychology to research American Indian academic performance in the Milwaukee area. The project gathered information through focus groups with students, parents, and American Indian-serving agencies.

Within Milwaukee Public Schools, students are tracked by several factors, including race. In regards to American Indian youth, two of the most troublesome figures are for grade point averages and graduation rates. As indicated in the MPS 2008-2009 District Report Card, of all ethnicities, Native American students had the lowest grade point average of 1.47. They also had the lowest graduation rates at 55.2%. Unfortunately these numbers are not a one-time occurrence, but instead are part of a growing trend. Recent reports demonstrate that the No Child Left Behind Act has largely not benefited American Indian students. American Indian youth show a consistent achievement gap after grade 4 (LaFramboise & Dizon, 2003), and are the only race/ethnic group of students registering no overall significant progress in math and science scores since 2005.

The SEOTS/UWM research identified several concerns. Among them are the minimal focus on American Indian ethnic culture/history in the mainstream educational system, a need by parents for parenting support and parenting skill-building, a struggle for urban American Indians regarding ethnic identity, minimal exposure of urban American Indians to Tribal culture/spiritual teachings, impact of historical trauma, lack of teacher training in American Indian culture/history, and the lack of support within the urban American Indian community.

Despite these challenges, American Indian students realized the importance of high school graduation and the importance of life skills and college preparation.

Interested community members may contact the SEOTS office for a report of the project and the results.

Moving forward, SEOTS is in the process of engaging American Indian-serving agencies to share the information and develop partnerships to help address the concerns identified in the research. The partnership with UWM has continued to remain productive and may lead to further partnerships down the road to garner funding for programs and services that will contribute to improving the academic performance of American Indian students residing in the Milwaukee area.

Knot Tying Class

Linking knot tying skill with practical uses

Knot tying is a useful skill for many different recreational activities.
This class will address knots useful for:
Rock Climbing
Camping
Boating Fishing

Additionally it is important to know how to tie knots well for several types of work. This class will address several uses of knots in these work areas:
Farming
Tree Care
Home Projects
and Rescue Situations

A knot used in a correct application makes the job easier. A wrong knot or poorly tied knot can come loose or slip, placing property and even a life at risk. Come and join us as we teach you how to tie some basic knots and what applications to use them in.

Oneida Community Integrated Food Systems

Oneida Community Food Systems Members

For Indigenous communities, food is more than just sustenance, it is a significant part of our self-identity. In the past, agriculture and food was a large part of who we are as a people. Yet, many of our youth have lost their incentive and knowledge of how to plant, grow and harvest our foods. Many people want to change this, and one of these groups are the OCIFS Members.

The Oneida Community Integrated Food Systems (OCIFS) members consist of various food, health and fiscal departments within the Oneida Nation of Wisconsin. The five members that are a part of this team are: Oneida Nation Farm, Tsyunhehkwa, Food Distribution, Health Promotions and Oneida Market. There are two food producing and processing entities which are the Oneida Nation Farm/Apple Orchard and Tsyunhehkwa. The Food Distribution Center serves as a distribution center for low income community members as well as a food warehouse. Health Promotions assists in the connection between diet and health through numerous departments and projects such as: Wellness Coaching, Diet Counseling, Consultant services to the Oneida Schools and the Elderly Diabetic Luncheon, just to name a few. The Oneida Market provides the retail outlet for the Oneida food products.

The OCIFS group is tirelessly working to improve the Nations quality of food, educating them of certain health risks, increasing employment and youth opportunities, and assisting in bringing our people closer together. They each run a difficult and highly successful program, and yet they still find time to come together and create various projects that the community has asked for such as:

- Oneida Farmers' Market
- Falling Leaves 4-H club
- Cultural Youth Activity Book
- Growing Gardeners workshop
- Farm to School Program
- Youth Day on the Farm
- Youth Summer Entrepreneur Initiative

Many Oneida youth have lost their incentive and knowledge of how to plant, grow and harvest foods. The OCIFS entities work together to bring about positive change by connecting with the youth and community. At left, adults explain the gardening process.

The OCIFS entities work cooperatively to try and bring about monumental changes in Oneida's food systems. There are many ways you can help your Nation, one of them is to support it's members. So buy your meat from your own Farm, your produce from your own Orchard and the many products from Tsyunhehkwa that are sold at the Oneida Market. It not only provides you with the best quality and value, but it helps the Oneida people on the road to self-sufficiency.

Wisconsin News Brief

1st eagle's nest seen in Racine County since 1800s

BURLINGTON, Wis. (AP) _ State wildlife officials say an eagle's nest near the Fox River around Burlington is the first confirmed in the area in over a century.

Ron Eckstein is retired from the state Department of Natural Resources. The former wildlife biologist tells the Kenosha News (http://bit.ly/114EiM6http://bit.ly/114EiM6) the DNR hadn't been aware of any eagle nest in Kenosha or Racine counties since at least the 1800s.

He says eagle nesting grounds are more common in northern Wisconsin.

The nest is on private property in southwest Racine County. DNR wildlife technician Seth Fisher flew over the nest this week. He didn't see eggs but saw an eagle hunkering down in a way that suggested it was incubating an egg.

Egales are considered a species of ``special concern,'' which means the DNR monitors their status.

Wis. candidate won't force schools to drop mascots

MADISON, Wis. (AP) ~ Wisconsin schools superintendent candidate Don Pridemore says he won't force schools to drop American Indian mascots.

State law gives the Department of Public Instruction the authority to force schools to drop race-based nicknames, logos and mascots if a complaint is filed and the agency determines the names or images are discriminatory. Parents in the Mukwonago Area School District, which uses the nickname Indians, have asked the state Supreme Court to find the law unconstitutional.

Pridemore, a Republican who currently serves in the state Assembly, issued a statement Thursday calling the policy an example of out-of-control bureaucracy.

A spokeswoman for Pridemore's opponent, incumbent Superintendent Tony Evers, had no immediate comment.

Greatest gift: Woman donates kidney to boyfriend

By Keith Uhlig
Wausau Daily Herald

WAUSAU, Wis. ~ Jen Rasmussen didn't tell Dylan Prescott last fall that she was making the first steps toward giving him one of her kidneys.

Although Jen, 35, and Dylan, 36, aren't officially wed, the Wausau couple have been together for seven years and are married spiritually, if not legally. She had watched Dylan's health deteriorate the past three years and was with him when he found out that years of untreated diabetes had ravaged his kidneys.

"We had to watch him every single day," Jen said, referring to herself and daughter Jaysa Rasmussen, 9. "Finally, I thought, 'I'm going to go get tested, because I need to do something.'"

When she made it her secret decision to pursue a donation process, Dylan's kidneys were working at about 14 percent of their capacity, the Wausau Daily Herald reported. Several relatives and friends had looked into donating a kidney to Dylan, but their efforts were thwarted for one reason or another. Dylan was reaching the point where he would need dialysis to survive, and he was so weak he could barely get out of bed to eat.

The couple spoke about Jen donating a kidney to Dylan before Jen started looking into the process on her own, and Dylan was against it. He was thinking of their children - Jaysa, Jen's older son, D.J., who lives with his grandmother, and Dylan's three children from a previous marriage, Zeke, Reyna and Eli Prescott. He was concerned that they all could lose both a father and a mother should something go wrong.

But when Jen found out that she was a match and approached Dylan again about it, he relented. An American Indian, Dylan relied on his faith, a mix of native traditions and Christianity, to help him decide. That spiritual grounding, he said, helped him believe "that it's going to be OK, no matter what."

Jen had a more secular perspective. "I was just like, well, we can get through this and get better. Or, we can wait around."

On Feb. 13, the day before Valentine's Day, Jen and Dylan underwent the transplant surgery at the University of Wisconsin Hospital and Clinics in Madison.

Dylan, the director of the American Indian Resource Center of Marathon County, woke up about three years ago and discovered that he couldn't see the alarm clock. He turned his head to the left a little, and the clock appeared. That's odd, he thought, but he figured something was wrong with his contacts. As he shook off the grogginess of sleep, he realized that he was blind in his left eye.

He immediately made an appointment to get an eye exam.

"They told me, 'You have blood in the back of your eye,'" Dylan said, and they quickly sent him to the Eye Clinic of Wisconsin. Doctors there told him they thought he was having a diabetic reaction and sent him to Aspirus Wausau Hospital.

A diabetes specialist there told him he had the disease, probably for 15 to 20 years. Dylan was immediately put on a regimen of insulin and other medications.

Dylan's blood sugar levels started to come down to healthy levels, but he still needed eye surgeries to regain vision, and he began to have other problems related to the disease, such as Bell's palsy, which affects the muscles in his face.

Most of the other problems diminished with time, as Dylan adapted to a healthier lifestyle and treatments took hold. But the kidney damage was not only irreversible, it worsened. In November 2011, the couple went to the Mayo Clinic to see whether specialists there could help Dylan's kidneys. They were told that the best hope was to slow the degradation, and that Dylan's kidneys would last another year.

By November 2012, Dylan's condition had reached a point where "I would have to force myself to get out of bed, take a shower and eat. But that made me so tired, I had to go back to bed," he said. "I did a lot of praying. I pretty much put everything in God's hands. I went with the flow."

Dylan and Jen say they had plenty of friends and families helping out with Jaysa, too. But it was heart-wrenching when it came time to leave her with Dylan's cousin just before they left for Madison for the surgery.

"I was scared," Jaysa said.

After the surgeries, Dylan's cousin drove Jaysa to Madison so she could see for herself they were OK.

"I was happy to see them," Jaysa said.

Before the surgery, Jen was scared, too. She wasn't having second thoughts, but the idea of the surgery began to frighten her. Another thought also plagued her.

"My biggest fear about the whole thing was, 'What if he rejected my kidney?'" Jen said.

Despite her worries, the surgery went well.

"I remember coming out, but still sleeping and hearing people in the room. His mom was just crying and crying, saying 'Look at her, she's laying there like an angel,'" Jen said. "I knew it was all OK then."

The whole group, including Jen, went down the hall to see Dylan. He was looking better already, Jen said, but he was groggy and out of it.

"He just said, 'Baby,'" Jen said.

"It was like a dream," Dylan said.

That was late on Feb. 13. When Dylan woke up at 3 a.m. Feb. 14, he insisted that the nurses show him to Jen's room.

"I wanted to go see her," Dylan said. He woke Jen.

"I told her, 'Happy Valentine's Day,'" he said.

USDA Invites Applications for Renewable Energy System and Energy Efficiency Improvement Projects

Washington – Agriculture Secretary Tom Vilsack today announced that USDA is seeking applications to provide assistance to agricultural producers and rural small businesses for energy efficiency and renewable energy projects. Funding is available from USDA's Rural Energy for America Program (REAP). The United States Department of Agriculture (USDA) remains focused on carrying out its mission, despite a time of significant budget uncertainty. Today's announcement is one part of the Department's efforts to strengthen the rural economy.

"The Obama Administration continues its commitment to help our nation become more energy independent by partnering with agricultural producers and rural small businesses as they build renewable energy systems and reduce energy usage," said Vilsack. "These investments will not only help our farmers and rural small businesses reduce energy costs, but also provide a new potential revenue source and stabilize their operations' bottom lines."

REAP, authorized by the Food, Conservation, and Energy Act of 2008, (Farm Bill) is designed to help agricultural producers and rural small businesses reduce energy costs and consumption and help meet the Nation's critical energy needs. USDA is accepting the following applications:

- Renewable energy system and energy efficiency improvement grant applications and combination grant and guaranteed loan applications until April 30, 2013;
- Renewable energy system and energy efficiency improvement guaranteed loan only applications until July 15, 2013;
- Renewable energy system feasibility study grant applications through April 30, 2013.

More information on how to apply for funding is available in the March 29, 2013 Federal Register, pages 19183-19190.

Since the passage of the 2008 Farm Bill and through the end of Fiscal Year 2012, REAP has funded nationwide over 6,800 renewable energy and energy efficiency projects, feasibility studies, energy audits, and renewable energy development assistance projects.

Examples include Edaleen Cow Power LLC, located near Lynden, Washington, which received a REAP loan and grant combination to install an anaerobic digester and sell the resulting electricity to a utility. The project is anticipated to generate 4,635 Megawatt hours per year. Manure produced by Edaleen Dairy's 2,450-head herd is the sole feedstock for the project and the dairy benefits from the bedding byproduct the digester produces. Also, in Augusta, Wisconsin, farmer Matthew Gabler received a grant to assist in installation of an 11 kilowatt wind turbine to produce approximately 29,000 kilowatt-hours a year for his farm.

This funding is an example of the many ways that USDA is helping revitalize rural economies to create opportunities for growth and prosperity, support innovative technologies, identify new markets for agricultural producers, and better utilization of our nation's natural resources.

The Obama Administration is working to promote domestic production of renewable energy to create jobs, reduce our dependence on foreign oil, combat global warming, and build a stronger rural economy. The President's plan for rural America has brought about historic investment and resulted in stronger rural communities. Under the President's leadership, these investments in housing, community facilities, businesses and infrastructure have empowered rural America to continue leading the way – strengthening America's economy, small towns, and rural communities. USDA's investments in rural communities support the rural way of life that stands as the backbone of our American values. President Obama and Agriculture Secretary Tom Vilsack are committed to a smarter use of Federal resources to foster sustainable economic prosperity and ensure the government is a strong partner for businesses, entrepreneurs and working families in rural communities.

USDA has made a concerted effort to deliver results for the American people, even as USDA implements sequestration – the across-the-board budget reductions mandated under terms of the Budget Control Act. USDA has already undertaken historic efforts since 2009 to save more than $700 million in taxpayer funds through targeted, common-sense budget reductions. These reductions have put USDA in a better position to carry out its mission, while implementing sequester budget reductions in a fair manner that causes as little disruption as possible.

Monument commemorates Indian battle

Snow Hill, N.C. (AP) – Members of an Indian tribe driven from North Carolina 300 years ago have returned to Greene County to dedicate a monument to their ancestors.

WNCT-TV reports Saturday's dedication came as part of a three-day ceremony honoring the Tuscarora Nation.

The monument on state Highway 58 north of Snow Hill remembers a battle at Fort Nooherookuh where almost 1,000 members of the Tuscarora Nation were killed. Many of the surviving members migrated north to New York. The battle was the culmination of two years of battles between the nation and British colonists.

NC Tuscarora Nation Chief Leon Locklear says he is glad that his ancestors have finally been recognized.

SD popcorn manufacturer making a name for itself

By Kristi Eaton
Associated Press

Lower Brule, S.D. – A tribally owned popcorn manufacturer in South Dakota is gaining accolades for its products and job opportunities.

Situated on the Lower Brule Indian Reservation, Lakota Foods is the first and only Native American-owned company that produces, packages and distributes popcorn. The Lower Brule Sioux Tribe started the business about seven years ago and now produces about 17 million pounds of popcorn each year.

Barry Heiss is the manager of the Lower Brule Farm Corp. He says Lakota Foods is unique because the popcorn is raised, cleaned and packaged in South Dakota.

Deputy Secretary of Agriculture Kathleen Merrigan recently toured the Lakota Foods plant while learning about South Dakota's agriculture industry.

She boasted about Lakota Foods' ability to take a basic product and add value to it.

UW-Green Bay to host 2013 Community Powwow

Powwow set for April 13 at the Kress Events Center

GREEN BAY – A recently revived UW-Green Bay tradition will energize the Kress Events Center Saturday, April 13, as the University's Intertribal Student Council presents the 2013 UW-Green Bay Pow Wow.

This daylong celebration returned to campus a year ago after a several-year hiatus. The event, which is free and open to the public, offers the chance for both Native American and non-Native attendees to experience the culture and sense of community the Pow Wow offers, said Alan Caldwell, an academic adviser with UW-Green Bay's American Intercultural Center.

"They'll get to see traditional Native dancers; they'll be able to hear traditional Native music with the drum groups that'll be there," Caldwell said. "It's a social event and an opportunity for people to be together with family, with friends and with the community."

The event runs from 10 a.m. until 10 p.m. at the Kress Events Center on the UW-Green Bay campus, 2420 Nicolet Drive. Grand entries are scheduled at 1 p.m. and 7 p.m., with dances, arts and crafts, vendors, food and more offered throughout the day. A Pow Wow feast will be held from 5-6:30 p.m. at the nearby Mauthe Center, just across the parking lot from the Kress Center. All events are free and open to the public.

The theme for the 2013 Pow Wow, "honoring our children," will be reflected in two special dances taking place during the afternoon. The first will honor children ages birth to nine years old, while the second will recognize children from ages 10 to 18. All children present will be invited to participate.

Each UW-Green Bay Pow Wow features two head dancers, and UW-Green Bay students occupy both roles for the 2013 event. Students Donald Keeble and Chelsea Dodge will be featured in the head dancer roles. The Host Drum for the 2013 Pow Wow is the Young Bear Singers from Mandaree, N. Dak.

UW-Green Bay's Intertribal Student Council is the main sponsor of the event, with support from the American Intercultural Center, Dean of Students, Office of the Provost and Kress Events Center.

ONSS Students Compete In the 2013 National American Indian Science & Engineering Fair

Submitted By Yvette Peguero
Principal & Science Fair Coordinator, Oneida Nation Elementary School
& Becky Nutt
ONHS science teacher

The Oneida Nation School System's participation in this year's AISES National Science Fair was an exciting and successful event. Four elementary students from the Oneida Nation School System attended the 26th Annual AISES National Science Fair in Albuquerque, New Mexico, March 21-23, 2013. Noemi Ramirez Gilsoul grade 5; Malia Jacobs, grade 5; Aleena Escamea, grade 8 and Saquoia Metoxen, grade 8. The elementary projects were sponsored by ONSS with the support of the Oneida Nation School Board and the endorsement of the Oneida Nation Business Committee. Chaperones were Science Fair Coordinator Yvette Peguero and 5th grade science teacher Mary Jo Johnson.

The ONHS T-Hawk Science Research Team successfully competed at NAISEF with sponsorship from the College of Menominee Nation and Society for Science and the Public. Senior Noelle Metoxen was awarded a 1st place in the category of Medicine and Health for her project on exploring how alkali processing increases niacin output in white corn. Noelle received a call back and was thus recognized as one of the top 19 projects at the fair. Senior Heather Stevens was awarded a 1st place for her project using her own photography to explore the associations between color and emotion. Junior Muriel King was awarded a 1st place for her research into teen smoking. She surveyed students from ONHS and Menominee Indian High School. Tyler Stevens, junior, was awarded a 2nd place for his project on attractiveness. LaKota Martinez, junior, scored a 3rd place finish with her project comparing free throw accuracy when moving between a girl's and boy's basketball in the tough Physics category. Billie John and Shawntel Skenandore, juniors, represented well with their work comparing current teen alcohol use with that reported in past data. The coaches worst fear was realized when the project boards were lost in transit; the team persevered and recreated their work in just one afternoon. The team was joined in Albuquerque by observers Rachel Ninham, Sheila Stevens, Ruby John, and Angelica Schuyler, who spent time reviewing high school projects competing in the various categories. The high school projects were sponsored by The Society for Science and the Public.

The students competed with hundreds of other Native American Students from all over AIndian Country@, which included numerous tribes in 20 states. It was an honor and an accomplishment to be there to compete. It also was a very enjoyable and educational experience for the students to meet other students from different tribal nations and for our students to realize they are capable of competing and winning awards on this national level.

Special Awards

Saquoia Metoxen, grade 8, IBM Innovation Award, cash prize

Congratulations to all the students and a special thank you to the staff and administration of the Oneida Nation School System, the ONSS School Board, Oneida Business Committee, and parents and families of our students.

Expert panel to Stop the Bullying!

Green Bay, WI - According to the National Center for Education Statistics, nearly one-third of teens reported being bullied from middle school to high school. And it's not just playground pranks anymore. Bullying, including cyber-bullying, is a pervasive and prominent problem in today's society - among all ages, races and genders. But knowledge is power - and parents, educators and the community can work together with students to STOP THE BULLYING!

An expert panel, including representatives from the Brown County Sheriff's Department, the LGBT community, Children's Promise, and counselors from Green Bay Area Public Schools, will share advice and ideas and field questions from the community on Saturday, April 20, 2013 at 10:00 a.m. in the lower level meeting rooms of the Brown County Central Library, 515 Pine Street, downtown Green Bay.

"Bullying is more than just a buzzword in today's society. Incidents of teasing, bullying and cyber-bullying are on the rise in our schools, and they are often leading to tragic circumstances," says Sharon Verbeten, children's librarian at the Brown County Central Library and organizer of the panel discussion. "We hope that this program can help raise awareness of the issues, as they hit close to home. And we hope that through open discussion, we can foster understanding of and respect toward others--and pass those values along to our children and students."

Among students who were bullied, the offenses most often included being made fun of, called names, insulted, being the subject of rumors, being threatened with harm, having their property destroyed or being excluded on purpose.

The U.S. National Institute of Health reports:

- There are about 282,000 students who are reportedly attacked in high schools in our nation each month.
- Teens in grades 6 through 10 are most likely to be involved in activities related to bullying.
- 71 percent of students report bullying as an ongoing problem.
- Almost half of all students fear harassment or bullying in the bathroom.
- Cyber bullying is on the rise in dramatic numbers; it is relentless and more frightening if the bully is anonymous.
- About 47 teens are bullied every five minutes.
- Victims of cyber bullying show more signs of depression than other bullying victims.
- "Bullycide" is the new term for suicide as a result of being bullied.
- Every 30 minutes a teenager attempts suicide due to bullying.
- The leading cause of death among children under the age of 14 is suicide.

The event is free and open to the public.

Thunderhawk Classic a Success

By Diego Metoxen
Thunderhawk Times

This year, the boys and girls varsity basketball teams held the First Annual Thunderhawk Classic as a fundraiser for Oneida Nation High School Athletics. There were four games that were played throughout the night. The quarters were 15 minutes long with a running timer (which means the clock wasn't going to stop).

In the first quarter, the T-Hawks and the Lady T-Hawks played against each other head to head. It was a great game between the two teams. The T-Hawks came out of that game with the win over the Lady T-Hawks.

The second quarter featured a coed game where all the players were mixed up into two teams. There was a rule in the game that the boys couldn't score from inside the paint. The Lady T-Hawks captain was Jessica House, and the T-Hawks captain was Diego Metoxen. Both the captains were to choose their teams. The outcome of the second quarter event: Diego Metoxen's team won.

During halftime, there was a half-court shot competition. Jordan Bain was the winner of the halftime competition and was awarded a purple basketball. Also during halftime, there was a special recognition for Jessica House reaching her thousand point mark. Jessica will have a banner hung in the Turtle School gym to honor her accomplishment.

Next, the third quarter came to a start. The teams playing each other were the lady T-Hawks vs. Old School Ladies. The game was intense with the score going back and forth. The Lady T-Hawks ended up losing because of a buzzer beater shot from the other team.

Finally, the fourth quarter showcased a matchup between the T-Hawks and the Old School Men. The score also went back and forth, and the game ended up going into overtime. The T-Hawks were able to pull it off, winning by two points in overtime.

ONHS Maple Time

By Bryan Quella
Thunderhawk Times

Gathering sap from maple trees: it's a tradition that is a big part of the Oneida Culture. It's also a big part of what makes Oneida Nation High School unique. Currently, ONHS students are collecting maple sap to be boiled down to syrup. The syrup is considered both a food and a medicine.

Every year about this time, we start off with a tobacco burning. Sonny Hill, ONHS Language and Culture teacher, gives thanks and tells us that we will be working in the woods. He explains that we must be respectful of the animals that live there.

During the next few weeks, Sonny's classes will go outside and tap the trees in the woods behind Norbert Hill Center.

People may notice that the modern way to collect a lot of sap is by using blue plastic tubing. It lets modern maple syrup makers collect as much sap as they can without all the work. However, we do things the old fashioned way. We collect sap for spiritual reasons, not to see how much syrup we can make in the end.

Once the syrup has been made, we have a "breakfast for lunch" day at the high school where we get to taste what we've made. Some of the sap is also turned into maple candy and sugar.

Is it Spring Yet?

By Jessica House
Thunderhawk Times

In Oneida, the weather is a little on the cold side. Living in Wisconsin teaches us that Mother Nature can be unpredictable. Well, Mother Nature definitely didn't let us down this year. March has been more of an extended winter rather than a gradual warming trend into spring as it has in the past.

"I don't like the snow at all. It is definitely time for spring," said ONHS senior Emmitt Big Medicine.

It has been 15 days since after the first day of spring and we still have the feeling that snow may still fall from the sky. Last year at this time it was an average of 70 degrees. This year is nothing like the last; temperatures continue to drop, and snow continues to surprise us. One good thing: sooner or later it has to warm up. Please let it be sooner rather than later!

Competitive Sports gym class

By Brandon Doxtator
Thunderhawk Times

Sixth hour is a great period to be in the gym. That is the time and place that the Competitive Sports Class is held. The students are all so active with everything they do each day.

The students in the Sixth hour class are Mike, Deigo, Emmitt, Tavia, Torin, Takoma, Vincent, Joelle, Peter, Melvin, Curtis, and me. It is a great environment and a great roster to be a part of when looking to be active. Nobody lets up; everyone gives 100% every day whether they are tired or not.

The Competitive Sports teacher, Ms.Dawson, said she likes the class because the people in sixth hour are so active. "I never have to ask anyone to get up and join the competition because they are all out playing already. The kids really exemplify the concept of teamwork because they get everyone involved and make sure that everyone gets to touch the ball at least once."

Personally, I like the class because it is such a great class to be in. It seems as if nothing goes wrong, everything progresses smoothly, and we all get a great workout. Every once in a while someone might get a little upset or frustrated because he or she is one the losing side of the game, but even when that happens everyone keeps his or her cool and stays calm. It's a great class, and I look forward to it every day.

April Fools' Day

By Marcus Tucker
Thunderhawk Times

April 1st is known as "April Fools' Day" or "All Fools' Day". It is not a national holiday, but is celebrated throughout the world.

In 1582, Pope Gregory XIII wanted to change the old Julian Calendar and move New Year's Day to January. The new calendar, the Gregorian Calendar, placed the new year on January 1 rather than April 1. It is said that some folks, out of ignorance, stubbornness, or both, continued to ring in the new year on April 1. Because of this, they were teased, made the butt of jokes, and were called "fools." Thus, April Fools' Day was born.

There are many other traditions in different cultures that are similar to April Fools' Day. The Romans celebrated a festival on March 25th called Hilaria. A Hindu festival called Holi, observed in early March, is said to be celebrated with "general merrymaking" and the "loosening of social norms." In Italy, France, and Belgium, children and adults stick a paper fish to people's back and shout "April Fish" in their language.

My Time at the Circus

By Brandon Doxtator
Thunderhawk Times

Last month, I attended the circus with my mother, my sisters, and their friends. It took us over 20 minutes just to get into the doors. It cost $18 per person. We spent $78 just to get the tickets, and they also charged $6 for parking.

Once we finally got to our seats, I realized that the money was well spent. The first act they performed was the lions and the tamer. I was thinking, "What would happen if he gets eaten?" but he was a master and kept the lions in line. Then the dancers came out and showed off their skills in front of everyone. They were precise and on target for everything; I didn't see one person out of place.

The next act showed a guy balancing porcelain bowls on his head. He started out with a ten pound bowl, then he moved up to a 20 pound bowl, and finally he got to the 30 pound bowl. He was moving under the 30 pound bowl, but it wasn't moving; it stayed in its one spot.

Then it was intermission. They brought the camels, elephants, and horses out for the kids to ride on. They had a couple of bounce houses on the floor too. After twenty minutes, they called for everyone to go back to their seats so they could start the second half.

The first act of the second half was the dogs. There was a huge dog that could jump over ten feet in the air. They had the dog's running back and forth through the whole act. Some of the dogs were getting too impatient, so they started run around on their own.

Then the elephant "Bobo" came out, stood on his two front legs, and put his butt into the air. Bobo balanced on a big tube and walked on it.

Than the ball of motorcycles came out. They had three motorcycles driving around inside the huge metal ball right away, and then they moved up to four, than five. After the fifth one got into the ball, they had another biker out jumping over the ball. The biker who did the jumping over the ball was a pro dirkbiker. He did a Lazyboi, a Seat Grab, a backflip, and a Superman.

The circus ended with a blast: the human cannon ball. As soon as the cannon went off, we headed towards the exit so that we could beat the traffic home. All in all, the circus was a great time. I look forward to experiencing another one in the future.

Vice-Chairman

Vice-Chairman's Corner...

Sheko'li Oneida Members,

I hope everyone is doing well. With spring just around the corner I encourage everyone to give thanks for the passing of another winter that allows Mother Earth to rest. Once rested, she will bless us all with another year of growth within the plant and animal world that brings us all we need to survive as people. A couple of activities we can all be part of in order to give thanks are what we refer to as "the fishing ceremony" and "sugar camp". The rights we have established in regards to fishing our reservation will be forever thanks to Tribal Member action, past BC Leadership, and Legal Counselors Jerry Hill and Francis Skenandore. I say Yaw^ko for that. The Fishing Opening is scheduled for April 5th at Pamperin Park. These responsibilities are usually carried out after the first thunders we hear. The same goes for sugar camp generally speaking we can rely on the temperatures to rise after the thunders are heard which helps assure us that the trees are ready to be tapped. Some of those that stay in tune with the environment are able to determine these activities by "just knowing" when the time is right. I have always admired individuals that stay in touch with their surroundings. I say Yaw^ko for that.

On another subject I would like to mention some initiatives that my office and many of the dedicated staff have been working on regarding Jurisdiction of the Reservation. To begin this process I think we can start with the land, I truly believe that the Oneida People need to be the governing body that oversees the Natural Resources of the land that we and the Federal Government refer to as the Oneida Tribe of Indians Reservation - I prefer to say Wisconsin Oneida's Territory. I have been able to have many conversations on this very complicated subject with Tribal Leaders, Senators, Congressional Representatives, and State Representatives as well as legal representatives and will continue to. My intention is to encourage more conversation with all those that are involved in these matters and ask that they come to the understanding that the Oneidas do have the capacity within the organization to begin oversight and partnerships with the Federal Government to maintain our Treaty Rights. We just need cooperation and a full understanding that we are a Government.

On a similar topic I would like to address the concern that Village of Hobart president, Richard Heidle, has been asking the residents of Hobart to vote in a manner that assures himself and Elaine Willman that there will never be a Oneida Tribal Member or family member elected to the Village Board. I find this repulsive, and a statement of extreme prejudice by a public official. I believe Mr. Heidle needs to be removed from his seat of power. I also feel that Ms. Willman has been continually misinforming the public about the Oneida Tribe and she needs to be held accountable and perhaps audited. There is no reason for these types of letters to be sent out to the Village residents. It has been brought to my attention that this is not just a local concern. Apparently Ms. Wilman has been visiting other areas recently throughout the state. Apparently Ms. Wilman has been known to travel coast to coast and misinform the public when there is an Indian Tribe attempting to bring progress to their people. I can only hope she is not doing this on an expense account that is publicly or tax funded.

Leadership Messages Need to be Facts:

Other matters that has drawn much concern to me is the articles written by our Treasurer and Chairman. I will start with the statement by Treasurer Tina Danforth when it was written that there was no progress in the attempt to Restructure or Reorganize. The reason I find this so disturbing is that this is a false statement. I, along with other BC members as well as our dedicated staff have had dozens of meetings with Division Directors, Tribal Members and Employees. The Treasurer did not participate in any of these community meetings that my office hosted. Apparently the Treasurer does not recognize these attempts as valuable or perhaps because we have not formally presented anything to the GTC she feels there has not been work done on this matter. Well, I would like to inform the GTC that we have done tremendous amounts of work on this subject. I would also like to inform the membership that are not able to follow the workings of the BC as closely as they would like that my office had been meeting regularly on the Re- Org as directed by the GTC but then I was taken off the task by a motion from Councilman Delarosa to turn it back over to the full BC and that is where the process lost momentum. My office has still been meeting on the subject regularly and will continue to because I feel I was directed by the GTC to do so. I also feel I was elected to address the issues that will have negative effect on the Oneida Tribe coming from State and Federal action or lack of - not run around and put out political fires that start due to bad communication or the lack of understanding our Roles and Responsibilities as People.

Oneidas are People of Peace:

On the subject of the Chairman Delgado's letter in the last Kalihwisaks, I have real concern with the message that we are entering a time of violence. If we are, then we should address it with each other as people. We should not answer violence with more violence and call it Emergency Management or Homeland Security. I too want to make sure the public is safe and that is why I support our Oneida Police Department. They are Peace Officers. They are the individuals that are in place to enforce the law. They are also engaged in criminal investigation. They have the authority to carry a weapon that can only be used in public safety matters. I feel if we as elected officials are in need of protection we can rely on OPD to fill that need. If we put Emergency Management in that position we are putting those individuals in a position that could result in them breaking the law or even the loss of their life. I really feel Emergency Management needs to stay focused on Emergency planning for the Community such as fire control, flooding concerns, food security, tornado or severe weather plans, community event areas, etc. I believe these matters need more conversation that includes all parties such as OPD, Oneida Police Commission, Oneida Law Office and the full OBC as well as the staff of Emergency Management.

In closing let me say I have many concerns on the lack of communication with the Oneida Membership and the Oneida Business Committee and I would like to close that gap. I will be initiating some attempts on these matters through Social Media in the very near future. I feel the members need to be able to get a true assessment's of how the elected officials are thinking. I think this can be done by simply asking them to respond to questions based on the Established Priorities. These could then be posted on the members' only site…. Questions can be developed from the membership, staff and employees. This will give a better understanding and record of the individual elected officials thinking. For now enjoy the spring weather and Take Care.

OBC Forum...

Before I began my article, I will say, above all else, I do have hope for us. But remember, hope is an aspiration, not a plan, and at this point, we need plans and clarity around our next steps.

Truly when I see a young Oneidas walking down a street, I wonder what type of future they have if we, meaning the adults, don't get things right. If a young Oneida family decided to live and grow a family in Oneida, what kind of communities could we offer and what kind of futures would they have here? I also wonder are we doing them proud with how we are managing Oneida's resources?

Budget

As a Tribe we have so many issues facing us as we come out of the tail end of winter and spring emerges. Just like Mother Nature has her seasons, we have our seasons. For the government, we are now entering a new budget season and there is much to consider on behalf of the Oneida people. Last year it took a lot of work and debate just to get to a balanced budget. As we enter the budget process we are once again confronted with a projected budget deficit. We are going on over seven years worth of tribal budgets that had no growth potential and no hope for financial prosperity. These are status quo budgets with cuts digging deeper down to the bone.

Do we want more of the same? How we respond and provide guidance on the Tribal budget is a true measure of how well we're self-governing. Pushing issues off to another day or punting problematic issues (or business decisions) into the next fiscal year is not going to display self-governance prowess at all. Maintaining the status quo by patching up a budget just to get through to the next budget cycle is not acceptable.

In this budget cycle, we have to do the unthinkable; we have to get the Tribe on sustainable financial footings, no matter what. We cannot rely on federal grants, gaming, and the sale of cigarettes and gasoline forever! We have to get to the point where we are diversified and have secured annual recurring income outside of our standard income streams.

There are so many needs that should be met; employees need pay raises and many needed services have to be properly funded. There are also decisions that need to be made regarding per capita. The type of environment whereby we're just hanging on financially with no movement and no financial push in a new direction is crippling our ability to secure opportunities. Our long-term capacity is being diminished; is this what our success in gaming has led us to? How did we get to this point? Does anyone honestly believe there is no room for improvement?

Economy of the Tribe

Probably the most pressing and most misunderstood issue is the economy of the Tribe. Many narrowly view the Tribe as only a cash generating business with an abundance of employees, per-capita distributions, and services. All of this may be true, but we need to consider some basic economic elements and we need to think more strategically as we build a sustainable Oneida economy.

Over the last few years I have spent a significant amount of time researching what has been done to secure a more diverse and true Oneida Tribal economy. There have been hundreds of millions dollars spent on endeavors going back to the 1970's, but little has resulted. I have yet to see what has been gained economically in proportion to the monetary output.

When you think about this type of economic discussion, one of the first questions one may ask is: "What do we do good?" Unfortunately, the jury is still out on exactly what we do well. I'd have to say, we know gaming, cigarettes and gasoline. Is this something we can build off of? Maybe. Is this something that can sustain us forever? No, the answer is unequivocally no!

Who is leading the Economy?

Who will lead the way? Many are quick to say that no one is in charge and that we're all equal and no one is in the lead. I ask, who makes the critical day-to-day business decisions? Some say management and some say the Oneida Business Committee (OBC). I suggest it is the OBC in collaboration with management. Some have asked, "Well what if management thinks everything is fine the way it is?" Now what? I have seen that at multiple levels, some staffers are working diligently to stop any new progress and change because they want more of the same. Now what? Leaders may want new programs and new services for the Oneida people and some staffers are pushing back by saying that's not how we do things. Now what? These issues all present their own set of problems.

Who will build up the Oneida economy and when? If no one is clearly in charge and if the OBC cannot motivate and get certain staff to help us pursue another course, what do we do?

I firmly believe leadership needs to step-up and commit to building a real Oneida economy. Leadership on some level needs to say "This is where we are boldly going." I would like the OBC to sign onto a firm economic direction and say "financially" we are going to take these steps and spell those steps out. We cannot have a leaderless economic approach whereby no one is in charge! Someone has to be driving and steering the Tribe's financial house in the right direction. The OBC is the fiduciary and there is no other option but to do this.

My intention here is not to blame the OBC, but to urge us to do something economically that creates new jobs and drives income into our coffers. We have to engage in the creation of enterprises which are market competitive and partnered with viable business people who have good balance sheets and great business track records. The time to make a move financially is now so we can avoid massive layoffs.

OEDA

We have some options at hand. One such pursuit should be the creation of a newly revamped Oneida Enterprise Development Authority (OEDA). I will be coming out with an article on this matter very soon. I think the OBC is on pulse to do something here, but the time to move is now! It is important to remember that a new OEDA will not solve everything because in some areas the organization is massively ineffective. Organizational effectiveness is the concept of how effective an organization is in achieving the outcomes it intends to produce. Housing is a great case and point. All I hear is we can do it, but the athematic doesn't add up. If we've been able to do this for 40 years, why haven't we? Pursuing the building of a few houses a year while the needs outstrip the building process by the hundreds shouldn't continue to be acceptable.

Organizational Effectiveness

We have to become more effective in so many ways and on so many different levels. Our effectiveness has to not just touch on the economics and organization, but we have to become much more of an advanced self-governance Tribe. Politics is one thing, but when we have become so crippled with politics and unable to make decisions based on sound reasoning and facts, we could be witnessing our own demise.

I wrote in a recent memo, "The ideas of pursuing austerity measures, offering severances or across the board cuts have not met our needs over the last few years. We have to become more

2. Oneida Child Protective Board – Shirley Barber, Chairwoman

Motion by David Jordan to accept Oneida Child Protective Board verbal update, seconded by Greg Matson. Motion carried unanimously

For the record: Melinda J. Danforth stated many of you should be aware about the Baby Veronica case that's going before the Supreme Court. I had some reservations about the approach that the Tribes were taking but unfortunately those reservations turned into a little bit of joy these last couple of days. Some of the Tribes in different states had gone to the Governor and to the Department of Children and Families and asked them to sign on to our brief to support our position in this case, and some of the States took the opposite position. The Tribes in Wisconsin asked the same and because of the mining issues that are happening I didn't know that it was a good type of environment to bring this request forward, but the Tribes did. So we were successful, and Wisconsin will be signing on to the brief on the side of the Tribes. So that's a very positive movement forward and that outcome of the Baby Veronica case though could have major implications on ICWA, so we will try to keep you involved and the Child Protective Board informed as much as possible.

General Tribal Council

1. Petitioner Leah Sue Dodge: Prohibit building gasification, waste-to-energy, recycling facility on reservation

Excerpt from Feb. 13, 2013 regular Business Committee meeting: Motion by Patty Hoeft to acknowledge receipt of the from Leah Sue Dodge, send it off for appropriate analysis work and have it come back at the March 13, 2013 Business Committee meeting, seconded by David Jordan. Motion carried unanimously.

Motion by David Jordan to place this on the May 5, 2013 GTC agenda, with all supporting documents including a fiscal impact and a statement from Oneida Seven Generations, turned in to the Tribal Secretary's office by March 25, 2013, seconded by Melinda J. Danforth. Motion carried with two opposed:

Opposed: Greg Matson, Brandon Stevens

For the record: David Jordan stated I understand where Chaz is coming from. I know my role here is if someone goes through the process of submitting a petition, I could never deny anybody a petition if they follow the right process.

For the record: Greg Matson stated this is a broad statement. It seems like a direct impact and a direct attack on Seven Gens Corporation which is an avenue that all the Tribal members own, should respect and communicate with. I think this is a direct attack; it seems to be too broad because it states any location within the Oneida Tribal boundaries. It specifically says plastic recycling plant and it's separated out, building any gasification, or waste-to-energy, or plastic recycling plant anywhere within the reservation. It just ties our hands completely with the ability for us to offset what we're being attacked with every day, which is the landfill.

For the record: Brandon Stevens stated I oppose the motion because I think the petitioner should be afforded a meeting, but May 5th is premature because the board has not made a decision on whether or not they support this project in a location its currently being proposed at. So the cart's before the horse. As far as everything else, I have no opinion on the placement of the proposed site and the location it's being proposed at because we create the institutions of the tribe to vet that process out, to carry those things out. I'm a politician, I'm elected and I create policy to make sure those institutions are sound. Make sure those due diligences are taking place in the manner that they need to. I'm not an engineer, I'm not a doctor, no PhD, and so I afford myself those opinions on those who are more knowledgeable than me in those areas. I believe the process needs to be taken place, it needs to be followed and then if something like this were to happen, we need to change policy. We need to change a direction on what we want there and make that policy decision rather than a direct decision on trying to stop something that we've not yet had all the information about.

2. Petitioner Kerry Danforth: Rescind, repeal Oneida child placement, visitation, support, paternity laws

Excerpt from Feb. 13, 2013 regular Business Committee meeting: Motion by David Jordan to accept this petition and move it forward for the appropriate analysis and be brought back in 30 days, where a date will be set for that petition, seconded by Tina Danforth. Motion carried unanimously.

Motion by Paul Ninham to defer Petitioner Kerry Danforth: Rescind, repeal Oneida child placement, visitation, support, paternity laws to the March 27, 2013 Business Committee meeting, seconded by Melinda J. Danforth. Motion carried unanimously

3. Petitioner Linda Dallas: Investigate Oneida Appeals Commission inappropriate and unethical actions and activities as a whole, former and current individual members, legal representation past 15 years

Motion by Melinda J. Danforth to acknowledge the receipt of petitions numbered 3-7 and direct that the appropriate analysis, which would be the legislative, the fiscal analysis, the legal review and any potential administrative analysis be completed on these documents within 45 days, seconded by Greg Matson. Motion carried unanimously

4. Petitioner Cathy L. Metoxen: All supervisory, management, entry-level jobs employed by enrolled Oneidas

Motion by Melinda J. Danforth to acknowledge the receipt of petitions numbered 3-7 and direct that the appropriate analysis, which would be the legislative, the fiscal analysis, the legal review and any potential administrative analysis be completed on these documents within 45 days, seconded by Greg Matson. Motion carried unanimously

5. Petitioners Kerry Danforth and Linda Dallas: Immediately dissolve Oneida Appeals Commission

Motion by Melinda J. Danforth to acknowledge the receipt of petitions numbered 3-7 and direct that the appropriate analysis, which would be the legislative, the fiscal analysis, the legal review and any potential administrative analysis be completed on these documents within 45 days, seconded by Greg Matson. Motion carried unanimously

6. Petitioners Kerry Danforth and Linda Dallas: Enact discretionary transfer authority in Tribal Law Chapters 78 and 79 to allow child support cases originating in Oneida courts to be transferred to a different jurisdiction

Motion by Melinda J. Danforth to acknowledge the receipt of petitions numbered 3-7 and direct that the appropriate analysis, which would be the legislative, the fiscal analysis, the legal review and any potential administrative analysis be completed on these documents within 45 days, seconded by Greg Matson. Motion carried unanimously

7. Petitioner Linda Dallas: Require Tribe to pay real estate taxes for all Tribe-owned property

Motion by Melinda J. Danforth to acknowledge the receipt of petitions numbered 3-7 and direct that the appropriate analysis, which would be the legislative, the fiscal analysis, the legal review and any potential administrative analysis be completed on these documents within 45 days, seconded by Greg Matson. Motion carried unanimously creative since we have not been able to pursue necessary organizational restructuring and downsizing." So, if we refuse to restructure and no one is seemingly in charge, at what point do we start questioning ourselves? Where is the mirror we look at for an honest opinion? At what point is it time to change?

One research piece I looked at was the work of scholars of a nonprofit organization. The scholars were examining the effectiveness of these types of organizations and they acknowledged that the concept of "effectiveness" has multiple dimensions and multiple definitions. For example, while most nonprofit leaders define organizational effectiveness as 'outcome accountability', or the extent to which an organization achieves specified levels of progress toward its own goals, a minority of nonprofit leaders define effectiveness as 'overhead minimization', or the minimization of fundraising and administrative costs. The take away here is the drive for solvency and fiscal responsibility. How should we define it? Does fiscal responsibility matter at all?

According to one study, organizational effectiveness captures organizational performance plus a myriad of internal performance outcomes normally associated with more efficient or effective operations. The truth is there are multiple standards we could utilize, such as other external measures that relate to considerations that are broader than those simply associated with economic valuation (either by shareholders, managers, or customers) and corporate social responsibilities. How should we be measuring outcomes, through the delivery of services, balance scorecards, etc.? Why, how, and what can be done to accomplish this task?

At a recent presentation conducted by McGladrey professionals at the Club Managers Association World Conference a list of questions was featured that was first offered on Forbes.com. These are questions as they suggest that "A business should never stop asking." Here are the key questions: What is our purpose for existing? Who is our target customer? Why does anyone need what we're selling? If a need exists, is it enough to support a profitable business? What are our competitors up to? Can you reduce expenses without harming the product, performance or brand? Do we have the right leadership and structure? Do we have the right employees? How will we continue to drive revenue? This all lead to the undeniable question of what is our purpose for existing?

So I ask: "What is our purpose for existing?" While this is a rather basic question, its answer could provide the building block for every decision made by the Tribe for a lifetime. A core component of why most businesses operate is to yield a profit. Shouldn't this be a measurement we impose upon our enterprises? Do you have any idea how much we had to underwrite business operations over the last ten years? It's in the millions.

Here is another thought, private clubs exist to allow individuals to socialize and enjoy common pursuits—be they sporting, dining or other. Private clubs can memorialize their reason for existing with a well thought out and actionable mission statement. The Tribe has a lot of purpose and mission statements, but how do we place those into actionable items? If these are guiding lights, and they've been guiding us for a long time, is it time to revisit the guiding lights? I ask again, is there room for change and improvement?

The current OBC Vision is regarding housing yet I hear so many disputes around this. Some say we need housing while others say we do not need housing. Some say we need any type or kind of jobs we can produce while others say it should only be productive and meaningful jobs. I suppose if we asked 10,000 tribal members we would get that many different answers. But amongst those answers should be commonsense answers like housing, health care, etc.

As we move forward here, I hope leadership will emerge and that a viable economic approach will be endorsed. We owe it to our youth and those Oneidas that need us the most. We must produce a viable forward reaching economy and we have to set that course. I remain hopeful but we have to plan our future and set a firm actionable course.

Legislative Update

My office continues to work on many legislative pieces, such as the Small Business 2000 Policy, Election Law, Comprehensive Policy Governing Boards, Committees and Commissions and Workplace Violence Policy. I want to take a moment to thank my assistant Cathy Bachhuber for her help here, there is no way I could accomplish this work without her assistance.

On that note, I am pleased to say that at the last GTC meeting a new Legislative Procedures Act (LPA) was adopted. The LPA substantially incorporates lawmaking provisions from the Administrative Procedures Act (APA) and streamlines the lawmaking process. I want to highlight the presentation I made at the GTC meeting to ensure the membership has a good understanding of some of the changes and additions:

- Oneida Register. The Register will be free and will be published on the Tribe's website by the LOC/LRO. It will contain agency regulations, proposed legislation and notices, and either the Oneida Code of Laws or directions to obtain free access to the Oneida Code of Laws.
- Fiscal Impact Statement. A Fiscal Impact Statement will now be required by law to be completed for all legislation except for legislation being adopted on an emergency basis. This type of statement will include the costs of: startup, personnel, office costs, documentation costs and an estimate of the amount of time needed for an individual or agency to comply with the law.
- Legislative Analysis. The LPA codifies the requirement for a legislative analysis to be prepared for all legislation, including emergency legislation, and further expands on the definition of a legislative analysis.
- Public review. The LPA incorporated the basics of the APA requirements with some changes:

1) The LOC is authorized to approve the public comment period, which will reduce the administrative processing time.
2) The Public Comment Period was being reduced from 10 business days to no less than 5 business days after a public meeting is held which should reduce the overall time it takes to move legislation through a Public Review process.
3) Only one LOC member is required to be present for an official public meeting.
4) Flexibility in the time limit for oral comments has been added.

- Notice requirements. The LPA shortens the publishing requirement from 30 calendar days to a minimum of 10 business days before a public meeting is held, thus again shortening the current public hearing process.

Thank you for your time and please feel free to contact my office at 920-869-4426 or email me directly at oneida2011@yahoo.com

Public Hearing Notices

5:00PM • Norbert Hill Center, 2nd Floor (BCCR)

April 18, 2013

Purpose:
Per Capita Law Amendments.
The purpose of the Per Capita Law Amendments (the Law) is to enable the Tribe to distribute the per capita payment on or before September 30th. The Law currently requires the per capita payment to be distributed on September 30th which was found to be too restrictive when the last per capita payment was made. Additional amendments to the format of the Law have been made without affecting the content of the Law.

Public Hearing Process

Testimony:
Oral: There will be a 5 minute limit for all oral presentations. Each participant is encouraged to provide a written transcript of his/her oral testimony, to be submitted while present at the public hearing or within ten (10) business days from the date of public hearing to the below named individuals.
Written: For those who cannot attend the scheduled public hearing or do not plan to speak at the hearing, the Oneida Tribe encourages those to submit written testimony. A maximum of ten (10) pages, doubled spaced, can be submitted within ten (10) business days from the date of public hearing to the Tribal Secretary (Patricia Hoeft) or Tonya Boucher, Legislative Reference Office at the Norbert Hill Center, 2nd floor or mail to PO Box 365, Oneida WI 54155.
If you would like to obtain a copy of the above proposed law or have any questions as to the public hearing process you may contact Tonya Boucher at the Legislative Reference Office, via GroupWise tboucher@oneidanation.org Or call 1-800-236-2214 or 920-869-4240*. Public meeting scheduled for Wisconsin 29 road work in Brown County

(Green Bay) The Wisconsin Department of Transportation (WisDOT) Northeast Region in Green Bay is announcing a public information meeting to discuss the construction of County VV and County U intersection improvements and County FF interchange along WIS 29, Brown County. The meeting will be held on Thursday, April 4 from 5 to 7 p.m. at Hillcrest Elementary School, 4193 Hillcrest Drive, Hobart, WI 54155. A short presentation will be made at 5:10 p.m.

The public is encouraged to attend the meeting, ask questions and offer comments. The meeting will be held in an open house format and project staff will be available to discuss the projects on an individual basis.

Construction work scheduled for 2013 and 2014 includes:

County VV and County U — Beginning in May, intersection improvements will be made to enhance safety. At the County VV intersection, a "J-Turn Intersection" will be installed. At the County U intersection, left hand turns onto WIS 29 and cross movements will be restricted. Construction is expected to be complete by July 2013.

WIS 29 and County FF Interchange — Beginning in July 2013, a diamond interchange will be constructed at County FF/Sherwood Street, with a bridge carrying the local road traffic over WIS 29. The interchange is expected to open in July 2014 with construction completed in fall 2014.

In addition, County FF/Sherwood Street will be reconstructed between Shawano Avenue and Navajo Trail with roundabouts at some intersections. A new frontage road connecting Sunlite Drive to Golden Pond Park Court will be constructed providing improved east-west access in the village of Hobart.

Future improvements along the corridor will be discussed. These include a new diamond interchange at County VV, an overpass at County U, and an overpass at North Pine Tree Road. These improvements are not currently scheduled for construction.

Persons unable to attend the meeting but wanting more information should contact Jeremy Ashauer, WisDOT Project Manager, at (920) 492-4165 or email at Jeremy.Ashauer@dot.wi.gov. Written comments regarding the project can be mailed to Jeremy Ashauer, 944 Vanderperren Way, Green Bay, WI 54304.

Plummeting donations to Wis. wildlife program

Plummeting donations to Wis. wildlife program

MADISON, Wis. (AP) ~ Public donations to Wisconsin's wildlife protection and management program have hit a 10-year-low.

The Department of Natural Resources' Endangered Resources Bureau gets 25 percent of its funding to monitor endangered wildlife from such donations. A big part of that is sales of special license plates featuring wolves, which have brought in nearly $9 million since 1995.

People also donate by checking a box on their state income tax forms. That source has also dropped. The $285,223 collected last year was a 12-year low, down from $673,267 a decade ago, the Wisconsin State Journal reported.

Bureau director Erin Crain said it's unclear why overall donations are declining. The bureau is preparing a public education plan to better explain the importance of its work.

"I don't know that we always do such a great job in telling our story," she said. "We have a compelling message that doesn't always get translated that well."

The bureau says of about 1,800 native plants species and 657 native vertebrate species identified in Wisconsin, many are at risk and more than 230 are officially listed as threatened or endangered.

More than 12,000 vehicle owners pay $25 each year for plates with a wolf image.

The wolf plate brought in $335,370 during 2011-12, still a bestseller but nearly half what it brought 12 years ago.

Wolves are no longer endangered animals in Wisconsin after the federal government gave them an OK for licensed hunting last year. DNR officials said that may partially account for the drop in donations. Crain said the drop might also be due to introduction of other specialized plates, such as badger plates.

Since much of the bureau's work is dependent on donations, it takes pains to remind people that the donations can be "customized," she said.

"You can say 'I want this to go to cricket frogs,' and we guarantee it will," she said.

Volatile mining industry raises Wis. questions

APPLETON, Wis. (AP) ~ Although Gov. Scott Walker has signed a mining bill aimed at encouraging construction of an iron mine in northern Wisconsin, there's still uncertainty about the future of mining in the state. And looking to neighboring states for perspective doesn't clear things up very much.

The new mining law was aimed at encouraging construction of a mine in Iron and Ashland counties. The fate of that project is still uncertain as opponents, including the Bad River Band of Lake Superior Chippewa, had pledged a legal challenge.

Even if the law passes legal scrutiny, it could take years for state and federal officials to approve Gogebic Taconite's permit applications.

There's also uncertainty about jobs. Walker and his allies have said the Wisconsin mine would create thousands of jobs.

Worldwide demand, especially from China, for iron ore plays the biggest role in determining how many workers are needed to blast and transport taconite from pits, crush and process it into pellets and haul it to U.S. ports.

As demand fluctuates, jobs have been scaled back or cut. For example, Cliffs Natural Resources furloughed about 125 employees at a Minnesota pellet-processing facility in January, or about 17 percent of the workforce. The company has also announced plans to furlough about 360 of the 800 employees at its Empire Mine in Michigan's Upper Peninsula at the end of March.

Modern mines are rooted in technology, which can mean fewer people are needed to run operations. Those workers also need to be better educated, a far cry from the high school graduates who used to flock to mining jobs in Minnesota and Michigan.

"I think people look at iron mining as a low-tech industry," said Dale Hemmila, a spokesman for Cliffs Natural Resources, which operates three iron mines in Minnesota and two in Michigan.

That's why some people interested in mining careers are going back to school. At Mesabi Range Community and Technical College in Eveleth, Minn., the millwright program was full at 34 students planning to maintain and operate equipment at iron mines in the area.

Dave Ramfjord, the program instructor, said mine shutdowns can be "pretty shocking scenarios" for the region. He said he was worried that younger workers could be unfamiliar with how devastating layoffs could be.

Active CIP – Communication Plans Update

Submitted by Engineering Department – March 28, 2013

All CIP Projects will be developed employing a process of development consisting of four (4) distinct phases, as noted below:

Project Phases:	Phase Titles:	Phase Description:	% of Project:
CIP - 1	CIP Package assembly phase	The Project Team assemblies the specific project information into a package for approval of project.	0 to 25%
CIP - 2	Project Approval phase	The CIP Package is routed to review entities for comment and finally presented to OBC for approval.	26 to 35%
CIP - 3	Design phase	The Architect designs building and prepares documents defining the scope of work for contractors to bid on.	36 to 65%
CIP - 4	Construction phase	The project is bid and constructed.	66 to 100%
CIP - N	Non-CIP Project	This project is not funded by CIP dollars. It is funded by other sources. However, it is being Project Managed by the Engineering Department.

In many embezzlements, a gambling problem blamed

By Andy Thompson
The Post-Crescent

APPLETON, Wis. ~ Before 2003, Bob Pedersen had limited knowledge about the evils of compulsive gambling.

But a shocking crime that came to light midway through that year forever changed Pedersen and the company he heads, Goodwill Industries of North Central Wisconsin.

The Menasha-based nonprofit organization's controller was accused of embezzling more than $500,000 to satisfy a gambling addiction. The controller, who lost the money at various casinos in Wisconsin, eventually was convicted, sentenced to five years in prison and ordered to make restitution.

"I wasn't completely aware of the nature of intensity of what goes on with gambling addictions," Pedersen, Goodwill's president and chief executive officer, said recently in reflecting on the nearly 10-year-old embezzlement that rocked Goodwill. "It's a big issue. And a lot of people are into some pretty deep water."

Goodwill, which has recovered all but $150,000 of the losses through insurance and partially paid restitution, was among the first high-profile gambling-related embezzlement victims in the Fox Valley. But there have been several similar cases in which gambling problems appear to have contributed to embezzlement, The Post-Crescent reported.

In 2011, a woman was arrested, imprisoned and ordered to pay restitution for embezzling nearly $500,000 from the Community Blood Center in Grand Chute. The employee, a former account specialist, said she took the money to feed her gambling addiction.

Last year, charges were filed - and then dropped - against an Appleton woman who was accused of embezzling more than $300,000 over a two-year period from Thrivent Financial for Lutherans. Prosecutors dropped the case after an agreement was reached with the company. The woman was required to pay back the misappropriated funds.

She told police she had a gambling addiction and began to steal when she could no longer keep up with bills.

Most recently, the treasurer of the Fox Valley Youth Baseball League was sentenced to two months in jail and placed on probation earlier this month for stealing $20,000 from the organization. The defendant also blamed a gambling addiction.

Pedersen is convinced that there are other embezzlements from local businesses arising from gambling losses that never make it to public view.

"My sense is it's a genuine problem," he said. "It's real. There's no question that it's an issue and the fact that gambling is so prevalent in Wisconsin just contributes to the problem."

In the years since the Goodwill embezzlement went public, Pedersen said he has been approached by representatives of other companies.

"They say, quietly, that 'this has happened to us,'" he said. "A whole lot of this happens quietly and under the radar. They don't want the public to have any sense at all that they're vulnerable."

Goodwill, which tightened its financial control in the wake of the embezzlement case, didn't shy away from the negative publicity surrounding the prosecution of its former controller. Instead, the organization acknowledged the massive theft in a book titled ``Betrayal,'' which was distributed to many nonprofit agencies in the region.

Pedersen said Goodwill's openness brought awareness to the issue of compulsive gambling.

"It was useful on a number of fronts," he said of the decision to openly address the embezzlement. "It spoke to our values and our leadership. It began the conversation (about the disastrous effects of compulsive gambling). There's a lot more people talking about it."

Rose Gruber, executive director of the Wisconsin Council on Problem Gambling, said embezzlements are among the many unfortunate outcomes of out-of-control gambling.

"We hear more and more about (big embezzlement losses due to compulsive gambling)," she said. "It's not all that uncommon, unfortunately."

The majority of gamblers who steal from their employers are otherwise law-abiding citizens, she said. "For the most part, they have never been in trouble before."

But once they get immersed in the lure of gambling, the losses can add up quickly.

"The more you do it, the more you need that high," Gruber said. "It progresses as you go. It almost becomes make-believe money."

But the money is very real to those who are touched by problem gamblers.

"Most people can put $30 in their pocket, go to a casino and walk away when it's gone," said Jerry Bauerkemper, executive director of the Nebraska Council on Problem Gambling. "This population, because of an addiction (to gambling), won't walk away. They chase losses and take bigger and bigger risks."

Compulsive gamblers typically spend all of their money first, including cash advances from as many as 12 credit cards, and often gamble away money from friends and relatives, Bauerkemper said.

"Sometimes, they make that jump into criminal behavior and take money from a company or the government," he said.

Cathleen Starck Wille, a counselor with The Samaritan Counseling Center of the Fox Valley, said a gambling addiction can have dire consequences.

"It can lead to embezzlement. You always hope that someone will stop or get help before they get to that point," she said. "They always believe they are going to pay it back with another win.

"They just know that they can't stop."

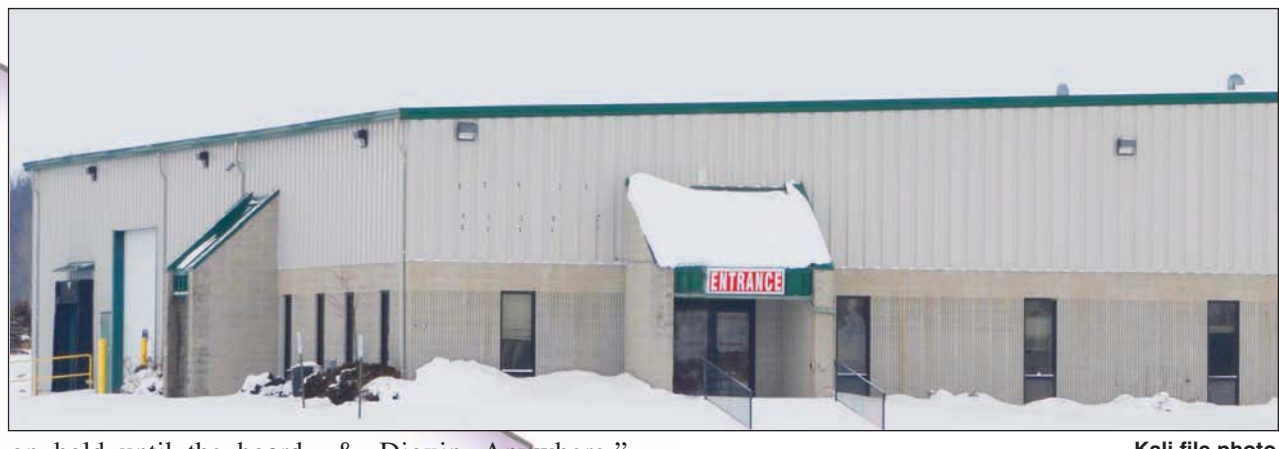
GTC to hear petition asking for ban on energy projects

By Nate Wisneski
Kalihwisaks
nwisnes@oneidanation.org

The General Tribal Council (GTC) will have final say when it comes to housing gasification, waste-to-energy, or plastics recycling facilities within the Oneida Tribal reservation. The GTC will meet for a special meeting on Sunday, May 5 at the Radisson Hotel and Conference Center.

Petitioner Leah Dodge is asking the GTC to direct the Oneida Business Committee (OBC) to stop Oneida Seven Generations Corporation (OSGC) from building gasification, waste-to-energy, or plastics recycling plants within the Oneida Tribal reservation boundaries.

"(OBC) Resolution 11-08-00-B states that the future of the Oneida Tribe and all life that sustains us depends on protection from dioxin, that tribes face increased exposure to dioxin and other pollutants due to our land-based culture, and that dioxin is a known carcinogen causing severe health damage. OSGC admits their previous proposals would emit dioxin and that their latest proposal is a stepping-stone to the large facilities they sought before," said Dodge.



In the meantime, the OBC passed a resolution in 2010 supporting the waste-to-energy project. It was reaffirmed by a unanimous vote again this month.

With OSGC having their waste-to-energy facility in Green Bay on hold while it goes through the legal system they turned their attention to the development of a plastics recycling facility with the intentions of placing the plant at N7329 Water Circle Place in Oneida.

The former Tower Foods location will house a system designed to convert high food grade plastic, like fast food cups, into a base oil. The oil will then be sold to oil refineries.

The Oneida location has been on hold since a January meeting between OSGC's Board of Directors and the OBC. During the meeting a few members of the OBC expressed concern over the plant.

"At the annual shareholder meeting with the business committee, members of the business committee raised questions about the sighting of a plastics to oil facility at the old Tower Foods sight. Based on those concerns, the OSGC board placed the project on hold until the board could complete the due diligence," said OSGC Board Chairman William Cornelius. "Once the due diligence was complete, the board would set forward a recommendation to the business committee."

OSGC has proposed a plastics recycling facility at N7329 Water Circle Place in Oneida. The plant will create a base oil from food grade plastics.

Dodge is aware of the plant being put on hold but would like all dioxin-emitting plants banned from the reservation and has taken issue with OSGC's information about their projects.

"OSGC has been dishonest with the public and elected officials and withheld information they're supposed to make available to GTC and the Tribe's Chief Financial Officer. OSGC's business model is based on marketing dioxin-emitting incinerators to tribes. We need to return to the values represented by Resolution 11-08-00-B: Opposing Noxious Emissions, Incinerators & Dioxin Anywhere," said Dodge. "I don't know if OSGC withheld the fact that they intend to emit dioxin from the Business Committee, the Land Commission or other decision makers, but I do know they've told Tribe members and surrounding communities numerous falsehoods and they continue to do so."

OSGC Chief Executive Officer Kevin Cornelius said they are not using incinerators and the amount of dioxins that would be released by the plastics recycling facility would be very minimal compared to surrounding dioxin emitters.

"Incineration you have to have a flame. We are melting food grade plastic in an enclosed vessel and operating a generator. There is no open flame when we are

OBC makes change to golf board, head in new direction

By Travis Cottrell
Kalihwisaks
tcottrel@oneidanation.org

The Oneida Nation Business Committee (OBC) decided to dissolve the Oneida Golf Enterprises Board (OGEB) after a series of executive session meetings. Held Sunday, April 14th and Monday, April 15th.

The decision to liquidate the board came after three of the five members of the OGEB resigned within the past week.

The OBC appointed Janice Hirth to the position of Agent of Thornberry Creek in Oneida. Hirth currently serves as the Chairwoman/President at Oneida Airport Hotel Corporation. She has also served in many other managerial positions within the Oneida Tribal organization including Gaming Manager, Hotel Manager, and Interim General Manager.

Hirth will perform a 90-day assessment of the facility, meeting with managers to discuss the direction of the business. After the 90-day assessment Hirth may recommend changes to make the business more efficient.

"The first thing I asked for were the financial records, to see what kind of financial situation or financial need we had. I looked at priorities as far as the staff is concerned. I looked at the operational status," said Hirth.

The goal of this transition is to continue to

Per Capita to be highly debated at GTC Meeting

By Travis Cottrell
Kalihwisaks
tcottrel@oneidanation.org

As the May 5th General Tribal Council (GTC) meeting approaches talk of the proposed per capita agreement begins to heat up.

The issue of per capita payments to Oneida Tribal citizens has and will continue to present challenging discussions between Tribal leaders and the GTC.

As Oneida Tribal Treasurer Tina Danforth states, "The per capita issue is never going to go away for the Tribe and we know that, we understand that. What's important about it for me is that this is one of the few things everyone shares in equally. I know some people say it's an entitlement, but it's not an entitlement."

A majority of the 17,000 Oneida Tribal citizens don't live on or near the Oneida reservation and are unable to receive the full extent of services offered by the Tribe, making the per capita payment one aspect that all citizens have a stake in.

Inevitably, paying a large amount of money to all members of the Tribe puts further stress on an already strained Tribal budget.

"We fund what we can, we fund what we are supposed to, we fund the General Tribal Council mandates and we provide the things to the extent that we can," said Danforth.

With budget in mind the Oneida Business Committee (OBC) offers up a pair of options for the per capita payment.

Option one would issue an annual payment $800 plus up to 2% cost of living adjustment based on the Consumer Price Index inflation rate.

Option two offers a payment of 15% of the Net Profit of Gaming and Retail. The payment would be based on the results of the prior fiscal year (I.E. FY2014 payment based on FY2013 results).

Despite the options offered by the OBC a petition will be heard at the May 5th GTC meeting. The petition, which is sponsored by Oneida tribal citizen Yvonne Metivier, proposes an annual payment of $1,500.

"The Oneida Business Committee was given a directive by the General Tribal Council in 2008 to bring forward a 10-year plan for per capita and to bring that plan to the General Tribal Council. The 2008 resolution, 5-10-08-A, states 'now therefore be it resolved that the OBC is directed to present a proposed annual per capita payment plan to GTC prior to FY2012 and to begin in FY2014 for a period not less than ten years.' I brought the petition for per capita because the Business Committee didn't follow the directive of the GTC and bring a plan to the GTC before 2012. It's 2013," Metivier said.

Tribes gather for Food Sovereignty Summit partner with all of the revenue entities in the Tribe and to make sure the golf course opens on time and without complications.

Hirth will report to Oneida's Chief Financial Officer Larry Barton.

"I knew were to start with my assessment because the Hotel Corporation managed Thornberry for years previous to January 1," said Hirth.

According to Hirth, customers and front-line employees will not be affected by the change in upper management. Thornberry Creek at Oneida will operate at its normal function, opening the course for play once the snow subsides and the ground dries.

The course was also recently named the official golf course of the Green Bay Packers.

"Thornberry Creek goes along with all of our other ownership assets that we have. This is a premier golf course and we need to keep it in that light," Hirth said.

From 1A/GTC Meeting

melting the plastics," said Cornelius. "The Turtle School has five boilers. One boiler running for two hours and 15 minutes gives off more emissions than our plant will in 24 hours. Norbert Hill Center has 10 boilers. Those boilers are clean, high efficient boilers, in spite of that, our stuff is cleaner.

Cornelius also addressed community concerns regarding OSGC's audits and acknowledged receiving a loan from the tribe to be used for litigation costs associated with the current legal proceedings regarding the Green Bay plant.

"Every year the OBC receives our audit and can accept or reject it. Since I have been here they have accepted every audit report we've done. If there is a problem I am not aware of it," he said. "Most of the money we generate and spend are payments back to the tribe to maintain assets own by the tribe. When we do project development most of the funds are grants or outside sources, not the tribe."

Dodge would like to see other options utilized to create energy independence.

"Pyrolysis and gasification are not recycling and garbage is not a form of renewable energy. Recycling keeps material in the waste stream but OSGC's proposals would combust/incinerate materials. Renewable energy comes from sources that we can't extinguish such as solar, wind or geothermal energy. We should stop using non-recyclable materials in the first place and move towards a zero-waste policy by encouraging real recycling and truly renewable energy," she said.

"I don't support incinerators in anyone's backyard and there's always someone downwind. OSGC cannot point to one commercial facility doing what they propose. Wherever the technology has been tested it's failed. Treating the sky like a landfill is not a valid solution," she said.

From 1A/Per Capita

With the petition going before the GTC there is a possibility it could be accepted. With that comes the likelihood of sacrifices in other tribal services or programs.

"I think if it happens there are some financial consequences and impacts to that. It would mean that we have to pull back. So then that becomes a real challenge for the organization. It's not that it can't be done; it's just not going to be comfortable," Danforth said. "Some things will have to go. But generally speaking some things may need to go anyway. That's the hard question that lends to restructuring right now."

The possibility of seeing cuts or a hold back in funds and services is something Metivier has seen before and expects to see when per capita is being discussed.

"When the people ask for a fair share they (OBC) will tell you: 1. We have a deficit, 2. We're going to lose jobs, and 3. You're greedy and blame the people for our money problems," Metivier said.

"The chairman sat down to have coffee with an Oneida elder, Teresa Reed, and explained that the Tribe cannot afford this per capita, expenses have gone up. Theresa said, 'so have ours'. We use that money wisely for rez cars, for milk, food, diapers, gas, clothing, and Christmas presents," Metivier added.

Although similar payments have been made in the past to tribal citizens, Danforth states the national economy is still not in a good place and those factors have an effect on Tribal revenues. This could cause leadership to be more creative in how tribal money is handled.

"If people really want to see that happen then they need to accept that it will change how we run the organization. That could be positive that could be negative. It could be positive in the fact that we are really forced to be more efficient we are really forced to identify our priorities and stand behind them. It could be hard because some of the things we feel proud to be able to provide may go away. So that's the tradeoff," Danforth said.

The per capita petition is currently on the agenda for the next GTC meeting. The meeting is scheduled for Sunday, May 5th at 1:00pm at the Radisson Hotel and Conference Center.

Gov. approves WIS 29 improvements

Work set to begin Monday, April 22

As part of his efforts to create jobs and make sure Wisconsin is open for business, Governor Scott Walker approved a $1.04 million contract to improve the operation and safety at the WIS 29 and County U and County VV intersections in Brown County.

The contractor is R.C. Excavating of Suamico.

Construction on the intersections begins Monday, April 22. When completed, turns from County U and County VV will be restricted to right in/right out movements while still allowing left turns from WIS 29 onto the side roads. To accommodate the remaining turning movements, J-turns will be installed. The J-turn intersection prevents direct crossing and left-turn movements from the side road, but accommodates these movements through a U-turn movement approximately one-quarter mile in each direction from the intersection. These side road movements are made indirectly by making a right turn, traveling about a quarter-mile on the divided main road, and then making a U-turn to proceed in the opposite direction on the main road toward the intended destination.

Motorists using County U would then use the WIS 32 interchange for their U turn. More information about the project and how J-turns function can be found at: http://www.dot.wisconsin.gov/projects/neregion/29/

During construction, WIS 29, Milltown Road, Marley Road and County VV will remain open to traffic, however there may be some lane closures and minor delays. County U will be closed for approximately two weeks during the project. That closure will be announced.

Motorists are advised to remain alert and use caution when traveling through this or any work zone.

Twahwahtsi·lá·y^ Presents - Embracing Creation

Taking place on May 17, 18, and 19

We are asking that you come and join us to acknowledge, share, and embrace a creation experience.

Last Year we were "Finding our Path" this year we are "Embracing Creation". Embracing Creation will extend over three days – starting Friday afternoon and ending Sunday afternoon.

Creation is where we go for our foods our medicines. It is creation that calls the Spring Rains and absorbs the Sun's Rays. Creations creatures large and small bring comfort and Skánǻ – the birds through their songs and the waters song as it drifts and flows. Yet so often we don't take the time to acknowledge and spend time in creation. We hurry on with our day meeting deadlines and chasing illusive goals and dreams. We hope to help you change that for a few days.

We will meet at Oneida Social Services starting Friday at 1:30 with introduction and a little background about our project Twahwahtsi·lá·y^. We will have a telling or the creation story and creation experiences ending the night with a community dinner prepared by the youth of Yethiya?tanúnha? Then Saturday we are back together to talk about how creation comforts us, how we get separated from creation and how we can maintain that separation, along with several creation experiences and we end the day with self-exploration with the Circle of Life. Sunday we will learn how to reconnecting and renewing our relationship with creation. We will review what we have learned and fill our baskets. This will be followed by the Corn Story and a sendoff.

We ask that everyone brings their own basket to gather in. Saturday lunch is on your own unless everyone would like to bring a dish to pass.

Come and be guided back to our true roots with Mary Stevens, Ron Hill, Sonny Hill, and Tsyosha'aht Delgado as your guides.

"This project was supported by Award No. 2010-TY-FX-0012 awarded by the Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention, Tribal Youth Program, Office of Justice Programs."

Veteran's Park • 1010 N. Lincoln Memorial Drive • Milw., WI 53202

You can help restore sight to millions living in darkness by attending Vision-Walk, either by making a donation, walking or both.

I am walking in support of my 3-year old daughter, Gloria, who has Optic Nerve Hypoplasia. She was diagnosed with this when she was only 8 months old.
Your financial support and walking side by side with Gloria and me on Walk Day will bring us closer to a cure – and that Cure is in Sight!

The 3-mile walk is set for May 19, 2013 at 10:30AM at Veteran's Park, just north of the Milwaukee Art Museum and east of the lagoon, next to the kite rental building.

Discounted telephone service
available to some low-income consumers

Telephone service is considered a necessity, yet the cost of activating and maintaining the service may be too costly for some consumers. For this reason, the government provides two low-income programs for qualifying customers through the federal Universal Service Fund – Lifeline and Link-up.

These programs provide discounts on initial connection fees and monthly service for qualified telephone subscribers.

The qualifications for these programs vary by state. To find out if you qualify or for more information, please contact Nsight Telservices – Pulaski at 920-865-7000.

Residents of Oconto, Oconto Falls and Abrams can reach Nsight Telservices at 920-826-5215.

Letters & Opinions...

Food for Thought

It was heart warming to see the article by Leah Dodge.

My greatest fear is to see tons of garbage needed each day to fuel the Seven Generations project with all the flies, birds and worms around, then have it shut down for to replace a turbine-H motor, a transformer, or to rewire a machine, only to have tons of garbage back up. Tons of garbage lying around in the July heat. Can even begin to think of the health hazard? Or imagine living next to the place? Dioxins = genocide, plus raw garbage = disease and death.

ODORS? Can you smell tons of rotting garbage?

What long-range side effects will this have on our Tribal children? No one really knows yet, but are we as Oneida ready to experiment on our children? Others tried this before with disease-filled blankets given to the Indians that killed many; now we are doing it to ourselves.

A dump at the former Tower Food Grocery would be devastating to our Highway 54 One Stp and Casino, the Post Office, two bars, car wash, oil changing station, Oneida Farmer's Market, Little Bear Development Complex and all the surrounding area.

Imagine the effect this would have on our Main Casino? On our Hotel and on our Bingo and Gambling Hall? Can you visualize outside visitors seeing all this garbage and smell? This in the July heat? It would be like passing a 100-acre cow farm out west or passing a 1,000 hog farm. Tower Foods is only a few miles from our Restaurant – Kaukauna is over 15 miles from us and we can smell them.

I hope every Oneida member will vote to stop this wasteful endeavor. It has cost too much to our Tribe both financially and politically. Please support the people who are trying to do what is best for the Tribe.

Frank Cornelius

Tribal Leadership

I'm really at a loss as how to get this point across; that I thought an "ELECTED LEADER" was a position to serve the people and their constituents. Lately. It is just the opposite. The Tribal Leadership, namely Chairman Ed Delgado, find the spotlight of the media to be more attractive then to try to establish a working relationship, an understanding and consensus of the very people that elected him to a position of trust to do the best for the Oneida Nation of Wisconsin as a whole. Addressing the FACTS of an issue is more then taking the word of a select few and making it gospel. The Chairman and the Tribal Elected Council are the decision makers when the General Tribal Council are not in session. Those are the words directly taken from the Oneida Tribal Constitution. The Leader ship begins with the Tribal Chair and the General Tribal Council may review any decision made by the Oneida Business Committee so WHY the MEDIA? The decisions regarding the project of an ALTERNATIVE FUEL process by the Oneida Seven Generation Corporation has had nothing but negative PRESS since day one and is cause for internal strife of our own Tribal Community. Everything about the PROJECT is NOT negative BUT that is the way it is portrayed. If the Community were to be advised about the positive results of such undertaking and other example across Indian Country that are successful, the Community would have a whole different out look. The Oneida Business Committee should be advising and educating the Tribal membership, we shouldn't have to read about this in an outside NEWSPAPER or hear it on TV.

Respectfully Submitted,
Shirley Hill

Get the Facts

Oneida Waste to Energy Reduces Pollution and Creates Free Power.

To get the facts straight, we need to inform ourselves and find out that this process does not 'incinerate' like some are claiming. Incinerating is burning where this process creates an intense heat process (closely controlled) or gasification, which converts or breaks down TRASH into the basic elements of carbon and hydrogen. Carbon and hydrogen are then used to create POWER or electricity. Wow, this is amazing…creating electricity from our won garbage! This specific science is closely monitored and historically has been improved since early introduced from the '70s. Remnants (VOC's) of this process are small amount in nature compared to the unreasonable results from our current processes of handling TRASH: landfills.

Current landfills use a plastic liner that prevents our garbage from seeping into the ground and groundwater. Really? A plastic liner. It also uses pipes to filter out and catch huge sources of METHANE GAS that is created from tons of garbage. This methane line is then sent BACK into the air. Recently electric companies are capturing this gas for energy use but this is new technology.

The water, air and land that OUR Mother Earth has been charged with to sustain us has been beaten to a pulp by us for a long time by OUR overuse and production of convenience items such as plastic products. The effects of gas guzzling automobiles, fertilizers, huge industry continue to put our sustainable resources we need to live on at huge risk of extinction. If we are the culprits of this pollution, why not at least put forth honest efforts to clean up our mess and be a role model for other communities?

The waste to energy plant is a new source of conserving our resources, saving space in landfills and even producing FREE power or electricity. Yes, there are going to be some drawbacks but not in comparison to the present garbage collection method we're using right now in landfills. In addition, we need to extend our efforts further than recycling and stir up Mother Earth for clean-up time.

Margaret King

Editor's Corner

By Dawn Walschinski
Kalihwisaks Managing Editor

Before and during the upcoming May General Tribal Council (GTC) there's going to be a lot of literature going around denouncing the tribe for spending this and wasting money on that and then supporting a $1500 per capita because if the tribe can afford to do this, then they can afford to throw $1500 per person at Wal-Marts across the country.

Without getting into who did what with how much and what rabbit hole if went down, let's just look at the logic of the statements going around. The tribe – Oneida Seven Generations – Bay Bank – Hotel Corporation – Thornberry – Whoever Else We're Mad At – wasted x amount of dollars, therefore we want y amount of dollars. Here's the problem, assuming that whoever we're blaming did lose x amount of dollars, that means there is no y amount of dollars for u.

A few years ago, the same people were using a similar argument to get the $5000 to $10,000 per person per capita. Their argument was that the money the tribe was saving for emergencies was a slush fund and if Oneida can afford a slush fund, it can afford this per capita. After all, nothing bad could ever happen to gaming in this wonderful economy.

Now that something bad has happened and keeps happening to the world economy, those supporting a per capita are coming at Oneida with the same myopic mindset that everything bad that's happened to Oneida's economy is the fault of its leadership, and therefore we should be compensated $1500 from money that's not there anymore.

Perhaps the least logical part of any per capita request is the requirement that there's no loss of jobs or services. Basically, the tribe is required to keep spending the same amount of money or more every year so its elected leaders can get yelled at during the GTC about their wasteful spending.

We're getting to a point where we are going to have to make a choice or our choices will be made for us. It's time for our leadership to step up to the plate and make decisions based on facts and the greater good, not on innuendo and spite.

That leadership is not our management or even our elected leaders. Those leaders are you, members of the GTC. Do your duty.

A celebration of the history of diabetes education

Present, and Future of Diabetes Education in Oneida

Submitted by Susan Higgs
RD, WIC/Nutrition Director

35 years ago, Oneida elders asked for diabetes education in a group setting and in 1978, Judith Nash, RD responded by planning a "Diabetic Breakfast" where people gathered over a meal to learn about diabetes. By 1983, the group evolved into a monthly "Diabetic Luncheon" on the third Thursday of every month, at the Redstone Complex with four elements:

- Blood pressure/glucose screening
- Stretch
- Education
- Healthy meal

The final Diabetic Luncheon was held at the Parish Hall on Thursday, March 21, 2013. On average, our turnout for this event was about 35 people on a regular basis until the last few years, when our attendance dwindled. The Nutrition staff attempted to revive the group and attract a larger audience by changing locations and times, but we did not see growth. We would like to thank the few of you who hung in there with us, but we recognized it was time for a change. So our final luncheon was a celebration of the evolution of diabetes education in Oneida.

Nutrition staff put together picture boards from past Diabetic Luncheons for viewing and reminiscing. Guests enjoyed a healthy meal that included: Stuffed tenderloin, roasted baby red potatoes, steamed broccoli with carrots and red velvet angel food cupcakes. Nutrition staff also let everyone know that many of the recipes used from the luncheons will be featured in a planned Diabetes Cookbook.

One elder present, was recognized for attending over 25 years! Debra Danforth, RN, BSN, OCHD Operations Director and Susan Higgs, RD, WIC/Nutrition Manager acknowledged individual staff members from the following departments who helped with the luncheons over the years, including:

- Nutrition
- Community Health
- Health Promotion
- Oneida Family Fitness

The final Diabetic Luncheon was held on March 21. While popular for several decades, attendance has declined in recent years. The Diabetes Prevention Program is making plans for different programs and events to increase diabetes awareness.

The theme of the final luncheon was, "A Celebration of the History, Present, and Future of Diabetes Education in Oneida." The main points of the presentation included how diabetes education has come full circle in Oneida from the past to present day.

History of Oneida Diabetes Education

Since 1978, the Nutrition Department staff have hosted over 400 Diabetic Luncheons, including preparing the meals and planning the education. In 1996, a group of medical providers at the Oneida Community Health Center (OCHC) put together a "Diabetes Team" who continues to offer specialized diabetes care and education today.

In 1998, the Federal government awarded the "Special Diabetes Program for Indians" (SDPI) Grant to the Oneida Nation. This funding allowed for expansion of services, staff, and programming for Oneida that include:

- Annual Adult and Youth Diabetes Event(s)
- Diabetes Support Group
- Insulin Pump Therapy
- TRIAD (Taking Responsibility in Addressing Diabetes) Program

Then in 2011, the Diabetes Team and Health Promotion Departments applied for and were awarded the Diabetes Prevention Program (DPP) Grant, which provides education and activities for patients with pre-diabetes.

Present Oneida Diabetes Education

Today the following diabetes-focused educational programs are available through in Oneida:

- Annual Diabetes Event(s)
  - Adult: "Annual Diabetes Event," is in its 14th year and held each August.
  - Youth: "Family Fun Night," is in its 8th year and held each February.
- Annual Diabetes Walk
  - Held in September, at the Norbert Hill Center
- Diabetes Prevention Program (DPP)
  - For patients with pre-diabetes who are referred by OCHC providers.
  - Provides: screening, wellness coaching, exercise and nutrition education.
- Diabetes Talking Circle
  - Support Group held the 1st Tuesday / month at the OCHC from 4-5:30pm.
- Just Move it Oneida (JMI)
  - Is open to anyone and families of all ages.
  - Promotes physical activity through fun events each month.
- Medical Nutrition Therapy
  - For patients who are referred by OCHC providers to the Nutrition or DREAM Program(s) within the Health Center for individual diet education and counseling.
- Oneida DREAM Program:
  - "Diabetes Resource for Education, Assessment and Management"
  - Formerly known as the OCHC Diabetes Team.
- For OCHC patients with diabetes
- Provides: Medical provider care, education and incentives.
- TRIAD Program:
  - "Taking Responsibility in Addressing Diabetes"
- For OCHC patients with diabetes
- Provides: screening, wellness coaching, exercise and nutrition education.

Future of Oneida Diabetes Education

Oneida has taken many opportunities throughout the years to grow and multiply resources to fight, treat and prevent diabetes. Thanks to a small group of elders who asked for education 35 years ago, the Oneida Comprehensive Health Division and its partners are now reaching people of all ages to treat and/or prevent diabetes through multiple program areas. Collectively, we are accomplishing positive health outcomes that will continue into future generations!

CMN Has Courses, Aid for Nursing Students

The College of Menominee Nation is encouraging students interested in nursing careers to enquire now about summer and fall semester courses. Special opportunities are available, including the Health Profession Opportunities Grant (HPOG) for low-income, unemployed and under-employed applicants.

The College's Nursing Career Ladder includes studies at the Nursing Assistant or Practical Nurse level that prepare students who are seeking CNA or LPN credentials. The College also offers a two-year program leading to an Associate of Applied Science Degree in Nursing for students seeing the RN credential. Special nursing education opportunities at CMN are supported by a grant from the Administration for Children and Families, U.S. Department of Health & Human Services (HHS).

CMN's main campus is located in Keshena on the Menominee Reservation and its urban campus is in Green Bay near the Oneida Nation. For more information on the College's nursing programs, call 1-800-567-2344, ext. 3207, during business hours or email bwill@menominee.edu.

The College of Menominee Nation is an open enrollment school with approximately 720 students registered last fall, including 435 American Indian students from a number of tribes. Along with nursing programs, CMN offers three baccalaureate degrees, more than a dozen associate degrees, and technical/trades diplomas. The College is fully accredited by the Higher Learning Commission, with nursing programs approved by the Wisconsin Board of Nursing and National League for Nursing Accrediting Commission. Services offered by Division of Land Management re-introduced Administrative Support Staff from DOLM would like to re-introduce the services of the Oneida Division of Land Management.

Whether you live on the reservation, or near, DOLM is should be your main source for land services.

As "Caretakers" of the land it is our number one priority "to re-acquire the land." with the support of the General Tribal Council, our Tribal leadership, and the Land Commission.

DOLM is a self-funded division which uses its revenues to buy more land, which means more homes and home building opportunities for tribal members. We work hand-in-hand with Oneida Housing Authority, Environmental Health and Safety Division, and the Development Division to make this happen.

Here is a listing of some of the opportunities we have to offer: DREAM Homes, Agricultural Leases, Updated Records System (OnBase), Cluster Housing Sites, Home Loans, Commercial Leases, Fee to Trust, Rentals, Legal Wills Depository, Veteran Loans, Probate Hearings, Scattered Housing Homes, Gas Card Certification, Trailer Court Sites, Register of Deeds Office, and Miles of Enhanced Shore Land. We also assist with Land Commission Meetings, Original Hearing Body Hearings and much more.

We are open Monday through Friday from 8:00 am to 4:30 pm and we are also open with limited staff for payments from 7:00 am to 8:00 am and Noon to 1:00 pm for our customers convenience.

ADMINISTRATIVE SUPPORT STAFF FOR DOLM

Home Building Opportunity (HBO)

Residential Vacant Land Lease Option for enrolled Oneida citizens

If you are in the market to build a home and looking for land, you may want to consider the Home Building Opportunity (HBO).

The HBO is a means for enrolled members of the Oneida Nation of Wisconsin, to obtain a Residential Land Lease for a vacant residential lot.

A good place to start the research for your home building project is to find out how much financing you will be able to obtain.

A pre-qualifying letter from a financial institution is required at the time of application.

The lots listed below are currently available for application.

All new Home Building Opportunity properties have been advertised for thirty (30) days. All remaining vacant lots are now on a first come first serve basis.

Application packets can be obtained at the Division of Land Management.

Please feel free to contact the Division of Land Management at 920-869-1690 or 1-800-684-1697 and speak with Diane Wilson, Tina Hackett, or Michelle Hill with questions about the HBO.

Chavez charged in Site I shooting

By Nate Wisneski
Kalihwisaks
nwisnes@oneidanation.org

Kevin Chavez, 19, has been formally charged in the early morning shooting of Alejandro Silva, 18, on April 6 in Site I in Oneida. Chavez has been charged with first-degree intentional homicide and intentionally pointing a firearm at a person. If convicted, he could face nearly 40 years of prison time.

The Oneida Police Department responded to a 9-1-1 call to an area of Elm Street and Commissioner Street at 6:18 a.m. on April 6. The police arrived and did not find the victim, he had already been transported to St. Mary's Hospital with gunshot wounds to the arm and buttocks.

Chavez

Chavez fled the scene and was later arrested on the Menominee Indian Reservation during a traffic stop in which police recovered four firearms, including the sawed off shotgun believed to be used to shoot Silva.

Oneida Police Department Chief of Police Rich VanBoxtel points to the cooperative realitonship between area agencies that helped aid Chavez's arrest.

"For us to have him in custody by 7 p.m. that same day is pretty darn good. In years past when they got to Menominee we had a hard time finding them but because of the partnerships we have with the Menominee Tribal Police and the FBI we're able to arrest him and take him into custody timely," VanBoxtel said. "Six or seven years ago we may still be looking for him."

"The extradition process was smooth as well. To have him in Green Bay on Tuesday after the incident was on Saturday is absolutely great that we have those collaborations in place."

Chavez will make his initial appearance in Brown County court on April 19 at 2:30 p.m.

Business Committee wrap: April 10

By Travis Cottrell
Kalihwisaks
tcottrel@oneidanation.org

The Oneida Business Committee (OBC) spent a majority of their regular meeting on Wednesday, April 10th discussing reports from several Tribal departments.

Present - Chairman Ed Delgado, Treasurer Tina Danforth, Secretary Patty Hoeft, Council members – David Jordan, Brandon Stevens, Vince DelaRosa, Paul Ninham and Melinda Danforth.

The OBC began the meeting by recognizing Donna Christensen for 20 years on service on the Internal Audit Committee.

Two looming items on the agenda concerning the Oneida Seven Generations Corporation (OSGC) and their proposed energy projects were initially moved to the top of the agenda. Following an amendment by Councilman Brandon Stevens the items concerning OSGC were deferred to an Executive Session scheduled for Thursday, April 11th.

With the agenda set the OBC welcomed representatives from the Hopi Tribe in Arizona. The representatives are involved in the Hopi Education Endowment Fund, which is a program designed to ensure Hopi youth have funds available to them for education. The Hopi are a non-gaming Tribe, their collective efforts to cultivate and maintain educational funding on a limited budget was something Oneida was looking to jumpstart. The Hopi representatives attended the meeting in order to supply the OBC with information as to how they nurtured the educational fund.

The OBC then moved quickly through the agenda were they reached departmental reports, spending the most time discussing the New York land claim settlement monthly report with Dianne House reporting interactions with steps taken towards meeting to discuss land use with the New York Oneidas.

The discussion concerning the land claims veered towards what the Tribe should do to make land in New York more financially viable.

"We are sinking financially and we need to start plotting a course. If we are going to be considering a friendlier role around land out there (NY) and economic opportunities I want to stave off layoffs as much as possible. We have to start growing top end revenues someday soon," Councilman Vince DelaRosa said.

"I agree. But these come in stages. First we have to create a state of peace between or nations. We have that very fundamental process that needs to be completed first and that is the peace between our nations," responded Chairman Ed Delgado.

The New York land claims report was accepted unanimously.

ONAP hosts beading seminar with Rickard Hill

By Dawn Walschinski
Kalihwisaks
dwalschi@oneidanation.org

Rosemary Rickard Hill (center) gives tips during her 10-day beading seminar at the Oneida Nation Arts Program cottage. Rickard Hill is Tuscarora from New York who's expenses were covered by grants obtained by the arts program.

Rosemary Rickard Hill walks around a long table of ten women who are beading intently. She stops to give suggestions and advice to the students learning raised beading techniques during the ten day class held at the Oneida Nation Arts Program (ONAP) cottage.

"I teach it because I see not a lot of people are doing it, and not even a lot of people on our reservation anymore. It's great that the other nations wanted to do it," said Rickard Hill who is Tuscarora from New York State. "It's a great form of preservation."

Oneida beader Betty Willems had traveled to New York in the past to take classes from Rickard Hill. When she heard that fellow Oneida artist Judith Jourdan and 15 other people wanted to make the journey to Richard Hill's doorstep, Willems thought there has to be a more efficient way.

"Why send 15 people to New York when we could bring one person down here," she said. Willems applied for a grant from ONAP to help pay for Rickard Hill to hold her ten day seminar in Oneida.

Rickard Hill teaches the raised beading technique developed in the 1800's.

"It was called souvenir art that they would sell to Europeans," she said.

The style often features humming birds, six petal flowers, and leaves made by layering beads so the images rise off the surface material of wool, velvet or calico.

"All our velvet was second hand from clothes that were given within the reservation from the non-native around the reservation," said Rickard Hill. "The lining was made from trade cloth muslin and calico."

Rickard Hill has been beading since the age of seven.

"We used to go down to Niagara Falls and sell from April to August," she said. Her first experiences with raised beading were not very glamorous.

"I used to stuff for the family when we'd sit down and bead," said Rickard Hill. "They would give me this five gallon pail full of stuffing, I'm the stuffer. That was my job, so it wasn't always fun. I did their biasing for them, all the little jobs they didn't like to do, but I learned a lot from them."

There were a couple of decades in the 1960's and 1970's when the cost of beading supplies threatened to wipe out the raised beading style.

"The price of beads went up and they went up quite a bit to where the average beader couldn't afford to put more beads on it and sell it at a decent price," said Rickard Hill. "At one point this style was almost lost. Well, you can look at it that way, we never stopped doing it at Tuscarora, we'd always done it, but the market was lost for it because people didn't want to pay the price for it."

Rickard Hill gave up beading for a while when her children were young, but then picked it back up after losing her job in the late 1980's.

"Oh I didn't lose it, I quit it because I didn't like it," she said with a laugh.

She began selling her work at Niagara Falls again.

"I was selling it probably for not what it should have been sold for," she said.

However, the beading took on extra meaning for her and got her through some hard times.

"(I) was going through a lot to things in my life at the time, and it was like a year into it I had lost my daughter … so it was all kind of like therapy for me," said Rickard Hill.

Eventually, Rickard Hill made the transition from selling her items to tourist to selling her work as fine art.

"I started to go into the art world with it and recognize it as an art form because not a lot of people did it, not a lot of people sold it the way I did it," she said.

Willems likes Rickard Hill's style and enjoys learning her techniques.

"Rosemary is more complicated and she uses more colors, it's more intricate," said Willems.

Jourdan also likes the variety of patterns that can be done in the raised beading medium.

"(It) opens it up to so many types of styles, and the colors are just … there are just so many different color combinations," she said.

Jourdan appreciates the history of the style.

"A number of years ago I went to New York and I was able to visit the Royal Ontario Museum, and the curator took us in to the archives to where we were able to actually look at their collection and pick up and hold it and see how it was actually made, and from there on – that's it, I was hooked."

Watch for Charity Scams in Aftermath of Boston Bombing

MADISON – The Wisconsin Department of Agriculture, Trade and Consumer Protection (DATCP) is urging consumers to use caution before sending money to a charity claiming to help those affected in the Boston bombing.

"Scammers follow the news, and they will do anything to take advantage of our charitable nature," said Sandy Chalmers, Division Administrator for Trade and Consumer Protection. "Be especially on guard against social network messages, e-mails or texts that claim to have exclusive information or photos. Clicking on links or attachments can expose your computer or phone to malicious software."

If you plan to give money to a particular charity, look it up by name at www.charitynavigator.org or www.give.org. Avoid 'charities' that popped up since the bombing and be leery of any high-pressure pitch you receive for donations.

Under Wisconsin state law, most organizations soliciting for charitable donations must register and file an annual report with the Department of Safety and Professional Services (DSPS). To check if a charity is registered, call 1-608-266-2112 (press 1 in the initial menu). In addition to researching charities, consider the following tips to further protect yourself from scammers:

Avoid donating cash. Pay by debit or credit card or write a check directly to the charity.

Charity scams are not exclusively online – mailings and telephone calls can also be sources of this fraud.

With online donations, watch out for websites with "copy-cat" names. Sham organizations like to use these names to cash in on the reputations of older, more established charities. Keep in mind that most legitimate charity websites end in ".org" rather than ".com."

Oneida culture all tribal members should know

The Oneida Cultural Heritage staff works on a variety of activities around cultural awareness and language acquisition. As a result of recent groups and many years of work by community members, previous staff and our ancestors a list of six specific topics were identified as important information all tribal members need to know. The list includes: our creation story, our clan system, four ceremonies, the Great Law, Kalihwi.yo and history (post European contact). Although the list is small there is an abundance of information to develop a strong foundation to meet the vision of Oneida.

Oneida's vision is written as: "A nation of strong families built on Tsi?Niyukwaliho'tÁ and a strong economy". On March 28, 2012 a definition of Tsi?Niyukwaliho'tÁ was approved by the Business Committee. In short it is "our ways". The long version can be found on the cultural heritage webpage by clicking on the 2013 Cultural Heritage Presentation. The presentation also provides a list of activities Oneida Cultural Heritage is involved in.

Since the beginning of the fiscal year October 2012 Cultural Heritage had over 12, 737 people to people contacts with over 47,634 website hits. We expect those numbers to increase as we advertise upcoming events and reveal the updated language webpage.

Along with Cultural Heritage staff we have very dedicated volunteers who help with anything from general office assistance to transcribing documents and entering valuable data base information. Their assistance is priceless.

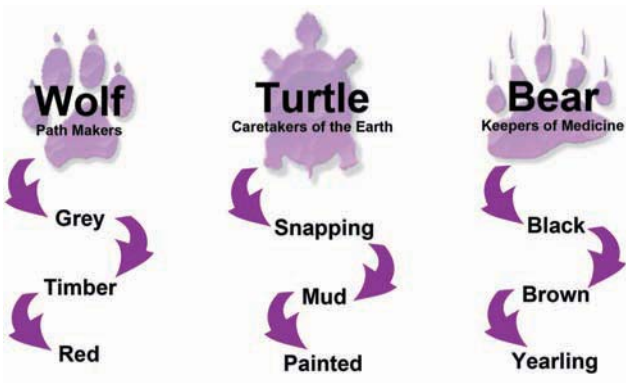
Many individuals call to share their experiences and memories of how things were when they were young. The information they provide is taken seriously. In some cases interviews are conducted and recorded for future use in research.

Highlights over the past few months include:

Creating Language Learning Environments: Developed a puppet show, hosts monthly pot luck meetings, designed promotional items and developed language material for the webpage. Community members are encouraged to contact ANA Language staff for more information and material. 920-490-3915

Culture: Weekly culture classes, multiple language classes utilizing a hands-on language acquisition method, presentations at schools, elder interviews, conduct Feather Dance and other ceremonies

History: Printed additional History Books, presentations, updated webpage, monthly presentation series. Daily requests for genealogy assistance.



Language: 18 individuals progressing in the certification process, assisted Retail with language in the new market, conduct and participate in ceremonies, language classes, cradle board project, travel out east.

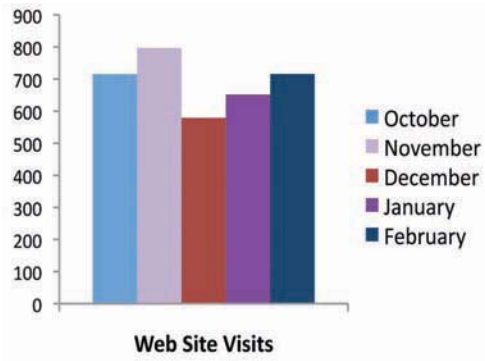
Library: Youth Appreciation Bash, improved circulation, successful Suessabration

Museum: Youth art contest, Who's Who contest, updated exhibit featuring the "Corn Husk Man"

Tribal Historic Preservation Officer: Received nomination for the Stone Church from the Historic Register-National Register, conducting oral interviews, providing education and requesting community feedback on the proposed demolition of four buildings.

The chart below represents the Clan system mentioned in the last article:

Each sub-clan is represented by a Clan Mother and Chief. Pegs on the condolence cane represent each Haudenosaunee Chief. Oneida Chiefs are represented on the second row from the handle.



1925 Oneida Chiefs Condoled by Onondaga
Wolf: John Powles, Phillip Cornelius, Alfred Powles
Turtle: Chester Poe Cornelius, Eli Skenendoah, Emerson Metoxen
Bear: Nelson Metoxen, Richard Summers, Gilbert Parkhurst
Nine sub chiefs: Henry Smith, Peter Danforth, Mackensie Skenandoah, Nicholas Elm, Wallace Cooper, Solomon Skenandoah, Jonas Schuyler, Fred Cornelius, Alfred Powlas

Creating Language Learning Environment Program

By ANA staff

Classes & Mentoring

The Creating Language Learning Environments Program has had a lot of success so far this year. The staff is busy providing language classes and working with their mentees.

Two of our language mentees- Olu?úhkwa Bauman and Dominique Danforth are now teaching language classes, which is very, very exciting! We currently have fifteen mentees working with three different mentors. Each mentee studies units of language until they can test into the next level, which requires several hours of study and practice each week. Dawn Reiter participates in class with her grandchildren and says "I really liked the classes because its a good refresher. I stepped away from classes for a while, but I plan to keep going because its fun.

Regular language classes are also held throughout the week. We have provided 117 classes since October. Check the language schedule in the calendar of events located on this page.

Two staff members and one mentee are also teaching language classes at area schools including; Lombardi Middle School, MacArthur Elementary School, and Hillcrest Elementary School, West Depere High School, and Seymour High School, and the Indian Community School of Milwaukee.

NEW! Oneida Greetings Classes

In March and April the Creating Language Learning Environments Program tried a new language class format. The goal was to teach the basic Oneida greetings over a 4-6 week period. Teachers and students seem to like the format because it provides students with useful vocabulary quickly. Watch our Facebook page for more Oneida Greetings Class offerings.

Books, CD's, Curriculum

Staff are also very busy writing new curriculum that can be printed into books and posted to our web site. We recently had more color and number flash cards printed. Stop by our office anytime if you are interested in CD's, books, or promotional items like T-shirts, bumper stickers, etc.

POT LUCK

Each month, we host a pot luck to share program updates and provide an opportunity for language learners to use the Oneida language. Our next pot luck will be April 18, 12:00-2:00 pm, at the Cultural Heritage Department. Please make plans to join us!

The Creating Language Learning Environments Program focuses on family based language learning and individual learning. We are grant funded by the Administration for Native Americans.

For more information about the program call us at 920-490-3929, check us out on Facebook, or go to our web site at www.oneidanation.org/language.

Chippewa leader outlines Wis. Tribes' grievances

By Todd Richmond
Associated Press

MADISON, WI (AP) – A Chippewa leader took Wisconsin officials to task Tuesday in the annual State of the Tribes address, accusing them of spreading "propaganda" in a dispute over fishing, harming the state's natural resources with legislation easing the mining permit process and failing to give the tribes enough credit.

The address given by Lac Courte Oreilles Band of Lake Superior Chippewa Chairman Gordon Thayer was a clear illustration of how fractured the state's relationship with Wisconsin's six Chippewa tribes has become. The two sides have clashed over a host of environmental and conservation issues during the past year and a half.

Thayer faulted the Department of Natural Resources, state legislators and Republican Gov. Scott Walker.

"We can't be dismissed as a subgroup of people in Wisconsin," he said. "That's all I'm saying. We're here."

The feud began when Republicans introduced bills to relax Wisconsin's mining regulations and establish the state's first organized wolf hunt. The mining bill was designed to ease the path for a company called Gogebic Taconite to open a 41/2-mile long open pit mine just south of the Bad River Chippewa's reservation; that tribe fears the mine will pollute their water. And the Chippewa have taken special exception to the wolf hunt. They see that animal as a spiritual brother.

For their part, the tribes authorized tribal hunters to kill an elk, a species the DNR has been struggling to reintroduce in Wisconsin for nearly 20 years. They also tried to implement a night deer hunt for tribal members, despite the DNR's insistence that it was too dangerous. A federal judge has blocked the hunt.

Most recently, the tribes dramatically increased their spring walleye spear-fishing goals, prompting the DNR to impose a one-fish limit for other anglers on nearly 200 northern Wisconsin lakes to protect the fishery. Rep. Dean Kaufert, R-Neenah, has called for the state Building Commission to reconsider a grant for a Lac du Flambeau cultural center in retaliation.

The proceedings began amiably enough Tuesday, with legislators greeting tribal leaders as they took their seats in the state Assembly chamber and standing as the tribes carried their flags past the main dais.

Thayer recognized the state's constitutional officers, tribal leaders and veterans. Then he took the DNR to task for issuing what he described as inflammatory statements about the tribes' spear-fishing goals. He said the agency made it sound as if its one-fish limit was the only thing standing between northern Wisconsin walleye and extinction.

He warned that the agency's statements could re-ignite anger toward tribal anglers, leading to ugly, racially based demonstrations similar to protests at northern boat landings in the 1980s, when the Chippewa began to reassert treaty rights permitting spear-fishing.

"This propaganda parade through the press may sell papers but it can possibly recreate the tensions we had here in the 1980s . . . Let us at least agree to (a) peaceful fishing season and no political violence or racial tensions," he said, according to a written copy of his speech.

DNR Secretary Cathy Stepp issued a statement in response, saying the new spear-fishing goals won't endanger the walleye fishery. But she also warned the one-walleye limit could dampen tourism and said she hopes to discuss the goals with the tribes.

Thayer also criticized Republicans over the mine. Wearing a paper teardrop pinned to his lapel to symbolize the Bad River's water, he told legislators the other five Chippewa bands, along with the state's other five non-Chippewa tribes, stand with Bad River. He complained that Republicans should have consulted with the tribes before moving ahead with their bill.

"We cannot cash in our natural resources for corporate profit," he said. "I guess the common theme in this is breakdown in communication."

Thayer's remarks so angered Assembly Speaker Pro Tem Bill Kramer that he walked out of the chamber during the speech. The Waukesha Republican later said the GOP approached the Bad River tribe about the mining bill but tribal leaders refused to talk, saying only that they opposed the bill and the mine.

"When you're continually talking about collaboration but tell us everything we did wrong . . . I don't think my walking out was any more disrespectful to the speaker than the speaker was disrespectful to us," Kramer said.

Thayer made no mention of the state's wolf hunt, but he complained that Walker didn't talk about the tribes enough during his State of the State speech this year.

Walker's spokesman issued a statement after the speech saying the governor's administration has met with the state's 11 tribes more than 1,000 times and Walker himself has visited various reservations.

Wisconsin News Brief

Wisconsin lawmaker pushes harder on domestic abusers

By Kevin Wang
Associated Press

MADISON, WI (AP) – A Wisconsin state lawmaker is pushing for tougher legislation on domestic abusers.

Rep. Andre Jacque, a Republican from De Pere, would require police officers to file written reports to explain their rationale when they don't arrest a suspect. His legislation would also make stalking an act of domestic violence, and allow authorities to use more evidence in building cases against suspected abusers.

Jacque says victims need better protections.

The legislation has some bipartisan support in the Legislature. It has also drawn praises from an advocacy group and a brother of a woman whose husband killed her and two others at a Brookfield spa last October.

Walker urges approval of Keystone oil pipeline

MADISON, WI (AP) – Wisconsin Gov. Scott Walker has submitted a letter in support of the proposed Keystone XL oil pipeline between Canada and refineries along the Gulf Coast of Texas.

Walker submitted the letter on Monday to Secretary of State John Kerry urging that the project be approved.

The proposed pipeline is at the center of a political battle. A coalition of environmentalists, Native Americans and some landowners are fighting the project. Oil companies, some labor unions and the Canadian government are pushing for project approval.

Walker says expanding the pipeline would have an "enormously positive economic impact" for the entire country, including in Wisconsin.

Bag near Gogebic Taconite office didn't have bomb

Hurley, WI (AP) – Northwestern Wisconsin police say a suspicious backpack found near a company proposing to build iron ore mine did not contain explosives.

Gogebic (goh-GIH'-bik) Taconite president Bill Williams says an employee called him around 11 a.m. Saturday to find out if he had left a backpack outside their Hurley office. He told the employee he did not.

According to a Hurley police department statement, the area was cordoned off and a bomb squad arrived at about 2:45 p.m. They found the bag didn't have a bomb and the area was opened again around 4 p.m.

A message left for Chief Dan Erspamer was not immediately returned Saturday night.

The proposed mine is near the Bad River Chippewa's reservation. The tribe and conservationists are against it, fearing it would pollute the region.

Wounded Knee For Sale, 3 offers

By Kristi Eaton
Associated Press

SIOUX FALLS, S.D. ~ A landowner trying to sell a portion of the Wounded Knee National Historic landmark in South Dakota said Monday he has three offers from West Coast-based investment groups for the land that sits adjacent to where about 150 of the 300 Lakota men, women and children killed by the 7th Cavalry in 1890 are buried.

But James Czywczynski told The Associated Press that he is giving the Oglala Sioux Tribe until May 1 to make an offer on the40-acre parcel before he opens it up to outside buyers. Czywczynski would not give details on the groups, nor what they intend to do with the land, but said they are willing to pay the full $3.9 million asking price.

"I cannot do anything until May 1 because I have allowed the Oglala Sioux Tribe and the Wounded Knee Survivors Association the opportunity to purchase this property first because that is what I and my family would like to see it in their hands. Otherwise we're going to advertise it nationally and internationally and get the best price we can," said Czywczynski, whose family has owned the land since 1968.

The Wounded Knee National Historic landmark comprises 870 acres.

Along with its proximity to the burial grounds, the land includes the site of a former trading post burned down during the 1973 Wounded Knee uprising, in which hundreds of American Indian Movement protesters occupied the town built at the site of the 1890 massacre. The 71-day standoff that left two tribal members dead and a federal agent seriously wounded is credited with raising awareness about Native American struggles and giving rise to a wider protest movement that lasted the rest of the decade.

Czywczynski, who also is trying to sell another 40-acre piece of nearby land to the tribe for $1 million, said he hopes the tribe sees the value the land could add in terms of jobs and economic development to the impoverished reservation. Some tribal members think the land around the massacre site should be developed into a tourist attraction while others are adamantly opposed to it.

Wounded Knee tribal council member Kevin Yellow Bird Steele said the tribe has money to purchase the land but believes the asking price is too high. The land has been appraised at less than $7,000.

Learning to create an endowment for the future

Oneida staff and representatives from First Nations Development Institute met at the Skenandoah Complex to learn about forming a 7871 endowment.

Sharing information and philosophies, Hopi citizens representing the Hopi Education Endowment Fund (HEEF) and individuals from First Nations Development Institute visited Oneida for a Native Asset Building Partnership Project April 10-11.

Executive Director of HEEF LuAnn Leonard and HEEF Resource Development Manager Vernon Kahe explained how the Hopi government formed the organization through the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) 7871 tax code written specifically for Native American non-profit organizations. According to Kahe, a 7871non-profit operates very much the same as a 501(c)(3) non-profit.

"It treats tribes like states for certain purposes, and one of those purposes is to accept gifts that are tax deductible for the benefit for their constituents, and in our case it would be to provide services for education," said Kahe.

The biggest difference is that a 7871 organization doesn't form under a state but a tribal government. There's less paperwork and disputes are taken up in tribal court.

"It also strengthen sovereignty, it's our own government that's creating this and sanctioning it vs. going under a different government structure," said Kahe.

Though the Hopi are not a gaming tribe, they were able to start their education endowment with $10 million.

"We're not rich, but the tribal council felt strongly enough that they wanted to support the fund," said Leonard. "Over the past 12 years we've given out over $7 million dollars in grants and scholarships, but the fund has been able to grow to now it's valued at $20 million."

HEEF solicits donations from philanthropic foundations and from its own people. One popular fundraising event is an alumni challenge where students and graduates from the three big universities in Arizona and other colleges compete to see which school raises the most money.

"People are thankful that they received funding from the tribe and they do want to repay it back in some way," said Leonard. "It's our job as the education endowment fund to grow and protect that fund so it will last well into the future."

Oneida Internal Services Division Director Joanie Buckley would like to start a 7871 non-profit for Oneida to support youth services.

"We're doing it broad enough so youth development could mean language, it could mean sports, it can mean education," said Buckley.

Buckley hopes to get the framework in place through there's currently no funds allocated for the proposed endowment.

"(That) shouldn't deter us at trying to look at new growth and development opportunities for this tribe," said she said.

Buckley likes how HEEF uses Hopi philosophy to communicate its goals.

"The Hopi use their corn to really solidify growing the seeds for their youth, and our education, and we can certainly look at the Seventh Generation Philosophy as being the anchor to the message that we're giving," said Buckley.

The meeting was sponsored with a grant from First Nations Development Institute to foster partnerships between Native nations.

2013 Oneida Nation Fishing Ceremony

A large group gathered at Pamperin Park on Thursday, April 4th to observe the annual Oneida Nation Fishing Ceremony. Special recognition was given to individuals who fought for the right of Oneida citizens to fish in Duck Creek. A brief history of the struggle for fishing rights was given along with a perspective from the Environmental department concerning the recent dam removal in Duck Creek. Just after the ceremony concluded a large Bald Eagle flew over the grounds.

Less is more when it comes to tilling

unlock the SECRETS IN THE SOIL

For Better Soil, Drought Resilience and Profit

Madison, Wis ~ Spring tillage is a tradition that runs deep in American agriculture. But more and more producers are realizing that this tradition is costing them – in more ways than one. The possibility of another dry year might have producers rethinking their use of tillage. Traditional tillage practices, which were once considered necessary in order to prepare a proper seed bed for planting, come at a high price with increasing diesel prices and labor costs.

However, according to Jimmy Bramblett, State Conservationist with USDA Natural Resources Conservation Service, the bigger, long-term cost may be the health and function of the soil itself – resulting in lower yields, higher input costs, and reduced drought resiliency for Wisconsin farms.

Traditional tillage is very destructive to the soil structure and to the soil ecosystem. In healthy soil you have 50 percent air and water – which is made possible by the pore space in the soil – and 50 percent mineral and organic matter. But tillage collapses and destroys that structure, making the soil vulnerable to erosion, surface crusting and compaction.

Because tillage destroys organic matter and soil structure, tillage actually reduces the soil's infiltration capacity. Besides infiltration capacity, soil structure allows for greater crop rooting depths. Tillage can also bury the surface residue which helps to retain soil moisture. In short, traditional tillage tends to limit the availability of water in the soil and that could prove very costly during those long, summer dry spells where every drop of water counts.

Fortunately, more and more producers in Wisconsin are farming with reduced tillage systems which build soil health. Producers are using management systems that include conservation practices, like no-till or strip till, diverse crop rotations, planting cover crops and following nutrient and pest management plans. These systems follow the four main soil health principles: disturb less soil, increase plant diversity, grow living roots throughout the year and keep the soil covered as much as possible.

The benefits of improved soil health extend far beyond the farm. Producers who improve the health of the soil also increase its water-holding capacity and infiltration rate, which reduces runoff that can cause flooding. Improved infiltration keeps nutrients and sediment from being carried off into nearby lakes, rivers, and streams.

Producers interested in learning more about the basics and benefits of soil health, or in receiving technical and financial assistance to implement a soil health management system, should contact their local NRCS office (http://www.wi.nrcs.usda.gov/contact/directory.asp). Additional soil health information is available at www.nrcs.usda.gov.

First Downs For Trees Event-April 26

The Green Bay Packers have once again generously donated 50 shade trees to the Oneida Nation through their First Downs for Trees Program. The program is intended to beautify neighborhoods, provide energy savings and cleaner air. One tree is donated to the surrounding community for every first down the Green Bay Packers score in their regular season.

This is the 3rd year Oneida Environmental has coordinated the planting of the donated trees on the Oneida Reservation. This year we will be planting the trees in the Turtle Where it Ends Park on Old Seymour Road in Oneida on Friday April 26, 2013 at 3:30 P.M. The park features new playground equipment for the neighboring Tribal homes and a basketball court. The playground was installed in late fall 2012.

In the past two years trees were planted with the Tall Feather way neighborhood residents and by community members and staff at the Oneida Health Center. The tree planting event celebrates National Arbor Day. Arbor Day is traditionally the last Friday in April and was first celebrated in Nebraska in 1872. For more information on Arbor Day visit www.arborday.org. We hope you can join us to beautify your community on Friday April 26! For more information contact Dan Brooks, Tribal Forester at 869-6501 or Sylvia Cornelius, Environmental Project Manager at 869-1600.

On March 19th, ONHS was honored to host traditional performances by both Russians and Ohutsykeka kanʌ́nyasuha class of the ONHS.

The students from Russia were visiting to observe how other cultures perform and to perform themselves.

They had one student perform a violin piece, and another an accordion piece. Although there were few minor technical problems, they performed very well.

Shortly after, our very own ONHS students performed some of our traditional Earth Songs in exchange for the Russian students' traditional music. ONHS students and staff all joined in to welcome the Russians and converse with them while dancing the Friendship Dance. Since the Ohutsykeka kanʌ́nyasuha class encourages our fellow students and staff to participate, almost all of the ONHS students and staff, as well as our visitors, danced.

Student of the Month: Ruby John

By Jessica House
Thunderhawk Times

Ruby John is a sophomore at Oneida Nation High School. Ruby has attended the Oneida Nation School System her whole life. She had just recently been chosen to be Student of the Month at ONHS. Ruby is a very well rounded student and tries to work hard in school. She says that she tries to maintain A's and B's in her classes, and it shows. Ruby has been on the honor roll every quarter this year, and for the third quarter Ruby's GPA was in the top 10 of all students in the entire school.

When asked what words of advice she has for other students, Ruby said, "I would tell students to work hard and get your stuff done." These words of wisdom further exemplify the hard work and dedication that she puts forth every day.

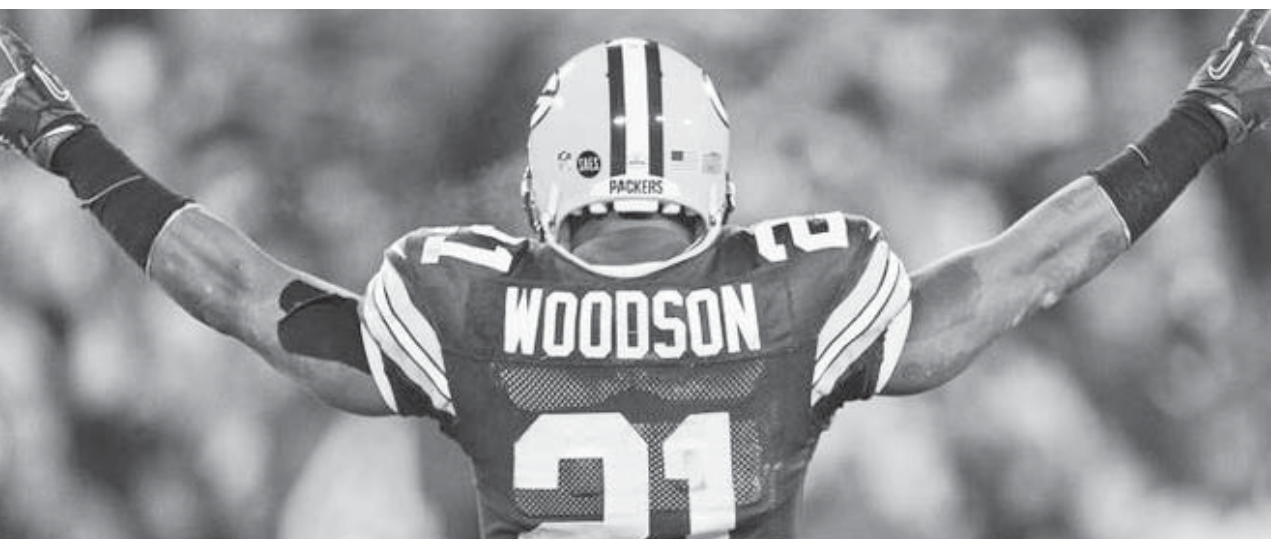
Apart from academic excellence, Ruby was also a member of the ONHS volleyball team. When she isn't at school, Ruby likes to do much more. She enjoys beading, horseback riding, texting and sleeping.

Ruby John

After high school, she would like to go to college but she is still undecided about where she wants to go. She is also undecided what she wants to study, but she knows she wants to play volleyball.

Ruby's hero/role model is her mother. She said, "My mother is the best because she has always been there for me. I really appreciate it."

Packers won't be the same without Woodson



By Bryan Quella
Thunderhawk Times

How can Charles Woodson still be on the free agent market without a team? The guy is a beast.

The Packers cut Woodson for a few reasons. First, he was getting up there in age at 36 years old. He will be 37 in October. Second, he was pretty expensive. He was scheduled to make $6.5 million in base salary this season. Third, the Packers have some young, talented cornerbacks like Tramon Williams, Casey Howard, and Davon House already in the lineup that the Packers hope will fill Woodson's position.

According to NBC Sports, "Woodson visited the 49ers early last month, but his market has been dead silent since. Woodson previously said he felt 'shunned,' and now says he feels 'ancient.' For now, Woodson doesn't appear to be considering retirement."

The Packers should bring Woodson back at a lower price to help the team. He's still got plenty of good attributes that he could still bring to the team and a couple of years that he could still be a productive player.

How Tech Savvy Are You?

In Oneida, the weather is a little on the cold side. Living in Wisconsin teaches us that Mother Nature can be unpredictable. Well, Mother Nature definitely didn't let us down this year. March has been more of an extended winter rather than a gradual warming trend into spring as it has in the past.

"I don't like the snow at all. It is definitely time for spring," said ONHS senior Emmitt Big Medicine.

It has been 15 days since after the first day of spring and we still have the feeling that snow may still fall from the sky. Last year at this time it was an average of 70 degrees. This year is nothing like the last; temperatures continue to drop, and snow continues to surprise us. One good thing: sooner or later it has to warm up. Please let it be sooner rather than later!

Zero Tolerance performs at ONHS

By Heather Stevens
Thunderhawk Times

On April 2nd, the ONHS Student Counsil invited the Harbor House's Performance group called Zero Tolerance to perform for the student body. Zero Tolerance is made up of students from all over the Appleton area who volunteer to educate other schools about dating violence. They danced, performed poetry, and sang for our ONHS students.

There were many talented students that performed and told astounding stories about overcoming.

Many ONHS students walked away from the performance overwhelmed with sympathy and gratitude from the lessons learned. On behalf of the ONHS student body, we would like to thank Zero Tolerance for performing for our students and sharing their lessons with us. Overall, their performance was truly inspiring, educational, and amazing.

Issues

As World Violence Increases, and as children and innocent men and women are killed and maimed because of the rages of madmen and extremists, I worry about what the seventh generation holds. What kind of world will our children live in? What kind of world is this generation of human beings preparing? I remember what I once read, "Violence is the result of reason" (John Mohawk).

Drugs and Violence are a plague on any community. I grew up in Chicago. Chicago is a great place and it has great people. But Chicago also has a negative side in some of its neighborhoods. Gangs! Shootings! Murders! Drug Dealers! Over the past two years, we've seen an increase in violence here on the Oneida Indian Reservation. It is an issue that needs to be addressed, and soon.

A General Tribal Council Meeting on a Sunday (May 5th) is something new. The reason for scheduling the meeting on a Sunday is twofold: (1) There are no Saturdays available at the Radisson until sometime in 2014, and (2) the BC's effort to allow the opportunity for more Oneidas to attend.

A Message to the Onyote'a-ka (Oneida People)...

May 5th, General Tribal Council: The two primary issues are Per Capita and the Waste-to-Energy Project. Both are probably the most important issues that the General Tribal Council will consider in the next 10 years.

On Par Capita, our Tribal finance personnel are telling us that the current projected budget deficit of 17 million dollars for fiscal year 2014 is a problem for the financial stability of the Tribe. One of the petitions would increase that projected deficit to about $22 million. Note: In recent years, other Indian Tribes have fallen financially because they have overextended their finances. The Per Capita decision will be made by you, the General Tribal Council.

Regarding the Waste-to-Energy Project, I have stated before, the health of our people and the health of our mother earth is my primary concern. Again General Tribal Council, the future is in your hands.

Sincerely,
Ed Delgado
Oneida Tribal Chairman

Treasurer's Report

By Cristina Danforth
Tribal Treasurer

March is historically a very busy month for me. I attended the Reservation Economic Summit (RES), National Indian Gaming Association (NIGA) conference, and the Native American Bank (NAB) board meeting. With those three events falling consecutively, it is easy to ask where have I been all month.

These three events are very important to my office and compliment my duties and responsibilities as Treasurer. Being responsible for the financial wellbeing of the Oneida Tribe is a daunting task that requires more than sitting behind my desk each day. Unfortunately some of my co-workers do not understand how important it is to get out of the office and interact not only with our Community but also with other experts. If I simply pushed paper across my desk each every day I would be doing the Oneida Tribe a great injustice.

As many of you know, the new Anna John Resident Centered Care Community (AJRCCC) is a project I have been following since the beginning. Recently I was asked to approve the purchase of additional televisions for the patient rooms and the therapy room. I believed the request was appropriate and approved it. I have taken a lot of backlash for this decision with people commenting that I was involved with day-to-day decisions. If a purchase order comes across my desk and I question it, based on insufficient information, I meet resistance and am accused of being involved in day-to-day operations. As Treasurer of the Oneida Tribe, the General Tribal Council (GTC) has given me the task of watching our money and I would be irresponsible if I simply signed everything that comes to me.

In addition to the paperwork I receive, we have an online approval system as well. I am not able to access this system when I am not at my desk and many times electronic purchase orders are generated and immediately staff is calling asking for my approval. Again, I would be fiscally irresponsible if I did not take the time to read the purchase order, request additional information if necessary, and approve or disapprove these requests as needed. I have been diligently trying to send the message to staff that I need at least a two week lead time for all electronic approvals. Not only do I need this time for myself to review, but Accounting needs the time to process the payment. This has been a constant dilemma. Many areas appear to wait until the last minute to enter their information and then immediately demand I approve their request. This practice results in late payments and sometimes additional fees to the Tribe. While unfortunate, we all need to learn to plan ahead and not expect immediate turnaround.

Recently I was able to attend a few welcome home ceremonies for our Tribal members that have been released from prison. I cannot imagine the circumstances that let them off the righteous path nor can I imagine the experiences they encountered while away. All I can do is wish them all well and let them know we have many programs and services to help them on their new journey. We as a community must learn to forgive and move forward as one. That is the only way we will begin to heal and make the necessary progress.

As you all know, we have begun the budget process for FY 2014 and with minimal changes to the organizational structure we must be prepared for a "status quo" budget. This is unfortunate as we had high hopes for a restructure. I alone cannot make changes to the organization and with the unwillingness of some of my co-workers to make the hard decisions, no progress has been made. While I understand not wanting to be responsible for lay-offs or wage reductions, GTC gave us the task of restructuring the organization. Our Business Committee work meetings do not include any topics regarding our organizational structure which tells me there is no interest in addressing our GTC mandated assignment and this is not okay with me.

Restructuring needs to address duplication of like areas (hypothetically Community Development, Housing, and Planning). It also needs to review areas that involve organizational philosophy and self-assessment such as Balance Score Card. Many areas have not found this useful and only a few have chosen to incorporate its methodology. While this is a continual cost to the organization, it does very little for just a few departments.

With spring upon us I hope the winds of change bring a new sense of understanding of what needs to be changed within our organization. Remaining stagnant and inefficient is not how I want to reflect on this term.

OBC Forum...

Shekoli,
Oneida Thunderhawks

I want to personally thank the Oneida Nation High School Lady Thunderhawks, the girls basketball team, for a job well done in winning the Regional Championship, the first in the team's history. Everyone involved in the school is to be commended for giving the guidance and leadership these individuals had in completing their exciting season of basketball. I attended the banquet held for these students and their accomplishments this year. It was very well attended and again I wish to offer my congratulations to everyone.

NIGA

Congratulations are also in order to Ernie L. Stevens, Jr., for being re-elected to the presidency of the National Indian Gaming Association. The convention was held in Phoenix this year and although I did not attend, it was very well represented with individuals from the Oneida Tribe. Ernie is to be commended for his leadership in his role as president and I wish him continued success and prosperity.

Congrats also to former Wisconsin Gov. Jim Doyle who received the 2013 NIGA Chairman's Leadership Award in recognition of Gov. Doyle's strong relationship with Wisconsin tribal governments.

Budget

Although we are only halfway through this year's budget, it's that time again for us to start looking at how we can sustain our organization for the coming years and still provide much needed services and employment for our members. I ask that all individuals involved in planning, development and execution of our yearly budget be mindful when requesting tribal contribution dollars for your respective organizations. Times are still lean and although we are recovering from the recession, we are not back to the revenue intake we have enjoyed in years past. We are still crunching numbers and in the near future will have to take some measures to curtail the spending habits to better balance our budget. The federal government's sequestration has affected some of our grant funded operations and we are still trying to find those much needed dollars to continue our services.

David Jordan
Councilman

GTC Meeting

On Sunday May 5th at 1:00 p.m., a General Tribal Council meeting is scheduled to be held at the Radisson Hotel and Conference Center.

One of the agenda items is regarding a new per capita plan for the upcoming years. Please read the materials being sent to you and come to the meeting prepared to make an informed choice. Remember that the future of our organization and the continued services and employment will be impacted based on the action taken by the general membership.

I urge you to be diligent when making your choice for a continued per capita and not only look at the dollar amount being proposed, but everything that could be affected by not making an informed choice.

Clean Sweep

The time of year is upon us again, although with our recent snowfall you wouldn't believe it, to start cleaning out our garages and basements to get rid of our unwanted treasures.

The Environmental, Health and Safety Division in cooperation with Oneida Housing Authority and Elder Services are planning the Clean Sweep event to be held in early June. Check your mailboxes in early May for details and instructions on how to prepare for this event as well as flyers and posters on your local bulletin boards.

As always, an event of this enormity can use volunteers to help with moving and disposing of the items picked up or dropped off at the event. If you would like to volunteer please contact Jennifer Falck, Program Evaluation Analyst, at 920-869-4558.

Again I want to thank you, the general membership, for taking the time to read these articles and as always I am available to meet with you, should you so desire. I can be reached at 869-4482 or you can e-mail me at djordan1@oneidanation.org.

Wheelock moves to director of Tribal Affairs

By Dawn Walschinski
Kalihwisaks
dwalschi@oneidanation.org

Oneida citizen Leslie Wheelock is wrapping up her position at the National Congress of Indians (NCAI) to take on a new challenge as the Director of Tribal Affairs, Office of the Secretary, US Department of Agriculture (USDA).

"I have a very small staff of two people, one in New Mexico and one in Washington DC, and we try to cover Indian Country, the three of us," said Wheelock.

Wheelock spent her last couple of days as Director of Economic Policy of NCAI to share tribal proposals for the Farm Bill with attendees of the Food Sovereignty Summit held April 15-17 at the Radisson.

"I have all of this momentum building up, and once I leave, I'm trying to ensure that it continues, and the way I figured to get it to continue is to put the document out there so there's always someone from outside of NCAI pestering NCAI," said Wheelock.

Leslie Wheelock

"NCIA can reach tribal leaders at the drop of a hat. The people who do this work in agriculture are not the tribal leaders. They are the farm managers, they are the nutrition specialists, they are people who are working in the tribal colleges and universities," she said. "What I'm trying to do is bring the message … to the people who are doing the work."

Wheelock is looking forward to helping Native American farmers and tribes get access to what's available to them from the USDA.

"One of the objectives that I have in the new job at USDA is going to be making the programs that USDA offers better known and more used in Indian Country," she said.

Wheelock also want to get her coworkers at the USDA to keep Native Americans in mind when developing programs and doing outreach.

"One of the things that they need to think about is 'how does this impact Indian Country? Do I need to do something different to get the message through?'"

Wheelock worked as a copyright attorney for communication companies such as IBM and MCI. She went through a couple of layoffs, but found her legal experience was in demand at the soon-to-be-opened National Museum of the American Indian in Washington.

"They found out that I had a background in intellectual property, and I started combining that with discussions on cultural heritage," she said. "I got a phone call and they said 'we need you to come over and help us get ready to open the museum, which is exactly where I wanted to be."

Wheelock worked for the museum for three years and still serves on its board. She then went to work for NANA Development Corporation in Alaska, but decided she wanted to work more directly on Native American issues.

"I was trying to focus away from the general corporate technology telecom sector and back towards taking everything that I had learned back towards native people," she said.

She went on to work for NCAI in 2011 and now for USDA. Wheelock says Native American tribes and farmers face some unique obstacles when farming such as a lack of capital, land loss, or land leases.

"They have land, but they can't farm it because the land's been all leased out to non-tribal members," said Wheelock. "A lot of tribes are just getting back into agriculture and they're re-teaching themselves things that typically get handed down through families."

Wheelock stated she's looking forward to learning more about USDA and its programs, and doing outreach with native nations.

"Food and agriculture is wickedly important and tribes get that," she said.

Oneida Cemetery Notice

tsi? tyeya ?tatalih

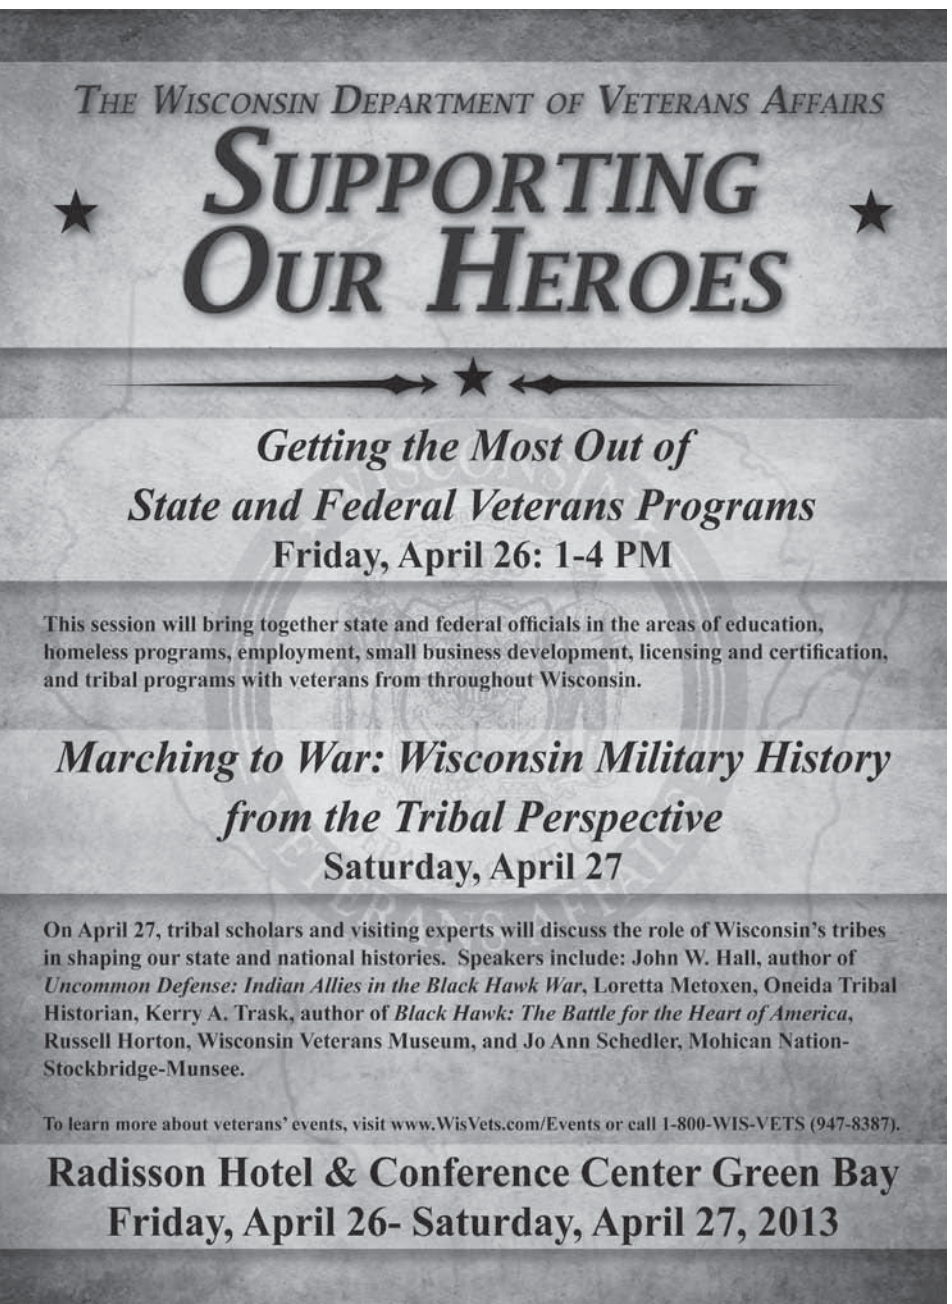
"Where they bury a body"

Just a reminder to families who have loved ones buried in the Oneida Tribal Cemetery. Even though the calendar states spring has officially arrived and ole man winter still lingers on and our Cemetery Law states "All winter baskets shall be removed on or before April 1st of each year.", as soon as your able, please dispose of any winter baskets or other decorations placed during the winter months.

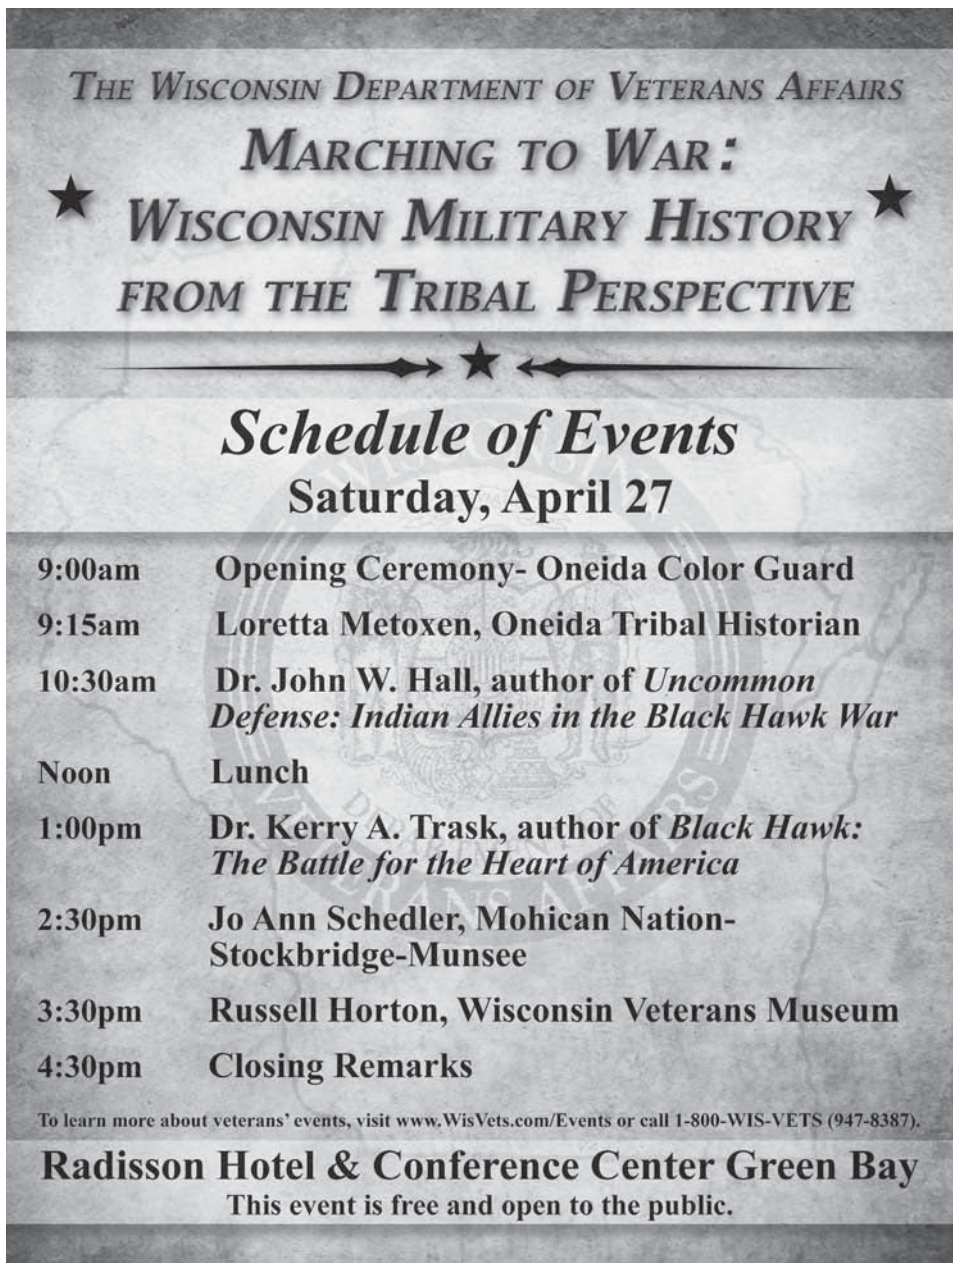
As we continue to wait for the warm spring temperatures and mother earth to fully awaken, we will then address the cemetery spring needs. These needs include: putting fill around plots where the earth has sunken in, removing winter baskets and other decorations and installing our Cemetery Rules Signs. Because the Oneida Cemetery does not require an outer burial container, one can expect our burial grounds to undergo that natural progression of the earth sinking on recent burial sites.

Wisconsin promotes day to return unused drugs

MADISON, WI (AP) – Wisconsin residents will be able to safely dispose of unused prescription drugs at sites all around the state on April 27.



Sites are being set up in the state and across the country as part of the national prescription drug "take back" day. Anyone with unwanted, expired or unused prescription drugs can drop them off for free at any of the designated sites.



At last year's event, more than 30 tons of prescription drugs were dropped off during two different "take back" days in Wisconsin. Nationally, about 244 tons was collected.

The effort is supported by various federal, state and local law enforcement agencies.

Twin sisters excel on the soccer field

Savannah John

Sykora John

By Travis Cottrell
Kalihwisaks

Rarely are families fortunate enough to have siblings playing on the same athletic team at the high school varsity level. It is also unique for freshmen students-athletes to play varsity sports. When Savannah and Sykora John lace up their soccer cleats and take the field this spring they will make both of these anomalies a reality. Savannah and Sykora have been playing soccer together since they were four-years- old. Now freshmen at Ashwaubenon High School, the twin sisters look to bring their brand of sibling camaraderie to the varsity girls' soccer team.

"It's awesome being on the same team because I am offense and Savannah is defense. So if I want to improve my offensive skills I tell her to crank it up a notch and play really good defense on me. Or if she wants to improve her defense I try to my hardest to score on her," said Sykora.

Savannah plays the striker position on the Jaguars' defense.

"At Ashwaubenon we play what is called a 'Flat 4' defense so there are four players in a line behind me and when someone attacks our defense I am the one to attack the ball first. But if they get passed me then they run into the four 'flat players' behind me," Savannah said.

Sykora, who is the only starting freshman on the roster, plays the forward position.

"I am the one they give the ball to to score. That's my main role, to score goals," Sykora said.

The offense and defense duo of the sisters forms a sort of thunder and lightning combination. One player specializes in strength and physicality, the other in speed and quickness.

"Strongest part of my game would be my containment on defense, probably my defensive skills. On defense you have to play a little more physical to get into players and stop the ball," said Savannah. The thunder.

"The strongest part of my game is probably my speed and my footwork. To get by defenders and have a shot at goal," added Sykora. The lightning.

Overlooking the team this season is first-year coach Trevor Van Laanen, who played division one soccer at the college level.

"They told us before the season started that if we planned on playing college ball he would get us ready for college ball. That's what he does- it's crazy," said Savannah. "We have 18 to 20 girls rostered, but you have to prove yourself in practice in order to dress for games. Our coach always tells us who will dress and who won't dress. So you really have to try your hardest during practice."

As their season breaks free of winter's extended hold the girls know that playing together will continue to bring out the best they have to offer.

"Since we are the only two freshmen on varsity and she's the only freshman starting I told her that I am always on the sideline and I am always going to be yelling and giving her tips. For us being twins and playing together all our lives we really know each other's strengths so it's good for us to always communicate," Savannah said.

"We always work better when we are together," added Sykora

One-time Schimmel coach recalls her at 11

By Chris Rizer
East Oregonian

PENDLETON, Ore. ~ John Barkley may be the only coach to start a game with Shoni Schimmel sitting on the bench.

Schimmel, now a University of Louisville junior, was just 11 years old when Barkley coached her in the Basketball Against Alcohol and Drugs Tournament on the Umatilla Indian Reservation in Mission.

It wasn't long before he realized her talent and took her off the bench.

"You knew she was very special because she played a very special style of basketball," Barkley said. "She played more like a boy than she did a girl."

Barkley said she and her sister Jude - a sophomore guard for the Cardinals - adopted that style after playing against their older brother, Shae Schimmel.

Their style and the support of their parents propelled the sisters to lead the Cardinals to New Orleans and a game against the University of Connecticut for the NCAA women's national basketball title.

The sisters played for Hermiston High School and lived in Mission until their parents, Ceci Moses and Rick Schimmel, moved them to Portland. Moses ended up coaching them at Franklin High School.

Barkley is not surprised at the Schimmel sisters' success. Their energy and playing style has sets them apart.

The pair has drawn attention for their unscripted, instinctive style known as "Rez Ball."

"Rez Ball is probably best defined as a freelance style of play that's fast-paced ... if that means shooting an NBA 3-pointer or taking it to the rack or making a (behind-the-) back pass. It's that freestyle play where there's no reins on you," Barkley said. "It's pretty much get it and go, and create it as you go."

John Barkley's son Josh, a Pilot Rock High School senior who plays point guard for an American Indian team called Nixyaawii Nation, said he learned to make behind-the-back passes by playing with the sisters over the years.

"It's fun because you don't know what's going to happen," he said.

Nixyaawii Nation is comprised of students from Pilot Rock High School, Pendleton High School and Nixyaawii Community School, where Barkley played during his junior year. It competes against other American Indian high school teams from across the West.

Barkley said the Schimmel sisters have inspired him to make an impact on other American Indian children. He has applied to Mount Hood Community College and Northwest Indian College to study biology and play basketball and hopes one day to be a fisheries technician.

Wisconsin program to track kids who live in drug homes

GREEN BAY, WI (AP) – Officials in Brown County hope a pilot program will help agencies figure out how many local children live in homes where adults use or sell drugs.

The Oneida Drug Endangered Children Team is among four groups in the state participating in the program under which social workers and law enforcement can share information via a centralized computer system and thus provide better long-term counseling and treatment services.

The aim is to duplicate that system for all teams set up in 25 counties and five Native American tribes in the state, the Green Bay Press-Gazette reported.

"The biggest benefit comes in being able to track what services are being provided to these families to make sure we're addressing their needs," Oneida police Chief Rich Van Boxtel said.

The Wisconsin Alliance for Drug Endangered Children began nine years ago and defines drug-endangered children as those at risk of neglect or abuse by a guardian's drug activities. The Brown County Drug Endangered Children Team was established in 2010. The group, which includes law enforcement officials, medical providers, social workers and school staff, meets monthly and works to coordinate response plans to make sure children are safe after a home is searched for drugs.

However, the team isn't required to have a centralized reporting system, and members say that makes it difficult to keep track of how many children the team assists and whether more resources were needed.

The U.S. Department of Justice estimates that 9 million children nationwide live in homes where an adult uses illegal drugs. Those children are three times more likely to be verbally, physically or sexually abused, and four times more likely to suffer neglect.

At least 24 other states have similar teams. The partnerships started forming across the U.S. within the past 10 years to help the growing number of children found during drug arrests, particularly those where methamphetamine was being produced, according to the Department of Justice.

Brown County Drug Task Force Lt. David Poteat said methamphetamine is more common in western Wisconsin. He said local investigators deal more with marijuana, cocaine, heroin and prescription pills - drugs that he said could still create unsafe environments for children.

Children who are found during a Brown County drug search often are interviewed at the Willow Tree Cornerstone Child Advocacy Center in Green Bay. Stacey Kreitz, the center's child forensic interviewer, said the main issue for those children is their parents' inability to care for them and keep them safe.

"It's important to know it's happening in our community," Kreitz said. "Just because we don't see it doesn't mean it doesn't happen."

Fund offers help for military vets

By Jim Collar
The Post-Crescent

APPLETON, WI (AP) – Paying bills and having enough money left to provide for his children have been challenging for Phillip Burns since he returned home more than two years ago from his second tour of duty in Iraq.

Burns, of Appleton, who spent six years with the Wisconsin National Guard's 2127 Infantry Battalion, had multiple jobs at some points as he awaits word from the federal government on disability benefits.

Last year, however, expenses caught up to him and Burns' paycheck wasn't enough to meet the stacking pile of bills.

That's when the Veterans Emergency Fund stepped in, The Post-Crescent reported. The program, which is managed by the Fox Valley Veterans Council, covered a rent payment and an electric bill to help Burns through the financial hardship.

"I'm very grateful," said Burns, 25. "After that, I was able to get by."

While success stories like Burns are common, ensuring veterans' needs are met is challenging because the number of people applying for aid far outpaces donations to the emergency fund.

"The demand is huge and the resources are limited," said James Strong, president of the council.

In 2012, the 22-member council - which includes local veteran service organizations - received 114 applications from veterans for help with expenses such as mortgage and rent payments, utility bills, food, security deposits and car repair bills. The program awarded nearly $47,000 to 68 veterans, while the council last year brought in just more than $51,000.

The council projects that 2013 could bring as many as 240 requests for assistance. Meeting all of those needs would require $120,000.

Started in 2009, the emergency fund recognizes the sacrifices veterans have made for their country and understands their needs are different from others in the community, Strong said.

There are numerous programs available to veterans, but Strong said time-consuming bureaucracy often results in delays in receiving assistance.

Meanwhile, some programs fall short in meeting veterans' needs. For example, educational programs provide veterans with the training they need to find a job, but they sometimes lack the thousands of dollars in tools they must purchase to land a job in their new career field. While veterans in need often qualify for federal housing vouchers, the program doesn't provide money for security deposits. The emergency fund last year granted nearly $2,700 for security deposit payments, Strong said.

He said one Fox Valley veteran was attending school, had a laptop computer and a backpack filled with books - but lacked housing and was forced to take shelter under an Appleton bridge.

Jon LiDonne, veteran service officer for Outagamie County, pointed to an often-cited statistic in noting the unique needs of service members.

"Ten percent of the population are veterans, yet 25 percent of the homeless population are veterans," he said.

Sudden expenses can cause tremendous headaches for veterans.

One young veteran was employed, attending school and a member of the National Guard when the progress he made screeched to a halt in the form of a $750 car repair bill. The emergency fund paid the bill so he could get to work and meet his drill obligations.

"He would've probably lost his job and certainly would've been in trouble with his military unit," Strong said.

Amanda Krueger, an associate member of the veterans council, said services to veterans who receive help don't end with a check. The council directs veterans to other agencies to help them get back on their feet.

"If a veteran has a $1,000 problem, we're not going to give them $200 and leave behind an $800 problem," Strong said.

Navy veteran Lisa Lemke turned to the emergency fund last year. She and her ex-husband lost their jobs and unemployment benefits eventually ran out.

Lemke, who served from 1979 to 1983, was among the first women to serve aboard the U.S.S. Samuel Gompers. She worked on missiles during her Navy career, but acknowledged it isn't a skill set that translates well in a tight job market.

The emergency fund gave more than money for a rent and utility payment. It provided hope.

"I cried," Lemke said. "I cried for days. They're my angels."

Oneida CFO gets national recognition

By Travis Cottrell
Kalihwisaks
tcottrel@oneidanation.org

The Native American Finance Officers Association (NAFOA) recently recognized Oneida Tribal Chief Financial Officer (CFO) Larry Barton for his work within the Oneida Tribal organization. At the 31st annual NAFOA Conference, held in Nashville, Barton was presented with the CFO of the Year Award. NAFOA is an independent national nonprofit organization providing leadership for the advancement of Native American economics.

"I certainly wasn't expecting to get any type of an award. The organizers contacted me prior to the conference and I thought they were going to ask me to sit in on a panel or discussion," Barton said.

The call instead informed Barton that he had been named CFO of the Year by the association.

Oneida Treasurer Tina Danforth, who works with Barton often, holds him in high regard.

"Larry Barton is a great CFO, he's a tribal member, and he really understands the finance industry. He understands the General Tribal Council, he's a former Council member, and he really understands community relations relative to revenue flow, which is really important," Danforth said.

The national award demonstrates how well the Finance Department does at managing Tribal finances during a national recession.

"This award Larry has received speaks to the Oneida Tribe's positive representation throughout the country and the exceptional job he has done individually for his tribe," Danforth added.

The troubled state of the national economy has forced the Finance Department to be more restrictive with revenues or find alternative methods in an effort to save money. Efforts to maintain the economic state of the Oneida Tribe have been a team effort, a fact that Barton is quick to point out.

"I am humbled by this award and appreciate the resourcefulness of NAFOA in support and advancement of Sovereignty for Native communities. The award is a reflection of the leadership, of our Treasurer Ms. Tina Danforth, and the dedicated staff of the Finance Area, Ms. Denise Vigue, Ms. Ralinda Ninham-Lamberies, and Mr. Terry Cornelius. The recognition is shared by all Oneidas. Lastly, I appreciate the dedication of Mr. Bill Lomax, President of NAFOA toward supporting Tribal Communities," Barton said.

On April 24th the Oneida Business Committee held a special recognition for the CFO and his accolade before the committee's regular meeting. Again he stressed the importance of the team that makes up the Finance Department.

CMN crew participates in rocket launch event

The American Indian Science and Engineering Society (AISES) chapter at The College of Menominee Nation (CMN) took part in an annual collegiate rocket launch event held at the Richard Bong Recreation Area in Kansasville, WI on April 27th.

The team of Michael Guyette, Mason Powless (President of the AISES Chapter at CMN), and Dean Davis formed a rocket-building team to represent CMN.

"This is our first time working as a group on a rocket. So we really had to work together and communicate so that everything would come together," Guyette said.

Vote to revoke Indian cultural center delayed

By Scott Bauer
Associated Press

MADISON, Wis. ~ The state Building Commission agreed Wednesday to delay voting on rescinding a $250,000 grant to help create a Native American cultural center after the Republican lawmaker pushing for it said he was hopeful a compromise could be reached on walleye spearfishing limits.

Rep. Dean Kaufert, R-Neenah, proposed taking away the money given to the Lac du Flambeau Band of Lake Superior Chippewa as retribution for the six Chippewa tribes raising their walleye spearfishing goals by about 5,300 walleye. That resulted in state wildlife officials imposing a one-fish limit for other non-tribal anglers on nearly 200 northern Wisconsin lakes.

Kaufert, chairman of the Assembly's tourism committee and vice chairman of the Building Commission, said such a limit would be devastating for tourism in the north woods. But he backed away from seeking to reclaim the cultural center grant money after speaking with state Department of Natural Resources Secretary Cathy Stepp.

She plans to meet Monday with tribal leaders to discuss reaching a deal, perhaps by increasing the number of walleye released from fish hatcheries, Kaufert said.

Stepp's spokesman, Bill Cosh, confirmed that a meeting was taking place on Monday but did not say what proposals Stepp would be offering.

"We're going to continue our efforts to meet with the tribes and move forward on common ground, which is we all agree we want more fish in the north," Cosh said.

Gov. Scott Walker, a member of the Building Commission, said he opposed taking back the cultural center money as Kaufert originally proposed.

Walker said he was hopeful an agreement could be reached before next month's Building Commission meeting to avoid a vote on taking back the money.

The two Democratic members, Sen. Fred Risser of Madison and Rep. Gordon Hintz of Oshkosh, opposed even considering taking the cultural center money. Risser said he didn't think the commission should hold funding of the cultural center ``hostage'' because of a dispute over spearfishing limits.

Work is already underway to convert a former dormitory for boys in Lac du Flambeau into the cultural center, said Ruben Santiesteban, a tribal council member who attended the meeting. The center will serve as a place to educate both tribal members and others about Lac du Flambeau history, he said.

But Kaufert said the tribes have been unwilling to compromise, leading to an increase in disputes with the state over the past two years.

The tribes universally opposed a bill passed in March by the Legislature to make it easier to begin mining for iron ore just south of the Bad River Band of Lake Superior Chippewa's reservation in Ashland County. Republicans further inflamed the Chippewa last year when they established a wolf hunt, which the tribes opposed.

From 1A/CMN Rocket

Building a nearly 4-foot rocket that can reach a height of 3,000 feet after launch seems like a fun way to spend time outside of the classroom. However, there are scientific operations going into the launch.

"The experiment itself is going to deal with air particulates. So we are going to be putting filters in the tubing at the base. For filters we are going to use two different kinds of cigarettes, we are going to use a menthol cigarette and a non-menthol cigarette filter. So as the rocket goes up in the air the filter will collect the particulates and what we are trying to figure out is if there is a chemical reaction with the Menthol cigarettes as opposed to the non-menthol," Guyette added.

The rocket also features a camera, which is mounted in the nose of the rocket to get a view of the ground as it lifts off, giving the team a "rocket's point of view".

The team also reached out to Menominee Tribal students for help designing the outer shell; the design was intended to support a fellow CMN student who was recently diagnosed with cancer.

"We had an art contest at the Menominee Tribal School to help design the rocket. Whoever won would get their design on the rocket. Then we decided to include everyone in the design so they get the idea of science and working as a team. So we had all the students sign their name on the outside," Guyette said.

CMN is a regular participant in the annual science competition, managing to compete against other colleges and universities with much larger enrollment numbers.

"It's nice to be apart of something that works outside of the classroom. Competing against larger schools that are already more advanced in this area is good because we learn so much from them. But we already have a secret idea for next year, which will be good," said Guyette.

Oneida Business Committee works through numerous GTC petitions during regular meeting

By Nate Wisneski
Kalihwisaks
nwisnes@oneidanation.org

The Oneida Business Committee (OBC) moved five petitions closer to being heard before the General Tribal Council (GTC) during their April 24 regular meeting.

Present: Chairman Ed Delgado, Vice Chairman Greg Matson, Treasurer Tina Danforth, Secretary Patty Hoeft, Councilmember David Jordan, Councilmember Vince De La Rosa, Councilmember Brandon Stevens, Councilmember Paul Ninham

Not Present: Councilmember Melinda Danforth

After administering oaths of office to Teresa Schuman, Raeann Skenandore, Susan House, and Sunshine Wheelock for their appointment to the Oneida Election Board the OBC quickly approved meeting minutes from April 10, April 11, April 14, and April 15.

Area reports from Emergency Management, Self-Governance, and Internal Services were accepted.

Quarterly reports were accepted from the Oneida Personnel Commission, Oneida Nation Veterans Affairs Committee, Oneida Powwow Committee, and the Oneida Arts Board. The South Eastern Oneida Tribal Services report was deferred to the next OBC meeting.

The majority of the Oneida Nation Veterans Affairs Committee report focused on the important role some Oneida veterans played in pivotal battles in all conflicts. The Oneida Nation Veterans Affairs Committee felt proper respect and attention is not giving to some Oneida veterans.

The OBC then moved to approve the Legislative Operating Committee's (LOC) April 3 meeting minutes along with the Finance Committee meeting minutes from April 22. The committee also approved the April LOC report.

The committee then forwarded five petitions to the May 8 regular OBC meeting for further action. They were accepted as informational. the five petitions are below.

1. Linda Dallas: Require tribe to pay real estate taxes for all tribally-owned property
2. Kerry Danforth, Linda Dallas: Enact discretionary transfer authority in tribal law chapters 78 and 79 to allow child support cases originating in Oneida courts to be transferred to a different jurisdiction
3. Kerry Danforth, Linda Dallas: Immediately dissolve Oneida Appeals Commission
4. Cathy L. Metoxen: All supervisory, management, entry-level jobs employed by enrolled Oneidas
5. Kerry Danforth: Rescind, repeal Oneida child placement, visitation, support, and paternity laws

OBC Chairman Ed Delgado then requested the committee hold two working meetings per month instead of the current once a month pace. The current workload of the committee lead to a unanimous vote in support of the request.

The next OBC meeting is scheduled for 9 a.m. Wednesday, May 8 at the Norbert Hill Center.

On behalf of the family of "BJ" John W. Christjohn III, we would like to very deeply thank the Oneida Longhouse, Oneida Community, Conservation, Oneida High School (students-staff), friends, and co-workers of BJ for coming together and offering their support of donations, food, and services.

We would also like to thank the Aunts, Uncles, and Cousins who recently had a loss but helped with food and fire.

The overwhelming help from everyone involved was outstanding and so very much appreciated. It is hard to put into words.

Heartfelt thanks,
Family of "BJ" John W. Christjohn III

If we have forgotten to mention anyone please accept our apology.

With Our Thanks

The Family of Warren "Sonny" Reiter would like to say thank you for helping us during this difficult time. Your thoughts, prayers, hugs, comforting words, visits and food donations were appreciated more than any words can express. To our Schuyler/Reiter families and our Oneida and Menominee communities, thank you for standing beside us, you all are true blessings!

Special thank you goes to the Kitchen Crew (Schuyler family nieces and nephews), Pall Bearers, Fire Keepers, James (Pokey) Reiter, Brett Reiter, Evelyn Elm, Julie Denny, Floyd Silas, III, Dave Turney, Dave 'Nahwahquaw' Grignon, Father Katamba and Chief Hill Singers for your assistance in sending our husband, father and grandfather on to our Creator's land. We would also like to thank the Oneida Police Department and Oneida First Responders. Please accept our apologizes if we missed anyone.

Each and every one of you has touched Warren's life in some way and for that we are forever grateful.

The Family of Warren "Sonny" Reiter

Wis. Assembly panel approves junk food stamp bill

MADISON, Wis. (AP) ~ A Wisconsin Assembly committee has approved a bill that would limit the amount of food stamp benefits that could be spent on junk food.

Republican Rep. Dean Kaufert, of Neenah, has amended his original bill to require people enrolled in the state nutrition assistance program, known as food stamps, to spend at least two-thirds of their monthly benefits on items such as milk, bread and vegetables. They could spend their remaining benefits on any authorized food.

Kaufert's original bill didn't specify an amount to be spent on whole foods.

Kaufert says he wants people to eat healthier, but Democrats on the committee say he's just trying to score political points.

The measure passed 7-2 Tuesday on a party line vote. The full Assembly will take it up in May.

Perrote brings comforting style, dedication to Strengthening Family Circles

When Nigel Perrote came to the Division of Indian Work as the coordinator for general programming, he was surprised by the amount of services that DIW offered at the time. In fact, it took Nigel more than three months to learn the intricacies of the programming.

Suffice it to say that almost five years later, he is no longer surprised. Because of that knowledge and the experience he has gained, Nigel was recently named the director of the Strengthening Family Circles (SFC) program by new DIW executive director Patina Park.

"The new position doesn't feel any different, I am very humble and I find it hard to be in the spotlight," he said. "My commitment is to the community. I want to stay connected, that is my calling."

Nigel graduated from the University of Minnesota in 2006 with a bachelor's in psychology and sociology law, criminology and deviance. Through an internship, he knew rather quickly he wanted to work in the American Indian community.

"I worked with my tribe (Oneida) in Wisconsin on a internship in social work and saw the position open here," he said. "At the end of my interview with Noya [Woodrich, former DIW executive director], we talked for 10 minutes about the Packers. Maybe that helped me get the job."

Nigel Perrote Director Strengthening Family Circles

Although just 30 years old, he has already built an impressive resume at DIW. For the first year, he focused on building and strengthening the Women of Traditional Birthing program and learning about the urban American Indian community. "It was important to me to build connections," he explained. "I didn't want to send clients to some place I knew nothing about because that can be a very scary experience."

When DIW received funding for a federal faith-based initiative, he stepped forward when finding a program coordinator proved difficult. Through that position, Nigel got involved in assisting victims of sex trafficking and sexual violence. He also learned the importance of wrap-around services.

"It opened up my world view, showing me how vital partnering with other agencies can be," he said. "Sometimes we are so focused on competing for funding, but it is much more successful for the community to collaborate."

After two years, the funding was cut for that initiative and he began working at the Anpa Wasté house, teaching life skills to the young women in the house and filling in for street outreach. When funding issues led to staff restructuring at DIW, Noya asked Nigel to step in as interim director of SFC.

"I prefer stability, we all do, but it's the nature of working for nonprofits, so you just learn to roll with the punches," Nigel said. "Noya asked me because I know the programs so well. It was hard to make the change, but I maintained my caseload while overseeing the program."

Nigel wants to see SFC add additional services and build on DIW's 60-years of experience. "I would like to see us expand our parenting services, our domestic and sexual assault programs," he said. "My youth give me an advantage; I can see the changes coming. People and funders want to see results."

When he is not in the office, Nigel enjoys working out and music. "Turning 30, I made a commitment to my health. I want to stretch my time on this earth," he said. "One of the things I love about living in Minneapolis is the music scene. I'm a music snob and tend to gravitate to listening to The Current and Radio K."

As for his future, he has started to contemplate returning to school and getting his masters, with an emphasis on doing work in public policy for American Indians.

"I can't explain how or why I got here, but it seems like a natural course for my life," he said. "It's been a long, strange trip and I'm sure there are plenty of experiences ahead."

Perrote is the son of Doreen & Frank Perrote, and grandson of Dellora Cornelius, all of Oneida, Wis. and Marion Perrote of Antigo, Wis.

Twahwahtsi·láyʌ Presents – Embracing Creation

Event set for May 17 –19

We are asking that you come and join us to acknowledge, share, and embrace a creation experience.

Last Year we were "Finding our Path" this year we are "Embracing Creation". Embracing Creation will extend over three days – starting Friday afternoon and ending Sunday afternoon.

Creation is where we go for our foods our medicines. It is creation that calls the Spring Rains and absorbs the Sun's Rays. Creations creatures large and small bring comfort and Skʌ́nʌ́ – the birds through their songs and the waters song as it drifts and flows. Yet so often we don't take the time to acknowledge and spend time in creation. We hurry on with our day meeting deadlines and chasing illusive goals and dreams. We hope to help you change that for a few days.

We will meet at Oneida Social Services starting Friday at 1:30 with introduction and a little background about our project Twahwahtsi·láyʌ. We will have a telling or the creation story and creation experiences ending the night with a community dinner prepared by the youth of Yethiya?tanúnha? Then Saturday we are back together to talk about how creation comforts us, how we get separated from creation and how we can maintain that separation, along with several creation experiences and we end the day with self-exploration with the Circle of Life. Sunday we will learn how to reconnect and renew our relationship with creation. We will review what we have learned and fill our baskets. This will be followed by the Corn Story and a sendoff.

We ask that everyone brings their own basket to gather in. Saturday lunch is on your own unless everyone would like to bring a dish to pass.

Come and be guided back to our true roots with Mary Stevens, Ron Hill, Sonny Hill, and Tsyosha'aht Delgado as your guides.

This project was supported by Award No. 2010-TY-FX-0012 awarded by the Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention, Tribal Youth Program, Office of Justice Programs.

Wheelock gets new appointment

Leslie Wheelock has been appointed to serve as the Director of the Office of Tribal Relations in the Office of the Secretary. Protestors hold anti-incinerator rallies

Protestors gathered Friday, April 26 and Saturday, April 27 to express their opposition to Oneida Seven Generations Corporation's plan to construct a plastics-to-oil facility in Oneida. The protests were held at the round-a-bout at Seminary Road and Highway 54. The General Tribal Council will meet Sunday, May 5 to discuss a potential ban on gasification, waste-to-energy, or plastics recycling facilities within Oneida Tribal reservation boundaries.

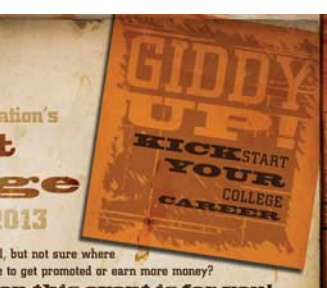
Bay Beach Wildlife Sanctuary
4K Nature Based Program



The Green Bay Area Public School District is pleased to offer a new and exciting adventure in learning with the start of a nature based 4K program located at the Bay Beach Wildlife Sanctuary for the 2013-2014 school year. This program will engage children in highly interactive outdoor activities that encourage children to explore the world around them while learning important skills that will prepare them for Kindergarten.

Time to Get Some Dirt on Your Hands!
Taught by a teacher and naturalist, students will get "down and dirty" as they interact with wildlife, plants and other resources to create a developmentally appropriate and meaningful outdoor experience. In this program, children can expect to hike trails, track animals, look for and identify different types of birds, insects and plants, explore ponds and much more. Rain or shine, we will be exploring all that nature has to teach us!

Gear Up!
Nature provides a constantly changing environment that engages all the senses. In order to take full advantage of the nature based activities, a majority of the program lessons will be held outside in most weather conditions which means clothing, coats, boots, etc. will get muddy, wet and dirty. A list of required "nature gear" has been developed so parents can prepare their child for class. The Green Bay Area Public School District can assist with some of the gear if needed.

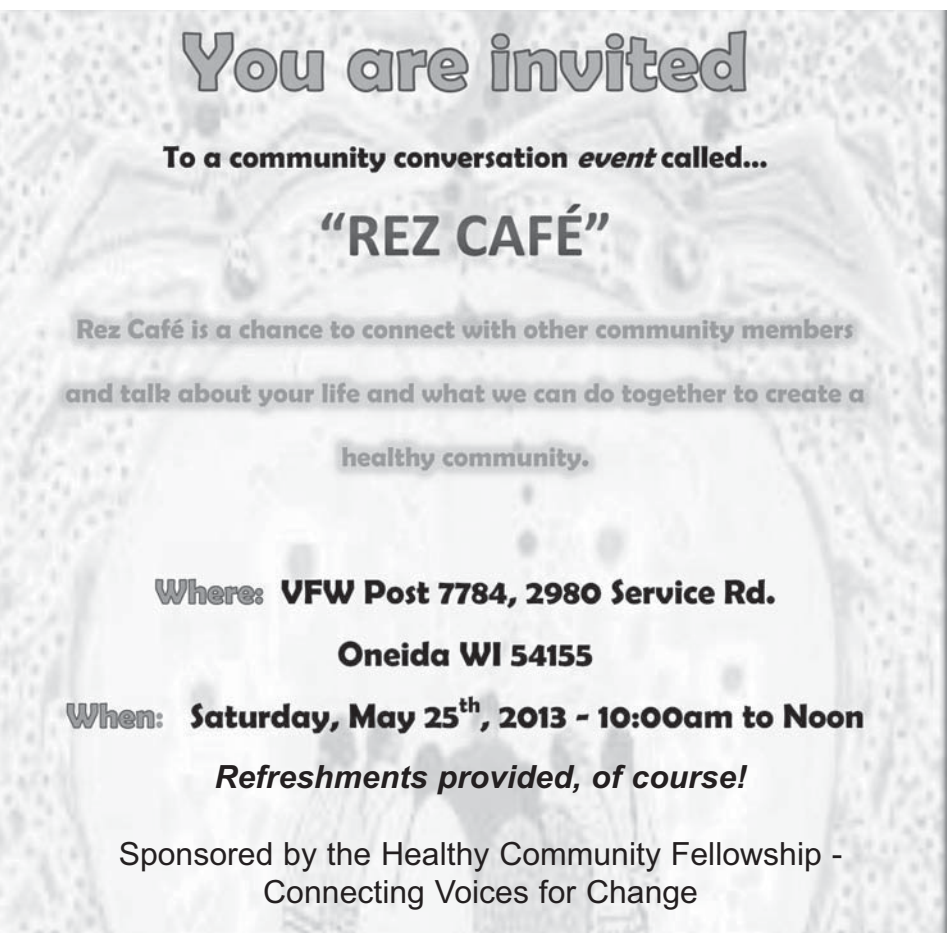
Area students visit ONHC

Sixty-one students from five area high schools attended the Teen Health Career Exploration at the Oneida Health Center on Wednesday, April 17. The goals for the Teen Health Career Exploration is to inform Native American high school students about education and career options in the Health Care Industry.



Students were able to experience hands-on activities and talk to professionals in many health fields offered at the Oneida Comprehensive Health Division. The departments that participated in the Teen Health Career Exploration were Nursing, Medical Doctors, Lab, X-ray, Public Health, Community Health Nursing, Behavioral Health, Employee Health, WIC/Nutrition, Dental, Optical, and Health Information Systems.

Wisconsin colleges such as UW-Green Bay, Oshkosh, Milwaukee, (name all of them) others attended the Exploration sharing information about their health career related programs. County Rescue and an Eagle III helicopter were also onsite for students to explore. At the end of the event, many students received door prizes as an incentive for attending. An iPod touch was given as a grand prize to one lucky student.

The Oneida Teen Career Fair is an annual event made possible by the efforts of many departments, volunteers, and donations. Thank you to Oneida Transit and Gaming Shuttle departments for transporting the students to the event. Thank you to the Oneida Higher Education Department, Y.E.S. Program advocates, and the Northeastern WI Area Health Education Center for their planning efforts for the event.

Thank you to the staff of the Comprehensive Health Division for their kind and generous participation and volunteerism. Also, many thanks to the Community members for their patience and understanding as we had limited services for two hours during the event.

In the shadow of suicide

By the Oneida Behavioral Health Team

Community gathering to be held Tuesday, May 14

Dear Oneida Community,

This article is being written to acknowledge the very important people in our lives who have taken their own lives by suicide.

This type of loss often leaves loved ones and friends wondering why and suffering profound grief and sometimes even trauma. The purpose of this article is to offer help and hope—to bring awareness to some of the challenges faced by surviving family members and friends, and to offer resources to them that may bring some relief through healing and recovery. The ultimate hope is that future losses to suicide could be prevented.

The death of a person by suicide can have a significant emotional, mental, and/or financial impact on family members, friends, coworkers, and others. Whether you have lost someone to suicide or want to help another person who has, it is useful to know about resources that exist.

The word "postvention" is sometimes used to describe actions that are taken after a suicide to help those people affected by loss from the suicide. On the web, you can visit the Suicide Prevention Resource Center (SPRC) to find more information about articles and resources available to you:

- Visit the SPRC Library for information and support for survivors of suicide loss.
- Visit the SPRC Library for information for individuals and communities engaged in postvention.

Suicide often occurs when someone's pain and despair completely overtake their sense of hope and severs or impairs their connection to the world around them. It is tragic and very sad when someone dies by suicide. Below are some warning signs from the Suicide Awareness Voices of Education (SAVE) organization to help identify when someone might be at risk of suicide. Risk is greater if a behavior is new or has increased and if it seems related to a painful event, loss or change.

- Talking about wanting to die or to kill oneself.
- Looking for a way to kill oneself, such as searching online or buying a gun.
- Talking about feeling hopeless or having no reason to live
- Talking about feeling trapped or in unbearable pain.
- Talking about being a burden to others.
- Increasing the use of alcohol or drugs.
- Acting anxious or agitated; behaving recklessly.
- Sleeping too little or too much.
- Withdrawn or feeling isolated.
- Showing rage or talking about seeking revenge.
- Displaying extreme mood swings.

Additional Warning Signs of Suicide

- Preoccupation with death.
- Suddenly happier, calmer.
- Loss of interest in things one cares about.
- Visiting or calling people to say goodbye.
- Making arrangements; setting one's affairs in order.
- Giving things away, such as prized possessions.

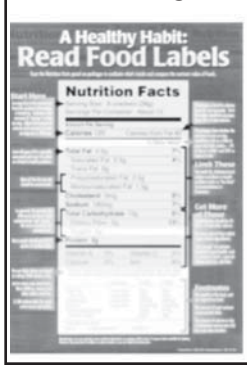
If you recognize any of the above warning signs in someone (including yourself), you can help. Please question the person as to whether he/she is thinking of killing himself/herself; persuade the person to get help; and refer the person to a doctor or mental health professional.

In an emergency, call the National Suicide Prevention Lifeline at 1-800-SUICIDE (800-784-2433). There are also local Crisis Centers that have counselors available 24/7: Brown County Crisis Center (920-436-8888) and Outagamie County Crisis Center (920-832-4646).

In the Oneida Community, WELLNESS SUPPORT SERVICES are available at Oneida Behavioral Health without an appointment—you can just walk-in during the scheduled times below without an appointment and you do not need to be a current client in order to participate in these supportive services: MONDAY (1:00 to 2:30 PM); TUESDAY (10:30 AM to 12:00 PM); WEDNESDAY (10:30 AM to 12:00 PM); THURSDAY (2:00 PM to 3:30 PM); and FRIDAY (10:30 AM to 12:00 PM).

You are always welcome to contact Oneida Behavioral Health at 920-490-3860 and speak with one of the Triage Counselors in order to start treatment services with mental health professionals.

As a Community, Oneida has many strengths and protective factors that are already in place that can help people to heal and recover from loss and can help people find wellness. Utilizing cultural and religious beliefs can help guide you through the grieving process and also direct your path toward life goals. Reaching out to a Higher Power is the best first step you can take!



Another step that you can take would be to please attend a gathering in the Community Room at the Oneida Social Services building on Tuesday, May 14th from 5:00 p.m. to 6:00 p.m. This gathering will be a panel discussion format entitled "Reaching Out to Heal Our Community Together" and will give Community members the chance to gain more cultural and mental health perspective about suicide awareness and prevention.

American Indian Vocational Rehabilitation Program

By Stephen (Corky) West
Job Training Program Director

The American Indian Vocational Rehabilitation Services (AIVRS) program is authorized by Title I, Part B, section 110(c) and Part C, section 121 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, as amended (the Act). Under the AIVRS program, discretionary grants are awarded on a competitive basis to governing bodies of Indian tribes located on Federal and State reservations. These grants pay 90% of the costs of providing vocational rehabilitation (VR) services for American Indians who are individuals with disabilities residing on or near such reservations. The legislative foundation for this program came about in 1978 with reauthorization of the Rehabilitation Act. The AIVRS program has grown from one grantee in 1981 to 80 grantees in 2012. The Oneida Vocational Rehabilitation Services (OVRS) Project is one of the beneficiaries of the 1998 Rehab Act amendments.

With some exceptions, a typical AIVRS project employs about 3 - 4 staff and operates on a budget of about $350,000 per year. Section 121(b)(4) of the Act allows priority consideration to be given for the continuation of previously funded programs and most Tribal governing bodies reapply for funding at the end of each 5-yr project period. Thus, a number of AIVRS programs have operated over many 5-yr funding periods and are continually working to expand their capacity to provide VR services. The AIVRS programs have been more successful than State VR agencies at providing VR services to American Indians with disabilities because the programs are able to maintain a continuous presence on the reservation, are aware of and observe tribal customs, employ primarily native staff, use non-traditional or native employment, and, where possible and necessary, communicate in the native language.

The authority to provide grants directly to Indian tribes located on Federal and State reservations was introduced in the 1978 Amendments to the Act, in Title I, section 130. Based on the legislative history, Congress intended that: 1) services provided under the AIVRS program were to be comparable to those provided under the State VR program; 2) the AIVRS program was a supplement to the State VR services program for American Indians living on the reservation provided in a culturally appropriate format; and 3) the AIVRS program was authorized to provide services traditionally used by Indian Tribes.

Currently, section 121(b)(1)(B) of the Act requires that, to the maximum extent feasible, AIVRS projects provide services to American Indians with disabilities that are comparable to those provided under Title I of the Act by State VR agencies to other individuals with disabilities within the State.

The only significant statutory changes for the AIVRS program were made as a result of the 1986 and 1998 Amendments. In 1986 eligible applicants for grants were expanded beyond the Navajo Nation to include any governing body of Indian Tribes located on Federal and State reservations. In 1998, grant periods were extended from 3 years to 5 years and services were authorized to be provided to American Indians living on or near reservations. Successful applicants were given the authority to designate their service area. In addition, the 1998 amendments greatly expanded the participation of American Indians in many programs and activities funded under the Act. As of the end of the 2012 project year the OVRS Project was working with an active caseload of 132 consumers.

More information on the Rehabilitation Act and activities will be provided in a later issue of the Education Newsletter. Questions about the OVRS Project can be directed to Kristine Hill, Oneida VR Project Administrator, khill1@oneidanation.org or 920-490-3916.

New Marketing Coordinator at CEC

Shannon Stone has been added to the staff at the CEC to help build and promote programs. With degrees in marketing, business and human resources, and years of marketing experience,

Shannon brings new opportunity and ideas. He is normally available Monday –Thursday from 11:00 am to 3:00 pm and Fridays from 8 am to noon. He can be reached at 920-496-5258, sstone@oneidanation.org, or just stop in at the CEC and say hello.

The GED Rush Is On

Clients intending to earn their GED or HSED need to complete all tests at NWTC before the end of this year. After January 1, 2014 the testing will change to being done on computer. Recent articles have said the tests are no more difficult, but all material will be thrown out and the student must start over if not completed. The Staff at the CEC have seen a few clients who are aware of the 1/1/2014 deadline and encourage all to "Git 'er Done"!

We hope to service clients on the computer practices as we phase out the paper and pen test. Recent changes here, at the CEC, have nine (9) computers in the GED Lab. We have yet to purchase the GED software, but that will happen soon. We look forward to seeing you.

Coming soon to a CEC near you

The Oneida Film Society will hold its first film showing on May 14, 2013 at 5:00 pm at the CEC. Featured speaker will be Charlie Hill and attendees will be eligible to win a soon to be announced door prize. The film REEL INJUN by director Neil Diamond will be viewed and discussed. Come join us, learn and have fun.

Social Media at the CEC

The CEC has started to launch its way into the social media world. We are now posting on Facebook https://www.facebook.com/OneidaNationCEC regularly. Make sure to come like us as it will help us get the word out. Soon we will be adding Twitter, a blog, Pintrest and eventually we plan to have our own Youtube Channel. This will allow us many ways to provide valuable information and training to the community using evolving technology.

ONEIDA
Trust Scholarship

The $3,000 lifetime scholarship shall assist with:
Required prerequisite credited classes,
Post graduate preparation and admission exams or related preparatory courses.
The lifetime gives the student the ability to utilize the scholarship as they progress throughout different levels of their educational degrees. e.g. Associate degree, Bachelor degree, Masters and Ph.D.
The Scholarships will remain dependent on the student being in good standing with Oneida Higher Education office. Students must abide by the established Higher Education program guideline.
The Oneida Trust Committee (the donors) requests that all recipients of the Oneida Trust Scholarship keep in mind the prospect of returning to the Oneida Tribe to share their acquired knowledge, experience, and education.

Letters & Opinions...

Cage/Vault Investigation

September 2011, I wrote a letter regarding the cage/vault well here is an update to what has happened. NOTHING! Let's take a look at the OVER staffed Supervisors/Managers in this department once again, and take a look at our so-called deficit for the Oneida Tribe and why our Per Cap should be approved.

In the Cage/Vault for all three locations IMAC, MAIN, and W. Mason they have three Managers whom all work first shift all of whom have Admins, three Supervisors on one shift of which consists of two floor supervisors and one office supervisor and a lead person (whom gets paid an extra $2 an hour) for under nine front line employees per shift. What the leads and the admins get paid for is to do the Manager/ Supervisor's job. Why are we the Oneida Tribe paying big bucks for all these Supervisors/ Managers/Leads to do a very minimal job? The only place that is in need of this many Supervisors would be W. Mason since they take care of the outlets. With only nine employees per shift I really don't think three Managers are needed, nor three Supervisors per shift. This is ludicrous and waste of Tribal Funds! Basically we have management collecting welfare checks. Why doesn't the Gaming Manager Louise Cornelius and Andy Doxtator the Director of this Department see this? Or do they have too much on their plate to see what is going on? If Andy Doxtator can run Cage/Vault and Hard/Soft Count departments why can't one Manager do the job for Cage/Vault?

On May 5, 2013 we are having a GTC Meeting to talk about the proposed per capita, I suggest to the Tribal Members to take a hard look at our Tribe and vote on what we are ENTITLED to since it is OUR funds coming from Gaming. Yes it does put further stress on our already strained Tribal budget but yet we find money to build more gas stations, more buildings for more businesses but yet you can drive on the Reservation and see all the empty buildings going to waste. Then look at Gaming and see all the positions that are not needed for Management and we wonder why we have a strained budget. There are just too many Management positions for Gaming that is NOT needed.

If we can pay non-tribal members lead positions and they get paid just as much as a Supervisor, to do the Supervisor's job who is looking at the budget then.

Yes, the national economy is still not in a good place but that doesn't mean our Tribal funds need to be wasted on the wasteful spending our Tribe contributes to. I think our Tribe has forgotten to take care of ALL not how can a select few say how can we fill our pockets. Take care of what we have, if we are under such constraints why are we still spending what we don't have.

Food for Thought

On April 4, 2013 the Green Bay Press Gazette reported that Oneida Seven Generations sought approval from tribal officials to locate a modified gasification plant at the former Tower Foods site, N7329 Water Circle Place in Oneida. If they modify it are they trying to sneak it past the tribal members? Did they obtain the opinion of our tribal environmentalists? Is it now just a big incinerator? Is the Land Committee know all the effects the modification would have on the environment? Will it have a chimney? Is the chimney for smoke? Is it to release gasses into the air? Does everyone know that in November 2000 the Business Committee passed a resolution #11-08-00-B to protect the tribe against dioxins? Isn't the BC supposed to enforce the decisions of the GTC? Didn't the Business Committee create the Seven Generations Corporation? Can't the BC do the job they were elected to do? Didn't they all swear to uphold and carry out all the decisions of the General Tribal Council?

This theory is unproven. Why are they trying to contaminate their own people? The tribe complains when others contaminate our rivers, streams and forests. Why then are we trying to poison the air? Dioxin emitting incineration is not good for the tribe, the community, the country, the state, the nation or world. Don't venture into the unknown for money.

Seven Generations want to borrow millions of dollars to try this. Did they check with our good tribal lawyers? Under the Code of Federal Requirements (25 CFR 103) if the tribe authorized the Seven Generations to exist – and if it fails – the tribe is ultimately responsible to pay off the millions of dollars. We owe them! Did they ask how the guaranteed loan program works? The federal government will recover the lost money. Are you willing to pay it back with our casino earnings? The tax payer must be assured of their money. It is their fiduciary responsibility of the federal government. They will hold the tribe responsible to pay it back.

Are there any other pyrolysis gasification processing plants in the world? Are they only research and testing operations? Does any commercial pyrolysis application even exist?

How much money have we wasted in all the GTC meetings? Consulting fees, technical research along with the $100,000 improvements near Schneider National next to the Oneida Travel Center in DePere before the agreement not to build in Ashwaubenon was made?

Did they check out all the literature on the "waste to energy" under all the different applications? Like the biomass waste burned in boilers to produce energy? Did they check out the solid waste being incinerated and all their effects?

Before we spend millions of dollars to build something, we should have a use for it. Do we have an ironclad agreement for sales of its output? What will be the cost? Will we pay more to make this or will we operate at a loss?

This is a poor business decision.

Frank Cornelius

Red Flag Campaign

Shekoli Swakek,

I have started a "red flag" campaign on my facebook against the proposed plastics-to-oil facility by OSGC (7 Gens). Check it out even if you are for or neutral to the project. There is engaging discussion and it will definitely give you things to think about.

I am opposed to this project being operated on our nation's land base for a couple of reasons. One of them is the location. To put a facility that may or may not have minimal environmental hazards so close to our schools is just not a good idea. Another reason is aesthetics. We have just had a major overhaul with the roads, round abouts, and bridge in that area and it looks beautiful there. We don't need to turn the top of the hill into an industrial zone.

This leads to another reason of health concerns. We already have a community filled with many health conditions in terms of air quality; respiratory and other diseases that are most certainly affected by paper mill pollution.

I think if this project goes through it will be a gateway (and 7 Gen's ultimate goal) to establish a large-scale size facility that will be a nightmare for our community. Procuring federal contracts will make sure that profit margins are met and then it becomes about money as a bottom line, not about what is in the best interest for our community.

Mainly I am in opposition as a mother. We all have families here to take care of and raise. I do this for my Qboys.

Please vote "no" on May 5 at the GTC for any kind of furthering of this project.

Respectfully submitted,
Cherie Elm

Another Perspective

Greetings.

I worked for Oneida Nation in the 1990's in various environmental advocacy capacities and have friends who've asked me to weigh in on Oneida Seven Generations Corporation's (OSGC) current proposal. I possess relevant scientific and technical background and a strong history with NE Wisconsin industrial issues.

It's never a good sign when accurate and timely disclosure of technical information regarding any industrial development is withheld. Another red flag is OSGC's association with Marubeni Group, who is well-known for violating the Foreign Corrupt Practices Act for trying to bribe indigenous government officials.

OSGC's previous proposal in Green Bay would have burnt municipal solid waste – which is impossible to do without emitting dioxins and other toxins. Ostensibly, the current plan is to burn "food grade plastics" but the scope of pyrolysis gasification technology being proposed is unproven. Credible scientists and engineers state this technology is "incineration in disguise" and industry claims that there would be no toxic emissions are highly dubious. While approval for these processes has been aggressively sought all over the industrialized world, they are almost always turned down. Does Oneida want to become a testing ground for unproven technology?

What happens if OSGC spends millions building a plant and then doesn't generate enough profit burning plastics - would they propose adaptations to accept solid municipal wastes? And, would this be just the first plant?

Once infrastructure's built, permits obtained and expertise acquired, there's typically an inexorable pull to do more of the same. Does the tribe want to be in the garbage business? Gradually accept more and more of Brown County's (dioxin laden) wastes? All kinds of wastes too often end up on Native American reservations...

Dioxin is one of the big daddies of toxics; only nuclear waste lasts longer. The EPA has admitted in reports that "there is no safe level for dioxin emissions." It accumulates in bodies, passes on to babies, and anyone living in your region has already enough in their systems courtesy the paper-mills' legacy. Dioxin can cause reproductive and developmental problems, damage the immune system, interfere with hormones and cause cancer.

If this snowballs in Oneida, the state won't protect anyone. Wisconsin now has some of the lowest standards in the nation for air and water quality and the state's out-of-control republican de-regulators are making the outlook more frightening every day. And, EPA standards are legal negotiations - not reflections of true biohazard.

I want to commend everyone engaged in motivating folks to take a closer look at issues concerning gasification, waste-to-energy, or plastics 'recycling' facilities. The entire planet is one big closed-loop system, and we must all work together to mitigate damages from existing industry and apply the best of emerging technologies that truly respect and protect our Mother Earth.

Why not opt to advance real sustainability by utilizing green technology that is proven safe, and is feasible, profitable and available? I intend these words with warm regard and hope for Oneida's next seven generations.

Estate Claims Assistant
Oneida Enrollment Department

Shekolih Swakweku
(Greetings to all)

Here's Your Chance to Win a Prize!

It's real simple! All you need to do (if your 18 & over) is complete an Oneida Beneficiary Designation Form and submit it to the Oneida Enrollment office by 4:30 pm on June 5, 2013. A special mailing will be sent out on May 3, 2013 to eligible members with a mailing address on file, who DO NOT have an Oneida Beneficiary Designation Form on record. If your Oneida Beneficiary Designation form is received by 4:30 pm on June 5th, you will be entered in for chance to win one of four great prizes. If you already have your Oneida Beneficiary Designation form on file, your automatically entered into the drawing. It is our quest, to get every eligible member to assign a beneficiary for their life insurance benefit. Please take note, without a form on file, you run the risk of leaving a financial burden to your family at the time of your death.

OLIPP INTENT

Oneida Life Insurance Plan Plus was approved by General Tribal Council in January 2009 and implemented in October 2009. The intent of $15,000 Term Life Insurance Policy was so each adult member (over age of 18) would have monies for final expenses after their death (which generally include funeral related expenses). It's highly recommended while you're living, take control and designate a trusted beneficiary(ies) whom you feel will carry out your final wishes after your death.

Special Attention: Do You Know OLIPP Mmonies are Not Available for Funeral Related Expenses IF:

- Your unmarried and have minor children and have NO Beneficiary form on file. Upon, your demise, all the money will go to the custodial parent/guardian on behalf of your minor child(/ren). These monies cannot be turned back over to pay your funeral related expenses. PARENTS: I encourage you to talk with your enrolled adult children/grandchildren and encourage them to complete their Oneida Beneficiary Designation Form.

Having been in this position for almost a year–I'm finding out, I can't do this alone. There are over 6000 members who have not yet submitted their Oneida Beneficiary Designation forms. I've seen too many situations where mom/dads/families had to bury a family member and there were no monies available for funeral related expenses because a member didn't take the time to complete their beneficiary form. There's no cost involved, just a person's time to complete and submit their form.

If an Adult Member is Deemed Incompetent by the Courts

The court appointed guardian must submit original court document which clearly states a Guardian has been given the authority to designate and appoint a beneficiary(ies) to a life insurance policy. Guardians wishing to complete an Oneida Beneficiary Designation form need to specifically request this language be added into the court document. Without this language, we cannot accept a beneficiary form. In the event that the incompetent member would die before the Guardian has provided the proper court document to the Oneida Enrollment Department, the Life Insurance Company will use the naming sequence to determine who will be the beneficiary.

Oneida Tribal Cemetery

Spring has finally sprung and we have set the date of May 17th, 2013 from 9am till noon for our annual cemetery spring cleaning. In the event of inclement weather, we will reschedule to May 20th (same designated time). If you wish to join us please feel free to stop out there. Our office is aware of the plots which have went through the natural progression of the ground settling and we will be re-mounding all those areas. Reminder to families with loved one's buried here, please remove all winter baskets and any florals/memorials which have become faded due to the winter elements.

Oneida Tribal Member: This may be your lucky day!
Complete your OLIPP Beneficiary Form to WIN!

On behalf of the Oneida Trust/Enrollment Committee and EPIC Life Insurance Company, you have the chance to be entered into a drawing to win one of the following prizes, IF you submit your Oneida Beneficiary Designation form.

• iPad (Valued at $400, 1 winner) • $100 (1 winner) • $50 Oneida gift card (2 winners)

Prize Drawing Rules… The drawing is open to ALL enrolled Oneida tribal members age 18 and over. Completed Oneida Beneficiary Designation forms must be 'date stamped' received by the Oneida Enrollment Department by 4:30PM, Wednesday, June 5, 2013. Incomplete or late forms will NOT be included in the drawing. Winning members are limited to one prize. Winners are responsible for any required taxes. A 1099-Misc Tax Statement may be issued. All prizes will be drawn on June 10, 2013. Winners will be notified by mail.

The Oneida Trust Enrollment Commitee and EPIC Life Insurance Company thanks you in advance for your participation! If you have any questions please contact Julie Denny at 920.869.6212 or Bonnie Pigman at 920.869.6201. Good Luck!

Mayor Barrett Recognizes Milwaukee Couple With Special Day

By Mark W. Powless

Office of the Mayor
CITY OF MILWAUKEE

Proclamation

WHEREAS,

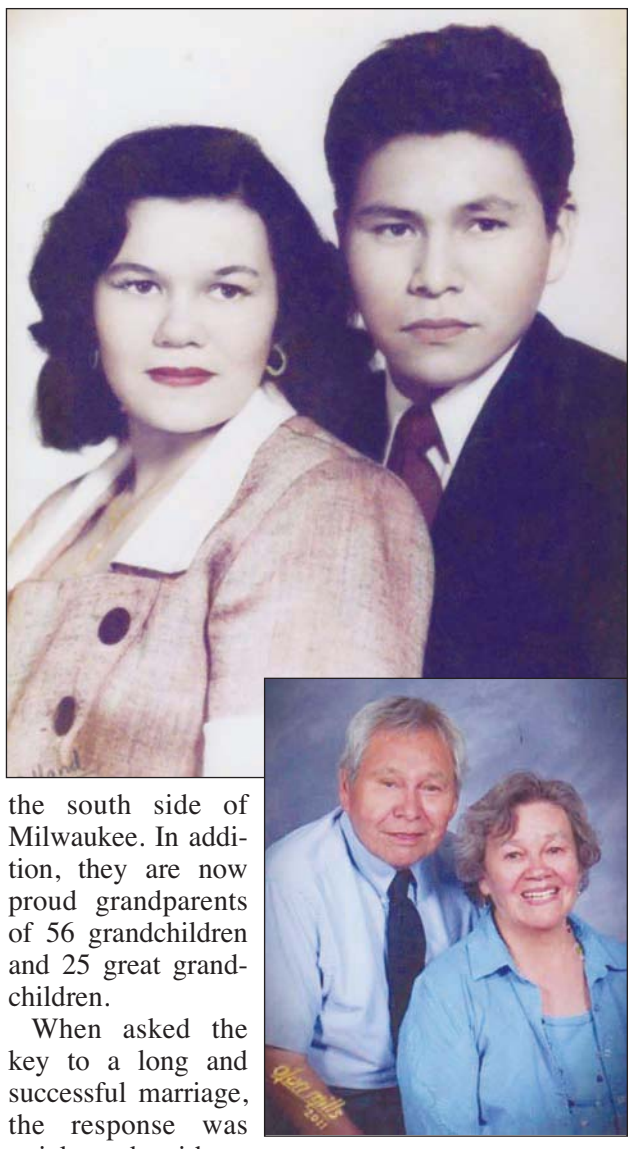
WHEREAS,

WHEREAS,

NOW, THEREFORE, I, TOM BARRETT, Mayor of the City of Milwaukee,

MR. AND MRS. JUAN AND ANNETTE PADRON DAY

In 1953 Annette Skenandore, at the age of 16, met Juan Padron on the south side of Milwaukee. Gas was 22 cents a gallon, bread was 16 cents a loaf, and a postage stamp was 3 cents. Little did she know that later that year she would marry Juan and spend the next 60 years in Holy Matrimony. On April 25, 1953, Juan and Annette were married at Our Lady of Guadalupe Catholic Church in Milwaukee.



Fast forward to 2013 and a lot has changed. However, the pillars of the Padron family, Juan and Annette, have not. Their love and stability continue to be a source of inspiration, not only for their family, but for the community.

News of their 60th wedding anniversary circulated throughout Milwaukee and found its way to the desk of Milwaukee Mayor, Tom Barrett. In recognition of the event, the Mayor's office issued the following proclamation:

Whereas, The City of Milwaukee congratulates Mr. and Mrs. Juan and Annette Padron on their 60th Anniversary and praises them for their contributions and growth in the community;

Now, therefore, I, Tom Barrett, Mayor of the City of Milwaukee, on the occasion of their 60th Anniversary, do hereby proclaim Sunday, April 21, 2013, to be MR. AND MRS. JUAN AND ANNETTE PADRON DAY.

Throughout the 60 years, the Padron Family raised 15 children and continued to reside on the south side of Milwaukee. In addition, they are now proud grandparents of 56 grandchildren and 25 great grandchildren.

When asked the key to a long and successful marriage, the response was quick and without hesitation. "Patience, understanding, and being helpful."

Congratulations to Juan and Annette Padron! The Padron family regularly participates in SEOTS and Oneida activities and are a treasured part of the Oneida community.

Oneida Food Distribution Program

The Oneida Food Distribution Program opened its doors in the old Oneida tribal bldg. on July 1, 1980. It operated under the umbrella of the Great Lakes Indian Tribal Council (GLITC) until Sept. 30, 1983.

It was at that time that the Food Distribution Program on Indian Reservations (FDPIR) was officially activated here in Oneida on Oct 1, 1983 to the present time.

The program is administered at the federal level by the Food & Nutrition Service (FNS), an agency of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, or USDA as we know it. FDPIR is managed locally by either Indian Tribal Organizations (ITO's) or an agency of a state government. Currently there are approximately 257 tribes receiving benefits under FDPIR through 98 ITO's and 5 state agencies.

The agreement to administer the FDPIR is between the state agency, in this case the Oneida Nation, and USDA. Therefore, we are required to operate within the USDA guidelines as well as Oneida policies & procedures.

The USDA agreement or contract requires the ITO's to order, receive, warehouse, and distribute USDA commodities according to the USDA 501 handbook of regulations. Also to offer nutrition education with the help of state, federal, and Oneida nutritionists, as well as outreach to potentially eligible households with information of the services we provide, and finally, referral to other entities that can meet needs that we in the Food Distribution Program cannot satisfy.

Our service area is the rural areas of Brown and Outagamie counties as well as those of Door, Kewaunee, and Manitowoc. Inside the reservation boundaries any eligible household can receive our services. Outside the reservation only eligible Indian households can be serviced. We cannot service any city or town that has a population of over 10,000 with the exception of Green Bay that is based on a waiver agreement reached with USDA in 1992. This allows our program to service Indian households if they meet program eligibility criteria. The prevailing rule of eligibility maintains that low-income American Indians, and non-Indian households residing on a reservation, and those Indian households living in approved areas near a reservation, that contains at least one person, who is a member of a federally recognized tribe, are eligible to participate in the Food Distribution Program.

Those communities that we cannot service directly are Allouez, De Pere, Ashwaubenon, Appleton, Kaukauna, and Grand Chute.

Households are certified based on income and resource standards set up by the federal government, and must be re-certified as often as necessary, or at a minimum of every 12 months. Households may not participate in the Food Distribution Program and the Food Stamp Program (SNAP) in the same month.

Each month, participating households receive a food package to help them maintain a nutritionally balanced diet. We offer a nutritious food package consisting of fresh fruits and vegetables as well as wholesome meat products of frozen ground beef, chicken, turkey hams, and roast beef, and when available, ground buffalo and regular hams during the fall season. We also have a full line of canned fruits and vegetables in addition to an assortment of fruit juices, cereals, and other wholesome products.

Our food package from the USDA is worth approximately $100 per person per month, and is well balanced in all food groups. Over the years our caseload has fluctuated between 400 to 1000 certified participants. The average caseload in 2011 was over 500 clients monthly. In order to be an effective program, the Food Distribution Program continually assesses the needs of its participants through various surveys and questionnaires, to make sure we are addressing all of our requirements.

The Oneida Food Distribution Program is actively involved and an integral part of OCIFS (Oneida Community Integrated Food Systems) originally established in 1994. OCIFS was formed to develop a strong food infrastructure for the Oneida Nation. It includes tsyunhe'hkwÁ, Oneida Nation Farms, Apple Orchard, Oneida Comprehensive Health Division, and Food Distribution program.

Betty Willems, seated at table, displays her beadwork at the Oneida Nation Museum on Friday, April 26.
Under the direction of Rosemary Rickard Hill, Tuscarora from New York, community members displayed their beadwork at the museum during an exhibit. The Oneida Nation Arts Program hosted Rickard Hill as she conducted a ten-day beading seminar. Her visit was paid for by a grant obtained by the arts program. Willems had traveled to New York for classes led by Rickard Hill and was instrumental in obtaining the grant funds.

Letter carriers ask you to help stamp out hunger

Support the Nation's Largest Single-Day Food Drive

ONEIDA, WI ~ On Saturday, May 11, 2013, the United States Postal Service, National Association of Letter Carriers, and the Campbell Soup Company ask you to help Stamp Out Hunger in Outagamie/Brown Counties. Now in its 21st year, the annual food drive has grown into a national effort that provides assistance to the millions of Americans struggling to put food on the table.

The Stamp Out Hunger food drive, held on the second Saturday in May, has become the nation's largest single-day food drive benefitting Feeding America, the nation's largest domestic hunger-relief organization. In 2012, generous Americans donated more than 70 million pounds of food. This was the ninth consecutive year of at least 70 million pounds collected by letter carriers.

"We're proud to support the 21st year of the Stamp Out Hunger food drive," said Postmaster Cheryl Koenig. "We're asking residents for their support to make this year the most successful in the drive's history. It's so easy to make a donation: simply leave a bag of non-perishable food items by your mailbox to help neighbors in need. That's all it takes."

The need for food assistance exists in every community in America, no matter how rich or poor. According to the U.S. Department of Agriculture, more than 50 million Americans are food insecure, meaning they live at risk of hunger. Perhaps most alarming is the fact that nearly 17 million children in America are struggling with hunger.

Campbell Soup Company and its partners are producing post cards and shopping bags that will be delivered to more than 75 million homes across the country as a reminder to participate in the drive. In addition, Campbell will again support this year's food collection effort by donating one million pounds of food to Feeding America member food banks.

To participate in the annual Stamp Out Hunger food drive residents are encouraged to leave a sturdy bag containing non-perishable food items, such as canned soup, canned vegetables, peanut butter, pasta, rice or cereal, next to their mailbox prior to the time of regular mail delivery on Saturday, May 11. Letter carriers will collect these food donations as they deliver the mail.

Feeding America provides food assistance to 37 million Americans every year. According to Feeding America, one in eight Americans relies on the organization for food and groceries, and the organization distributes nearly 3.4 billion pounds of donated food and grocery products annually, including more than 800 million pounds of fresh produce.

For more information about the annual Stamp Out Hunger food drive, visit www.helpstampouthunger.com or www.facebook.com/StampOutHunger, and follow the drive at www.twitter.com/StampOutHunger.

Judge sides with sons about Jim Thorpe's remains

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) – The two surviving children of sports great Jim Thorpe won a critical ruling Friday in federal court that could clear the way for his remains to be removed from a mausoleum in the Pennsylvania town that bears his name and reinterred on American Indian land in Oklahoma.

U.S. District Judge Richard Caputo ruled in favor of sons Bill and Richard Thorpe and against Jim Thorpe borough in northeastern Pennsylvania, saying the town itself amounts to a museum under the 1990 Native American Graves Protection and Repatriation Act.

The men's lawyer, Stephen R. Ward of Tulsa, Okla., said they will now pursue the legal process to have their father, who won the decathlon and pentathlon in the 1912 Olympics, returned to Sac and Fox land in central Oklahoma.

Messages seeking comment from lawyers for the borough, and top borough officials, were not immediately returned. They could appeal Caputo's decision.

Ward said the brothers were pleased with the decision.

"They and their brothers and other members of the family have wanted this and have worked for this for a long time," he said. "They well remember how the wishes of the Indian members of the family were not respected concerning their father's burial." After Jim Thorpe died without a will in 1953 at age 64, third wife Patricia Thorpe made a deal with two merging towns in the Poconos, Mauch Chunk and East Mauch Chunk, to have the new town named for him. His remains have been kept for the past six decades in a borough-owned roadside memorial along the Lehigh River.

Caputo wrote that the result may seem at odds with notions of commercial or contract law.

"Congress, however, recognized larger and different concerns in such circumstances, namely, the sanctity of the Native American culture's treatment of the remains of those of Native American ancestry," the judge said. "It did so against a history of exploitation of Native American artifacts and remains for commercial purposes."

Ward said Bill Thorpe, who lives in Oklahoma, and Richard, a resident of the Dallas area, have not decided whether to bury their father alongside their paternal grandfather in a cemetery in Shawnee, Okla., or at another spot in the area.

Ward said the brothers are not seeking to have the town change its name, and the judge said any concerns about the borough's identity were misplaced.

Thorpe was born in Oklahoma and became a professional football and baseball player. The town that bears his name - which he likely never visited - has become a popular tourist destination, replete with trendy shops, historic architecture and outdoor activities connected to the mountainous region.

Ward said any tourist benefit that Thorpe's remains may have once provided has long become nonexistent.

9th Circuit rules in Grand Canyon Skywalk dispute

FLAGSTAFF, Ariz. (AP) – A federal appeals court says a Nevada developer must exhaust his legal battle over the Grand Canyon Skywalk contract dispute in tribal court before going to the federal level.

A lawyer for Las Vegas businessman David Jin told the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in San Francisco last October that the Hualapai (WAHL'-uh-peye) tribal court system lacks authority to hear the case.

Tribal attorneys say the operation of the popular glass bridge in northern Arizona is governed by Hualapai law.

Jin invested $30 million to build the bridge that opened in 2007. He and the tribe have disagreed on management fees and an incomplete visitors' center.

The tribal corporation that manages Skywalk also is appealing a $28 million judgment for Jin upheld last month by an Arizona federal judge.

Pro-gun Native American billboard draws criticism in Colorado

GREELEY, Colo. (AP) – Two billboards in which images of Native Americans are used to make a gun rights argument are causing a stir with some Colorado residents who say the image is offensive and insensitive.

The billboards in this northern Colorado city show three men dressed in traditional Native American attire and the words "Turn in your arms. The government will take care of you."

Matt Wells, an account executive with Lamar Advertising in Denver, said Monday that a group of local residents purchased the space.

"They have asked to remain anonymous," he said.

He also refused to disclose the cost but said the billboards are only appearing in the Greeley area. Wells said he has not received any complaints so far.

"I think it's a little bit extreme, of course, but I think people are really worried about their gun rights and what liberties are going to be taken away," Wells told the Greeley Tribune.

Greeley resident Kerri Salazar, who is of Native American descent, said she was livid when she learned about it. She said she doesn't have a problem with the gun rights message, but she's offended the Native American people were singled out, apparently without their consent.

"I think we all get that (Second Amendment) message. What I don't understand is how an organization can post something like that and not think about the ripple effect that it's gonna have through the community," she said.

Irene Vernon, a Colorado State University professor and chairwoman of the ethnic studies department, said the message on the billboard is taking a narrow view of a much more complicated history of the Native American plight. She said it's not as if Native Americans just gave up their guns and wound up on reservations.

"It wasn't just about our guns," said Vernon, a Native American.

Greeley resident Maureen Brucker, who has worked with Native American organizations and who frequents the Pine Ridge Indian Reservation in South Dakota as an honorary family member, said she thinks the billboards are making light of atrocities the federal government committed against Native Americans.

She said the billboard brings to her mind one of the most horrendous examples of that, the Wounded Knee Massacre on the Pine Ridge Reservation in 1890. Historical accounts say the 7th Cavalry had detained a band of Native Americans and asked them to give up their weapons. Troops began firing after a shot rang out. Death toll estimates of Native American men, women and children range from 150 to 300.

Brucker said she thinks those who put up the billboards should come forward to discuss their viewpoints.

"I thought it was pretty cowardly that someone would put something like that up and spend the money for a billboard but didn't have the courage to put their name on it," she said.

Native Fashion and Things of the 18th Century

The above photo is a painting of Joseph Brant done by Gilbert Stewart. This portrait shows Joseph Brant, a Mohawk Indian, wearing a diadem (or crown) made of birch bark, porcupine quills, mallard breast feathers, and ostrich feathers. He is also wearing a moon gorget neck lace. These were some items that Iroquois people wore in the 18th century.

Oneida basket and Kastowe headdress making scheduled to be demonstrated at Neville

The Fur Trade eras were an exciting time for cultural exchanges between the traders and the Native people. The Europeans brought many goods from other countries to trade with the Native American for furs in the 18th century. It's interesting to see how the Native people adapted and re-fashioned the trade goods for their own use.

Wool and cotton fabrics replaced buckskin. Trade beads and silver replaced porcupine quill decorations. Ostrich feathers and metal "coats of arms" adorned their fashion. The Native American design in clothing and accessories is unique and intriguing.

The Neville Public Museum and the Oneida Nation Arts Program presents "18th Century Native Fashion Day," on Saturday, May 11th from 11:00AM to 4:00PM at the Neville Public Museum, 210 Museum Place, Green Bay WI. The program is free with admission to the museum.

The event is informal and family friendly. Held on Mother's Day weekend, it's something the entire family can enjoy. Seamstresses and those who work with crafts, beads, silver, and feathers may find some inspirations for their next projects at this event.

Historians will present a slide show in the auditorium showing some Iroquoian clothing and accessories. There will also be a Menominee clothing exhibit featuring the unique ribbon applique, turbans, and other items. Live demonstrations for making Oneida baskets and kastowe headdresses are on the schedule. Children can enjoy a scavenger hunt in the "Edge of the Inland Sea" exhibit.

The presenters will show slide shows of 18th century clothing. Pittsburgh native Scott Stephenson holds an MA and PhD in American History from the University of Virginia. He will show "The Indian Fashion: Getting Dressed in 18th Century Native America," at 1:00pm.

Michael Galban, public historian at Ganondagan State Historic Site in Victor, NY, will show "Winnowing with Mohawks in Great Britain: A Pictoral Journey Through the Eastern Woodland Material," at 3:00pm. This presentation shows the collection of native things held in the Oxford Musuem in the United Kingdom.

For more information, please contact our Curator of Education, Matt Welter, at 920-448-7851 or visit the website at: nevillepublicmuseum.org

This program is supported in part by a grant from the Wisconsin Arts Board with funds from the State of Wisconsin and the National Endowment for the Arts.

Fun, Film and Native American Culture Come Together

The first film the Oneida Film Society will view is called Reel Injun, a documentary that looks at the history of Native Americans in film. People interested in getting a Native American perspective as well as film and history buffs will enjoy the evening. Oneida comedian/actor, Charlie Hill, will also be in attendance to give his perspective and add to the fun. The event will be held at the Oneida Nation Community Education Center, 2632 S. Packerland on Green Bay's west side, starting at 5 pm on May 14. The group is co-led by Norbert Hill Jr., an education leader in the Oneida Community with an interest in building a positive future for Native Americans, and JP Leary, an Assistant Professor at UWGB for First Native Studies.

In the post-Smoke Signals era, there is a sort of Renaissance in the world of Native American films, and through the Oneida Film Society, we hope to bring these efforts to our area. Part of the idea is to support our own people who are currently actors, directors, producers, screenwriters, etc., by watching and discussing their work. We also hope to inspire those who have an interest to consider telling their stories in this way. It is an exciting time, and we hope to share that excitement

Canine Obedience Classes Added to Pet Safety Program

Program Services

The Oneida Pet Safety Program is designed to help tribal members vaccinate their pets and to motivate pet owners to spay and neuter their pets– which is important to bite prevention.

Vaccinations, Spaying, and Neutering Services

The program will provide Oneida Retail Gift Cards in exchange for vet services. Pet owners will be responsible for taking their pet to any licensed veterinarian in Brown or Outagamie County. Pet owners must pay 100% of the bill at the time of service. After the pet receives service, pet owners who provide the following information will receive Oneida Retail Gift Cards;

1. Proof of vaccinations: An itemized receipt and/or rabies vaccination certificate.
2. Copy of your Oneida Tribal Identification Card
3. A copy of a current Oneida Pet License if you live on the reservation. You can bring your paperwork to either N7332 Water Circle Place, Little Bear Development Center, or at the Conservation Office, located at N8047 County Rd. U.

Limit 3 pets per household per year

Green Bay/Allouez Animal Hospital and Packerland Veterinary Center offer discounts to tribal members and employees.

Low Cost Pet Care Equipment Kits

In order for your pet to maintain its body heat in cold temperatures, it must be able to stay dry and out of the wind. Your pet also needs to have access to drinking water. If your pet spends anytime outdoors, he needs to have a safe and dry shelter. The Pet Safety Program offers medium and large maintenance free doghouses Each doghouse comes with plywood and insulation which is pre-cut to fit each doghouse. This provided additional protection in winter months. EHSD also provides straw bales. Straw provides essential warmth in the winter. Often, outdoor water pails tip over leaving a pet without drinking water. EHSD is offerings pet owners spill proof water bucket systems. Each kit costs $12 and are available to tribal members only. You will need to provide your Tribal Identification Card to participate. All proceeds go back into the Pet Safety Program. If you would like to purchase a Low Cost Pet Care Equipment Kit, contact Steve Linskens at 920-869-4571.

NEW! Canine Obedience Classes

Canine behavior training is another important component to bite prevention. Canine obedience classes will no longer be provided by Oneida Environmental, Health, and Safety Division, as they have historically been held at Sanger B Powers. Starting January 1, 2013, EHSD will provide tribal members who participate in ANY canine obedience class with one $25 Oneida Retail gift card, upon class completion.

To participate:

1. Register, pay for, and attend an accredited canine obedience class.
2. Upon completion or graduation bring in your class receipt and your certificate of completion, and your tribal identification card. EHSD will provide you with one $25.00 retail card.

Annual Youth and Elder Fishing Day is May 18

The Environmental Health & Safety Division is hosting our 14th annual fishing day on Saturday, May 18 from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Enjoy a day of fishing and fun at Osnúhsa? Kanya·tála (Finger Lake) on the Cultural Heritage grounds off 3707 Hillcrest Drive, Green Bay. This year's theme is Oneida Fishery Restoration: Sustaining Our Tradition. We will have information on the many restoration projects that our staff has been involved in to clean up the water and bring back the fish.

Approximately1000 rainbow trout will be stocked in the lake by our staff and US Fish and Wildlife Service prior to the event so there are plenty of fish to catch. Prizes will be awarded to the first 10 tagged trout caught. So dust off your fishing poles and we hope you join us to fish, eat lunch, and spend time with family and friends. We will have an area to teach casting and a limited of worms will be provided. Earn your chance to Dunk-The-Warden in a dunk tank by completing our event survey!

Funding for this year's event is from EPA Clean Water Act grant. Yaw^ko, a big thank you goes to our staff and community volunteers that continue to make this a successful event specifically the Environmental Resources Board members and Oneida Royalty. For information on the Oneida fishing and hunting regulations, contact the Conservation office at (920) 869-1450. For Youth & Elder Fishing Day event information contact (920) 869-4570.

Heritage Hill State Historical Park presents…

Springtime on the Farm event

Mark your calendar to attend…

Springtime on the Farm on Saturday, May 18, 2013. The event will be held from 10:00AM–4:30PM.

Fee: $9 Adult, $8 Senior, $7 Children 4-17, Heritage Hill Members and those 3 and under FREE.

Breakfast Cost: $2

Spring was a busy time on the farm. Join us on May 18 as we recreate some of the typical chores and activities that would have occurred on a Wisconsin farm at the beginning of the 20th century. Learn how to pick and card wool, try your hand at stuffing a mattress, smell the aroma of pies baking in the oven, learn how to make cheese, churn cream into butter or use a schnitzelbank (shaving bench) to make shingles.

This event will include plenty of demonstrations and hands on activities for the entire family, including "Addie the Cow." Addie is a life-size fiberglass milk cow that milks, moos, and wears bells and flowers. She is truly a kid and camera magnet that is experienced by thousands each year. In addition to Addie, there will be educational displays by the Sheboygan County Dairy Promotion Association. This is a new event that you won't want to miss! Also join us for our annual pancake and porkie breakfast. For more details go to www.heritagehillgb.org.

From 1B/Film Society

through the Oneida Film Society.

Over the last fifteen years, films about Native Americans more commonly feature Native actors in prominent roles. Years ago, it was common for Native people to be relegated to background roles while non-Indian stars played leads. As Charlie Hill says, "Starring Chuck Connors as Geronimo!" The SAG-AFTRA National Committee for Native Americans, led by DeLanna Studi (Cherokee) and Brian Wescott (Athabascan /Yup'ik), has done critical work to raise the awareness of casting directors, producers, and directors of the presence and talents of Native actors, and their ability to play a variety of roles, including contemporary roles and those not specifically written as Indian. The committee's work is yielding new artistic visions and creating new employment opportunities for Native people who might choose to pursue a career in the performing arts.

More recently, there is an increased presence of talented Native American artists on both sides of the camera. Neil Diamond (Cree), the director of Reel Injun, has created a powerful statement talking back to Hollywood, challenging non-Indian representations of Native people on the big screen. Chris Eyre (Cheyenne-Arapahoe) has become a highly accomplished filmmaker, and younger directors, such as Sterlin Harjo (Seminole/Creek), are making critically acclaimed independent films. Shouting Secrets, a major hit on the film festival circuit this year, including the Green Bay Film Festival, features an extensive Native cast and reflects the involvement of screenwriters Steven Paul Judd (Kiowa/Choctaw) and Tvli Jacob (Choctaw). Their efforts represent a new way to share our stories with the larger world as well as our own tribal communities.

Thornberry Creek at Oneida is sponsoring the event with a $25 gift certificate for a door prize. Register online to attend this free event at www.oneidafilmsociety.eventbrite.com/.

New School Nurse at ONHS!

By Heather Stevens
Thunderhawk Times

Margaret VanDen Heuval is ONHS's new school nurse. She is an enrolled tribal member, was born and raised on the Oneida Reservation, and even attended the Oneida Nation Elementary School from fourth to eighth grade.

She has completed many programs and internships in her field, such as working at the Brown County Jail as a nurse while working with the Oneida Community Health Center to continue her education.

She will finish her Master's degree in Nursing and Administration in May.

"The reason why I came to ONHS was to give back to my community. I wanted to get into a career helping students while hoping to make an impact on students' lives as well," said Vanden Heuvel. "The position as ONHS school nurse fits perfectly."

She also plans to further develop the nursing program here at ONHS.

Her future plans are to stay at ONHS as the school nurse, continue raising her family, finish her Master's degree, and earn her PhD sometime in the next 20 years.

When asked what advice she would give to ONHS students, Margaret said, "Live life with a purpose. Have a plan, stay healthy, and respect your teachers, family, and supporters because they do make a difference!"

Today's Tech Trends

By Emmitt Big Medicine
Thunderhawk Times

It is impressive how far technology has come. Each year, the world is excited about the newest gadgets, causing people to go into a frenzy. During the past years, we couldn't wait to get our hands on DVD players, digital cameras, plasma TVs, GPS systems, and smartphones. This past year, it has been all about iPads and tablets.

Now-a-days, touch phones, touch computer screens, and touch tablets are the norm. These can be a nice alternative to desktop computers, especially when traveling lightly. Technology likes to supersede itself, and we are the ones that keep on adjusting in the blink of an eye.

Today's best smartphones have great applications, and those play a big role on the tablet's popularity. Most people have an email or even a social networking site that they grew to like. We like to have social lives and have fun, so why not have it at the tip of our hands? What if we like bigger screens? It would be nice to have a larger screen on the go to create documents, read articles and books, surf the web, pay bills online, and even webcam with someone live!

This won't be the end for tablets either. They will become smarter, easier, larger in memory, and possibly cheaper (or maybe that's just for the older models). Soon we'll have our cable connected to all our tablets and not just our Wi-Fi. Yes, the option is already out there for some cable companies, but its popularity will rise. Touch screens are one of the biggest breakthroughs we've had. What will be next?

Cinco de Mayo

By Marcus Tucker
Thunderhawk Times

Cinco de Mayo is Spanish for "the fifth of May." It's obviously celebrated on May 5th. It is celebrated in Mexico and in the United States by Mexican–Americans.

It's like the United States' Independence Day, with some differences. The festival of Cinco de Mayo is centered in the state of Puebla to commemorate the victory over French forces. In the United States, the date is observed more as a celebration of Mexican pride and heritage than of Mexican independence.

There are plenty of parades all over the United States to celebrate the Mexican holiday, especially in areas where Hispanics have settled.

The victory over the French army is said to have boosted the Mexican army's morale and patriotism. In Time Magazine, a section of an article reporting on Cinco de Mayo said that it helped establish a much-needed sense of national unity and patriotism. The victory didn't last long though. The French invaded a year later and took Mexico City.

The Battle of Puebla was important because the Mexican army was outnumbered and less equipped, but they still defeated the French. Another reason is because no state or country in the Americas has been invaded by European armies since then.

The class of 2013 is starting to get ready for their big day. Graduation Day is right around the corner for the seniors. In the meantime, the seniors must keep their grades up to finish out the school year. The seniors should also be applying to colleges that they will want to attend. Students should start to prepare themselves as they are going to be on their own at college.

Senior Heather Stevens said, "I'm proud that I have made it this far, but we still have many challenges ahead of us."

The graduation day has been set to be on June 6th, 2013. It will take place at the Radisson once again. This year's graduating class consists of 23 seniors. It's a great graduation class that includes students who attended school together for many years.

Datone Jones is a Beast

By Bryan Quella
Thunderhawk Times

With the 26th pick in this year's NFL draft, the Green Bay Packers chose a defensive player, Datone Jones, who had 62 tackles, 19 tackles for a loss, 6.5 sacks, one forced fumble and two blocked kicks as a senior at UCLA. Jones is 6'4" and 283 pounds, but he's also pretty quick and strong.

Jones grew up in Compton, which tells me he is a real beast. He played high school football for Compton High School.

This is a good pick, but the Packers are going to need some help on the offensive line. They gave up 51 sacks in 2012, which was the second most in the league.

Where Are They Now? Luanne Funmaker

By Heather Stevens
Thunderhawk Times

Luanne Funmaker

Luanne Funmaker isn't your average Oneida Nation High School graduate. What makes her different from the rest of the ONHS alums is that she attended Oneida Nation Schools for her entire pre-school, elementary, middle, and high school career: from Headstart to the day she graduated from high school. She is an enrolled member of the Oneida tribe and was raised by her grandmother, Marjorie Funmaker, who just so happens to be the person Luanne looks up to the most because her grandma raised six adopted children and three grandchildren.

"My grandmother is amazingly strong, selfless, and gives whatever she has, even if she doesn't have any for herself. She overcame so much," Funmaker said.

Luanne is currently attending UW-Milwaukee as a graduate student earning a Bachelor's degree in Science, a double major in Psychology, and majoring in First Nations Studies while earning a minor in Human Development. In her graduating class, she was 1 of 15 others chosen to receive a "Who's Who" award in American Universities and Colleges while also receiving a Leadership award.

Along with those accolades, Funmaker was recently named the Wisconsin Indian Education Association (WIEA) College Student of the Year.

"We can't use obstacles as an excuse. We need to use them as a reason to fuel our fires and overcome those obstacles. Look at me: I'm 23 years old, I don't have any children, I'm not married, and I'm a grad student in college. I'm making something of myself. People told me that none of this would happen because I went to a tribal school, meaning that our schools were so much worse than other ones. But that's not true at all. I'm living proof of that."

Vice-Chairman's Corner...

Greg Matson
Vice-Chairman

Critical Time for the Oneidaship to Sailstrong into the Future....

THE BEGINNING....

At beginning of this Administration we made decisions about staffing which alluded to reorganization of our tribal structures and relationships to Tribal Corporations among many other relationships.

Those decisions have had a very interesting evolution. Some things may be positive and some things negative; however, we are where we are.

Where we go from here is one of my concerns. The gear visual represents a key portion of my proposal to get the conversation started again and get to a better place for individual tribal members, our community and our tribal organization.

The conversation around structure seems to have gone to the wayside and I want and need to bring it back up for further input and understanding of where we seem to be headed on our present path.

There are only 15 months left in this administration to address change necessary for a more efficient and effective government, productivity by our employees and service to our membership and community.

THE NOW....

We must make decisions that are well thought out, comprehensive and visionary:

What is the vision?

What is urgency to change?

What capabilities are required?

What is the incentive to make any changes?

What are the resources we need?

THE FUTURE....

Please join me and others in getting the conversation back about the design of our community and organization to fulfill our responsibilities to each other as members, community and employees.

Your comments to this portion of my proposed restructure are appreciated. What is your voice on these matters? Call me at 920-869-4403 or gmatson@oneidanation.org or call my Assistant Chaz Wheelock at 920-869-4412 or cwheeloc@oneidanation.org

Greg Matson
Oneida Tribal Vice Chairman

OBC Forum...

Shekólih,

Spring has finally arrived. It has been great to see all the wonderful activities beginning that this time of the year holds like the start of the baseball season, the T-Hawks lacrosse games and of course, the annual fish run up Duck Creek. While these outdoor activities keep us busy outside, so are we busy this time of year from a legislative perspective.

State Work

I have continued my work with tribal leaders from around the state through Wisconsin's Special Committee on State-Tribal Relations. There are several tribal issues that have been identified to be developed further for the upcoming WI legislative session and include items such as Act 31 (public schools teaching about tribes), ensuring tribes are represented at Regional Planning Committee meetings, equalizing tribal police officers pension plans similar to the state plan and amending the Safe Haven law to more readily identify tribal children. The tribal caucus meets on a regular basis at various tribal reservations around the state to examine these and other tribal issues. At the recent State of the Tribes Address in Madison, WI, LCO Chairman Gordon Thayer had the opportunity to lay out some of the issues we have been working on.

In addition to my work with the State-Tribal Relations, I continue to represent Oneida with the WI Dept. of Health Services as well as the Dept. of Children and Families for which the next consultations are May 22-23.

Federal Work

In addition to representing Oneida's health care issues at the state level, I also represent this issue at the Federal level and since February, have attended three (3) related meetings, two (2) in Washington, D.C. and one (1) in Minneapolis, MN. From the national perspective, we have many challenges facing us. The sequestration (automatic federal budget cuts) authorized by congressional leaders have gone into effect and directly impact Oneida. We know for certain the initial impact to our health area is approximately $1.2 million and there is more to come. An additional known impacted area is the Head Start. We will continue to assess how these large cuts will affect our current budget and the upcoming budget.

Melinda Danforth
Councilwoman

The loss of health dollars is not the only concern we are facing, transition to the Affordable Care Act is beginning across the nation and because the state of Wisconsin has chosen to not participate in the health care marketplaces (meaning, create a state run plan); so we must work directly with the federal government to ensure we are included in the federal marketplace.

Home Front

In January, the General Tribal Council (GTC) adopted the Judiciary Act; this GTC action dissolves the current tribal Judicial System (a.k.a. Oneida Appeals Commission) and creates a new Tribal Judiciary. The new Judiciary can begin accepting cases on Nov. 1, 2014. However, before the new Judiciary can accept cases, the proper infrastructure must be in place and ready to go. Work on the new Judiciary's infrastructure is being completed through a transition plan. My office is leading the work with the organization to put together the transition which addresses several areas including: additional legislative needs, administrative needs, personnel, budget, location/space needs and communication. A comprehensive update on the process of transitioning to the new Judiciary is being scheduled for the July GTC meeting.

Another item my office is leading the charge on is the Secretarial Election which may change Oneida's constitution. As you may recall, GTC approved moving forward with asking five (5) constitutional questions, including: changing our official name to Oneida Nation, lowering the voting age to 18 years-old, eliminating the Secretary of Interior, eliminating the mandatory "first Monday" GTC meeting requirement and adding a Judicial Branch of government. Recent indications from the Bureau of Indian Affairs are that Oneida is another step closer to having a Secretarial Election authorized. When official notice is received, things will happen quickly, so please watch for upcoming information through community forums, mailers and social media postings.

May 5 GTC Meeting

Three important decisions will need to be made by the GTC Sun., May 5 the first will be about the tribe's vision and what our priorities are as a nation. In the packet you will see the information collected from over 100 tribal members at interactive sessions held last year. This information can be used as a starting point to confirm what we should be working on as a nation and as a community and then align our budget accordingly.

The next item you will be asked to decide on is a per capita plan. There are three proposals before you; the first two are the results of the diligence conducted by the finance area which GTC asked for, the third option is a petition. Please take the time to read the information provided to you in your GTC packet; it is important for us all to understand the impacts of each proposal and what it means for our ability to provide jobs and services. I realize and understand the arguments being made about "excessive" spending, especially when you see your leaders contributing to the problem; however, I urge each of us to address the problem – these issues need to stand alone, be decided based on their merits and addressed in a way that will create the real changes we are looking for and that is why my office is working to bring forward a Code of Ethics which will provide us a mechanism to hold leaders accountable.

Lastly, GTC will be asked to determine how technology can work for us by creating a system which recycles more waste back into the consumer consumption cycle. New or untested technology is always a scary thing, it is for me as well and I have been doing my homework so I can understand what is being proposed. I encourage you to and ask the questions about waste to energy processes.

If you have not received your GTC meeting packet, you may go to the tribe's website and log-in to the member's only page at this address: https://oneida-nsn.gov/MembersOnly.aspx. Sign up is easy and only takes a few minutes to complete.

1. Oneida Golf Enterprise Board report on material changes and developments
Sponsor: Ed Delgado
Motion by Vince DelaRosa that the Oneida Golf Enterprise Board prepare a written management follow-up plan addressing financial issues, management issues and personnel related matters as it relates to the golf course and that they send this plan to the entire Business Committee by Monday morning, April 15, 2013, seconded by Patty Hoeft. Motion carried with one opposed:
Ayes: Tina Danforth, Vince DelaRosa, Patty Hoeft, David Jordan, Paul Ninham
Opposed: Greg Matson
Not present: Melinda J. Danforth, Brandon Stevens
Motion by Tina Danforth that the Oneida Golf Enterprise Board send to the entire Business Committee a report in writing verifying the renewal of their loan with Bay Bank by 9 a.m. Monday, April 15, 2013, seconded by Vince DelaRosa. Motion carried unanimously.
Motion by Paul Ninham that if the written management follow-up plan motioned for is not acceptable to the Business Committee that the Business Committee remove the Board of Directors immediately, seconded by Greg Matson. Motion carried with two abstained and one opposed:
Ayes: Greg Matson, Patty Hoeft, Paul Ninham
Opposed: Vince DelaRosa
Abstained: Tina Danforth, David Jordan
For the record: Vince DelaRosa stated I really don't want to drag in any threats. I understand what you are trying to do is to have an enforcement mechanism. I'm hoping that they will do the right thing.
For the record: Tina Danforth stated I am abstaining because one, we just had a conversation about not micro-managing and two, there may be 20 steps that they take in that management plan and if someone doesn't agree with just one step, well how do you quantify disagreeing? So I don't think it's appropriate at this time to take that kind of action.
For the record: Greg Matson stated the reason I support and vote in favor is because somebody needs to make a decision from what I'm aware of Monday. And if the Board cannot make that decision, it gives us the option to make that decision.

Adjourn
Motion by David Jordan to adjourn at 6:50 p.m., seconded by Vince DelaRosa. Motion carried unanimously.

Math and reading improve for all racial/ethnic groups

WSAS data reported using college and career readiness expectations

MADISON ~ Statewide test results in mathematics and reading, using Wisconsin's new college and career readiness expectations, show improvement over five years for all racial and ethnic groups.

Last fall, more than 430,000 public school students took Wisconsin Knowledge and Concepts Examinations (WKCE) or Wisconsin Alternate Assessments for Students with Disabilities (WAA-SwD). Overall results showed 48.1 percent of students were proficient or advanced in mathematics, up 3.1 percentage points from 2008-09. In reading, 36.2 percent of students were proficient or advanced, up 1.1 percentage points from five years ago. Results for all racial and ethnic groups improved over five years.

However, achievement gaps remain large.

"Our students are showing gains in math and reading, and we are taking steps to accelerate achievement and close gaps," said State Superintendent Tony Evers.

"New proficiency levels implemented statewide for the WKCE math and reading tests mirror proficiency levels used by the National Assessment of Educational Progress. Adjusting to higher expectations will take time and effort, but these are necessary changes that will ultimately help our schools better prepare all students to be college and career ready and link with work being done throughout the state to implement new standards and other parts of Agenda 2017."

Data from the 2012-13 assessments show that more of the state's students are living in poverty as measured by eligibility for free and reduced-price school meals. Overall, 41.9 percent of tested students were from low-income families, up 0.4 percentage points from last year and 7.2 percentage points from the 2008-09 school year. When looking at racial and ethnic groups, subsidized meal eligibility rose to 81 percent for black students, 77.6 percent for Hispanic students, 68 percent for American Indian students, and 50.8 percent for Asian students. For white students, 30.3 percent qualify for free and reduced-price meals this school year.

Poverty rates were up slightly for nearly all student groups from last school year. The percentage of Asian students eligible for subsidized school meals dropped 1.4 percentage points from last year and 2.6 percentage points from five years ago. The percentage of Asian students scoring proficient or advanced in reading and mathematics showed the largest gains and gap closing over five years.

Other results from Wisconsin Student Assessment System (WSAS) data show

• Mathematics achievement continued to improve among middle and high school students but was flat at the elementary level. At middle school, 48.1 percent of students were proficient or advanced up 1.8 percentage points from last year and 4.9 points from the 2008-09 school year. At high school, mathematics achievement was up 0.6 percentage points from last year and 5 percentage points over five years. Elementary mathematics achievement was down 2.2 percentage points from last year and up 0.4 percentage points compared to the 2008-09 school year.

•Overall reading achievement is making slight gains; up 0.4 percentage points from last year and 1.1 points from the 2008-09 school year. The percentage of elementary and middle school students who were proficient or advanced also showed a one-year gain. For elementary students, 34.2 percent were at the proficient or advanced proficiency levels, up 0.4 percentage points from last year. Reading achievement in middle school improved by 1.6 percentage points from last year and 1.5 percentage points from the 2008-09 school year. High school reading achievement was down from last year by 3.2 percentage points, but up 3.3 percentage points from the 2008-09 school year and is best described as steady.

Students in grades three through eight and grade 10 took WSAS examinations in reading and mathematics during the Oct. 22 to Nov. 23, 2012, testing window. New cut scores are based on National Assessment of Educational Progress (NAEP) proficiency levels. (The 2009 and 2011 NAEP results show that Wisconsin students are above national averages for mathematics and reading.) The more rigorous proficiency levels, which measure college and career readiness, were used to report the percentage of students who were proficient or advanced for the current testing period and retroactively to statewide results from the previous four years. Students in grades four, eight, and 10 also took assessments in language arts, science, and social studies.

Comprehensive Plan: Goals, objectives identified

By Oneida Planning Department

The tenth comprehensive plan community meeting was held at the Little Bear Development Center on March 7, 2013. The plan element presented was Education.

The comprehensive planning process represents the Oneida community people's voice in addressing all 16 plan elements affecting the social, economic, and physical growth of our community. Our plan is developed through a "grassroots" approach where community has a forum to express their ideas, reactions and concerns of well-being and quality of life. The Oneida community, executive leaders, managers, and Tribal departments use the comprehensive plan as a reference and guide in the development of Tribal plans, initiatives, and policies.

The 16 plan elements are:

1) Health Care
2) Education
3) Housing
4) Community Design
5) Parks and Recreation
6) Utilities
7) Community Facilities
8) Transportation
9) Public Safety
10) Government Coordination and Regulations
11) Economic Development
12) Agriculture
13) Natural Resources
14) Environmental Protection
15) Tsiʔ Niyukwaliho· tʌ· (Department of Culture)
16) Land Use

Oneida's education comprehensive plan element consists of a wide range of responsibility. Education programming ranges from womb to tomb, so to speak, with the unique quality of incorporating the Oneida language, history, values and our ways into the curriculum that we have control over.

Starting with our very youngest children Oneida offers child care with adopted curriculum to enhance the social, emotional, physical, language, communication, thinking skills and development that are the building blocks for a lifetime of learning. Additionally, the early intervention program provides speech and language, occupational and physical therapy services for children 3 – 5 years of age with an educational disability. Head Start Programs promote the development and well-being of young children and ensure kindergarten readiness. Youth Enrichment Services (YES) serves Oneida children in 5 school districts with academic assistance and advocacy, financial assistance, college and career development activities, resource and referral services, leadership workshops, cultural awareness and activities, and many other student and family programming. The Oneida Nation School System, which is the only education entity that is managed by the Oneida School Board, embraces the guiding principle that all young people have limitless potential and opportunity. The school system upholds this philosophy through the implementation of the highest standards of excellence in academics, culture, and an integrated, holistic, collaborative approach to lifelong learning. Our Community Education Center (CEC) provides academic instruction, tutoring, technology training, learning opportunities and career guidance to all members of our Tribe throughout life. The Tribes' job training programs service American Indians who are low-income, unemployed or underemployed, or disabled to gain stable employment opportunities. Finally, the Higher Education Grant Program provides guidance, support and financial assistance to eligible members who attend accredited institutions of higher learning.

Below are the goals and objectives of the Comprehensive Plan Element of Education, along with detailed information about the education programming that is currently available.

Goals and Objectives

General: The goal of the 2026 Education and Training Plan is to meet the current and projected needs of community members and of the Oneida Nation to assure a high standard of living, effective and efficient business, and organizational continuity.

Goal 1
The Oneida Tribe shall provide access to funds for post-secondary learning opportunities.

Objective 1.1
Provide funds for additional support staff to assist in pursuing external grant and scholarship opportunities.

Objective 1.2
Aggressively support an Education Endowment Fund to be self-sustaining in ten years.

Objective 1.3
Communicate the higher education process and grant/scholarship opportunities.

Goal 2
The Oneida Tribe shall provide encouragement and support fostering lifelong learning opportunities ensuring self-sufficiency.

Goal 3

Oneida Nation School System

Mission statement: The Oneida Nation School System will be the learning system of choice for our children by embracing the guiding principle that all young people have limitless potential and opportunity.

– The Oneida Nations School System upholds this philosophy through the implementation of the highest standards of excellence in academics, culture and an integrated, holistic, collaborative approach to life-long learning for the individual student, family, community and nation.
– The commitment to excellence creates a path to responsible leadership, to plan and design the future in which the Oneida way of life is reflected and sustained.
– The source of our continued survival emerges from our Oneida cultural beliefs. We have always place a high value on living in harmony with all living things the creator has placed upon and around Mother Earth. Our culture has valuable lessons and concepts which must be transferred to our children in order to meet the many challenges of the future they will undoubtedly face.
– We feel that an atmosphere based upon the founding principles of the Iroquois Confederacy, many of which are included in the United Stated Constitution, are vital to Oneida students developing an understanding and practice of mutual respect.
– The Oneida Nation Schools are dedicated to recognizing the individual's worth, dignity and mutual respect among all people, young and old, as well as, members of the world family. This dedication provides the encouragement for each child to feel accepted and valued. The Oneida Nation School presents each student with the opportunity to experience and learn to accept the responsibility of caring and accepting others.
– Oneida Nation Schools will continue to revitalize our Oneida language and culture by using Oneida ideas and materials most meaningful to our students.
– Through the strength of the Oneida language and culture, our responsibility to our children and to the generations to come is to prepare our students for leadership roles and positions of responsibility.
– Culture evolves from language. Language carries cultural norms in an upward spiral which encompasses all community members. Oneida cultural concepts flow upward, moving from the general to the specific and back to the general again. The cultural concepts seek their own balance as they meet the evolving needs of the people.
– The cultural spiral of knowledge brings a higher progression of awareness. All parts of the environment are interdependent. Each part has an integral function that affects the whole. The interweaving of human beings in a social setting and the organisms that thrive in the natural world follow the same natural laws. Students will attain this cultural knowledge through four processes.
– Nurturing the individual is the first process. Students will learn pride in their identity. They will learn self-respect which will in turn engender respect for others and for everything that exists in being adaptable to change, having confidence in one's abilities and a willingness to be a self-advocate. Oneida students will leave with a deep understanding of themselves espousing the Oneida value of REASON.
– Herbs, medicines, and ceremonies are ways of achieving equilibrium in the body. Students will acquire the capabilities of maintaining balance. Students will exercise self-control using the resources provided by the earth. Oneidas understand the close relationship between a healthy mind and body. This value is incorporated in the Oneida concept of PEACE.
– Our students will learn they are members of an Oneida community and recognize the responsibilities between the individual and the environment. Responsibilities are acquired through cooperation within the framework of the clan system and through the language which addresses respect to all living things. The student skills learned will include active listening, seeing other perspectives, decision-making, and arriving at a consensus. These responsibilities and skills reflect leadership qualities that are inherent in the Oneida principle of RIGHTEOUSNESS. Righteousness is the belief in the basic rights which belong to the people. By fulfilling those responsibilities, students will assure preservation of the environment and survival of the community.
– There are many symbols in Oneida culture fostering unity. Cultural activities transmit significant teachings and symbolic relationships. Examples include the concept of wampum and illustrative stories that explain our origins as People of the Great Tree. The arts, crafts, songs, dances and games are both ceremonial and social. Those activities promote unity. Their cultural message is derived from the Oneida concept of POWER which is a belief system and explains our existence here as human beings. The concepts of power are the norms, rules, and customs of society. These laws and customs are based on the authority derived from government and religion.
– The Oneidas have a unique cultural world. To empower our students as they participate in the Western culture, it is important they be given the opportunity to discover and explore their cultural identity first. Students will leave enriched with a positive, coherent sense of self.
– It is understood that the education process for ethnic groups has been and can be destructive or constructive to growth and development. With this in mind, the school provides opportunities for students to know what is their own in contrast to what belongs to others. Multiethnic education leads to higher level thinking skills and an appreciation for others. Our students will be culturally literate in the best sense of the word

Oneida Nation Community Education Center – (CEC)

Vision: To develop the people to sustain the sovereign Oneida Nation for the next seven generations.

Mission: To provide and promote quality education and training opportunities for all members of the Tribe from early childhood throughout life.

Values: The Oneida Nation Community Education Center partners with tribal and non-tribal entities to address the educational enrichment needs of our community members. This is accomplished through academic instruction, tutoring, technology training, learning opportunities, and career guidance.

– We offer instruction in general computers, Windows operating sytem, Microsoft office 2010 programs, quickbooks, photoshop, and more. Training takes place based on a regular monthly schedule or in customized training by request of Oneida Tribal departments.
– Tribal members can do academic/educational work or search and apply for jobs in the CEC computer lab. Wi-Fi access is also available for laptops, tablets and smartphones.
– In 2011, 3064 community members participated in the General Education Diploma program (GED); 108 new students started their GED; 42 completed GED and went on to higher education institutions.
– In 2012, 1170 community members participated in the GED program; 56 new students started their GED; 42 completed GED and went on to higher education institutions.
– In 2013 so far, 500 community members participated in the GED program; 60 new students started their GED; 30 completed GED and went on to higher education institutions.
– Successful collaboration with Oneida Human Resource Department, Oneida Community Health Center, Oneida Bingo and Casino, College of Menominee Nation, Northeast Wisconsin Technical College for community member and employee self-improvement for furthering their education or becoming trained for tribal/outside job placement.

• Comprehensive Plan Status:

Job Training Programs

WIA Employment and Training and Vocational Rehabilitation Services

– Basic eligibility criteria includes enrolled Native American living in Brown or Outagamie County; annual income base on family size, must be at or below HHS annual poverty guidelines; unemployed or underemployed; or be a person with a disability and such disability must create a barrier to employment.

Vision: A nation of strong families built on Tsi?Niyukwaliho·tʌ́ (our ways).

Mission: To enhance the employability of American Indians who are low-income, unemployed or underemployed, or who are persons with a disability, assisting them to seek realistic goals and to gain appropriate employment resulting in long-term employment stability.

Higher Education Grant Program

Mission statement: The Higher Education office promotes higher education to all eligible members by providing guidance, support, and financial assistance to those attending accredited institutions of higher learning with a goal toward self-sufficiency.

– From 1997 to 2012 grant expenditures increased from 2.8 million dollars to 12.9 million dollars per year.
– From 1997 to 2012 the number of students increased from 380 to 1233 students per year.
– Most attended post-secondary schools include Northeast Wisconsin Technical College, College of Menominee Nation, University of Wisconsin-Green Bay, Concordia, University of Phoenix, Milwaukee MATC, Fox Valley Technical College, Rasmussen College, University of Wisconsin- Milwaukee, and University of Wisconsin-Madison.
– Data on Student academic levels for 2012-2013 include: 345 Freshman, 247 sophomore; 138 junior; 157 senior; 120 masters; 8 juris doctorate; 28 doctoral (PhD); and 4 medical/dental.
– Data on program for 2012-2013 includes 1058 students received high education grants; 30 years old is the average student age; $11,497 is the average amount of grant; 60% of students are female and 40% are male; 166 or 16% of students take on-line classes; 151 or 14% of students are tribal employees; 202 or 19.3% of students are attending for-profit schools.
– Top student majors for 2012-2013 are business, health, social science, liberal arts, law, education, communication and computer.
– Data on graduation numbers are 248 for 2011; 213 in 2012 and 76 so far in 2013.
– The future of the Higher Education Grant Program includes an update to technology by providing applicants with the option to apply and complete the Oneida Higher Education form on-line, and check their status on-line. Reducing printing, mailing and decrease processing time and staff time of re-keying application information.
– Plans for the future also include revising the Higher Education program guidelines due to on-going changes within Higher Education options since the 1996 Education Resolution, e.g., varies learning options; accelerated, self-pace, blended, on-line, weekends or once a month. Develop a funding formula for room and board per General Tribal Council Resolution 1-30-10-A (consider making need-based).
– Network with Oneida Human Resource Department in regard to Higher Education student recruiting.

Community response to Child Care was that there is a long waiting list and is the need for more child care being addressed? The Tribe subsidizes 97% of the child care budget; therefore, funding is a major obstacle to growing the program. Youth Enrichment Services does monitor the graduation rate of the 5 school districts, which is at 70% and compares to the national average for American Indians. A question was raised about some children in Headstart who cry a lot. How do the teachers handle these situations? Every situation is different and teachers may not be qualified to work with a child's special needs, so a referral can be made for the child to the appropriate program or agency, however, parents cannot be forced to follow through with the referral.

A comment was made that the Oneida Nation High School graduation rate of 90% is phenomenal. This fact is due to a commitment to work with special needs creatively. The school just completed a 5 year accreditation process. The future of the Oneida Nation High School will be to build a new high school.

Eighty percent of Higher Education students are completing their degrees. The question was asked if there is a critical profession list for the Tribe. A comment was made that perhaps Oneida could be doing a strength analysis of individuals compared to just directing students to the critical professions. Career counseling and individual assessments are attempted to be done. Knowledge of general job outlooks for the area is tracked. Further, collaboration with other programs to build a Tribal skills bank and to track future job trends would be ideal.

It was asked if an area in the Tribe could offer a work program for children starting at age 15 where they are taught how to work. For example, offer an eight week work program with specific expectations and outcomes of the work experience.

A question was asked about the role of our government and other governments. The example was given that language and culture is a line item in our budget rather than it being woven into every program. Every voice is important so how do we ensure community participation? Who takes the lead on providing funding priorities? Is it time to revisit the General Tribal Council mandates and ask membership to consider if it is valid to continue funding them in light of the increasing budget deficit?

Duayne Matson splits the Bay Port defense as he brings the ball up the field.

The Oneida Nation Thunderhawks lacrosse team traveled to Bay Port High School to take on the Pirates. Oneida grabbed an early lead in the first half, leading at halftime by a score of 3-1. In the second half the T-Hawks turned up the intensity on offense and pulled away from the Pirates. Oneida defeated Bay Port by a final score of 9-2.

DC councilmember wants Redskins to change name

By Ben Nuckols
Associated Press

WASHINGTON ~ A D.C. Councilmember plans to introduce a resolution that calls on the Washington Redskins to change their name.

Councilmember David Grosso, an at-large independent, says the name is "racist and derogatory," and that "it's time to make a change."

Grosso says a majority of his fellow councilmembers have agreed to co-sponsor the non-binding resolution.

The team's nickname has been the subject of renewed debate in recent months. A group of Native Americans has launched a new court battle to deny the team federal trademark protection, which would essentially force a name change.

Grosso's resolution suggests "Redtails" as a new nickname. He says it would honor the Tuskegee Airmen and allow the team to maintain its fight song and color scheme with a few minor changes.

Cooperstown school adopts Hawkeyes as new nickname

COOPERSTOWN, N.Y. (AP) ~ Athletes in James Fenimore Cooper's upstate New York hometown will take the field as the Hawkeyes after dropping the long-standing nickname Redskins.

Local media outlets report that the school board in the village of Cooperstown voted for the change last week after Hawkeyes topped a survey of potential replacements referring to the author's works, including Deerslayers and Pathfinders.

Hawkeye was a nickname of "Natty" Bumppo, the hero of Coopers' series "Leatherstocking Tales."

Dropping the nickname that dated back to the 1920s was prompted by Cooperstown Central School students who found it offensive to American Indians.

Cooperstown is best known as the home of the National Baseball Hall of Fame and Museum. But it was also the hometown of Cooper, who wrote "The Last of the Mohicans."

GTC weighs future during special meeting

By Nate Wisneski
Kalihwisaks
nwisnes@oneidanation.org

The General Tribal Council (GTC) took action blocking any gasification, waste-to-energy, or plastics recycling facilities developed by Oneida Seven Generations Corporation (OSGC) within reservation boundaries during a special meeting on Sunday, May 5 at the Radisson Hotel and Conference Center. The GTC also passed a per capita plan paying $1,000 annually for 2014, 2016, and 2017.

Both of OSGC's facilities are in a state of flux. Their Green Bay waste-to-energy facility is working its way through the legal system. OSGC appealed a January ruling by Brown County Circuit Court Judge Marc Hammer upholding the Green Bay City Council's decision to rescind a conditional use permit (CUP) in October of 2012.

Sunday's GTC ruling now stops plans for a plastics to oil facility at N7329 Water Circle Place in Oneida. Sunday's decision prohibits any gasification, waste-to-energy, or plastics recycling facilities within boundaries but does allow OSGC to develop and implement these technologies outside the reservation. OSGC declined comment on any future plans but did say they will cooperate with the GTC's wishes.

"The GTC is the ultimate authority. The corporation respects their decision and will follow the GTC's directive," said OSGC Board Chairman William Cornelius.

Before supporting Leah Dodge's petition seeking the ban, the GTC nearly tabled the topic. OSGC's presentation featured technological glitches, at no fault of their own, and was not able to show their full presentation. That with the amount of time already spent on the agenda's other topics some felt it was best to re-approach the petition at a later date. The table was voted down by a vote of 755 to 814. Petition support was passed by a simple hand vote.

Dodge was pleased with the outcome.

"I'm proud of GTC for defending itself against OBC and OSGC which is a first step in showing the world that GTC isn't buying what OSGC is selling, and the next steps are to divest the Tribe of the incineration business and dissolve some corporations, while setting and enforcing higher standards for corporate behavior," said Dodge. "Some officials seem to think they simply need to better explain OSGC's projects because GTC just doesn't understand how wonderful their incineration plans are, but I'll continue to work with other GTC members to make it clear: We understand perfectly well what they're up to, and we plan to stop them."

Shortly after the meeting the tribe released a statement on the results of the GTC meeting.

"Tribal members have made their position clear – we have more questions than answers (about the gasification plant) – and until that changes, members are uncomfortable supporting the proposed facility," the statement said. "We have to be cautious, however, that we as a tribe don't prematurely derail innovative ideas that protect and improve the environment and create jobs."

A New Per Capita Plan

The GTC took action accepting a new per capita plan paying $1,000 annually for 2014, 2015, and 2016. The current plan is set to expire after this year's payment. In 2008 the GTC approved the current plan and directed the Oneida Business Committee to develop and implement a GTC approved plan for fiscal year 2014.

The new plan was passed after a petition requesting $1,500 annually over three years was voted down. Initially, Chairman Delgado refused to acknowledge the $1,500 per year motion citing the current financial situation of the tribe.

"It's a fiscally irresponsible motion that endangers the future of our tribe. That's why I'm not recognizing it," said Delgado.

The Chairman's decision was appealed and overturned allowing the GTC to vote down the $1,500 petition.

Silas Jr. wins NAMMY for Best Male Artist

By Nate Wisneski
Kalihwisaks
nwisnes@oneidanation.org

Many award winners will say they didn't expect to claim victory. Unlike most of those winners Wayne Silas Jr. actually means it.

Silas was named Best Male Artist for his round dance album "True" at the Native American Music Awards held on May 10 at the Niagara Hotel and Casino in Niagara Falls, New York.

After being nominated Silas, Jr. was to meet up with another nominee in Chicago to travel together to the show. When they backed out. Silas was unsure if he wanted to go.

"Once plans started falling apart I expected that to continue. I kind of just wanted to stay home. I told myself not to expect it, not to expect it. I was in the Best Male Artist category against some very talented guys that have been out there for a while. I was expecting to give the gracious loser clap but when they said my name I didn't believe it. I was not prepared. I didn't know what to say," said Silas. " Luckily the right things came out. There were so many people I wanted and should have thanked; I thought I needed to get off the stage. It was probably one of the best nights of my music career so far."

Denny to be emersed in history at Cambridge

By Dawn Walschinski
Kalihwisaks

Sasheen Denny excelled at studying history at Alverno College in Milwaukee. Now she's going to make history as the first Native American to receive the Davies-Jackson Scholarship which will allow her to study at Cambridge in England.

"It's still not quite real in my mind that I will be walking in buildings that have seen more history than I could even begin to study. The school will be filled with stories and ghosts and all those kinds of things. As a history major it's like my Heaven to be able to go to a school with that much of a colorful past," she said.

Denny was valedictorian of the Spotted Eagle High School class of 2009 in Milwaukee. She began on a different academic track at Alverno, but found she didn't enjoy it.

"I started out as a computer and information technology major, but I really was not happy at all," she said. "I learned a lesson in that you can be good at something, that doesn't mean it's going to make you happy."

After coming across some information about a history program, Denny decided to change majors.

"I ended up listening to everybody tell me that I was not happy and I needed to do something about it, so I made the switch to history and completely changed my life," she said. "I've always loved history ever since I was little. I grew up watching documentaries and being fascinated with the past. I had a huge frustration with the narrative of Native Americans in history because it wasn't correct, obviously. A lot of times it's still not correct, there's still misconceptions."

In addition to her studies, Denny has been active with the Milwaukee area American Civil Liberties Union, served as president of the Alverno Student Alliance, and was vice-president of the Circle K Club, a collegiate service organization.

> "Learning about the past is always going to help build a better future."

Last September, Denny's academic advisor Professor John Savagian asked her if she wanted to take a shot at the Davies-Jackson Scholarship which is available to first generation college graduates who are attending one of 400 private collages. Denny wrote three essays and got three recommendations, and received an email in January that she had won the scholarship.

"I was not expecting it, not at all," said Denny. "(I) obviously freaked out, still kind of shocked."

Denny will graduate this spring with academic honors and has been chosen as a student speaker. She credits her strong desire for learning to her mother Cindy Denny and grandmother Marvel Denny.

"They're extremely proud of me which just makes it more meaningful to me that I have them to back me up. My grandma taught me how to read, she taught me how to break up the words, and my mom's always been a real big reader. The fact that I love reading and I've been so academically driven is because of my grandma and my mom. The fact that they've seen what they've helped do is really rewarding."

Denny hopes to use her skills and experiences to give back to Oneida in the future.

"I'm really passionate about being an advocate," she said. "Learning about the past is always going to help build a better future."

In addition to winning the Davies-Jackson Scholarship, Shasheen Denny as selected to speak at her graduation ceremony at Alverno College.

King, Robert W.
September 9, 1952 – May 6, 2013

Robert W. "Bob" King, 60, of Oneida, passed away on Monday, May 6, 2013.

Born on Sept. 9, 1952, in Menominee County, he is the son of the late Austin and Hazel (Kitson) King. Robert was united in marriage to Barbara Ladd on June 17, 1972. He worked at Schneider as a mechanic for 35 years and the past several years as a truck driver. Robert was a hard working man. He enjoyed hunting, and was a father figure to his hunting crew, the Long Marsh Manglers. He was loved by everyone, all of whom he had a nickname for. He sincerely cared about everyone he knew and he lit up any room he was in. Robert was a loving father and papa, and was wonderful husband and best friend to his wife, Barb. He was a member of the St. Michael's Catholic Church in Keshena.

He is survived by his wife, Barb; his children, Bobbi Jo (Ronald Jr.) King, of Oneida, Jacy (Jeffrey) Rasmussen, of Oneida, Slade (fiancee, Jourdan Carpenter) King, of South Branch; seven grandchildren, Caelan, Camdyn, Ronni King, Jordyn, Sequoya, Riley Rasmussen, Shawn King and one on the way. Robert is further survived by a brother, Wayne Pecore; a sister, Pamela Grignon; and numerous other relatives and friends.

Robert is preceded in death by his parents; daughter, Cher Estelle King in infancy; and a brother, Jerry King.

Funeral services were held at 11 a.m. Saturday, May 11, 2013, at St. Michael's Catholic Church in Keshena. Visitation was held at the Swedberg Funeral Home in Shawano on Friday from 4-8 p.m. and at the church on Saturday from 10 a.m. until the time of the service. A parish wake service was scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Friday.

Swedberg Funeral home is assisting the family with the arrangements.

Reiter, John Bernard
March 25, 1916 - May 9, 2013

John Bernard "Naeqtam piet" Reiter, age 97 of Keshena, passed away on Thursday, May 9, 2013. Born on March 25, 1916 in Neopit, John is the son of the late Antone and Susan (Cardish) Reiter. He served his country in the United States Army during WWII when he was drafted in August of 1941 until his discharge in February of 1946. John and Davey Jean O'Kimosh were united in marriage in Hannaville, Upper Michigan; she preceded him in death on October 13, 2010. On January 19, 2008, John Reiter Appreciation Day was declared. John was one of the founders and an active member of the Menominee American Legion and the Menominee Veterans Association. Prior to his death, John was the oldest living Menominee male and he was recently honored when the Menominee School District named their apple orchard after him.

John is preceded in death by his wife, Davey Jean; his parents, Antone and Susan; 7 brothers and sisters, Louis, James "Jimmy", Francis, Antone "Cony", Mary and Helen.

John is survived by numerous relatives and several special families including: Mr. and Mrs. Richard O'Kimosh, Sr.; Richard O'Kimosh, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. James Reiter; Dawn Reiter; Kristin Boivin; Diane (Mike Reiter) O'Kimosh and special friend, Peggy Kohus.

Funeral services were held at 3:00 p.m. on Monday, May 13, 2013 at the St. Michael's Parish Hall with Dave "Nahwahkwaeh" Grignon officiating. Visitation was held at the hall on Sunday, May 12, 2013 from 3:00 p.m. until the service on Monday. Military rights were conducted by the Veterans of the Menominee Nation and the Menominee American Legion Post #497. Swedberg Funeral Home assisted the family with the arrangements.

Precious Feet
By Jody L. LaRock

Precious, Precious, Precious feet;
…so tiny, so new , so neat.
Oh, how I loved the way they felt;
…kicking inside of me.
Those precious, precious, precious feet;
…cute and petite.
…So active and so alert
Just reminiscing of how hard
You would kick and move…
I remember some times, it'd hurt.
Those precious, precious, precious feet;
Oh, how they never skipped a beat.
…Imagining you dancing
Everytime there was music to be playing…
And, the way, you would just rumble
…Listening to your Daddy speak.
Those precious, precious, precious feet;
…So thankful for you
Our darling son, Andrew
Even if only for a little while;
We are so Grateful to be able to have that time with you;
Our beautiful child
Those precious, precious, precious feet;
…so strong and so sweet.
An imprint forever within our heart…
Keeping us together
and, "never really" apart.
We Love You, Andrew
oxoxox

Happy 2nd Birthday to you in Heaven…
Sadly missed by Mama & Daddy, Sisters, Grandma & Grandpa, and Auntie

In Loving Memory of
Carl David Parker
Wishing you a Happy Birthday on May 29

Those we love don't go away;
they walk beside us every day.
That He may bless our lonely home, where once you dwelt therein and pray that God might give us strength, to bear our heavy cross,
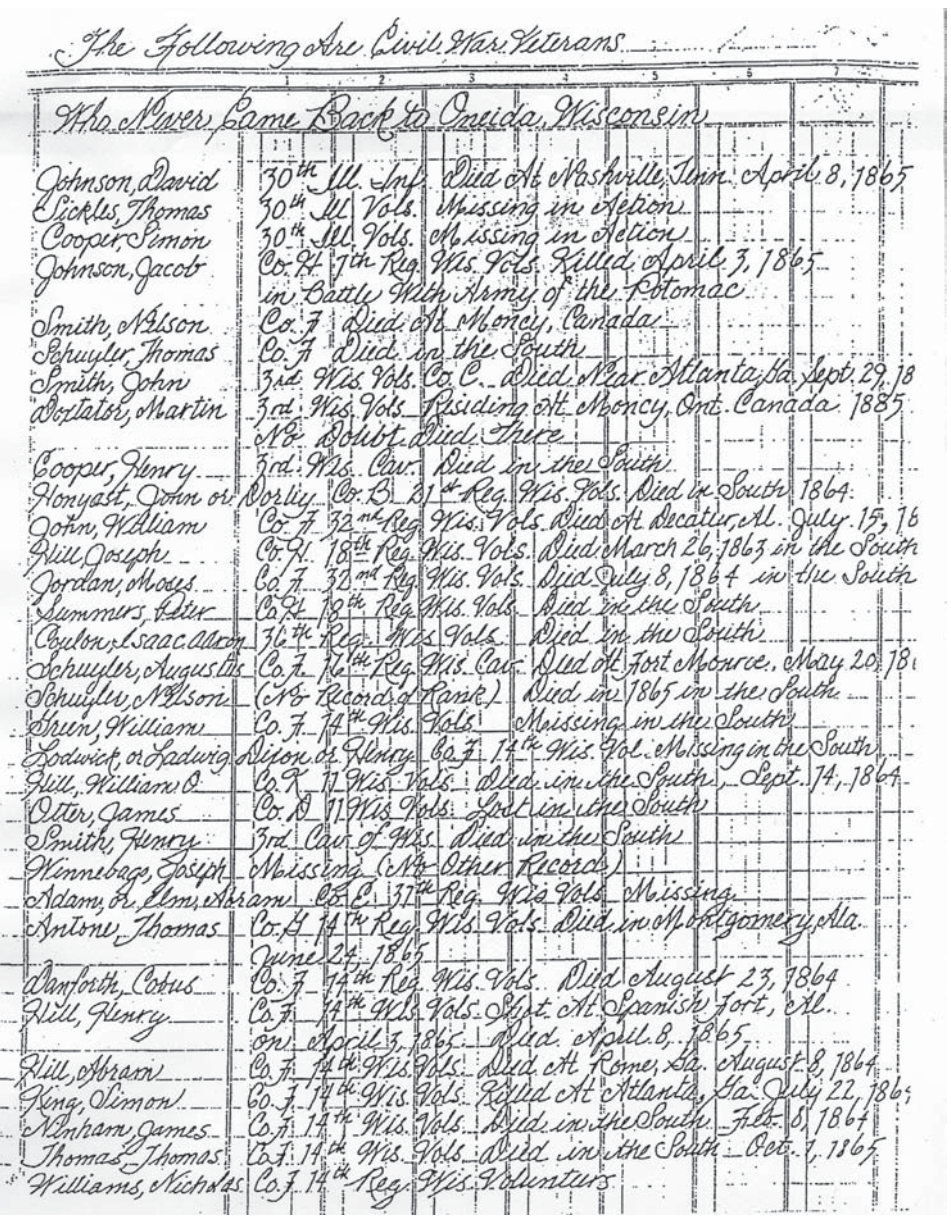
for no one knows but only He,
that treasure we have lost.
May the winds of love blow softly,
and whisper for you to hear,
that we'll always love and miss you,
and wish that you were here.

Loved and Missed by Jolene, Jacob, Jadin, and Jonah

With Deepest Thanks



I would like to send a heartfelt thank you for helping me and my family during this difficult time. Your thoughts, prayers, support, comfort, generosity, and donations were greatly appreciated. I would also like to send a deepest thanks to the Oneida Holy Apostles Church, Father Clarke, Deacon Heckel, Ryan Funeral Home, Aurora Hospital, Oneida Singers, and the kitchen crew with all their help.

A very special thank you goes to Marlene, my dad's loving sister who was there at his side all through his illness. Her help, time, and generosity were greatly appreciated more than words can ever express. Also a special thanks to the pallbearers, all the visitors my dad had while in the hospital as well as in the nursing home, all those who contributed beautiful flowers, Lois Powless a true friend, his son Bruce, his daughter Dawn & grandchildren, his remaining sisters Catherine, Patricia, and Sandra, my dad's in-laws, Judy, Carol, Karen, Betsy, and nieces/nephews, and to all my friends. Thank you all for your love and support, you helped me through a very tough time in my life.

With heartfelt thanks,
Danny Silas
